"Mart Downes came home from New York and stopped the same evening with Marilyn Freeman. What has happened, Jeanne? I thought you and Mart were going to be married?

So Mart, the boy who despised wealth, had married it. Jeanne smiled bitterly. He must have known he was going to marry Marilyn, but he hadn't the courage to tell Jeanne. She realized now that he had been evasive with her, not on account of Bryan, but because he was planning to marry Marilyn. And before he had to deny his engagement to Jeanne Miss Hilton he ran away with another girl so that the gossips in the little town would think that Jeanne had been jilted. But what people thought mattered little to Jeanne. It was only for her mother that she minded.

When she finished reading the letter she curled up under the blankets and, tried to go back to sleep but it was impossible. It was the day before Christmas and only six weeks ago this day had meant more to her than anything ever planned before in her life. And in six short weeks everything had changed.

Cilly and Lance were together now and they would be happy. All during the time that it would take for Cilly to get well Lance would be with her, loving her, looking forward to the day when they could go away together.

And Mart and Marilyn. Even though Mart had scoffed at the rich, he had married the wealthiest girl in Elston. Marilyn had always loved him, and Jeanne did not doubt now that Mart loved her in return. His mother would be very happy at the way things had turned out.

And somewhere Bryan was packing today to leave for South America. He was glad that it had come true. It meant a promotion for him to be sent out of the country. And he was going away alone, leaving behind the girl who loved him.

"I'd like to say good-bye to you, Bryan," Jeanne said to herself wistfully. Why why didn't you ever give me a chance to explain? You are so proud ..... and it is your pride and my own that separated us."

Then suddenly she sat upright. Bryan was sailing on the Pioneer sometime in the afternoon. She could find out in the morning paper the exact time the ship would leave. And she could go down to see him even if they couldn't talk, even if he wouldn't speak to her, she could at least be let him see the face of him would bring a small grain of comfort.

"I will watch you as you go out of my life, Bryan," she whispered.

Jeanne walked slowly up the brownstone steps of the rooming house and opened the door into the front hall. Inside she shook the snow from her fair hat and rubbed her hands together to warm them. Her face was pinched and blue with the cold. For a frantic hour she had hunted all over the pier and the ship, but Bryan was not there. No one had heard of him. His name wasn't even on the passenger list of those sailing on the Pioneer.

"Perhaps he sailed three days ago," the purser had told her when she asked if Bryan Patterson was on board. "A ship left this week for South America."

So she had left the pier and come home, certain now that she would never see Bryan again.

In the dim light of the hall she could see some one standing in the doorway to the living room. It was a man in a heavy blue overcoat with a gray felt hat in his hands. The man was Bryan.

Jeanne's heart gave a terrific leap and then stood still. Bryan was there, standing motionless, his face white and drawn from the cold, but flushing slightly as he saw her. He must know that she still loved him, that she had no pride where he was concerned.

"Look at me, Jeanne. Did you think I was going away?"

His voice was disbelieving. He took a step forward.

"Did you care enough to see me off," he went on, "even though you knew I was going to be married?"

He was standing close to her now and Jeanne turned her eyes up to meet his.

For a moment she was silent and then in a faltering voice she said, "I have something to tell you, Bryan, but I'm not going to be married today."

Bryan bent his head so that his face almost touched hers.

"But I heard that you were, Jeanne. Sandra told me yesterday that during Lance Larkin and I don't believe she was lying."

"She wasn't lying. I thought I would marry him but I couldn't go through with it. I didn't love him, and he was really in love with another girl. He is going to marry her."

Bryan bent his head so that his face almost touched hers.

"Do you mean that?" he demanded, quick tears stinging her eyes.

"Is it wasn't money you wanted?"

"I never wanted money, Bryan—not a lot of it anyway. I wanted you to wait so that we'd have enough to be comfortable. I wanted to preserve our love. I was afraid poverty would spoil it."

"Why didn't you wait for me?" he demanded. "When I went away on that business trip you never told me out leaving word for me."

"I didn't get your message, and when you didn't call I thought.... oh, Bryan .... I was afraid you regretted loving me. It was because no other only since last Christmas and it was love at first sight. Something made me think you had changed your mind. She said first love never lasted."

"Oh, my darling."

He bent close to her, his lips touching her golden hair. "My little darling, how could I ever regret loving you?" he murmured in a shaken voice. "I went to Sandra's apartment the day I met you that night to find out if you hadn't known I'd been ill. I was sure Sandra would tell you."

"But, Bryan," Jeanne protested, "I went to see you when you were ill. Sandra was there. She said no one was allowed to see you."

Bryan's lips twisted bitterly. "She was there only once. She told the man at the desk and the doctor that she was my sister. That is how she got through to see me, but I told the nurse never to let her in again."

Jeanne pressed her small hands against the lapels of his coat.

"But why didn't you call today?"

He looked down at her with an adoring smile. "I postponed it for a week, hoping that something would happen!" he said triumphantly. "And I was right! I couldn't believe that you and I were not meant for each other; I had to wait to be sure that you were really going to marry Lance Larkin — that you had discarded our love."

She pressed her soft cheek against his. "I couldn't do it, Bryan. Until yesterday I thought I could marry him. Without you, it seemed the only thing left for me after I quit my job, but suddenly yesterday afternoon I realized that I couldn't go through with it. You were the only man for me. I'd rather have been lonely, having the memory of you, than be a wife to a man I could not love."

They were interrupted then by the suddenly the door came down the hall from the back of the house.

"Oh, there you are, Miss MacDonald," Park said. "I was wondering whether you were in. This box of flowers came for you a while back."

"Thank you." Jeanne took the square green box.

"Have you decided when you'll be leaving. There's a young man wants the room if you're going away."

Jeanne turned to Bryan with a smile. "She won't want the room after today," he said to the woman. "You see we are going to be married."

The woman stared at them. "My! I'm sure I'm glad to hear it," and from them, shaking her head.

"She can't keep track of your boy friends," Bryan said to Jeanne with a choking smile.

"She really going to be married today?" Jeanne asked breathlessly.

"Yes, I have the license. I've had it for a long while. We'll drive out to Elston this afternoon and find a minister who will be willing to spare a few minutes on Christmas Eve."

Jeanne put her arms around him in a fierce hug. "I'm so happy," she cried, "you haven't even looked at your flowers!"

"Oh, I'd forgotten them," he said, untying the tape.

Inside the box under the waxy paper lay a bouquet of gardenias, tied with white satin ribbon. She looked up into the card that was tucked under the paper and read it aloud to Bryan:

"We want you to share in our happiness. Cilly and Lance."

Bryan's face was very solemn as she turned to Bryan. "It was sweet of them to send you flowers," "I'm awfully glad they are happy."

Bryan drew her down on the couch beside him.

"We must make our plans now. First we'll get our license. Then—no, first we'll be married," he said, laughing.

"Perhaps we'd better have dinner first," she said, dimpling.

"I'm afraid we might have known it. You are hungry. All right, we'll have dinner first."

"All the place we met last Christmas Eve," she interrupted him.

He nodded. "And we'll be married. We've got to call your mother, too. She must think that I'm getting a son in the family. And perhaps next week we can drive up to see her."

He bent forward to kiss Jeanne. But suddenly Jeanne sang and he straightened abruptly.

"Miss MacDonald," Jeanne called to the landlady who was coming down the hall.

Park picked up the receiver.

"It's Aunt Cecile," she whispered to Bryan and then she asked the old lady, "How is Cilly?"

"Much better. She and Lance were married this afternoon. Of course she can't get up for several days but they wanted the ceremony anyway."

"I'm so glad," Jeanne said with shining eyes. "I know they'll be happy."

"And how about you, little Jeanne?"

"I have a secret to tell you," Jeanne said. "This evening I am going to be married."

"Jeanne!" Oh, my dear child. Don't tell me that young man has finally come to his senses."

Jeanne laughed. "Yes, and so have I."

"Let me talk to him. He's there, isn't he?"

Jeanne handed the receiver to Bryan. "She wants to speak to you." Bryan talked for a few minutes to the aunt, Jeanne watched him, an adoring smile on her lips. She thought now that she had never been so happy. All the heartbreak they had known through it swelled now that they were together again.

Bryan turned away from the telephone. "She won't hear of our going out into the country to be married. If we will agree she wants to have the ceremony up at the Barrington apartment, with a little party afterwards. She is very fond of you, darling."

"That would be lovely, Bryan. She will be awfully disappointed if we refuse her."

And after he told Aunt Cecile that they would be at the apartment at seven o'clock he turned over by the stairs and lifted Jeanne to her feet.

"Oh, my little girl," he whispered. "My Christmas girl. We'll never be lonely again. You'll still be my Christmas bride, and next week we'll sail on our honeymoon."

"Darling," she said, "I've been so long, darling," he murmured brokenly. "Said, "I'm sorry, so terribly."

Jeanne raised her glowing face to meet his tender kiss.

"THE END."

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

TALKING out-of-town to Daddy when he goes away on business is really no novelty to Patsy and Donny. Bob Watson always makes a point of telephoning home each night. And what rivalry there is to be the first to let him hear that happy, "Hello, Daddy"!

It's so comforting for Bob and Muriel too, to be together each evening. Of course, Bob always calls just after seven when the night rates begin . . .

Low Night Rates begin every evening at seven, and apply ALL DAY SUNDAY!

67 YEARS AGO
THE DAILY ONTARIO WAS BORN

It's a long, long trail, looking backward. That goes for newspapers as well as for men. Let's pause for a moment and see how far we have come . . .

The first issue of the Daily Ontario was printed 67 years ago. That was on March 26, 1870. It was printed on a flat-bed steam press (quite a wonder in its day, too.) Copy for that first issue was written in pencil and set by hand. There wasn't a typewriter, a telephone or a linotype machine in the Ontario office.

Our first issue makes fascinating reading today. It is like a history book vividly written in the present tense. Burning questions, long forgotten, come to life as you scan through the close-packed pages. The "new" buildings, many still standing and in use. Front Street, a dust trough in summer, a mud hole in winter"—its paving in 1914 filled a good many columns.

Politics were taken strenuously in those days when the infant Daily Ontario was born and strong language was used in editorials and "Letters to the Editor", in strong contrast to the independence displayed today by both paper and public.

Those were the days when the "pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow" was sought assiduously by many in Hastings County and many promising prospects uncovered in Marmora, Madoc, Elzevir and Humgerford, while "El Dorado" was a magnet for fortune hunters.

In 1870 the Red River Rebellion made news and Louis Riel was "Front Page."

First advertisers in the Daily Ontario of 1870 included:

G. C. Holton & Co., dry goods, carpets, etc.

L. W. Yeomans & Co., druggists.

George Ritchie & Co., dry goods, etc.

James W. Dunnett dry goods and groceries, known as "The Glasgow Warehouse."

Nathan Jones, dress goods, etc.

C. V. Bogart, shoes.

J. A. M. Gilbert, sash and door factory.

Louis Roenigk, undertaker.

Robertson & Henry, dry goods.
Mrs. Membery Millinery.

J. C. Holden, chemist and druggist.

Brown & St. Charles, carriage mfgs.

Walter Fanning, livery stable

W. Dickens, refreshment rooms, wedding cakes, groceries, etc.

G. S. Tickell, furniture, undertaker, etc.

Conger Bros. teas, spices and coffees.

J. S. Mendell hatters.

After 67 years the Daily Ontario (now Ontario Intelligencer) wears its years lightly. We feel that these are good times to live in. We look forward confidently to a greater Belleville and to a future that will offer us opportunities for public service as yet unsuspected.

Many interesting happenings affecting the growth and prosperity of Belleville and Canada occurred during these 67 years of daily newspaper history, all duly recorded in this newspaper. The Weekly Ontario Chronicle goes back to 1837, one hundred years, while the Weekly Intelligencer dates even farther back.

ELDORADO

Eldorado— Regular monthly W.I. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. L. Robinson with seventeen members and eight visitors present. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Fleming. The minutes of last meeting were read by the secretary. Most of the members responded to roll call which was "Something I Have Read and Enjoyed". The motto for the month was "To Be Free You Must Obey the Laws of Nature". Current Topic was Legislation with a paper on laws pertaining to women and children. The business part was followed. Letters from the Dept. and Mr. Wilson were read in connection with planning a Field Day and also an invitation to all members to attend Achievement Day at Shirley. Plans for Field Day will be made at the next meeting. The short course in Home Utilization of Wool has been applied for. The convener for each programme was named responsible for current events each month. Mrs. Chambers asked the members to write Mrs. Alger Peel, a patient member, who is ill in Nichols Hospital in Peterboro. The programme followed Mrs. Bailey acting as chairman.

"Home on the Range" was sung, Mrs. Albert Rumpy played. Mrs. (Dr.) Carman read a splendid paper on Legislation, touching on many laws which are too often overlooked. Mrs. Gawley then read a paper on "Making The Will". Mrs. J. Jumper gave a monologue entitled "Ma's Version of a Picnic". Mr. Gawley then discussed advice, wills and regulations with us. Also music in the schools was considered important in a discussion led by Mrs. S. Carman.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and assistants for the month, namely Mrs. J. Rumpy, Mrs. S. Carman, Mrs. J. Gawley, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. H. Parnell.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Eldorado and Union W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. George Robinson with eight present including visitors. The meeting opened with quiet hour, followed by the worship period by the President. The Bible Lesson was read by Mrs. G. Robinson, Mrs. Nickle, Annie Holmes, Mrs. L. Robinson, Mrs. J. Rumpy. The Devotional Leaflet was read by Mrs. Harvey. Readings were given by Miss Annie Holmes, Mrs. Geo. Robinson and by Mrs. L. Robinson. The study book talk was taken by Mrs. F. J. Nickle on "Non-Anglo Saxons in Canada", followed by a solo "Our Sunset Song" by Mrs. L. Robinson. A short business period was conducted by the president. The treasurer's report which showed $26.56 raised for this quarter, $36.50 was sent to the Presbyterial treasurer. Both these reports were approved. The offering amounted to 60c and flower fund 16c. It was decided to hold a "Corn Supper" some time in August. Arrangements were made that the next meeting to take the form of a "Pot Luck Dinner". The meeting closed with prayer. A dainty lunch of ice cream and cake was served by the hostess and her assistants. A vote of thank was moved to the hostess.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 13—(AP)—Stocks wavered in today's quiet market session and many of the leaders stepped back fractions to around 3 points. Volume dwindled appreciably on the decline. Near the final hour quotations were down near their bottom levels. Transfers were about 800,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, July 13—(CP)—Mining shares tightened up in the afternoon on the Toronto exchange today adding to the early moderate gains and the Western Oils also chalked up higher prices in fairly trading. Base Metals lagged and the Industrials closed irregularly higher. Volume was the best of several sessions. Kerr-Addison was the feature issue of the day with more than 30,000 shares on a rise of nearly 30 cents to 2.20.

Trailing Kerr - Addison, Moneta turned over in heavy volume on a gain of 4 cents to 1.15 cents. Pickle Cr. 585 Crow 176 Teburn 940 Venturas 750 W. Amulet 398 Wr. Hargreaves 836 Ymir 24. Jellicoe 107 Giffins 35 Kerr Add. 260

WHEAT FUTURES UP FIVE CENTS

Traders Believe Wheat Is Heading For $1.50 Bushel

Winnipeg, July 13.—(CP)— All wheat futures skyrocketed on the first cent allowable limit on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today behind pressure of 1,000,000 bushels of export business in Canadian wheat and heavy buying movement support. Wheat closed 5 cents higher, July at 21.56 1-2, October 21.43 and December 21.39.

Buying from all sources in view of strong outside markets and revival of export demand for wheat and rye started the July and rye prices again heading toward the $1.50 a bushel mark.

July rye established a new 12-year high at $1.30 9-4 bushel, more than a cent above any wheat future, while July oats made a seasonal high at 70 cents a bushel.

Good demand in cash grains followed continued unfavorable crop growing conditions in North America while Liverpool cables indicated unsettled feeling regarding Argentina's lack of moisture and lower estimate for wheat in Danubian countries.

SEARCH TURNS TO NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 13—(CP) Search for the person who killed Edward Kassiver, Port Erie taxi driver, spread to Niagara Falls today with the finding of a .38 revolver in a yard on Ombard Street. Two men, found asleep in a car near where the gun was found, were held on vagrancy charges. They gave the names of Anthony E. Smith 23, and Albert Marrone, 25, both of Niagara Falls, N.Y. Arraigned before Magistrate J. B. Hopkins they were remanded for a week in custody.

Board Room Gossip

(As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Gossip appearing in the financial pages of the daily press comments on the change of public sentiment that occurred last week the impression seeming to be that now that all the bad news has been made known, better times are ahead. It is to be hoped that the labor troubles prevalent across the line do not spread to this country, where a much saner attitude between capital and labor exists.

It will be interesting to watch developments at Consolidated Paper where a strike has been called. Up to the present, any labor disturbances have been of a temporary and minor character and it is to be hoped that the Consolidated Paper strike will also be amicably adjusted in short order. From the action of the market, it would seem as if investors are not unduly alarmed over the situation.

The easiness in the shares of the farm implement companies can be attributed to the poor wheat prospects in Western Canada.

Royalite Oil Activities

During the next few weeks it is expected that the Royalite Oil Company will have one if not two new crude oil producers. Sterling Petroleum will put down the line which was reached at 6610 feet. Drilling at this well will recommence shortly. Insiders believe that No. 5 will be a duplicate of Sterling No. 4, which is now the largest producer in the field. If so—the additional revenue will provide most $1 a share in Royalite common. Richland No. 2 is another well that should become a producer of consequence before long—it is also a Royalite show.

Leitch 2nd Level Vein is Opened

Leitch Gold Mines, Beardmore district, is reported to have opened a new vein on the 250-foot level for length of 46 feet, with average value said to be $53 across 9 inches. The ore is continuing in both lines in the drift.

The new vein lies north of a vein which was encountered after driving some 300 feet east from the east end of the drift on No. 1 vein. The latest development may lie in as the same occurrence and lies just north of the general northerly easterly of the first vein.

Drifting east and lower horizons will be put out after the vein is more developed on the upper level, as it is believed considerable dead work will be eliminated if the vein extends back toward the shaft.

HORSES KILLED IN PASTURE FIELD

Animals Owned By Richard Kilpatrick, Marmora, Struck By Bolt

Marmora, (Special)—Two horses belonging to Richard Kilpatrick of Marmora Township, each in a field adjacent field were killed by lightning on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Kilpatrick himself sustained a heavy loss as the animals were insured. Singularly a team belonging to Charles Leahey were pasturing in the same vicinity at the same time and were unhurt. These horses were insured.

BOLTED IN CELLS, TWO MEN BOLT

Gananoque, Ont., July 13 (CP)— Two men escaped from Gananoque police cells last night where they were being held on charges of infractions of the Liquor Control Act, but were later apprehended in the town and are being held for trial.

Investigation by the police showed that the men after being put in the cells were not secured with a lock and chain, instead the doors were pushed closed but with the lock had not been put in place. It is claimed the men cut their friends from Brockville pushed the bolt over, after entering the police station, when the policemen were out, and let the two out.

ACTRESS DEFIES COLD TO APPEAR ON STAGE

Dennis, Mass., July 13 (AP)—Miss Margaret Anglin, widely-known actress formerly of Ottawa, Ont., today was determined to appear at the Cape Playhouse despite an attack of laryngitis which held up the theatre's opening for the first time in eleven years.

Miss Anglin suffered a cold Sunday. It developed into laryngitis yesterday and she was unable to appear in the premier of "Marriage Is Proposed" by Robert Wallsten, New York playwright. However, friends said she would be ready when the curtain went up tonight.

Peiping Story Says Peace Negotiations Under Way

London, July 14. (AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today he had grave misgivings over the developments of the "consultation with the governments of the United States and France" on the Chinese-Japanese crisis. His consultation was on the question "generally" he said.

Peiping, July 14 (AP)—Peace negotiations are under way at Peiping and the Japanese force said today, to settle the North China crisis without compelling the National Government at Nanking.

The conferees were Chinese Hopei-Chahar Political Council officials and Japanese military authorities.

No more demands will be made upon the Chinese over the peace terms during the Peiping negotiations the Japanese informant said.

Japan Asks Withdrawal.

He indicated that Japan now asks only for withdrawal from Peiping of Chinese troops from the Wanping-Meien area, retribution for damages and suppression of activities of so-called anti-Japanese elements and a campaign against Communism in China.

The negotiations "capable of settlement of the whole North China situation," the Japanese informant said, are going on between the Nanking government's announced determination to recognize no agreement effected locally.

Conversations Initiated.

Paris, July 14 (CP)—France was reported today to have initiated conversations with the British Foreign Office in an effort to obtain the co-operation of the United States in settling the dispute between China and Japan.

Foreign Office sources said the French Ambassador at London, Charles Corbin, had been instructed to exchange views with the British Foreign Office with a view toward close Franco-British-American cooperation.

French official quarters said France had instructed her Ambassador at Tokyo to inquire into the situation and ask Japan specifically what are her aims in North China.

Surprise Feared.

Surprises may result from the clash in Peiping between Chinese under the Tokyo nor the Nanking government has complete power to deal with the situation, Pertinax said in the Echo de Paris.

Diplomacy has few means of action, this noted commentator added, between the powerful and enlightening army in Japan and ardent popular agitation in China.

Tokyo, July 14 (AP)—Talk of war continued to depress the Tokyo stock exchange today.

Cotton spinning shares dropped 11 yen ($3.15); silks, 6 yen (1.71); rayons, 8 yen ($1.43); munitions, two yen (57 cents); and other shares from 3 to 5 yen ($1.43).

China's Demands

Tokyo, July 14.—(AP)—China demanded today Japan end the North, China crisis by evacuating her troops from the battle area west of Peiping and the movement of reinforcements to the front. The Japanese Government rejected the demand.

The Government's rejection came while all the forces of Japan were being mobilized as replacements for the troops already on the battle area numbers to North China where Chinese and Japanese have been fighting since July 7.

Intervention Opposed

Previously a government spokesman had said bluntly Japan unalterably opposed any foreign intervention to settle the increasing crisis in Sino-Japanese affairs.

Heavy guards were established about important factories, reservoirs, bridges, railroads, munitions works and army and navy arsenals to protect them from an attack. Secret police were assigned to special duty to safeguard all foreigners. Almost overnight the whole face of Japan became electrified with the thought the activities of the Emperor's north China army might bring war.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Parachuting! Parachutes are very useful devices. It is said that they were first suggested by Da Vinci; but Hooke, the inventor-artist, Leonardo da Vinci, who lived of his ideas regarding them. The best parachutes are made of silk and get a combination of light weight and small size. In operation they depend upon the resistance of the air against their silk and which average 24 feet in diameter. If a man drops from the air without a parachute, his limiting velocity is about 1,100 feet and is after falling 1,100 feet and is 119 miles per hour. But with a parachute the falling speed in still air is about the same as a leap from a be cut down inch table. He should open his chute as soon as he leaves his ship and before he is 250 feet above the ground.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, July 14 (CP)—Thunder is high over Quebec and the country to east Ontario, but the Mackenzie valley while depressions are centred over the northwest of the Prairies, over Hudson Bay, and to the south of Nova Scotia and Banks. Moderate to heavy rains have occurred in many parts of Alberta and light showers in Western Saskatchewan while in eastern parts of the west the weather has been fair. Showers have occurred in southern and Superior region and southwestern Ontario.

Moderate southerly to east to southeast winds; cloudy with showers and thunderstorms in many districts tonight and on Thursday.

Northern Ontario—Moderate variable winds; cloudy today and Thursday with showers or thunderstorms in many districts.

Bennett Prepares To Return Home

LONDON, July 14.—(CP Cable)—R. B. Bennett, Canadian Conservative leader, left Waterloo Station today for Southampton where he will board the Empress of Canada.

Looking rather tired but in good humor, the former Prime Minister said: "You can say my health is fair, only I'm tired and I'll make a statement on my return to Canada. I intend consulting my political allies. I have a lot of work to do after arriving and many people to see."

The conservative leader was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. A. D. Herridge.

2 PILLION RIDERS DIE IN TORONTO

One Death Result of Skid And Other of Collision

Toronto, July 15 (CP)—Walter Arkwell, 23, Toronto, died in hospital today; second victim of motorcycle accidents in Toronto during the last 24 hours.

Arkwell was catapulted to the pavement when the machine he was riding skidded and overturned. James French, 30, driving the motorcycle, suffered serious injuries and hospital officials said he was growing weaker.

Gerhard Schaliesein, 19, was killed while riding behind Ronald Carney, 18, on the youth's motorcycle. The machine collided with a car being driven by Richard Freeman. Evelyn Wanless, 18, auto passenger, suffered facial lacerations.

ALBERT JACKSON, DESERONTO KILLED WHEN WALL FALLS

Played Hockey With Belleville Juniors Last Winter

TAKEN TO KINGSTON

With Don Gault Was Tearing Down Old Brick Wall

Albert Jackson, 18, centre ice star of the Belleville Junior O.H.A. team, died in Kingston General Hospital late Tuesday evening from injuries received on Tuesday afternoon when an old brick wall of the Glass Works factory at Deseronto collapsed burying Jackson beneath a shower of bricks. His companion Don Gault suffered from shock and painful bruises but was not seriously injured.

The two boys were engaged in dismantling the factory, when the accident happened. They had placed a dynamite charge under the whole and blown the base but the wall did not fall as expected. Spring closed the wall to ascertain the reason for the wall not falling, it collapsed, the explosion having the two boys under the debris. Willing hands soon extricated the young men from their perilous position and on learning that Jackson was seriously injured from concussion and internal injuries, he was rushed to Kingston hospital by Dr. W. W. Boyce, who attended. The young man succumbed to his injuries some time after his admittance. Dr. J. J. Robertson, Coroner for this district ordered an inquest and the preliminary hearing will take place Saturday, this afternoon and adjournment made for the final hearing until a later date.

Albert Jackson was a brother of Clayton and William Jackson who with Dempsie Wills of Deseronto formed the famous "kid line" of the Belleville Redmen intermediate "A" champions of the O.H.A. last season. Albert joined the ranks of the Belleville Juniors this winter and was a promising forward line player. He was the third in the family of his two famous brothers, having played for one season with the Belleville Intermediate Juniors, at which time that club won the junior championship of the Kingston and District Hockey League of 1936.

A quiet unassuming young man, Albert Jackson was respected by all who knew him and his considerable promise as a hockey player, which was realized, was keenly felt by the officials of the Belleville Juniors and fellow players who were associated with him during the past season.

DELUGE OF WATER FALLS IN WEST

In Some Places Miles of Railway Tracks Washed Out

Regina, July 14 (CP)—A deluge at Harptree, small farming centre 30 miles south of the International boundary in the heart of Saskatchewan's wheat growing area, washed out two miles of railway tracks yesterday as rains swept extreme southern areas of the province in hit-and-miss fashion.

Rain fell in an area stretching 150 miles from Assiniboia to Estevan but it hit only certain areas instead of the entire district.

At Harptree, 70 miles directly south of Moose Jaw, rails and ties in a two-mile stretch of Canadian National Railways tracks east of the community were washed out in a "cloud-burst" which dropped more than three inches of rain in a small area.

Two and a half inches fell also to the east at Weyburn, where streets filled and puddles left lying on the prairies after the rain, but the latter situation but all other crops in the district are being reported this year.

RUNAWAY HORSE KILLED AGAINST WINDOW

Windsor, Ont., July 14—(CP)—A milk wagon horse ran berserk today crashed into a plate glass window and was killed.

The heavy glass from the window of a drug store severed the horse's jugular vein and punctured its lung.

Russian Fliers Land After Longest Flight in History

Germans and Materials Camouflaged for Rebels

Charges Made by Manchester Guardian Today That Germans Leave as Tourists And Sportsmen

Manchester, July 14.—(CP-Reuts)—The Manchester Guardian reported today that German volunteers and important quantities of war material, including 15 armed Junkers, have reached Spanish Nationalist zones under varied forms of camouflage.

Pilots Disguised

"Considerable numbers of German volunteers have been proceeding to Spain this month and in June," the newspaper said, "they leave Hamburg as tourists or sportsmen but in reality are technicians, pilots and so forth, who are more needed in the rebel army than infantry units.

"The newly-arrived German volunteers are sadly recruited in Spain by their relatively untrained faces, since the Spanish sun in a week or two produces a deeper tan than the German sun normally produces.

"War material has been leaving and continues to leave Hamburg asnet to the rebel navy."

for Spain uninterruptedly. One of the Hamburg quays is popularly known as Franco Wharf.

"On the 9th of April an ostensibly Danish steamer left Hamburg for Spain with a cargo of airplanes, tanks and other war material including bombs that were packed in cases marked 'chocolate'.

Tricks Discovered

"A number of German steamers make the Spanish passage with changed names and under Central or South American flags. For example, the former Antilochus is now the Acme and flies the Panama flag. The former Schelwig is now the Marazon and flies the Peruvian flag.

"Fifteen trawlers have been converted and armed for war at the Hamburg yards. They have all left for Spain. Considering the weakness of the Spanish Navy, less than 15 armed German trawlers will be a very big asset to the rebel navy."

GEO. PECK DIES WHILE HAYING

Son of Thurlow Farmer Discovers Father Dead

Death came suddenly to George Peck, residence, 3rd concession of Thurlow Township, while working in a hay field Tuesday afternoon, July 13th, at three o'clock in the afternoon. His son, William A. Peck, was helping him in the harvesting and upon returning to the location where the work was being done, after being absent for a short time, found his father lying face downward upon the ground and life extinct.

Dr. J. J. Robertson, Chief Coroner, was summoned and after investigation decided that an inquest was unnecessary as death was due to a coronary thrombosis.

The late George Peck, who was in his 67th year, was born at Fuller, Huntingdon Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Peck. For some time he resided at Concession and for the past twenty years he had made his home in the 3rd concession of Thurlow Township. In religion he was a member of the Church of England and connected with Christ Church parish, Bellefield.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Emily Ashbury, one son, William A. Peck, at home; one sister Mrs. John Peck, Thurlow, and one son, on Peck, Thurlow, and one son, on brother Isaac Peck of Foam Lake, Sask.

The family will receive the sincere sympathy of their friends in their bereavement.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

DE COTEAUX PREFERS PENITENTIARY TERM

Hamilton, Ont., July 14 (CP) — Joseph De Coteaux, 19, was sentenced today to two years in Kingston penitentiary at his own request after he pleaded guilty to charges he had made the sentence two years definite and one indefinite in Burwash for assaulting a woman and aggravated assault.

An attempted suicide charge was not prosecuted. The aggravated assault charge arose from an attack on David Findlay, a guard at Burwash Ontario Hospital where De Coteaux was held two weeks ago for mental observation.

CIVIC LUNCHEON TENDERED ROGERS

Unemployment Reduced in Canada in Last Three Months

Toronto, July 14.—(CP)—A civic luncheon was tendered today to Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor and member of Parliament for Kingston. Many Liberal members of the Federal and Provincial Houses were among guests.

Controller Fred Hamilton suggested the luncheon recently. Mr. Rogers has been seeking a grant from the Labor Department for the "Work" program to improve parks and playgrounds here.

Before he left Toronto Mr. Rogers received a delegation from the Canadian Federation of Unemployed Associations who asked unemployment has been reduced month-by-month in Canada for the past three months, that the reduction in that time has been the greatest for any like period since 1924.

Crop conditions were proving a problem, Mr. Rogers observed.

"Drought has a tendency to intensify unemployment in the western cities," he said.

He said the comment regarding activities of the committee of Industrial Organization.

Japanese Steamer Flashes SOS Signal

San Francisco, July 14 (AP) — Steamship Nippon Maru, said to be the Japanese vessel Senkai Maru No. 1, which disappeared with a crew of 40 and a cargo of 6,000 tons of war supplies, was reported by the Pacific coast, in Honolulu and Japan.

Radio stations later announced its station had intercepted a message from a steamship operator at Ochiahi which broadcast the distress was "ended" at 8:15 a.m. But the station did not divulge what occasioned the SOS.

Foynes, Irish Free State, July 14—(AP)—The flying boat Pan-American Clipper, on the first leg of the day shortly before 1 p.m. (8 a.m. E.D.T.) completed the first leg of her return flight from Southampton to New York.

The clipper was expected to take off for Botwood, Newfoundland, tomorrow.

BRITISH VESSEL IS CAPTURED AT SANTANDER PORT

Announcement Raises Temperature of British Commons

BRITISH SHIPS WARNED

Laborites Demand Britain Refuse Belligerent Rights to Franco

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 14—(CP Cable)—"It may interest the House to know that a British ship was captured while attempting to enter Santander harbor."

This announcement by Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, made in a quiet voice, raised the temperature of the House of Commons almost to fever heat.

Labor members leaped to their feet again and again for a legal ruling on Britain's rights, but Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden refused to be drawn.

2 Mile Limit Law

The government insisted its position that naval protection would be given only to British ships built within the three-mile limit. Labor members said that warnings issued by the Admiralty to British merchantmen proceeding to Santander were unreasonable.

Clement Attlee, Labor leader: "Is it not a fact that commerce should come in and out of Santander and it is not a repetition of what happened in Bilbao when we took our information from France?"

Labor members cheered.

Duff Cooper paused and then replied: "I think the whole House to know that a British ship was captured while attempting to enter Santander harbor."

The unexpected reply raised a tumult from the Conservative back benches.

Labor benches roared indignation.

Duff Cooper Questioned

"What are you going to do about it?" one member shouted at Duff Cooper.

"Seeing what General Franco has been given certain belligerent rights will the First Lord tell us what the navy did to protect British shipping?" Attlee returned.

"Answer! Answer!" roared the Labor benches.

But before Duff Cooper could reply Commander Admiral Ernest Taylor, Conservative, rose to his feet with an angry demand as to whether Spain had the belligerent rights as the Valencia government and Britain knew it.

The House was in a storm with Labor members shouting "Answer! Answer!" and Conservative backbenchers cheering Taylor.

Duff Cooper replied that shipping Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Opposition Liberals, said the outstretched arm pointing to the Conservative benches, indignantly questioned: "Is it not intolerable that the capture of a British ship by the Valencia government should be greeted with hilarity?"

From the Labor benches came cheered. In the hubbub a voice from the Labor benches could be heard ironically: "Who rules the Union Jack?"

After the Speaker had restored order, Duff Cooper, replying to Sinclair, said: "The Spanish Admiralty had given no order to British ships but had given advice on how best to act when in territorial waters.

Duff Cooper had declined to give a legal ruling on the position of belligerent rights in territorial waters. But he thought a reasonable interpretation was that it would be made the practice of the position of British subjects on the Spanish coast. The British government did not undertake to protect British ships, which were not in mainland but it reserved the right to demand reparation if wrong were done then.

Province Not to Cut Relief Contributions

Toronto, July 14.—(CP)—Municipalities of Ontario were assured today that the province would not cut its contribution to the municipalities.

Word was given out, paying dollar for dollar and we have absorbed all the cuts that the Dominion has made. "We will continue with that policy no matter what Ottawa does."

He said the provinces was already beyond its estimated relief expenditure for the year.

Escaping Stream of Fuel Necessitates Landing At San Jacinto, Calif.

Transpolar Plane Touches Earth in Pasture Field

PLANE SURROUNDED

Aviators Unable to Speak English Met By Mountaineers

San Jacinto, Calif., July 14 (AP)—Three daring Soviet airmen landed in a pasture three miles west of here early today with a new long distance flight record established in an epochal flight across the North Pole from Moscow.

Reset by fog and a leaky gasoline tank, the trio ended their adventure at 6.27 a.m. P.S.T. (10:27 a.m. E.D.T.) after covering nearly 6,700 miles in slightly more than 62 hours.

The three-pilot Mikhail Gromoff, co-pilot Andrei Yumashoff and navigator Sergei Lanilin—said they had flown as far down the Pacific coast as San Diego but were forced by fog and retraced their course toward March Field, an army base only 25 miles from this mountain community.

Mountains Confusing.

The mountain range between San Diego and March Field was confusing to them, and they did not know just where they were when their gasoline tank sprang a leak.

The big ant type red monoplane, powered by a single huge motor, was brought down safely when the pasture was sighted.

The fliers were unable to speak English but through written notes prepared in advance in Moscow and signs they made known their first wants—a bath, food and sleep.

Guard Set About Plane.

They managed by signs to indicate that they did not have detailed maps of the location of March Field. A guard of local officers was organized about the plane to preserve intact particularly the photographic necessary to establish their record officially.

The gasoline tank was leaking a stream of fuel when the big monoplane was brought down at a point 90 miles east of Los Angeles.

San Jacinto mountains on the eastern edge of the San Jacinto Mountains, 25 miles from March Field, which the fliers evidently were attempting to reach.

U.S. Officer Greets Fliers.

The second transpolar flying expedition far exceeded the distance of the first which came down at Vancouver, Wash., from the Moscow-Portland flight of 5,288 miles.

Major Victor H. Stahn of the army flew here from March Field, greeted the fliers and took them aboard his plane bound for the army base.

Several ranchers saw the big red monoplane come to ground gracefully. They immediately telephoned to town.

Look Forces Landing.

Army officers indicated that the Russian fliers had run short and caused the forced landing.

The Soviet trio left Moscow at 2.22 Monday (9.22 p.m. E.S.T. Sunday). They passed over Rudolf Island, the last point of land between them and the North Pole, at 5.30 p.m. Monday, then battled snow and cyclonic winds before reaching the Arctic Circle for a little less than a day from Moscow.

On this phase of the flight the red-winged monoplane was flying at an altitude of 8,800 feet or above to escape ice. After passing the northernmost spot on the globe the airmen descended for the shores of Canada, 1,500 miles away.

Winds Favorable

Favorable winds swept the plane ahead of schedule, and last night it became known definite the objective, would be "beyond Oakland." An officially announced by the Kremlin, the flight was to be from Moscow to San Francisco or beyond.

The announced purpose of the flight was to "confirm again the possibility of regular communications inter-continentally by way of the North Pole." It served to demonstrate further the practicability of Soviet engineered and manufactured aircraft, as well as a striking attested by the successful Moscow to Vancouver, Wash. flight of Valeri Chekaloff, Georgi Baldukoff and Alex Baliakoff.

Gromoff, Co-pilot Yumoshoff and Navigator Danilen received permission from the Kremlin to make their flight after they had attended to set away with the Chekaloff-Baldukoff-Beliakoff very pedition. Their plane was not ready however, and had waited for the postponement until Sunday. Another Soviet expedition, headed by Sigismund Levanefsker, is scheduled to start from Moscow soon.

ANTHONY EDEN PRESENTS PLAN

Suggest Abolition of Naval Patrol on Spanish Coast

London, July 14 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden presented to the Non-Intervention Committee today on Great Britain's comprehensive plan for re-establishment of control of non-Spanish volunteers and foreign volunteers in the Spanish civil war.

He suggested abolition of the naval patrol and substitution of a system of observers to inspect land frontiers except Spanish port.

Thereafter control along the Franco-Spanish and Portuguese-Spanish borders would be restored.

Limited belligerent rights would be extended to both sides in the Spanish conflict by all the 27 nations in the Non-Intervention Committee.

Non-members of the committee would be asked to co-operate, and foreign volunteers would be withdrawn from both armies in Spain.

KING AND QUEEN ON STATE VISIT

Newport Wales in Gala Attire to Greet Their Majesties

Newport, Wales, July 14.—(CP-Cable)—King George and Queen Elizabeth began a two-day state visit to Wales today.

This town was in gala attire to greet Their Majesties, who were met by the Lord Lieutenant of Monmouthshire, Sir Henry Mather-Jackson. Then the King inspected a guard of honor from the Monmouthshire regiment while guns of the Royal Welch Fusiliers thundered a royal salute.

Their arrival here marked the start of the tour. His Majesty wore the undress uniform of an admiral of the Fleet. After a brief stay here the royal party left for Cardiff.

HEPBURN SILENT ON RACING CASE

No Comment on Possibility of Commission to Govern

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—While he would make no further comment on the possibility of appointment of a commission to govern racing in Ontario, Premier Hepburn said today that the government "would certainly reopen if it is legally possible" to change the exemption against Murray (Manny) Feder which, was dismissed by Magistrate Ellis.

The charge laid against Feder in connection with the alleged "fixing" of a race at Thorncliffe in June, 1935, was dismissed in Toronto police court last Thursday.

Clifford Magone, Acting Deputy Attorney-General, said he was obtaining a transcript of the evidence of the trial. Not until he has had an opportunity of going into the evidence will it be known whether or not the government will endeavor to launch an appeal.

Mythical 'Blue Land' in Ocean Tests British Coast Defences

Greatest British War Games in History To Be Staged

GAMES START FRIDAY

London, July 14 (AP)—Great Britain launched the most extensive coast defence exercise in her history today. The war games will reach a climax between midnight and 4 a.m. Friday when the anti-aircraft and coast defences around the western corner of England will be put to the "national emergency" test. Warships and the raid defences of a mythical "blue land"—for the purposes of the games considered to exist 600 miles out in the Atlantic—will attempt to wipe out important commercial ports and naval bases of Southampton, Plymouth, Portsmouth and Portland.

As dusk falls Friday night, the "blue land" fleet and air forces will launch a surprise attack. Only urgent telephone calls will be accepted while air raid warnings are being transmitted to naval, army and air headquarters.

Defensive aircraft have been advised to keep away from the "war area" but the Royal Air Force machines will fly without the usual navigation lights.

City and District News

BABY BITTERN FLIES INTO CAR WINDOW

Mr. R. W. Brown well known harbour goods dealer of this city has flown his car and found the latest in bird hikers.

Travelling from Rossmore to Bellleville this morning with the windows of his car open to the morning breeze, he was startled by a flurry of wings and beheld the big grey shape on the seat beside him in the machine.

Stopping to investigate he found a young bittern had entered in the course and becoming confused, had flown directly through the open window.

After exhibiting the bird to the Ontario Intelligencer, Mr. Brown released it in a nearby marsh.

BERNARD BOOMHOWER ESCAPES FROM JAIL

Ontario Reformatory officials last night informed Belleville police that Bernard Boomhower, Belleville, had escaped from the institution. Local police were asked to assist in the recovery of Boomhower, who is believed will attempt to return home while at large. Boomhower was convicted in the Belleville police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler last last spring, on charges of the theft of scrap iron and sentenced to serve an indeterminate sentence of two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory. Information as to how Boomhower succeeded in making his escape from the institution was not afforded the local police, however.

BOATMEN PREPARE FOR BIG REGATTA

Busy with paint brush and cleaning rags, boat owners of this city have been grooming their craft for the annual regatta which will be held in that town on July 31st. It is expected a large number of sailing craft of Belleville will take part in the races planned for that date. A number of power craft will also attend.

SNAPPING TURTLES TAKE LONG STROLLS

South ward residents have been puzzled during the past few days by the strange actions of numbers of particularly short-tempered snapping turtles and those who have been deserting the waters of the bay and harbor for wandering strolls through the city's lower busy streets. Unperturbed by traffic or pedestrians, the "snappers" make their way inward, clearing the way with threatening hisses and slow hisses. One youth this week-end got a not expiratory finger when it was clamped securely in iron jaws. It is believed the warmth of the recent weather has driven them from their natural elements.

COAL SALES ERB IN WARM WEATHER

Coal sales in the city have ebbed to the season's lowest point during the present continued period of warmth it is revealed by the fact that only about ten tons per day are being delivered by the city weigh scales. The figure contracts with a tonnage of between three and four hundred tons during the cool weather periods.

FREE REPLACEMENTS NOW BEING MADE

Replacement of the first of the faded car licence plates by the Ontario Department of Highways was made through the local office of Provincial License Inspector Fred Woolcock, Mr. Woolcock announced today.

Though several enquiries have been made regarding replacement of the faded plates all potential applicants have been referred by the office to the local Chief of Police for certification as to legibility. Announcement that plates had changed are thus forwarded to the Ontario Department when free replacements will be made.

CHARLES COCHRANE GIVEN CONTRACT

Mr. Charles Cochrane of the city has been awarded the contract for the painting of four buildings on the Agricultural Grounds owned by the Belleville Board of Parks Commission, and the lowest tenderer of twenty others, that had been submitted by local bidders for the work. Work was expected to commence today.

The same color scheme of cream and brown as previously will be used in the repainting.

LIBERAL EXECUTIVE MEET IN MARMORA

Members of the executive of the West Hastings Liberal Association under Thomas Laycock, president, were expected to meet in Marmora this afternoon for the purpose mainly of deciding on and naming a date for their convention at which a candidate will also be named to represent the riding at the next Provincial election.

The meeting is to be attended by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health and prominent sitting member.

Officers of the Bellville Liberal Association have also been invited to attend today's executive meeting.

Leaven's Plane Airworthy Board of Inquiry Finds

Authority to Carry Fares in Pass Moth Planes Withdrawn

WEATHER UNSETTLED

Ottawa, July 14. (CP)—Transport Minister Howe yesterday announced authority for the use of Pass Moth airplanes for carrying passengers for hire in Canada had been withdrawn.

The Minister's decision followed recommendation of Board of Inquiry into the crash June 21 at St. Mary's, Ont., in which pilot A. D. Leaven, Belleville, and two passengers, A. W. Ogden and C. M. Bechtel, Toronto, were killed.

Finding of the Board of Inquiry was set out in a statement today by Commander G. P. Edwards, Chief of Air Services, in part as follows: (1260)

The report of the Board states that the pilot was licensed and in good physical condition, that the aircraft had been certified as airworthy on the date of the flight and was not overloaded.

The evidence showed that the weather was unsettled with rough flying conditions and that the aircraft dived and at times did low altitude and broke up in the air.

While this particular type of aircraft has had failures in the air under similar circumstances in other parts of the world, they have, on the other hand, flown hundreds of thousands of miles without accident.

Auto-Railers in City Thursday, First Units Bought by C. N. R.

Both Passenger and Freight Units, Also Type of Vehicle Which Travels on Rail or on Highway—Units on View.

The people of Belleville will have an opportunity to inspect the first "auto-railers" to be put into service in Canada tomorrow, Thursday, July 15, when two of these units purchased by the Canadian National Railways will be on display in this city. Announcement to this effect was made in Montreal today by Mr. Walton, chief of Transportation for the National System. These vehicles, which are the latest development in railroading can be used either on the highway or on the rail. They can transferred from one to the other by a simple mechanism controlled from the driver's seat. The transfer from road to rail or vice versa can be completed within one minute's time.

Mayor Adhemar Raynault of Montreal and S. J. Hungerford, chairman and President of C.N., participated in a demonstration run here Monday this week. The unit was transferred from the highway to the rail line in 40 seconds. Both the passenger and freight units will be shown in Belleville. They will arrive at 12 noon Standard Time on Thursday and will be transferred to the railway and driven around the principal streets of the city. Afterwards they will be placed on exhibition until departure, time 3.30 p.m.

H. C. Rochester, Supt. of Passenger traffic service and W. J. Doherty, Asst. Supt. of the Division will accompany the auto-railers.

The auto-railers will probably come down Station and Front Streets and be on view possibly on the market or nearby, it was stated at the Superintendent's office today.

FRED B. SMITH, LEADING CITIZEN WIDELY MOURNED

Prominent Hardware Merchant Dies Public Man Till Many Months

NATIVE OF CITY

Frederick B. Smith passed away at his residence, 184 William Street, early this Wednesday morning, after an illness of many months' duration, and to numerous intimate friends and acquaintances in this city his death has brought sincere feelings of regret.

Mr. Smith, who was born at Belleville and had resided here all his life with the exception of a period of sixteen years. His parents were late Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Smith; For many years he had been engaged in the hardware business and he enjoyed the confidence and high esteem of all who knew him. He possessed a friendly disposition and attracted and held many friendships.

When the Belleville Rotary Club was formed, Mr. Smith became a charter member and had been a popular member since that time. He served the city as an efficient member of the Board of Education from the year 1923 to the close of the year 1931. He was also a member of the Belleville Club, the Bay of Quinte Country Club, and a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce since its inception. Fraternally he was a member of Moira Lodge No. 11, A.F. & A.M. His religious faith with prominent and faithful member of Bridge Street United Church and occupied a place on the Trustee Board and the Quarterly Official Board in connection with the church. At one time he served as Fire Warden for a term of years.

Mr. Smith was interested in sports and lovingly followed open fishing and hunting. With fellow anglers and hunters he was a great favorite. For a time Mr. Smith and Fred Smith will be sincerely pleased to know of friend, acquaintances and business associates.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Ella Lingham of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Arthur Reid of Belleville.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

D. A. Aldridge Pleads Guilty to 17 Charges in Guelph

David Arthur Aldridge, wanted in many parts of Ontario on charges of breaking, entering and theft, pleaded guilty to seventeen such charges in the Guelph police court recently, sentence being postponed until subsequent charges were laid in other parts of the province.

Three charges of breaking and entering and committing the indictable offence of theft were laid against Aldridge by the Provincial Police of District No. 4 in Belleville yesterday. Warrants for Aldridge's arrest were recently issued in Belleville charging him with entering the homes of Charles Vanpelt, Thurlow Township, Clarence D. Nicholson, Thurlow Township and Harry Ryan, Thurlow Township, and committing the indictable offence of theft.

The informations were today sent to Guelph where all charges will be laid against the accused man, thus saving the Province considerable expense in transporting him to the Province for trial. Aldridge is alleged to have entered the homes of farmer bachelors during their absence and stealing valuables therefrom. He has been wanted in this section for some months, Provincial Police stated today.

DR. G. S. BARTON TO OPEN FAIR

Deputy Minister of Agriculture to be Honored

Belleville Fair this year will have as its distinguished guest Dr. G. S. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion who will officially open the Fair, it was announced today by Secretary R. H. Ketcheson, following receipt of the acceptance of the request for his presence tendered by the Board.

Despite the wave of heat the officials of the Fair Board have been working strenuously during the past several weeks in an effort to have arrangements completed in time for the annual event. Today well over 200 membership cards were being mailed to members throughout the Province, while one of the heaviest mailings of prize lists have been sent out throughout Ontario and Quebec.

Due to the formation of the "little racing circuit," which this year comprises Belleville, Napanee, Bellleville, Kingston and Toronto, one of the best racing programs ever attempted is expected to be held in connection with the Fair.

Ottawa Traveller Fatally Injured

Bowmanville, July 14.—Russell Anderson, 35-year-old commercial traveller of Oshawa, died in hospital here last night shortly after an accident on No. 2 Highway, three miles west of Bowmanville. The automobile collided with a transport truck, wrecking his machine.

George Hart, 23, of Bowmanville, a passenger in the Anderson car, was hurt about the head and face. His injuries are not serious.

According to Cecar Wall of 138 Willow Street, Oshawa, driver of the truck, Anderson swerved his car in such a manner as to cause a collision unavoidable. The automobile hit the trailer of the transport, which was filled with a mixed freight.

CYCLIST KNOCKED FROM HIS MACHINE

Police Allege 'Hit And Run' Motorist Cause of Injuries to D. Joss

David Joss, 409 Coleman St., Canadian National Railway employee, was struck by an alleged hit and run motorist on Dundas street from his bicycle sustaining severe injuries near the C.N.R. coal chutes in Trenton Thursday shortly after midnight last night.

Joss, it is reported, had only came off duty a few moments before, being employed at the C.N.R. coal chutes. He was riding his bicycle westerly on the aforesaid occasion of Thurlow when an automobile struck him and knocked the machine into the gravel road, where he sustained injuries to his left knee and thigh, and suffered facial abrasions, when he struck the gravel road. The driver of the car failed to stop at the scene of the accident, police reported. The bicycle was badly damaged also.

Mr. Joss was recovered by fellow-employees and conveyed to a nearby building where first aid and medical attention were given, later returned home. Provincial and city police are investigating the accident, but found no trace of the alleged hit an drun driver, although a portion of the running board of the vehicle was found at the scene of the impact, police revealed today.

TRENTON GAINS NEW INDUSTRY

Hill Steel Company of Hamilton Leases Trenton Plant

With the leasing of the Chemical Products Company by the Hill Steel Construction Company of Hamilton, Trenton has secured a new industry which will employ about 25 men engaged in the manufacturing of fabricated steel products, it was stated in Hamilton, it had operated on Hamilton contracts for steel firms for two years.

This summer it had decided to go into production and arrangements had been made for the leasing of larger space. Neighbors, however, protested against a possible noise nuisance and restrictions were immediately imposed. It was then decided to locate elsewhere.

The company expects to employ 25 men when full production is in force.

POLICE BLOTTER

While backing into the curb on East Bridge Street, near the Post Office, yesterday afternoon, a truck driven by C. G. Shier, Tamworth, collided with a city electric light standard, loosening the light bulb and shade, which crashed to the pavement and broke. Sergeant Harman investigated and found the matter to be purely accidental, no damage being done to the iron standard. Mr. Shier agreed to make restitution in the matter of damage to the bulb and shade, however. The rack of the truck struck the standard as Mr. Shier was backing into a parking position.

Russell Post, 82 Foster Ave., reporting the theft of his bicycle to local police authorities yesterday. The lad had parked his bike on Front Street, but upon his return the bicycle, a red colored Crescent, was missing.

Chevrolet police requested assistance in the possible recovery of a Chevrolet coupe, bearing Ontario license plates number 209-X. The vehicle was stolen from Oshawa last evening.

Five transients were afforded sleeping quarters at the police station last night, there being a decided decrease in their numbers throughout the province in general this summer, police intimated today.

Tips for Dog Owners

Car owners accustomed to taking Fido on a trip in their automobiles only to experience the annoyance of having the upholstery of the car scratched and torn by the sharp claws of the animal bounding from side to side in the car, can take a tip from one dog owner who passed through the city yesterday in a machine bearing United States license plates.

The large dog which lolled through the open window were on its pate heavy nillein mush in the style of boxing gloves, it was observed by Constable Wm. Evans.

The height of comfort was reached, however, by another animal also from south of the border, which peered through the windows of a machine with five pairs of human eyes and dust by regular sun goggles securely affixed.

MILL SUBSIDY TO MUNICIPALITIES MAY BE INCREASED

Premier Hepburn Gives This Assurance to Deputation

AGAINST SUGGESTION

Mayors Ask Government Assume Cost of Hospitalization

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—The Ontario Government may increase the present one-mill subsidy to municipalities, Premier Mitchell Hepburn yesterday told a deputation of Ontario mayors who suggested the province take over the entire cost of hospitalization. He also advised the municipal representatives he expected the Dominion Government to reduce further its relief grants to provinces.

The Premier declared hospitalization control should be left with the municipalities. "I think it would be better for us to increase the mill subsidy," he said, declaring the Government would consider that suggestion.

Beyond Relief Budget

Letters from Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Minister of Labor, have indicated the Federal authorities are considering a further reduction in relief grants to provinces, Premier Hepburn said. "We are running beyond our relief budget now, due entirely to previous cuts by them. Now, apparently we are due for another one. The Dominion has absorbed no cuts made by the Dominion since the first one, and we hope to absorb the last one, if it is to be declared.

(At Ottawa it was said further cuts in grants to provinces were expected for the remainder of the fiscal year ending March 31, 1938. Parliament voted about $19,500,000 for this fiscal year, about one-third less than the $29,000,000 voted for the previous 12 months. In the first quarter ended June 30 the reductions totalling only 20 per cent. for some provinces and even less than that in the west, where conditions are least favorable. In order to keep within the total provided in the estimates, reductions will be progressively greater as the fiscal year continues, it was stated.)

Agreed to Suggestion

Premier Hepburn agreed to municipalities' suggestion that they be allowed to transfer a surplus or deficit over the monthly allowances from month to month. He agreed, too, to the committee to the municipalities to strive for a surplus under the present system whereby they receive no credit when the amount paid out is less than the estimate.

"We will look into that," said the Premier, when told persons on relief were sometimes reluctant to go to other municipalities. "I think we should make it clear that the municipality from which a person comes shall be responsible until a job is obtained."

SON OF VISITORS GIVEN HIGH POST

Chauncey E. Martin of Rochester, Psychologist at Sing Sing

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Claus of the Tyendinaga Reserve, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Martin of Rochester, New York, are spending their summer vacation in this district. Mrs. Martin is a sister of Mrs. Claus.

Elation over the success of their son, Chauncey E. Martin, who has been appointed head psychologist of the renowned Sing Sing prison, by Warden Lewis E. Lawes, was voiced by Mr. and Mrs. Martin.

Under this new appointment, Mr. Martin, University of Rochester graduate, will be charged with making a personal examination of every man committed to that institution. He will be assisted in the work by Dr. Amos T. Baker in the classification clinic of the prison.

Well known in Rochester, the city in which he was born, for his work with delinquent boys, Mr. Martin, following his graduation from the U. of R., did clinic work in psychology under Dr. William Berry of that city. He also served for some time with the Y.M.C.A., assisting in work connected with its service to the negro community.

Severing his connection with the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Martin accepted appointment as psychologist at Elmira Reformatory. From there he was promoted to a similar position at the Institution for male defective delinquents at Napanoch.

State Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney selected Mr. Martin to give psychological examinations at the Department of Correction's Guard School at Walkill, and to date nearly 500 recruit guards have been examined after passing through a two-month training course specified by the Department of Correction.

INTENSIVE HUNT SWEEPS FORWARD

Wounded Officer Able to Identify Picture of One Assailant

Sudbury, Ont., July 14—(CP)—Sudbury district's most intensive manhunt swept forward today for Victor Gray, 36, Kirkland Lake ex-convict, wanted for the shooting of Police Sergt. Fred Davidson.

Police were armed with a complete description of both men and a picture of Gray.

Circulars describing the wanted pair were being sent to all district communities and railway stations. The search continued through Northern Ontario's wild bush country and officers and volunteers were warned to be careful as the quarry was believed desperate.

Gray, wanted in Toronto on a wounding charge, was identified by the wounded Davidson through a police photograph, but he was not able to identify a second picture shown him by Chief David Looden.

Wounded seven times Davidson remained in a critical condition and attendants said if he survives the day there seemed little doubt of his eventual recovery. He was shot down when he approached an allegedly stolen car early Sunday. The two criminals escaped after stealing his revolver.

EARHART SEARCH TO END SATURDAY

Planes Grounded by Storm After Fruitless Search of 21,000 Sq. Miles

Honolulu, July 14 (AP)—Naval authorities of the United States directing a vast aerial search along the equator for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, missing 12 days, reduced the number of searching planes today and indicated the hunt would end Saturday.

Pilots of the aircraft carrier Lexington awaited passing of a tropical storm today before resuming their "last chance" search for the aviatrix and Frederick J. Noonan, who disappeared on a flight from New Guinea to tiny Howland Island on July 2.

The storm forced cancellation of an afternoon flight yesterday after 80 planes fruitlessly had scanned 21,000 square miles of the South Pacific.

Father to Enquire

Oklahoma City, July 14 (AP)—The father of an 81 sailor criticized the United States Navy Department last night for spending "a quarter million dollars a day looking for Amelia Earhart" and said he "won't spend 50 cents to let me know how my boy is."

The father is W. F. Long, Oklahoma City, father of Nelson J. Long, 18, who underwent an appendectomy last Sunday aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington as it sped to search for the lost woman flier.

"The Navy will spend all that money looking for someone who is important, but they won't even spend the price of a telegram to let me know whether my son is dead or alive," Long said.

"Not only that, but I wouldn't have even known about the operation had it not been for the newspapers. If I don't hear something tomorrow, I'll call the President to find out why."

WOMAN FALLS OUT OF FERRIS WHEEL

Mrs. Bishop Killed And Sister Critically Hurt at Edmonton

Edmonton, July 14 (CP)—Exhaustive investigation was projected today into the death of Mrs. Mary Bishop, 28, of Edmonton, killed last night in a fall from a ferris wheel operating at the north way at the Edmonton summer exhibition. Two girls were injured, one seriously.

Mrs. Bishop was reported riding with her 12-year-old sister, Stella Merko, of Radway, Alta., and Helen Reminsky, 13, niece of Mrs. Bishop and also from Radway.

As they neared the top of the turn, spectators crowding the midway reported seeing Mrs. Bishop and the Reminsky girl plunge from the seat and hurtle to the ground. Helen Reminsky suffered grave injuries.

Stella Merko clung to the seat until it neared the ground when she slipped off and escaped with a bump on the head.

The ferris wheel was one four operated at the midway by the Royal Amusement shows. No explanation of the accident was given pending investigation.

Police and exhibition officials took charge of the wheel and ordered a complete inquiry.

LAST SURVIVOR OF GANG DIES

Emmett Dalton, 66, Terrorized United States in Early 90's

Los Angeles, July 14 — (CP) — Funeral services will be held today for Emmett Dalton, 66, last surviving member of the Dalton gang that terrorized the United States middlewest in the early 90's.

He died at his home here yesterday.

Dalton was shot 23 times and escaped bruching in a gun battle with citizens and officers of Coffeyville Kas., Oct. 5, 1892. His older brothers, Bob and Grat, and Dick Broadwell and Bill Powers were shot to death.

Dalton was given a life sentence for bank robbery served 14 1-2 years and was pardoned. He came to California 17 years ago, joined a church and started a campaign for prison reform.

He became a real estate dealer and contractor, wrote a book, "When The Daltons Rode", and engaged in films work, both as a scenario writer and actor.

SIX WOUNDED IN CELEBRATION

Rightists And Leftists Battle Commemorating Fall of Bastille

Marseille, France, July 14 (AP)—Six persons were wounded by revolver bullets today in fighting among Rightists and Leftists during ceremonies commemorating the 148th anniversary of the fall of Bastille.

Many others were slightly injured in hand-to-hand fighting. Police charged the crowds to rescue the wounded from being trampled under foot.

The shooting occurred as a parade by popular front followers of the Government of Premier Camille Chautemps passed headquarters of the Rightist popular party, which is led by Jacques Doriot.

Police quickly cleared the area, searched several buildings and detained 18 persons for questioning. Two of them were found on a rooftop.

Meanwhile at Paris France put a cross-section of her military might on review before the heads of her own governments, representatives of foreign powers and hundreds of thousands of Parisians in celebration of Bastille Day.

Three hundred of the newest bombing and pursuit planes roared overhead in "v" formations while the columns of soldiers afoot and mounted were paced by tanks of all sizes, from tiny two-man machines to great "rolling forts," and rumbling batteries of fied, anti-aircraft and tank guns.

GEORGE GERSHWIN

George Gershwin is dead. The man who through his rhythm has won his way into the heart of the world and is known as the most unique of American composers, was only 38 years old. Boys of today can look to this still young man who has now gone, for inspiration, if they wish, to follow music, for he was not particularly interested in music until 12 years of age when his mother bought a piano and he heard a violinist give a recital at school. These two events were his inspiration and he took to study of the piano. It was Charles Hambitzer, a teacher and composer who really discovered Gershwin, whom he termed a genius. Hambitzer introduced the future jazz composer to the beauty of classic music, but at a crucial point in Gershwin's young career, Hambitzer died. Later Gershwin studied piano with other noted teachers and also composition.

His real learning came from experience as a "plugger" at sixteen, touring the haunts of Tin Pan Alley to note which songs were best received. He began to write tunes of his own. He went to the theatre in 1917 as rehearsal pianist for "Miss 1917" by Victor Herbert and Jerome Kern. He was appreciated ,soon his songs were played. By the time he was twenty he had received his first commission for light opera. He often appeared in stadium concerts with the New York Symphony orchetra.

He was a talented painter and a collector of works of art.

He elevated jazz to real consideration of the public, did this creator of "Rhapsody in Blue," which Paul Whitman introduced to the world.

Gershwin was also known for other work in music.

He has lifted jazz to an art and a place. He has created a new form. If his mother had not bought a piano and he had not heard Max Rosen play, probably there would not have been the public benefactor in music, known as George Gershwin, who had just reached an age at which some great men have scarcely begun to compose.

WHAT PULPITS ARE SAYING

Scientific materialism and cut-throat ethics in business have stilled the song of religious and aspiration, declared the Rev. Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, of Yale Divinity School at the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York. Exultant and joyous singing by the Jews when they were led to their Promised Land by Moses and the singing of Paul in prison at Philippi denoted a certitude of religious belief. "Our sense of belief has been weakened and our courage in song is as silent as that of the Jews in Babylon," he said.

He declared that science should not weaken religious belief. He said "our best scientists and philosophers, Eddington and Millikan, have said that the ultimate facts of science are giving fresh validity to a spritual world order."

He deplored the attitude of the business man who will say "Business is a cut-throat affair, not a Sunday School, and let the other fellow offer his throat to be cut. "He urged the industrial leaders to follow the example of those employers who practice the golden rule on week days as well as on Sunday."

Culture and decency can come only from within and not by the dictum of some silly man imposing his will on the multitude, said Bishop I. P. Johnson of Colorado at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. "Virtue is a positive quality that is developed within us after contnuous seeking and effort. There is too much talk today by people with no background, with no real spiritual authority. Religion has sunk into a henny penny atmosphere and we must lift it out. Little leaders are leading men in trivial things—their religious scope is not great enough to accomplish the vast work that lies before use."

There is still a need for crusaders today, said Rev. Thornton B. Penfield Jr., at First Presbyterian Church. "Can you be happy in a world where peace exists as an armed truce, where one-fourth of the people go hungry every day. Can you be contented in a country where one sixth of the population is on relief?

ANOTHER FOURTH OF JULY HAS PASSED FOR THE SONS OF UNCLE SAM, also Daughters of the Republic, and others, who used to make a great fuss over celebrating the independence of the United States and the severing of the ties with England. "When in the course of human events" our cousins to the South decided to cut loose from the parental apron strings because of the high price of tea, taxation without representation, and the vociferosity of the agitating minority—they certainly handed their country a wallop which it took many years to partially recover from. However, basking in the friendship and good fellowship of the Anglo-Saxon race, the United States of America has prospered mightily, although it has been made the melting pot of all nations with the rendering accompanied by violent national pains at times, to mix a metaphor or two. Down through the years the Fourth of July has been marked with perfervid oratory of the screaming eagle type and much firing of firecrackers and more dangerous explosives. Gradually in response to efforts of sane newspaper writers a safe and sane Fourth of July has been attained. Now, said a Detroit newspaper: "Our celebration is a saner, healthier thing. The nation's birthday has become an occasion for outings and sports." Another feature of the more age Fourth of July is the facility of visiting Canada of which thousands take advantage—perhaps to see just what their own country migh have amounted to had it remained under the British flag.

Laughter has many roles. It dissipates gloom; it unifies social groups; it derides absurdities; it tests innovators; it punctures precience and hypocrisy; it is an antithesis of fanaticism. Through wit, satire, and sarcasm, derisive laughter too often embitters the relations of individuals and of nations. But genial humor may do something to dispel misunderstanding and to emphasize the traits of human nature common to all mankind.—George E. Vincent, educator, author, and lecturer in the Rotarian Magazine.

Every man should have faith in some dominant idea says an observer.

I believe, says he, that every man desires that his children shall enjoy all the happiness he can give them. If you can believe that it seems easy to have faith in the ultimate progress of the world, notwithstanding strikes, war, unbalanced budgets, and international bankruptcy. It is astonishing how human and how much alike people are when you really get to know them. It has always been my fortune to be able to mix easily with people, and during my newspaper experience I have met statesmen, bankers, labor leaders, judges, and policemen. Their opinions about methods varied, but all had their eyes fixed on the same goal which consisted as near as I could make out, of a good bed, three children, and a comfortable old age.

Tweed and District

Tweed— Miss Eileen Hinds A.T.O.M. of Toronto, is visiting friends and relatives in town for a few days. At the Sunday morning service in the United Church she sang "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings"— Miss Hinds, who is the daughter of Mrs. W. T. Hinds and the late Mr. Hinds, formerly resided in Tweed. For the past eight years she has lived in Toronto, where she has achieved considerable success in the realm of music and is now soprano soloist in one of the city churches. Miss Hinds has been heard over the radio on numerous occasions but, this was the first opportunity her friends have had of hearing her in person and they were delighted with her beautiful solo.

Dr. M. G. Dales, who for the past eight week has been a patient in Belleville and Kingston General Hospitals, returned home on Sunday. He is much improved in health and will soon be able to resume his practice. His many friends welcome his return.

A large number of Orangemen from Tweed and district attended the Twelfth of July celebration in Stirling on Monday.

Tweed bakers have advanced the price of bread to nine cents a small loaf, an increase of one cent per loaf.

Rain fell for a brief time on Sunday afternoon but the precipitation was too scanty to more than moisten the surface. No rain has fallen locally since early in the month and the lack of moisture is beginning to show its effects on pasture fields and crops. Haying has been general during the past week and some splendid yields are reported. Farmers are delighted.

CLOUD-BURST DOES $1,000,000 DAMAGE AROUND WHEELING, W. VA.

Wreckage of homes and other buildings was piled against a bridge near Wheeling, W. Va., following one of the most devastating cloud-bursts which ever hit the district. More than 300 families are digging out of the debris left by the storm. Damage throughout the area was estimated at more than one million dollars.

VANCOUVER SEES BRILLIANT FUTURE FOR CIVIC AIRPORT

With one of Canada's most modern-equipped airports already in operation and handling giant twin-engined transport aeroplanes connecting with United States transcontinental lines, Vancouver can see in the forthcoming opening of the trans-Canada airway and of commercial flights from England across the north Atlantic, fulfillment of its ambition to become one of the world's most important aviation centres, Vancouver voters in 1930 approved two by-laws, one appropriating $300,000 for purchase of the site, another for the same amount to finance construction, and the modern Sea Island airport field was ready in 1931. It is owned and operated by the city and will be the terminus for the trans-Canada route. Once the north Atlantic route is in operation, Vancouver believes Britain's Imperial Airways will stretch their empire flying lines across the Pacific to the Orient.

J. T. ROBINSON IS FOUND DEAD

Democratic Leader in U.S. Senate Stricken With Heart Attack.

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson, 64, Democratic leader in the United States Senate and New Deal Legislative kingpin, was found dead in bed today.

Robinson who had been Democratic leader since 1932, was personally in charge of the Administration's two major legislative campaigns to enact President Roosevelt's bills to reorganize the Courts and the Executive Departments. His colleagues generally had expected his appointment to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter.

The Democratic leader had been working hard during recent weeks in an effort to devise a compromise Supreme Court Reform Bill for which he could obtain Senate approval. The substitute measure now under debate was drafted under his direction.

Not Feeling Well

His aide had given close personal attention to the Administration's reorganization program. Two or three weeks ago he personally introduced the compromise bill to carry out the Chief Executive's reorganization proposals and had called his committee to begin work on it, today.

Some of the Arkansas Senator's closest friends, however, had been disturbed by his physical condition.

After attending a strategy conference with his chief lieutenants on the Court Bill yesterday morning, Robinson returned to his home instead of attending the senate session because he did not feel up to par.

Robinson was temporarily living alone as Mrs. Robinson had gone home to Little Rock, Arkansas.

CAMERAS ON PLANE WILL BE TAKEN AND SENT TO SIGNAL CORPS

Postal Card Bears Unique Address 'Store with New Front Being Put On'

It Finds its Destination 'James Text, Store' as Tourist Hoped

LOST GLASSES FOUND

Belleville Firm's Service And Postal Efficiency Proven in Test

They lay on the counter of "The store with the new front being put on", the well known business establishment of James Texts, 189 Front street, a pair of new sun glasses forgotten by their owner, S. H. Smith of Halifax, Nova Scotia, who had stopped over in the city en route through, to make a few purchases.

And the owner of the glasses is confident that at least one business house in Belleville specializes in "Service" with capital letters.

Evidently on the road for some time before the loss of the glasses was discovered, it was not until Mr. Smith had reached Canaoque, that he decided to write Belleville, seeking their recovery. The name of the store was not known to him, but one fact stood out, that was the memory that the front of the establishment was being rebuilt. Faith in the efficiency of the Canadian postal service did the rest.

For yesterday, Mr. G. M. James, proprietor of the store received the following post card, addressed simply: "The Store With the New Front Being Put On, Belleville, Ontario."

"Dear Sir:—

"Please look on your counter and see if you can find a pair of sun goggles left there by tourists on Monday morning.

"Please send them to S. H. Smith, General Delivery, Halifax, Nova Scotia".

The card had been placed in Box 138, Belleville, by the local postal staff without hesitation. Box 138 is the James Text post office box.

"The glasses were on the counter in our store as described, and were in the mail on their way to Nova Scotia, within a few minutes," reported Mr. James today. "This is typical Belleville service".

AUSTRALIA'S SCRAP METAL GOES FOR JAP. ARMAMENTS

A graphic scene on the Victoria dock at Melbourne, Australia, showing piles of scrap iron and other metal ready to be loaded on the Japanese steamer seen in the background, for shipment to Nippon. The Japanese government is importing this scrap metal, from all countries that will permit its export, for the purpose of manufacturing it down and producing armaments. In reply to a deputation urging the restriction of such exports, Minister for Customs White, of Australia, replied there was no control over the purpose to which the government would not be justified in placing such a ban.

He was given unlimited time and expense to make the film. The result was "Elephant Boy", and the discovery of Sabu", that amazing Indian youth who dreamed of being a great Elephant man and big game hunter and now is in a fairway to be a great film actor.

"Sabu", is a native and must be seen and heard to be appreciated to the full. A ten-year-old boy he dominates the picture from the beginning to the end in which there is no love interest, except the love between the boy and the elephant, and no woman to play with but the bare semblance of a plot, many elephants and tigers, beautiful jungle scenery, the jungle at its best or worst—principally elephants, by the hundreds, from cute little baby elephants sporting in the water keeping close to their mothers and wondering what life is all about, supervising, and "Elephant Boy", adored by the ladies, admired by the men and the idol of the kiddies who frequent the cinema.

"Elephant Boy" is in a class by itself, and will be shown for the last time in Belleville this evening, at the Belle Theatre.

Shower Held for Salem Couple

On Thursday evening June 24th a large number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Ross and presented their daughter (Hilda) with a miscellaneous shower. At about ten thirty the gathering was called to order and Miss Ruth McLaren read the following address:

Dear Hilda and Herb:

Time unties. Progress brings changes and the most delightful change has occurred, dear Hilda, when you and Herb decided to cross the matrimonial sea.

So therefore we could not let this occasion of your marriage pass without gathering here, dear Hilda, to you our congratulations and best wishes.

We would ask you both to you start this new life together not to be too unselfish in your choice of the little things and above all to put God at the head of your home to lead and to guide you, with Him as your Captain your ship will never sink.

You, Hilda, have grown up among us and have always been a willing and faithful helper we will miss you greatly in our church and community, but where it is our loss, will be another's gain.

We have not and we bid you farewell, as we know you will not be far away from us and we hope to see you both often in the future.

Will you please remember that the latch is on the outside of all our homes and a welcome right and real awaits you both.

We ask you both to please accept these gifts. May they always bring you happy memories of your friends in Salem and community.

Signed

Mrs. Clarence Hagerman

Mrs. Clifford Hagerman

Miss Ruth McLaren

Hilda and Herb replied, thanking their friends for the gifts they had brought and invited everyone to visit them in their home. "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung after which lunch was served and a social time spent.

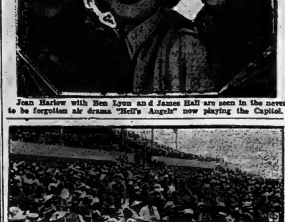
Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea Are Teamed Again in Romantic-Drama at the Bells To-morrow and Friday

Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea continue their march toward the position of the screen's best loved romantic in "Internes Can't Take Money," the romance of a poor medical student and a working girl which opens a two-days engagement at the Belle Thursday, with performances daily at 2.30, 7.10 and again at 9.15 p.m.

"Internes Can't Take Money" is the sixth in which Joel McCrea essays a physician's role and adopts the tenth in which Miss Stanwyck portrays the beauty with the odds against her who gets her man.

The story poses a question in principles around which much of the action is based. As an interne McCrea is unable to accept money from his patients, but one who is very grateful to him, played by Lloyd Nolan, gives him a thousand dollars for saving his life in an emergency operation.



Miss Stanwyck, with whom he is in love, needs that money, but McCrea's strict adherence to to his oath forces him to return the money, thus shutting out happiness to himself and the girl whom he loves. A way is found, however, by Nolan, who sets things to rights, in his own manner.

The hospital and medical sequence of "Internes Can't Take Money" were made under the supervision of Dr. John J. Toms, chief resident physician of the Hollywood Hospital, who was engaged as technical director for this picture. Alfred Santell, famed for his ability to get the most out of drama, directed "Internes Can't Take Money."

Nella Goodelle, Bob Nolan with their gang of radio entertainers in a musical comedy "High-O Hooey-mony" and a sound-short entitled two-reel comedy entitled "Wrong Romance" will precede the feature presentation at each performances on Thursday and Friday.

"Elephant Boy"

The thrilling and exciting Rudyard Kipling adventure story "Elephant Boy" which opened at the Belle Theatre yesterday and which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audiences both at the matinee and evening performances starting at 7.10 ad at 9.15 p.m. We can highly recommend "Elephant Boy" to you and if you enjoy entertainment that's out of the ordinary do not fail to see "Elephant Boy" tonight An excellent comedy with Edgar Kennedy entitled "Dumb's the Word," an interesting Bill Cowan "Sportlight" and the popular Belle news Flashes all combine with the feature presentation to make an ideal two hours enjoyment. at new low prices.

Jean Harlow with Ben Lyon and James Hall are seen in the never to be forgotten air drama "Hell's Angels" now playing the Capitol.

CROWD at DEL MAR—Bing Crosby smiles as he sees crowds like this at his Del Mar Turf Club, near San Diego.

AT THE CAPITOL

Jean Harlow in "Hell's Angels" "Hell's Angels", the most pretentious picture that has come out of Hollywood, with by far the greatest attraction at the Capitol until Friday, at 11 a.m.

This spectacular film drama was produced at a cost of approximately $4,000,000, and was three years in the making. This is the most costly production ever expended on a celluloid production.

Howard Hughes, 26-year-old president of the Caddo Company, produced and personally directed this amazing dramatization of the world war in the air.

He is Hollywood's youngest and most picturesque producer. The sensation created by "Hell's Angels" has made him the outstanding figure today in the picture industry.

More than 137 pilots, planes and mechanics were used in filming the air sequences of "Hell's Angels," and in one scene alone 50 planes are shown in free-for-all combat in what is admittedly one of the greatest achievements in the history of film making.

Two years were devoted to the filming of air scenes alone, and Mr. Hughes spared neither time nor expense to make his air drama the most realistic and spectacular entertainment ever put on the screen.

Aside from its unsurpassed thrills in the air, "Hell's Angels" has one of the most unusual love stories ever presented to the public.

Starring in this great dramatic picture of the air, Jean Harlow, who made her film debut in this same aftermath rose to the highest heights of stardom on her performance in "Hell's Angels."

Playing opposite Miss Harlow in "Hell's Angels" are Ben Lyon and James Hall. A stupendous cast of some 30,000 others contribute to the drama, of this record-breaking spectacle.

Polly Moran and Allene Skipworth in the second of having played in more successive stage flops than any other actress in gaily calmed by Alison Skipworth, the grand old stage and screen comedienne whose finest role is played with Polly Moran in "Two Wise Maids," heart-tugging picture which is now playing the Capitol until Friday.

"Skippy"

The second of having played in more successive stage flops than any other actress in gaily calmed by Alison Skipworth, the grand old stage and screen comedienne whose finest role is played with Polly Moran in "Two Wise Maids," heart-tugging picture which is now playing the Capitol until Friday.

"Skippy" and more comedy-pal play the dramatic and comic roles of two schoolmarms in a New York East Side district. Then unhonored and unsung, they battle up and down Manhattan, to give their forty-pinched children a bit of happiness and an education that will bring them bigger things in life. Hope Manning and Donald Cook, representing the younger generation of teachers, provide an ideal romance, with Leila Alvarez and Lila Lee also featured.

Last complete show starts at 8.30 Come and enjoy a real show in air that is as cool as an ocean breeze, at new low prices.

BLINDING HEADACHES MADE HER HELPLESS

Forced to Lie Down For Hours at a Time

Other sufferers from headaches will be interested to read this letter:—

"Until last summer I was subject to very bad headaches. While they lasted I seemed to lose my sight and all power in my hands, and was forced to lie down for hours at a time. My aunt (who has taken Kruschen Salts for 13 years with beneficial results) suggested my trying them. I did so, and I've not had any return of those headaches for months, in fact I feel quite better, I shall always take Kruschen regularly in future."—(Mrs.) M.W.

Headaches can frequently be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unexpected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in the complete elimination of waste matter, resulting in a purer blood stream, and thus helping to bring relief from headaches.

A good number from this vicinity took advantage of the ideal weather to attend the 12th of July celebration in Stirling.

GETS $1,000,000

Success ended a nine-year fight for a share in the Burrough adding machine fortune when Detroit judge, S. D. Callender, awarded $1,000,000 to Mrs. Laura Miller Boyer, who was cut off without a penny in the $2,000,000 will of her father-in-law Joseph A. Boyer. She was disinherited because of a purported attempt to pass off the child of a Windsor, Ont., chambermaid as her own; the elder Boyer set up a $2,500,000 trust fund for the child, then learned of the reported hoax. He never forgave his daughter-in-law for the deception.

LOU FETTE

Outstanding rookie pitcher of the National loop this season is Lou Fette, 30-year-old right hander of the Boston Bees. With a floundering team, Lou is still baffling batters and winning games.

Lou came to the Bees from St. Paul of the American Association, where he chalked up the best 1936 record in baseball—20 victories while being red-inked on eight.

The tall Mississippian—he comes from Alba) not only led his league in victories, but also in complete games, number of innings pitched and number of batters facing him.

Lou attended Missouri Valley College for three years, starring in several sports, chiefly basketball. He started his professional career in 1926, at Pueblo, a Xanes, City team club. There he won 20 games, record in the loop winning 25 games back he kept on winning. His playoff with the Cleary until midseason of 1933, when he was traded to St. Paul.

ACCURATE PEG TO PLATE CATCHES RUNNER

Nothing is safe in baseball as Eddie Mayo, Boston Bee third baseman found out on this play. He was called out at the plate after coming from third on Al Lopez's long fly to Martin in centre field. Martin made a perfect peg to Earle Grace, Phillies catcher, to catch Mayo as he slid into the plate.

ENGLISH TRACK TEAM SHOWS ITS WARES WITH BROWN WINNING TWO EVENTS

The combined forces of Oxford and Cambridge university track teams, now touring the United States and Canada, took on a selected group of track athletes from Yale and Harvard universities, at the U.S. and showed some remarkable form. A. Gordon K. Brown, captain of the Eagles, track team, established a new international mark in the 440-yard dash with Brown leading the field to victory, while the pictures taken at the International track meet at Cambridge, Mass. The action photos show the finish of the 880-yard dash with Brown making the field of 440-yard dash in 47.1 seconds. He shows Brown making a brief radio speech after winning the 440-yard sprint. This Hughes, track team will be seen in action in Canada during the latter part of July.

HEINE MANUSH HITS HOMER TO DEFEAT BOSTON

Not Worried Because He Was Left Off All Star Squad

GIANTS WIN

Open Long Home Stand Only Half Game Behind Cubs

(By Bill Boni, Associated Press Sports Writer)

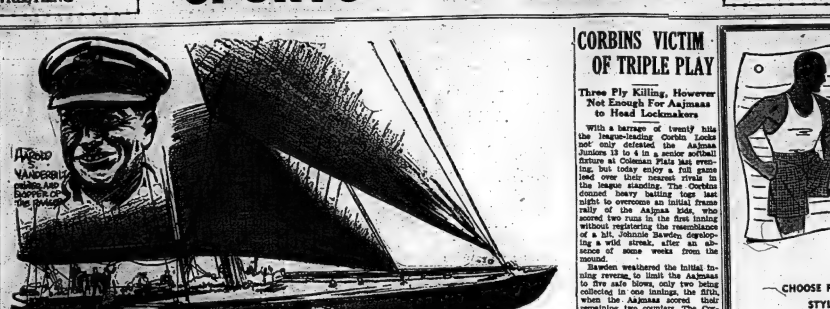
The calmest man in Pittsburgh when Henry Emmett Manush was left off the National Baseball League's all-star team was Henry Emmett (Heine to you) Manush.

Brooklyn fans thought Heine, a National League "rookie" after 14 seasons in the junior circuit, deserved a place on the league squad. At 39—he'll be 36 next Tuesday, Heinie might be quite old for that as in 1936, when he won the American League batting championship, but he's the man who is powdering the ball, and that's all any Brooklyn fan asks of an outfielder.

But it didn't worry Heinie that he wasn't one of the chosen. He just went on about his business such as the ninth-inning home run of the day that he hit up a mound duel between Max Butcher, the five-hit-pitching ace, and Hank (Gabbo) Gabler, the six-hit-pitching loser.

It gave the Dodgers a 2-1 decision over the Braves and, at the same time, pulled them up to within half a game of the first-place Giants.

Yet prolific hyphener



Heinie is no prolific home run producer. Yesterday's was only his fourth. With his six runs batted in, he leads his nearest, and much younger, team-mate, Cookie Lavagetto, by six.

Joe Moore was the big gun in a 20-hit Giants attack, that acquired 10 innings to nose out the Phils, 11-10. The pair of 3-run IVs helped bring home the winning single brought home the winning run and sent the Giants back to a long home stand against the west only a half-game behind the Cubs.

The team's hitting, especially in the ninth, when seven safeties, six in succession, scored six runs to tie the score, was a pleasing sign to Terry.

Only one game was scheduled in the American League, the Indians batting down Dennis (Oaktown) Galehouse's seven-hit pitching with some snappy fielding to edge out the White Sox, 2-1.

The Cards and Pirates, only other National League games scheduled, were rained out.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS ARE REINFORCED

Players Sent For Reds Will Help Team in Second Half

(By The Associated Press)

The star-studded Rookies of the Cincinnati Reds culled from all parts of the country last winter, to form what they hoped would be a team capable of impressing National League circles this season, are drifting back to the Syracuse Chiefs of the International League.

It was a big slap from Chas. (Ty Cobb) Dressen, Reds' manager, and other minor league teams to the majors and most of them backed the necessary polish and experience to make it, so today the chiefs are banking on making a fine showing in the second half of the International race as they boast more than half the Reds' Rooks sent down for more seasoning.

Some of the Reds of the Syracuse Roster, include, Frank McCormick, batting champion of the Piedmont League last season, at first base; Lee Moore, Texas Leaguer, king of the Sally League, catching and Jimmy Outlaw, a hulking fool in the three-eye league, on third.

Chiefs win Outlaw and Arnie Moser, another Rookie from the Reds, in action, edged out Baltimore Orioles 6-5 last night. The Chiefs had to come through with five runs in the ninth to win and did.

Victory sent the Chiefs back into the first division, as Buffalo Bisons dropped their seventh straight and their fourth in a row to Rochester by a 9-3 count. Lee Ross sank the hero into the second division for the first time this season.

With Steve Sundra pitching six-hit ball and fanning 11 the pace-setting Newark Bears took their 11th consecutive victory from Jersey City Giants by a score of 9-1.

Montreal snapped Toronto's six-game winning streak at five with a 5-1 triumph.

DAILY DOUBLE $705.25 AT ERIE

(By The Canadian Press)

Only five horses are entered for today's featured $1,000 handicap at Fort Erie race track but most of the other six races are well filled, The handicap is the four year old and up as six furlongs and Ouragan is favored to win.

Brindale stable's entry in yesterday's featured fifth captured first and third places in a select field and Pompeii, the winner, paid $27 at the unusual odds of $2.30-$6.06-$8.10. His running mate Spring Moon, likewise paid $8.10 to show. Sly Cat was the place horse.

Meanwhile Lou at 16 on zero in the first, sacrifi at 11 to one in the second and Lassies Mary at six to one in the final were the long shots of the day.

At Mount Royal Race Track in Montreal Maxime and Rough Lass finished in a dead heat in the third race. Rough Lass' rider, Joe Mueller, owned by A. C. Halliwell of Toronto, at the wire.

Sports Roundup

By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 14 (AP)—Don't look now, but you're going to be hearing there will be a Max Schmeling-Joe Louis heavyweight championship next year.... Possibly as remote—even if Max changes his mind and comes back to earth in his financial demands.... Here's why: Before Louis and Tommy Farr were signed for the Yankee stadium... August 26, Promoter Mike Jacobs sent his person, agaisnt either Len Harvey or Jack Doyle. Jacobs sent his personal attorney, Sol Strauss, to England to square things with Arthur Elvin, Wimbledon stadium promoter.

Elvin was a good sport.... He agreed gracefully enough, saying he wouldn't think of standing in the way of another British title (Farr) getting a shot at the title.... In return for this sportsmanship, Jacobs promised Elvin he would go to London in September to fight either Harvey or Doyle under the Elvin banner....So Herr Schmeling must wait until next year, all because he didn't bother to reply to cable and letters....How does it feel to be back there behind the eight ball, Mister?

Collapse of Hal Schumacher's arm recalls Carl Hubbell, another big league pitcher, now a Brooklyn Physician, preaching Schumacher's career would be short because of his unorthodox delivery....Jimmy Bredon's days may be numbered as another fight in September....And so hopes it will be against Max Baer again.

Rumor has it next year's National League contracts will contain a clause making it mandatory for players selected to appear in the all-star game....Suppose a sons of the boys have been giving the game the old buckaroo.

Belleville-Trenton Rovers Defeated by Norwood Terriers In Lacrosse Fixture by 8-4

Left Defence Open in Order to Score The Equalizer

LISTLESS GAME

Locals Played Without Three of Their Best Players

Over-anxiousness, to the extent they left themselves vulnerable in spots of their own defence in a futile attempt to tie the score in the last period, resulted in the Belleville-Trenton Rovers tumbling to defeat at the hands of the Norwood Terriers by the score of 8 to 4 in a regular Central Ontario Lacrosse fixture last evening. The Locals battled at somewhat even terms for three listless periods, the Terriers leading by the score of 3 to 4 as the final quarter broke. The Moore-led Rovers threw caution to the winds in the early moments of the third period to endeavour procuring the equalizer in the matter of goals, but such strategy proved a boomerang, as the wailing Terriers stood by, matched their checks and broke away to lash three goals behind Eddie Crocker, who stood helpless before the concerted attack.

Floor Quite Damp

The initial period was slow and listless only one goal being scored. The dampness of the ground making the footing uncertain and resulting in the players slipping and sliding on the courts. The second period was a repetition of the first, with each club scoring once in the even. The third period saw the clubs open up and play some really offensive lacrosse as each club scored three times, tiavidy the count 5 to 4 for the Terriers as the final session broke. The game was not without its roughs in the latter stages, but Referee Innes handled this style of play in awarding numerous penalty shots on goal. Norwood used the "sleeper" system, of a trailer player, to score their three goals in the last period.

Puffer Leads Marksmen

C. Puffer, Norwood, led all marksmen of the night with two goals and three assists to his credit. Scott and Richardson getting three of counters for the home team as well. Tache, former Oshawa home player, led the Rovers on the attack with two goals. Burdes and Partridge getting one each for Belleville quota, Tache, Partridge, Burdes and Logie were the pick for the Rovers, with C. Puffer, Scott and W. Rodgers standing out for the Terriers, as Goodier played his usual steady game in the nets. The Rovers' next game is on Friday night versus the Oshawa squad in Trenton.

Last night in Norwood the Rovers were without the services of three of their star home players and leading scorers, including Lalonde, the veteran Joe Gould, Houston and others, all of whom are expected to be in the lineup versus Oshawa Friday. Incidentally the Oshawa "222" squad won over Cobourg on Monday.

The lineups:

Belleville-Trenton Rovers: Goal Goodier; defence Smart and Burden, rover Partridge, centre Logie, homes Day and Tompkins, subs, Clay, Tache, Kerr and Robinson.

Norwood Terriers: Goal W. Rodgers, defence L. Rodgers and Rathwell, rover Webb, centre C. Puffer, homes G. Puffer and Scott, subs, Richardson, Edmonds, Smith, Bakry and Heard.

CORBINS VICTIM OF TRIPLE PLAY

Three Fly Killing, However Not Enough For Aajmaas to Head Lockmakers

With a barrage of twenty hits the league-leading Corbin Locks not only defeated the Aajmaas Juniors 13 to 4 in a senior softball fixture at Coleman Flats last evening, but today enjoy a full game lead over their nearest rivals in the league standing. The Corbins donned heavy batting togs last night to execute an initial frame rally of the Aajmaa kids, who scored two runs in the first inning without registering the resemblance of a hit. Johnnie Bawden, developing a wild streak, gave an absence of some weeks from the mound.

Bawden weathered the initial inning reverse, to limit the Aajmaas to five scratch blows, only two being collected in one innings, the fifth, when the Aajmaas crossed the plate remaining two counters. The Corbins were held powerless in the initial two frames, as Harold Draper, junior moundsman, limited the slugging lockmakers to two safeties, but with a barrage of extra base hits in the third the Corbins scored five runs and duplicated this feat with an additional five scores in the fifth frame on the heavy artillery of the "lockmakers" batting array. The Corbin nine literally coasted in to victory with Bawden pitching steady ball from that point.

Three Homers Hit

Three circuit blows were bung up by the winners as "Stud" Corbin, Bawden and Fuller a brace of homers and Rene St. Denis a circuit clout, collecting 3 safeties in all. Tapp and Westfall starred for the losing Aajmaa players. Bawden walked no less than eight Aajmaa batters, five of which came in the initial frame, however, as the kids scored two runs, his control proved more prolific later, however, as he struck out an even dozen of his opponents. Draper did not walk a single Corbin batter and struck out only two.

The fielding sensation of the game was engineered by the Aajmaa kids Juniors, as they completed as fast a triple play as ever was pulled off in Trenton, following the first triple play of the season in the loop. With the Bawden five on the bases, Tapp drove the ball to Rumsay, who played the ball to Tapp, who in turn rifled the period to O'Neill for a threepiff killing in the eighth.

The line-ups:

Aajmaa Juniors—Tapp, 2b; Rowbotham, c; Rumsay, 3b; Ames, lf; Moon, cf; O'Neill, 1b; Mansfield, ss; Draper, p; Westfall, rf; Reynolds and Peets.

Corbin Locks—Henn, 2b; Ethier, 3b; Reid, ss; St. Denis, lf; H. Bawden, 1b; J. Bawden, p; Tuttle, rf; Burns, cf and Whalen, cf.

East Mimico Defeats Orillia Squad in Big Upset

Mimico, Ont., July 14.—(CP)—In the biggest upset of the Ontario Lacrosse Association season Mimico Mountaineers last night defeated Orillia Terriers, champions for three successive seasons, 15-5. The winners led 8-2 at half time.

The Mimico passing plays clicked throughout the game while the Terriers became discouraged by the defense tactics. Griffith, Mimico goal-tender Wandy McMahon and Ernie Harris, all scored twice.

Gord Galt paced the Mimico with four goals while Duke Harrison, Chuck Davidson and Norm Gair counted three each. Joe Murphy scored two and Fred Hanlon, Myrve Haney, Don McCallum, Ross Quinlan and Scotty Dick netted one count each.

Hugh Kelly, Butch Boettger and George Gates pulled for the losers.

George Pepper, Belleville's forgotten champion, holder of the Canadian motorcycle racing championship and also of several United States records, added another laurel to his crown in England recently. The enough George did not win anything but the respect and admiration of many Old Country motorcycle enthusiasts during the world renown Isle of Mann races, but since that he has had the distinction of breaking the dirt track record of the Tagenham Track near Manchester. The information received regarding Pepper's accomplishments on the dirt track came in a rather around about way. Bill Adams, an Old Country lad, who was at one time connected with the Quinte Motorcycle Club, but since has returned to his native land, in a letter to Hank Wallbridge, secretary of the QMC informed Mr. Wallbridge of George's feat in his first attempt at dirt track racing in England.

As stated in one of George's letters to the citizens of Belleville, he went immediately to Manchester at the conclusion of the Isle of Mann races, supposedly to negotiate with a motorcycle company regarding a racing machine for the purpose of defending his Canadian championship before the eyes of his fellow townsmen, if ever. At any rate while in Manchester, George got in touch with the manager of the Tagenham track and the second time he negotiated the track he broke the track record and following which he has been invited to race on the famous West Ham dirt track in London shortly. Prior to his racing on the Tagenham track, however, George had received an invitation from Eric Oliffy, noted Canadian dirt track rider, to visit him at West Ham track, where Oliffy is tops.

We hope Mr. Adams' report and we read the letter to Mr. Wallbridge, is correct, because it may mean George Pepper may remain in England and compete in more races, providing he can procure the most essential thing needed, a good machine, because it looks as though his efforts in winning the Canadian championship in the hills were all for naught. Such is reward.

We hope local sport fans read the lawn bowlers' column of Monday. There was one paragraph included that not only carries truth, but a sting. It read—"Competitive time."

The Mimico passing plays clicked throughout the game while the Terriers became discouraged by the defense tactics. Griffith, Mimico goal-tender Wandy McMahon and Ernie Harris, all scored twice.

Gord Galt paced the Mimico with four goals while Duke Harrison, Chuck Davidson and Norm Gair counted three each. Joe Murphy scored two and Fred Hanlon, Myrve Haney, Don McCallum, Ross Quinlan and Scotty Dick netted one count each.

The Peterboro scribe equivocally boasts they do not care how Oshawa or fast their hockey opposition comes next winter in the O.H.A. loop. Apparently the Petes are out to go places in the Senior ranks and have solved rather, the known as hockey. About once in a decade the Peterboro hockey people go and get themselves a really worthwhile lump of rubber-chasers, as with the proposed Oshawa - Queen's-Peterboro-R.C.A.F. Five and the solved rather case, the 1936-37 Intermediate "A" champion Flyers do not want to be left by with the Majors at an easy road to another O.H.A. title, it just isn't done in those here parts.

After bob-bobbing around the O.H.A. for these last umpteen years and even admitting he used to "hop the fence" to see league games, the Oshawa sport scribe still cannot forget the "Red" Scrutton of the Kingston Ponies, are brothers. Nay, nay, my lad merely cousins, and not close at that. The Oshawa ball club in baseball slang, either.

CHAPTER X.

The June sun struck his shoulders with pleasant warmth, as he parted the thick bushes, and in a ditch easily and emerged on the open backwoods road.

He sprinted eyes as bride deeper feet of the same clear blue as the sky above him. And squinting, his tanned face broke into little crinkles around his eyes and into an accustomed furrows on a broad brow that was lighter when the line of his hair began. He thrust his hands into breeches pockets, squared his shoulders and swung into a brisk stride.

Over his shoulder he addressed his companion: "Getting on to-ward lunch." He was agreed with, he gathered, by the enthusiastic tail wagging at the heels of his riding boots.

"Now, my good fellow," he continued, having an appreciative audience, "if this were the New England of legend we would approach the next dwelling with a pleasant smile and a hungry look and be invited to join the family at its noonday meal. As it is, we're got to find some way out of this cause of backwoods and push on to our lunch.

He glanced at the watch, saw that it was 30 minutes past noon. Then he saw the spreading gables of the gray house through a frame of trees and whistled softly on himself.

It brought a light to his eyes—this picture of majestic chimneys that rose to the blue of wood trees, the grace of dwelling, and grounds mellowing together and growing into one other, with patches of bright pinks and yellows, the blues reaching upward, the glowing fresh greens of the garden, and, there were the bright ribbons on a lady's gray gown.

There was, as he had expected, a wall of field stone hip high. He swung himself onto it.

"It's a boy," said twelve, Miss Daphne," a strident voice from within the house echoed. "Whatcha want for lunch?"

"Hello," he said before she could ask him what he wanted. "Will you please tell me who owns this place?" Daphne Brett pushed back a shred of black curly hair from her white and perspiring brow and sat back on her heels.

"If you've brought eggs, there'll be scrambled eggs, bread and butter and fruit. I don't know any thing else from town," she called from the top of the stair well. "Then, anxiously:

"Prunella, have a look at how the garden's coming, will you? It looks rough, though it would take more than an hour to clear out the worst weeds. Tell the boy they can run home for lunch. Then, you'd better get to work on the cooking room."

"Yes, ma'am." Prunella answered cheerfully. "Just don't worry about this downstairs. I got things under control. You just don't want me to give you a hand up there?"

Daphne rubbed the spot in her back that was beginning to burn and said, "No, thanks, I'll be finished soon here. They ought to be here until four."

"My word, but it'll seem strange to have anybody but Brettx livin' in this house," Prunella muttered, voice continued from below.

"You're telling me!" Daphne Brett muttered and set her mop a vicious squeeze.

"And the kind you'd be comin' back to Plainsport when Jennie was graduatin' from high school and lahin' school," Prunella carried on.

"We will some day soon," Daphne answered with a cheerfulness she distinctly did not feel. Her complotting had filled her unhappily again. She too, had hoped that by this time they would be back here. Five years away from the home she loved! Daddy's death, her affection and longing for it. Five crowded, busy years in New York. Five years hoping for this very month until Jennifer's letter had come saying that she was going on to Maine to spend the summer with a schoolmate and could Daphne send her the hundred?

An EXTRA hundred?

Daphne suppressed a sigh and hurried to the top of the staircase. "Prunella, I'm going to tell Willie Orr to bring back the fruit cake and sandwiches I ordered from his mother."

"Fruit cake and sandwiches!" If Daphne had said ox-tail and bullfrog, Prunella's voice couldn't have been any more expressive of her feelings. "Just because you're trying to rent a house don't mean you have to give a tea party."

X X X

"This time it does," Daphne said firmly and added, "It cost me 25 dollars—a lot of money—for the ad in the Sunday paper. I've got to rent this place for the summer! I need the money, Prunella. So it's up to me to show the Snyders what a home-like place this is. How much time have I before lunch?"

"You got a quarter of 'n hour," Prunella, ex-schoolmaid, friend and housekeeper, said, made-over, and went to fetch the eggs from the back porch.

"Hi!"

Prunella straightened and her eyes followed the bulling voice to the figure seated on the back garden wall. Another tramp, she thought, and took another look. Then retreated hastily and called:

"Miss Daphne, one o' 'em's come. He's here."

The company she was waiting for would hardly be "out back," Daphne thought, as she tied a striped gingham out the south window, and shook the dusty figure on her sunny wall and knew it to be not the rotund Mr. Snyder she had already met. Without removing the unlattering towel that bound her hair, or the grimy effects of her morning's work, oblivious to the shapeliness of her slender figure en-veloped in one of Prunella's pink gingham moels, she went into the garden.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE.

Toronto, July 14—(CP)—Irregular price movements gave the Gold Mining of the Toronto Exchange an uncertain trend in the late trading today after the group had displayed strength through the greater part of the session. Base Metals and Industrials were a bit heavy and quiet in the final stage and the Western Oils had slightly more narrow losses than gains. Weakest common was prominent in the Industrial section with a rise of 1 1-2 to 49 on quite heavy trading.

Active profit-taking on the recent sharp advances in Kerr-Addison, O'Brien and a few others gave these issues moderate losses. Pamour posted a gain of 30 cents, and God's Lake 8 cents, both trading heavily.

International Nickel finished the day with minor gains. Cheap issues ruling slightly higher included Base Metals Corporation, Chromium, Sudbury Basin and Ventures. Mining Corporation firmed 15 cents and Treadwell 5 cents.

Foods, Utilities and Steels dropped some of their early gains. The Loblaw issues and Consolidated Bakeries were up.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, July 14—(AP)—Stocks surged into a moderate rally today but near the final hour profit-selling shaved some of the gains.

Leaders picked up fractions to a point or more. Steels were in the forefront with oils and utilities trailing along.

The pace was fairly active most of the morning but slowed as realizing appeared. Transfers were at the rate of about 900,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

MARKET COMMENT

After the very sharp run-up experienced in New York in the last ten days, a reaction there should create no surprise. At the same time the Canadian lists have not participated as fully as New York in the forward movement and consequently there is no reason for a sharp setback here. Public sentiment has improved and the technical position of the market is today better than in several months. Many traders are awaiting a reaction to acquire favorably situated equities.

Those recommending Price Bros. common point out that with newsprint at $50 or more, this company should earn between $3.50 and $5.00 on the common, at the rate of about $12.00 per ton gross. In addition to the excellent outlook for the newsprint end of the business, the lumber division is also looking forward to a most prosperous year.

ABHIM

The various interests in Abitibi Power and Paper Co. are scheduled to meet in Toronto today to discuss reorganization plans. Whether any real progress will be made is a matter of conjecture. It has been hinted on several occasions that Joseph P. Ripley, Chairman of the Bondholders' Protective Committee would bring forward a plan of reorganization which would have the support of the Preferred Protective Committee but so far this has not appeared. Strenuous opposition from the Gundy-Rathermere interests has kept the scheme back. A considerable amount of Journeying-for-position is going on. This condition will probably continue until a compromising arrangement has been arrived at.

Royalite Oil Issues Progress

Wire advices state that the plug in the lime at 6532 ft. in Royalite-Sterling No. 6 has been made. This well is cemented after they had contacted the lime at 6519 feet. Royalite's progress states that their Sterling Pazific No. 4 was drilling at 1268 and that Davis No. 2 reached bottom at 5533.

SEARCH FOR ENGINEER

North Bay, Ont., July 14—(CP)—Sergeant James Haney of Quebec Provincial Police today said search was underway in this district for Joseph Frederick Mulholland, charged with "aiding" samples from a government mine.

The officer said Mulholland escaped from his custody Monday morning at Tilden Lake, 30 miles from North Bay, while being transported from Amos, Que., to Montreal.

JAPANESE ARMY IS REINFORCED

2,000 Troops Supported by Artillery Heads For Pingtai

PEIPING, July 14.—(AP)—The Japanese high command at Tientsin sent 2,000 reinforcements, supported by artillery and armoured cars, to the Peiping area today after the defeat of Japanese troops by the 29th Chinese route army before the southern and eastern gates of the city yesterday.

They were headed for the Japanese army field base at Pingtai, west of the city, in the zone where clashes between night-manoeuvring Japanese and the 29th army last Wednesday precipitated the crisis between Japan and China.

The reinforcements moved up the front in a fleet of motor trucks.

At the same time, however, Japanese sources here announced those troops had evacuated the Wangpingtsien village area near the Marco Polo bridge, where the first clash occurred.

Lull in Tension

The Japanese sources described the withdrawal as "indicating a desire to effect a settlement." This latest development caused another lull in the surface tension but seemingly did not end the increasing difficulties of the crisis.

Fighting was halted today after an engagement near the Nanyuan Airdrome, 8 miles south of Peiping. Gates of the city were opened and rail service to Tientsin was resumed.

Foreigners fled the city on the first of three trains allowed to leave for Tientsin this morning.

Service was said to have been resumed, but because the military situation was improving, but because the Japanese are anxious to avoid protests from foreign powers who are co-signatories of the Boxer Protocols of 1901. These provide that the road from Peiping to the sea must remain open.

LONDON BOBBIES GRAB A NTI-FASCIST DEMONSTRATOR

This demonstrator is being arrested by police in Trafalgar Square, London, as about 3,000 British Fascist heard Sir Oswald Mosley, their leader, scorn them, in the midst of uproar caused by anti-Fascist groups who opposed the gathering. The blackshirts tried to march from Kentish town in north London to Trafalgar, in their first procession since the passage of the Public Order Act. The Public Order Act forbids the use of political uniforms. Sir Oswald, who marched at the head of his followers, was the only marcher who wore the semblance of a uniform. He wore a black shirt and black tie with his light grey suit.

"SHOT" RAPIDS IN CANVAS CANOE

Montreal Canoeist Brings Along Cameraman to Record Event

Cornwall, Ont., July 14.—(CP)—Twenty-seven-year-old Owen Jones of Montreal, added his name yesterday with the few who have successfully "shot" the League Sault Rapids, roughest stretch of water on the St. Lawrence River.

Jones claimed it was his second time to perform the feat. Friends, he said, did not believe him when he reported last year he had gone through the League Sault, so he brought along armored cameraman to record yesterday's attempt.

Using an 18-foot canvas craft of the folding type and weighing 74 pounds, Jones went through the two-mile stretch of white water in less than three minutes.

"It didn't seem nearly as bad as when I went through last year," he said "Perhaps that was because I knew what to expect. I went into them last year without the knowledge of what they were like and wholly unprepared, everything was fine today."

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Eggleton Family Re-union

On Wednesday, July 7th, the annual picnic of the Eggleton Family was held at Bird's Beach, Crow Lake, with a fair number in attendance.

After dinner had been enjoyed, the President, Mr. George Eggleton, called the gathering to order, and in a short address welcomed all present. He also pointed out that 11 years had passed by since forefathers of those present came to Canada in a sail boat, and that it had taken about eight weeks to cross the ocean. A sad note in his address was the reminder that six members have passed away since the last reunion: Mrs. Adam Cooney, Harold, Ont.; Mrs. Edward Holland, of Madoc, Ontario; Mr. John Eggleton, Foxboro, Ont.; Mr. Geo. Clay, Madoc Junction; Mr. Albert Eggleton, Halloway; Mr. Edward Holland, Madoc.

Mr. Robert Eggleton next addressed the gathering on "The Family Tree," and the effort being put forth to obtain a complete record of the Eggletons and their descendants.

He also drew attention to the fact that good reputations or his family were present at the picnic—Himself, Mr. Samuel Eggleton, Mr. Vernon Eggleton and Master Ivan Eggleton. Mr. Robert Eggleton held the office of President for the past six years and still has a keen interest in the progress of the picnic.

Mrs. G. Pearen was then called upon and gave a brief address.

It was moved by Robert Eggleton seconded by Richard Eggleton that some officers hold office for another year.

Hon. President— Mr. Robert Eggleton.

President—Mr. George A. Eggleton.

Secretary—Mrs. Clarence Pitchett.

Pro. Com.—Mrs. A. Wannamaker, Mrs. R. Wilson, Mr. S. Twiddy and Mr. A. W. Andrews.

It was moved by Robert Eggleton seconded by Sam Twiddy that the picnic next year be held on the Island Beach, Crow Lake on the last Wednesday in August.

Mr. Ted Collins, Mr. Alfred Collins and Miss Aleatha Collins all of Toronto, visited friends in Stirling on Sunday last.

RAWDON

Rawdon—One of the worst storms in years visited the town-ship about 2.30 p.m. Sunday afternoon. The sky darkened with the clouds gathering momentum until Stirling were all dashing together a heavy velocity and it looked as if smoke were emerging from out of a huge funnel. Finally the storm broke with thunder rumbling, lightning flashing and torrents of rain pouring down in sheets. The heavy downpour accompanied with hailstones beat the grain, gardens and flowers to the ground. The storm lasted over an hour and a river of water flowed over the fields settling in the low spots.

Fields of grain waving in the breeze before the storm are now flattened to the ground, while early potato plants, large tomato plants and the general run of gardens and flowers are all cut down to the mud. What looked like a promising crop on Saturday for the farmers was a sorry sight on Monday morning. Wheat fields ready for the binder will need a mower in places.

The continued rainfall during the early season gave everything luxurious growth, followed by a ten day period of extreme heat which checked the grain and now with the Sunday storm climaxed the farmer's dreams for a bumper crop.

A good rain was badly needed but the torrential downpour came unexpectedly and has done untold damage.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—Mr. Robert Rolling and Rev. J. P. Evenson attended the ice cream social given at Carmel United Church and report a successful evening.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holderick who were recently married at Casselman.

Mr. and Mrs. David Palmer of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson.

Mrs. Edward Collins who has been with her brother in Prince Edward county, returned home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weir and family of Hillier were guests on Monday of Mr. Robert A. Hall.

Congratulations of a Plainfield resident celebrated the glorious twelfth by holding a motor boat race on Mud Creek. Charles Sargent who states that he has not missed a celebration in fifty-seven years.

The storm on Sunday, which resulted in no serious fire losses in this vicinity, brought badly needed rain and has assured the farmers of a good grain yield so far as the early crops are concerned. Gardens and corn, too, are looking fine.

Love and Larry

By JOAN M. GRAY
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service

Laurie sat at her desk, remembering. Before her was a bundle of letters, tied with a ribbon, which she had been reading.

Laurie was twenty-six today and almost perfectly happy. Dick Bolton loved her and since they had met in two weeks their engagement would be announced. Yet, 12 years ago, when she was but sixteen, Laurie had had a romance and she could not forget it. It had been only a boy-and-girl affair, and Larry was but a few days older than she, but it was their first affair and sweet while it lasted. Larry had taken her to the parties, bought her flowers and candy when his limited allowance had permitted, and whenever he was obliged to go away with unfeeling parents, he had poured his young heart out to her in letters—the letters which were now before her.

Laurie sighed. Yesterday, returning from a drive with Dick, she had glanced at a figure just turning a corner and had met the grey eyes of Larry. And he had looked at her hungrily, as he always did when they met and as always her throat constricting and her heart did funny things. Then he had turned. Their little romance had lasted just three days and then had simply drifted away. Larry had taken other girls to other dances, and then found them no longer necessary and traveling with "his crowd." And, although Laurie had had plenty of beaux, the spark had never flared again until she met Dick. Then she fell in love.

Suddenly Laurie went to the phone. She asked a friend of hers who had married a friend of Larry's to have her for dinner one night and have Larry come home with Bill.

"Just you two?" asked her friend. "What's the idea? Say, it's, anyway?"

But she got no satisfaction.

Never had Laurie looking lovelier than that night when Larry entered her friend's living-room with Bill. Laurie's heart leaped, but she smiled at Larry, and did not dare offer her hand. Later, she say the least, was surprised to find himself in her company, with no other guest present. He found her yearningly yet greeted her gaily and with the impression that justice to each course. He certainly didn't pay much attention to her but beneath that indifferent exterior who could tell what seethed? As they rose from the table she said, "I'm going to take Larry out in the garden to smoke his cigarette, for old times' sake."

Her friend stared at her. Larry seemed "uneasy. "Can't I smoke here?" he asked. "Do you hate cigarette smoke in the garden, Bee?"

But Laurie gave Bee no time to answer. "Oh, come along, Larry, I won't bite you. You used not to be afraid of me".

Laurie sat down on a log, after a little more than an hour, after a moment. She remembering how they used to sit in the garden, looking for words. Did Larry remember?

"Those were happy days, weren't dickens," he said. "If I stay here long I'll have a rose-cold. How about you?"

Rose-cold! "I never have them," she said. "You never were bothered, either".

"Nope," quoth Larry. "Remember how we used to sit on that old bench of your mother's and moon at each other for hours? We were laughing at it just the other day with Mabel Martin. Those days were the limit."

Laurie shivered. Her throat hurt her terribly. She was glad it had grown dusk in the garden. That she struggled with a giggle. Finally her pride arrived to help her.

"We certainly were," she said. "But who is Marion?"

"Well, she's a friend I'm going to marry. Alright wish me luck."

"I do, and you've told her all about our silly romance?"

"Sure have. We're laughing over it nearly to death. She did, herself."

Laurie rose. "Well, let's go in. It's getting chilly."

The rest of the evening passed like a bad dream. Laurie laughed and talked and finally called Dick up and said she was ready to take her home. At her door she clung to him.

"Oh, Dick, Dick, I love you. Tell me again that you love me, too," she whispered tearfully, and he told her.

Later she went to her desk and brought forth the bundle of letters. She tore each one in shreds, flung them into the waste-basket. Then she put out the light and went to bed.

"Oh, you fool, you silly, silly fool" she gasped. "To imagine he was longing for me all this time. It's his natural expression, that hungry look. Lou married her over him, anyway. It was just love's young dream, nothing more. Nothing for your first 'affair.' Wasn't he a scream when he talked about the rose-cold? I'll not think of him. A little romance again without laughing at Larry!"

A week or two later she and Dick were returning from a drive and she happened ot glance out at a figure just coming around a corner. The figure looked at her and wondered absently who it was. A few moments later it dawned to her that it was Larry.

TROOPS FROM JAPAN TO BE SENT TO N. CHINA

Roosevelt Shows Anxiety Over Far-East Situation, Cancels Weekend Cruise

Chinese Hear Japan is Contracting 6000 Men at Fengtai

16,000 JAPS IN CHINA

Report of Agreement to End Crisis is Not Credited

Washington, July 15 (AP)—White House aides said today that President Roosevelt was so concerned over the Far Eastern situation that he had given up plans for his usual week-end cruise and would remain in the White House.

The situation developing in Europe over the proposed non-intervention patrol of Spanish waters also was said to have caused the U.S. President grave anxiety.

Peiping, July 15 (AP)—Foreign military attaches heard today Japan is concentrating a force of more than 6,000 men at Fengtai which they believed would be used for an attempt to occupy Peiping within two days.

16,000 Japanese in Army.

Foreign and Chinese military men believed Japan had the equivalent of a full division, about 16,000 men, in Northern Hopeh south of the great wall.

Foreign attaches expected the Japanese to attempt to drive out the Chinese 29th army, take over full control of Peiping, Tientsin and the connecting railway.

First reports that agreement to end the crisis had been reached at Tientsin were contradicted by later reports negotiations were continuing.

Report of Agreement.

Peiping, July 15 (AP)—An agreement was reported today to have been reached between local Chinese and Japanese authorities at Tientsin settling the North China crisis to the satisfaction of the Japanese army.

Reports here indicated the local authorities had given into Japanese demands. Nanking has insisted it will recognize no agreement reached locally.

It is believed here that elimination from the government of General Sung Cheh-Yuan, Commander of the 29th route army and head of the Hopeh-Chahar political council, was the main feature of the agreement.

Troops From Japanese Mainland

Tokyo, July 15—(AP)—Troops will be dispatched to North China from the Japanese mainland, the war office announced today, because of the serious situation there.

The official announcement came shortly after General Gen Sugiyama, War Minister, warned:

Tokyo, July 15—(AP)—General Gen Sugiyama, Japanese Minister of War, today warned an unprecedented council of prefectural governors that the crisis caused by a clash of Japanese troops between Japanese and Japanese troops in North China may take an even more grave turn.

Japan's first ranking war lord opened the council of prefectural rulers, to take all possible measures for mobilization, and be in readiness to requisition everything necessary for the army's operations against China.

"Resolute Ready"

Gen. Sugiyama's statement came virtually at the same time 2,000,000 army and navy reservists were told to hold themselves ready to a call to the colors.

"The crisis has exploded in north China," Gen. Ryutaro Inouye, President of the powerful Army and Navy Reservist Association proclaimed to his members. "Future developments are unpredictable but we must be prepared for the worst in order to preserve the empire.

Reinforcement For Chinese

Nanking, July 15 (AP)—The Chinese government's foreign office spokesman announced that today the central government had ordered reinforcements to north China to support the 30th route army, fighting Japanese troops near Peiping for the past week.

The spokesman said he could not divulge in detail the plans but cautions taken but added: "Six divisions of troops are standing by somewhere in north China ready to go to the aid of the 29th army if necessity demands."

Control Plan for Spain Meets with Opposition

NINE MARRIAGES IN TWELVE YEARS RECORD REVEALS

George Roediger 55, Sentenced to Nine Years in Stoney Mountain

PLEADED GUILTY

Disappearance of Some of Wives Now Being Investigated

Winnipeg, July 15 CP)—George Roediger, 55-year-old bigamist, was sentenced today to nine years in penitentiary today as police, who said his record included at least nine marriages in the last twelve years, probed mysterious disappearance of one of his "wives."

The grim-faced German pleaded guilty to a bigamous marriage to Mrs. Julius Regetnik of McTavish, Man., widow and mother of seven children, in 1936 and to theft of $600 from her. He was sentenced by Magistrate H. S. Graham yesterday to seven years in Stony Mountain penitentiary for bigamy and two years for theft, sentences to run concurrently.

Acting on provincial police announced in Toronto they have established definitely Roediger is the man who on Aug. 24, 1926, under the name of George Rodgers, married Mrs. Christina McIntyre in Allandale, Ont.

Relatives of Mrs. McKenzie have been heard of since the couple moved to Toronto shortly after the marriage. Police in Toronto and Winnipeg said they are pressing investigation into the woman's disappearance.

Astounding Record.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Graham said: "Roediger, I have a report on you from above you have one of the most astounding records I have ever read. It is manifested in this record you are a menace to

Accident Pictures Will Be Published

Toronto, July 15.—In the hope of cutting down the appalling alarming loss of life in motor car crashes on Ontario highways, the provincial government has set a new bark immediately upon a deliberate policy of making motorists of this Province "fear-conscious.

"We have accomplished much with our courtesy campaign," Premier Hepburn said yesterday, "but there is no doubt we must start something else. I'm afraid, if we are to stop accidents, we have to overcome the need for safe and sane driving."

By means of pictures of fatal crashes—horror pictures is the way Premier Hepburn described it—will be inserted in the daily and weekly newspapers as a part of propaganda period, the Government expects to achieve a large measure of the results which its courtesy program has failed to produce.

"This accident fatality toll has got to be checked somehow," is the way the Prime Minister sees the situation up. "It has got to the point where it is the duty of people fear-conscious—that's all."

BADLY BURNED FOUR RESCUED IN COAL MINE

Twenty Others Trapped But Will Likely be Rescued

BLAST CAUSE UNKNOWN

Crews Work Feverishly at Sullivan, Indiana to Save Men

Sullivan, Ind., July 15 (AP)—Four men, burned badly but still alive, were rescued today from the Baker coal mine, five miles northeast of Sullivan, shortly after an explosion trapped them and about 20 other miners.

Rescue crews worked feverishly to bring out the men still entombed. "Leaders of the rescue squads expressed hope all would be brought out alive.

Mine officials said first reports that the men were in the mine were erroneous.

The four miners rescued were taken to a Sullivan hospital. Their names were not immediately available.

The explosion, of undetermined origin, occurred two miles from the mine entry.

Mine officials and rescue workers said no bodies had been recovered, discounting first reports that four men were killed.

The four miners brought out alive were Charles Secrest, Arch Alderson, Arnold Roberts and Homer Reynolds, all of Sullivan. All were in a serious condition from burns.

Rescue of the miners still in the shaft, estimated by mine officials to number at least 20, remained in doubt.

Slow Drivers Warned In 'Horror' Campaign

Toronto, July 15 (CP) — Coincident with Australian start of a "horror campaign" designed to slow the havoc created through motor accidents, Ontario provincial police have been instructed to pay more attention to the slow driver. Premier Hepburn and officials of the Ontario Highway Department have concluded the slow driver is the direct cause of more accidents than the driver who moves along between 40 and 50 miles an hour.

While plans for the distribution of pictures showing death and destruction on the road, have not been completed Premier Hepburn said the campaign would be inaugurated as soon as possible.

"We are going to ask the cooperation of the press," he said. "Both in editorial comment and in giving more publicity to accidents. The Australian campaign has reached unprecedented heights this year. Some of the highways have almost reached the saturation point as it is. I am not admitting that the 50-mile-an-hour law is responsible for the increase in accidents. It is the slow driver who piles up a long line of cars and then cutting-in-and-out starts."

The premier said if the provincial police are expected to check up on the slow driver it would be necessary to put a policeman on every mile of highway, 2,922 miles of highway.

"I am taking the matter of the slow driver up with General Williams, Commissioner of Police to see if something cannot be worked out in this connection," added the premier.

NURSE-IN-TRAINING IS KILLED IN CAR CRASH

Stratford, Ont., July 15.—(CP)—Clara Gormley, 22-year-old nurse in training at St. Mary's Hospital, Kitchener was killed last night when the car in which she was a passenger and driven by her brother John F. Gormley, Hibbert Township, rolled over on the highway after swiping another vehicle on highway No. 8, four miles east of Stratford.

William Burling, Stratford, driver of the other car involved, and Miss Irene O'Rourke of Dublin, companion of Miss Gormley, and returning by Dublin to Kitchener, escaped with bruises.

John F. Gormley, car driver, was held on a charge of criminal negligence. He was released on bail of two sureties of $2,500 each to appear in a week's time. As far as could be learned Gormley, Burling and her companion, Miss O'Rourke, were strangers to the front seat of a light sedan, with Miss Gormley sitting in the centre.

At the inquest both the car driven by Gormley and the car driven by Burling were rolled over on their sides without leaving the highway.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen' Chief Observer Meteorological Office on Swithin's day if falls the rain,
For forty days 'twill be the same.
If on that day the sun should shine,
For forty days it will be fine.

This is one of the oldest weather proverbs and refers to St. Swithin, who died in 862 as the weather saint. He now lies buried in the Winchester Cathedral, England. The following explanation has been suggested as to why so many weather proverbs were formulated in connection with saints' days: The masses of people and farmers considered their best apparel and noted the weather more than they would on ordinary work days. Thus it was that the weather on some St. Swithin's day and the following days passed into a proverb which has persisted to this day.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, July 15 (CP)—A moderate disturbance centred in northeastern Ontario Wednesday and remained relatively low over the western Provinces. Thunderstorms were general in the Grand Banks, while high pressure covers the Maritimes and extends Atlantic coast States, also the Northwest Territories. Heavy rains have been reported in many parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, with thunderstorms in Southern Manitoba.

Lake Superior—Mostly cloudy with showers and thunderstorms today and on Friday; moderate easterly winds today, eastward shifting.

Manitoba—Northeast winds; cloudy today and Friday with showers and thunderstorms.

Saskatchewan—Mostly cloudy today and part of Friday with local showers in many districts.

Alberta—Northerly winds; cloudy and cool today and part of Friday with rain in southern districts.

Pain Killer for Tooth - Drilling Most Effective Yet Devised

Named "Tabesthesin" And Nearly 100 Percent Effective

WORKS QUICKLY

Atlantic City, N.J., July 15 (AP)—A new "pain killer", described as the most effective anesthetic ever devised for tooth-drilling, was announced before the American Dental Association Convention today by its discoverers, Dr. Harold A. Sherman and Dr. Samuel Postal of New York City.

The new chemical, developed at Columbia University's College of Pharmacy, has been named "Tabesthesin", and was said by Dr. Sherman to be "100 per cent. effective" in 89 per cent. of the cases in which it has been tried-so far, and totally ineffective in only four per cent.

It works on much the same principle as the anesthetic the men found out two years ago by Dr. Leroy L. Hartman, a Canadian of the same university, which contains one of the same ingredients—Ayerol. The first District Dental Society of New York City reported Dr. Sherman's preparation was effective in only 32 per cent of the cases, which it was used during a special test.

Applied to Dentin.

The new discovery is applied directly to the dentin, a thin film underlying the hard outer surface of the tooth. In ordinary cases it is kept on that dentin about three minutes before the dentist starts to drill but on extremely sensitive teeth the dentist waits for five minutes.

Dr. Sherman calculated today the cost of applying the new anesthetic would be about one cent per tooth. It has been manufactured in large scale during the past few days, he said, and will be available in all cities soon today.

Before applying the desensitiser, he said, it is necessary to use a weak pound of chloroform and acetone to dry out the dentin at the spot where the filling is to be done. This seals the tissue highly absorbent and permits the desensitiser to penetrate quickly.

'Sea Serpent Whatelse' Animal Without Head, Stirs Up Orillia Folk

Orillia, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Orillia and Atherley residents have their own sea serpent to talk about. They call it "the sea serpent whatelse."

Mrs. Lorne Tudhope and Mrs. Douglas Lough, sisters, with their father, W. P. Hayes of Toronto, saw the creature as dusk was falling last Sunday night. It was swimming in mid-channel of the Narrows, connecting link between Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching.

The serpent was heading towards Washago, believed its home territory, according to Mr. Hayes and the two women. They were standing on the rear of their cottage boathouse when they saw the long moving object in the channel.

"I first thought it might have been a log or some other animal," said Mrs. Tudhope. "But it was no log. It was long and had been a pair of loons for it was going much too fast for that and besides it was a great deal too big."

She said "the sea serpent or whatever it was" was a long, shimmering eel-like creature.

Other inquiries revealed a sea gull was seen about the same time struggling for its life against something trying to drag it under the water.

Powers' Duty is to Act Is View Held in British Scheme Submitted

Time is Held as Essence of Scheme Submitted by Britain

NATIONS LOOK ASKANCE

France Wants Volunteers Withdrawn Before Recognition Given

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 15 (CP-Cable)—Great Britain's control plan for Spain is running into choppy seas France, Germany and Italy are all ready to examine it but they have all got reservations in mind.

British officials look forward rather uneasily to a series of protracted negotiations while neutral observers on both Spanish frontiers remain suspended from duty.

Time Essence of Scheme

Yet in the British view time is the essence of the scheme. Great Britain has warned the powers that if the scheme fails the nations of Europe will be faced with a new and infinitely more dangerous situation.

The submission of the scheme the British authorities feel they have completed their mandate from the non-intervention powers. It is now for the powers to act.

From opposite angles both Paris and Rome look questioningly at the provision for granting limited belligerent rights at sea provided satisfactory progress is made with the withdrawal of volunteers. France wants volunteers withdrawn before recognition is given granted. Italy objects to the withdrawal of volunteers.

Arming of Merchantmen

London, July 15 (AP)—Great Britain, as part of her rearmament programme, is planning a full gun and other equipment in order to arm merchant ship in case war comes.

INDICTED LEADERS OF RACKET SOUGHT

Special Prosecutor Says Annual Take was $100,000,000 a Year

New York, July 15 (AP)—Eight men, indicted leaders of a $100,000,000-a-year racket, were sought today as Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey aimed a death blow at what he termed organized crime's largest source of slush fund money.

The eight fugitives and four others already indicted by a state ordinary Grand Jury yesterday as members of the policy racket of the late Arthur (Thuh Schultz) Flegenheimer, alias Dutch Schultz, New York beer baron, were: Newark, N.J., tavern in October, 1935.

One of those indicted was Jacob (Gurrah) Orgen, alias Jacob Shultz and other gangsters. The indictments charged murder in one of three who directed Schultz' policy racket after his death.

BUGGY OCCUPANTS HURT

Stratford, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Three occupants of a buggy suffered minor injuries when their horse drawn vehicle was crashed by an automobile on the road about three quarters of a mile east of Topping last night.

Winged Menace Feared in Alberta

Lethbridge, Alta., July 15—(CP)—A winged menace threatened southern Alberta's irrigated grain fields today—a menace from the drought lands of Saskatchewan.

Southern Saskatchewan farmers, despairing of saving their drought-stricken fields, have stopped poisoning grasshoppers now in full flight looking for food.

H. L. Seamans, Dominion Entomologist here, today warned Alberta fields may become the feeding grounds for the hungry Saskatchewan hoppers, known to travel hundreds of miles a day, searching for food.

Communications received recently by the company in connection with a possible location in another locality included Hull, Que., Johnnestown and Kitchener.—Brockville Recorder.

BLACKBIRDS START TO FLOCK IN MARSHES

First signs of advancing summer and hint that fall is on the way are given by the gregarious birds of the district, notably the blackbirds whose hosts have commenced their first flocking in nearby marshes. Flying over the mirrored surface of the bay early this morning in low line, a small flock of wild geese was also observed by residents.

TWENTY-TWO INMATES IN COUNTY JAIL

Registrations at the county gaol have shown no recent decline despite a continued warm weather. At the present time a total of 22 inmates, all adult incarcerants are quartered in the institution. This is two more than higher than average for summer.

CONSTRUCTION COSTS NOW ON INCREASE

Construction costs will soar during the months ahead to a new high level, is indicated by the fact that up to the present mid-month 29 permits authorized at a total of $6,300 have been issued for new building by the office of the city engineer. They include alterations to an apartment issued to G. A. Fraser, estimated at $1,600; new store front, issued to H. Green, $400; Boller Hosein, 7 400 J. Cash, $1,200 and a new residence issued to J. Buchanan, Dufferin, at $3,000.

TOURIST REQUESTS "AS HEAVY AS EVER

Among the latest registrations in the visitor's book at the local Chamber of Commerce are the last Mr. and Mrs. Walter Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. R. Evans, Pontiac, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Lyon, Akron, Ohio; Rudi Kemp, Cameron, Texas and F. H. Hillard, Keene New Hampshire. Quebec is the best yonder to Callandar and the Quinte area as well as for information regarding Algonquin Park are just as heavy this year as ever it is reported by the office.

ALL INDICATIONS POINT TO RAIN

While lowering clouds were scanned over the district today for the first signs of heavy rain which held promise of saturating sun-baked farmland of the section, old-time weather wise residents thumbed through almanacs today for one of the oldest of weather proverbs:

"On St. Swithin's Day, if fallit the rain,

"For forty days 'twill be the same.

"On that day the sun shall shine

"For forty days it will be fine."

Though rain had not fallen up to a late hour this morning, among indications that a thorough soaking would be received were evident. And, according to popular opinion, and proverb, if rain falls today this district is due for a continued period of dampness for the next forty days at least.

Past records for this section, it was revealed by search today, do not bear this prophecy out.

INQUEST ADJOURNED UNTIL JULY 21ST

Following a preliminary hearing under Coroner J. J. Robertson of the city, held in Deseronto, last evening, the inquest into the death of Albert Jackson of Deseronto who was killed by falling masonry in the town yesterday was adjourned until next Wednesday afternoon, July 21, at 1 p.m.

COMMITTEE INSPECTS PIECE ROAD WORK

Members of the House of Refuge Committee of Hastings County Council who met today, wound up their routine business of the morning by a visit to the House of Refuge buildings to inspect a section of road work that is being carried on near the institution. The committee was headed by Chairman Deputy Reeve Bedford of Rawdon Township.

Mail Couriers Will Hold Outing

Plans have been completed for the first annual picnic of the rural mail couriers of South Hastings and district which will be held on Sunday at Sarles' Beach, Oak Lake. The committees in charge of the various events, under the leadership of William Cruickshank, president of the South Hastings Branch, have been working diligently to make this first get-together a marked success. A program of sports for young and old with ninety prizes, available through the generosity of business men and newspapers of South Hastings and other points will provide entertainment for those present. A special prize is being offered to the oldest courier in point of service and it will be interesting to see which member merits the prize.

Canada's First Road-Rail Car in Belleville

Belleville citizens today saw arrive at the C.N.R. depot the two units passenger and freight, of the new type of automotive vehicle which links highway and railway. These will be put to test on branch line in three sections of the Canadian National System. The first of these auto-railers was recently inspected by S. J. Hungerford, Chairman and President of the C.N.R. and a number of officials. The above photograph shows John Roberts, Chief of Motive Power and Car Equipment, pointing out to President Hungerford the flanged wheels which are let down or drawn up to change from road to rail operation. This operation is controlled from the driver's seat and requires only one minute's time. In the group (left to right) are W. B. Walker, Chief of Transportation, Mr. Hungerford, Mr. Roberts and R. L. Fairbairn, Manager Passenger Service Bureau.

The auto-road-rail vehicles after arriving at the depot were quickly by a mechanical arrangement transformed from rail to road conveyances and were on the streets of Belleville. The cars were inspected at the market square after the trip and were then driven up Front Street and at one-thirty o'clock a tour of the city was made with a number of assuring citizens as passengers.

In announcing the purchase of this equipment Mr. Hungerford emphasized that the move was of an experimental nature and was intended to permit of tests being made on various sections of the system as to the adaptability of these cars for use in Canada. It is believed they will cut down considerably costs very considerably on light traffic branch lines and at the same time provide better service to the public dependent upon such lines.

Railway Bus and Freight Car Travel Rails and Highways

Belleville Visited by Two Units of Auxiliary Equipment

HUNDREDS TO INSPECT

Residents of the city and district witnessed an evolution and a new phase in railroad development with the arrival here at noon today on the Canadian National Railways of the first three "Auto-railers" seen in Canada.

The sleek, silvery topped, green colored units which are equally at home on either road or rail have been ordered by the Canadian National Railways for the purpose of testing their suitability for use on light traffic branch lines and are enroute through Belleville to Niagara Falls where the passenger vehicle will be put on the "run" between Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Port Dalhousie. There it will be given the strenuous test of making calls at the principal hotels in Niagara Falls, the Canadian Pacific and International ticket offices, and will operate the highway bridge run by rail from there to St. Catharines, Thorold, Merritton and Port Dalhousie, commencing the run with the steamer for Toronto.

To Run Up From Kingston

Leaving Kingston this morning at 10.00 a.m. o'clock, the auto-railers which can change from rail to road or vice versa in a time of from thirty seconds to one minute, arrived at the road crossing west of the coal dump on the Canadian National line at twelve o'clock noon. Here, local divisional superintendent and other officials of the division had accompanied them from Brockville. In charge of the vehicles was Mr. H. J. Rochester, superintendent of passenger service of Montreal and passenger driver Rodicutt, instructor of the Brush Products Company, Detroit, makers of the units. In charge of the freight vehicle was W. E. Rogers, assistant superintendent of the local division and driver Goldman Day. On hand also to meet them in this city was Mr. Dan Young, in charge of the down-town C.N.R. ticket office.

Following a brief wait at the north station during which time both vehicles were inspected and awaiting some, they proceeded down Station Street preceded by police motorcycle escort to Market Square where during the two hours' halt on display other hundreds took the opportunity of inspecting the development in transportation.

Specifications and Whistles

Complete in the last detail with appointments of the finest highway busses, the "Auto-railers", as passenger and one freight vehicle weigh in the neighborhood of 14,000 pounds. They are equipped with electric bells as well as whistles for rail use. Two amplifiers for road use, and one railroad type headlamp are also standard equipment. Classification lamps and flags for use as signals for rail equipment are also carried. The passenger type vehicle has capacity of 32 persons with room for baggage and extras. A pay load of five tons on rail and half that capacity on roads can be carried by the freight vehicle. The passenger vehicle is perfectly ventilated and cool, carries the green color effect in the interior trimming and upholstering.

The change from highway to rails is accomplished by the driver dropping four flanged wheels which ride the rails. On a road with surface finish the rail wheels when change over can be made without stopping the vehicle. The motive power on both road and rails is provided by the four rubber tired wheels at the rear of the vehicle, driven in turn by 105 horse power gasoline engines. While on the rails the cars ride the inflated wheels and the flanged wheels in the possibility of a blow out is no hazard.

"We do not mean to supersede steam engines or use them for any purpose except as auxiliaries," stated Mr. H. C. Rochester, superintendent of passenger service, Montreal, in charge of the vehicles. "Frankly they are an experiment. Though they have been in use in the United States for some time, these are two of three the Canadian National Railways have has ordered as a try-out. They will be given every chance to test themselves on light traffic lines." The smooth rail riding qualities of the machines permit the writing of letters while in motion.

The "Auto-Railers" which adhere to the same schedules as the other monster brothers the steam locomotives, will leave Belleville this afternoon for Oshawa where they will be put on view in that city for a short period.

Obituary

MRS. MARGARET E. CAMPBELL

While visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Topping, Marysville, Ontario, there passed away on July 9th., a highly respected former resident, Mrs. Margaret Eleanor Campbell. The deceased, daughter of Samuel and Adeline Mallory, was born in Flint, Michigan 1870 and came to Canada in early childhood.

Some years later she was married to James Alexander Campbell of Marysville, who predeceased her twenty-two years ago. One son, Gibbs was killed on Ontario, since been years ago. She is survived by one daughter, Carol, wife of D. A. Cowan, Toronto, with whom she was residing during her recent illness.

The funeral took place at Christ Church, Deseronto, on Sunday, July 11th. Rev. Rural Dean Hough conducted the service. The pall bearers were Allan Topping, Arnold Ford, F. Oliver, Thomas Curry, James McAlpine and David Harvey. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Remains were laid to rest at Deseronto Cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM NELSON

(Contributed)

Many friends were residing at Belleville and in the district will regret to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. William Nelson of Canada, New York, who suffered a severe stroke, Sunday morning, July 11th., at 8 o'clock and passed away a few hours later.

Nellson before her marriage was Lottie Bradshaw second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bradshaw of Robertson, Ontario. After her marriage twenty-three years ago to Mr. Nelson they lived in Toronto for a number of years and later moved to Caledonia, New York.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Nelson, found her to be of a bright and cheerful disposition always willing to help those in need.

Surviving are her husband, William Nelson, one daughter, Three; four sisters and two brothers namely Mrs. J. McPherson and Mrs. W. Hart of Napanee, Ontario; Mrs. Robert Bell and Mrs. Archie Bell of Belleville, Ontario; Charles and Fred Bradshaw, both of Toronto.

The funeral services were conducted at the Christ Church Caledonia by the Rev. Mr. McLeod, of the Unified Church of which Mrs. Nelson was a member. The beautiful floral tributes were many, showing the great esteem in which she was held.

ROY POLLARD (Frankford)

Frankford, July 13 (Special) After a brief illness Roy Pollard passed away at the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning, July 12th.

The late Mr. Pollard was born at Frankford 34 years ago and had resided here practically all his life. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard. For some time he had been employed as assistant caretaker of the Frankford Public and Continuation Schools and was well and favorably regarded in the community. Many friends regret his passing. He was unmarried.

In religion he was a member of the United Church and was active in the work of the Young People's Union, being Vice-President of the society. Fraternally he was a member of Frank Lodge No. 138 A.F. & A.M.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard, Frankford; three sisters, Mrs. Mae Frost, Frankford; Mrs. Thomas Burkett, Frankford; Mrs. Eleanor who resides in the state of Illinois; three brothers, George Pollard, Jr. of Madoc; William and Findlay Pollard, Frankford.

NO SIGNIFICANCE TO LIBERAL MEET

Simply Routine Executive Conference Says Prominent Official

Simply a routine executive meeting for officers of the riding. It was just a regular gathering the same as obtains when it has been held regularly. There was no political significance attached to it," reported officers of the West Hastings Liberal Association following a meeting of the executive which was held in Marmora yesterday.

Following the meeting which, was reported of solely routine nature, the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, Provincial Minister of Health, and present sitting member, was host at dinner which was held in the Hotel Marmora.

It has been confidently predicted that at the meeting a nomination date at which a candidate would be selected to represent the riding at the next Provincial election would be set. This action, so obtained from Marmora today, no mention of a consideration was made. It was only a regular meeting of the executive. No mention of anything of a political nature was made," declared P. A. Bayly, Deloro.

DEATH OF WORMS

Lindsay, Ont., July 15 (CP) Anglers report unprecedented dearth in this year's crop of fish-worms. As a result worms are selling retail at a good price and ingenious methods are being employed to bring them to the surface of the ground. One worm dealer bores a hole in the ground, then pours in a mixture of mustard and water and the worms just have to come up.

"SLIGHT CHANGES" NEEDED IN B. N. A. ACT SAYS NORMAN ROGERS

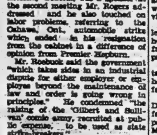
Toronto, July 15 — (CP) — To avoid "collision" between Dominion, Provincial and Municipal powers, Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Minister of Labor, is of the opinion "slight changes" might have to be made in the British North America act.

Mr. Rogers, speaking here twice yesterday, insisted that the constitutional question in both addresses, he commented that misunderstandings arose among the three powers because the Dominion's constitution was not sufficiently clear in respect to relief and unemployment problems.

"I believe these collisions have actually been due to the fact that under our constitution we have an area of uncertain and indefinite jurisdiction," he said. They were not, he believed, the result of one power trying to embarrass the others.

While the Maritimes had objected because the government gave too much assistance to the Prairie Provinces, Mr. Rogers said the recovery of the west was vital to the rest of Canada. He also touched on social problems, declaring free enterprise must be reconciled with social security if industrial disputes were to end.

Impartial Attitude



As to Dominion policy in labor relations he commented "the forces of law and order must not be used for purposes of intimidation." His department would be maintain an impartial attitude.

Arthur Roebuck, former Ontario Attorney-General, was a speaker at the second meeting Mr. Rogers addressed and he also touched on labor problems, referring to the Oshawa, Ont., automobile strike which, ended in his resignation from the cabinet in a difference of opinion from Premier Hepburn.

Mr. Roebuck said the government "which takes sides in an industrial dispute for either employer or employee betrays the maintenance of law and order is going wrong in principles." He condemned "the raising of the 'Gilbert and Sullivan' comic army, recruited at public expense, to be used as state strike-breakers."

CROP CONDITIONS IN CANADA

Good prospects for farm crops are now evident in all parts of Canada except in the prairie wheat belt where the most serious and prolonged drought in the history of the country continues practically unrelieved, says the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The advent of warm dry weather has been of great benefit to farmers in the eastern provinces and British Columbia where haying is now general with a good crop in prospect. Spring grains and hoed crops are promising throughout all western Canada and the effects of the late wet spring have been largely outgrown. While parts of the province are too dry, general conditions are still good in Manitoba although the rust which is widely distributed may yet prove a serious factor. Saskatchewan conditions have shown little or no improvement. Rains which fell during the week in scattered localities helped feed prospects somewhat, but were of little value to the grain, most of which is now beyond aid except in the northeastern section. Variable prospects prevail in Alberta with some good crops in the southwest, the Calgary and Olds section ,the northeast and Peace River areas and elsewhere prospects only fair to poor. Pastures are gone in much of Saskatchewan and Alberta and heavy shipments of cattle have been made to areas where feed is more plentiful.

INDEX NUMBERS OF WHOLESALE PRICES

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics index number of wholesale prices on the base 1926-100, rose from 86.2 for the week ending July 2 to 87.0 for the week ending July 9. Advances occurred in Vegetable Products, Iron and Non-Ferrous Metals by Textile Products moved slightly lower. Among the more important commodities to register gains were grains, milled products, livestock and several of the non-ferrous metals while decreases were shown by rubber furs and fresh meats.

REMAKING OF NEW WORLD

Remaking of the world by the constant urge towards new invention and discovery and achievement is the spirit of mankind at the present time.

The first transpolar flight a few days ago might have been regarded as an isolated great event did the world not know that other machines were in readiness to duplicate and exceed the achievements of the first transpolar fliers. In early days air achievements lasted long as records but in the intensive new age in which all the elements of success are fused into accomplishment, such a record as that first did not stand. It was superseded this week by a second flight which set a world non-stop record for straight course from Moscow to the west coast of the U.S. What will be next attempted? An American or a Canadian trail-blazer reversing the course and more Soviet plane flights? The Soviet authorities will hardly rest on their laurels, fresh as they are. These imaginative people have shown an enterprise which is most commendable.

Perhaps never in airplane history have events moved so rapidly as they have this year and these latter weeks. Great things were done by the pioneers years ago and mechanism and skill and knowledge of today are reaping the full sweep of the harvest of those early efforts.

'BOTTLED SUNSHINE'

Quebec's output of medicinal cod liver oil, one of the liver oils so valuable from the health standpoint because of high vitamin content, rose sharply last year and this increase was the main factor in lifting Canadian production almost to 70,500 gallons, or nearly 10,000 gallons above the 1935 figure. All told Quebec's production was 17,327 gallons, as compared with only slightly more than 8,000 gallons in the year before.

Nova Scotia continued to be the biggest producer, with, roughly 50,000 gallons to its credit. New Brunswick, the only other province in which medicinal cod oil was put up, had a production of 3,100 gallons. There was an increase of several hundred gallons in the New Brunswick output but Nova Scotia's total was only a trifle larger than in 1935.

It used to be, of course, that the cod alone among the fishes was recognized as having added value because of the oil obtainable from its liver. Now, however, it has been found that various other fish livers are valuable because of their vitamin content, and for some other reasons, and last year the livers handled commercially by Canadian fishermen included those of the halibut, swordfish, black cod, ling cod and red cod. Those of the swordfish were obtained on the Atlantic coast, halibut on both coasts but the larger quantity in British Columbia, an dthe black, ling, and red cod livers in British Columbia.

THE VILLAGE SEER

"From the day we are born we begin to die," Quoth Mallet the village seer,
"Life is a riddle, like Nero, we fiddle While Rome burns away with each year."

"Then what are we living for?"
Asked inquisitive John
"If living means death, then why waste
our breath
By waking with gladness each dawn?"

"I cannot explain what God has designed
To complete this orgy of strife...
All that I know, is we come and we go.
To fulfill the pattern of life..."

"But life is a wastrel, a wanton disgrace—
A hope whose hope died in its birth!
How vain is the power, to live for an hour,
Then bury it six feet in earth!"

"You are cynical, John, but I truly admit
There are some things beyond my small clay,
God works out His dreams with mysterious schemes—
We're the mummers who act out His play...

"What the future may hold, I cannot declare...
Perhaps great rewards there may be...
Or we may be born, so that some distant morn
We'll feed hungry roots of a tree...

"But that matters not, all that matters is this:
For some reason God patterned man...
And what it may be, we must wait till we see,
And live lif ethe best that we can.

"But one thing I KNOW, life is never in vain
If we found but one love on this sod!
For an hour at least we have conquered the Beast,
And walked with the soul of our God!"

—George William Reid.

"DERE MABLE" HAS BEE.. REVIVED by J. V. McAree in his Globe and Mail column. "Dere Mable" was a war product, a series of public letters supposedly from a soldier at the front to his girl back home. As a book this humorous sidelight of the war sold 500,000 copies in six months, a record. Perhaps the time was ripe when people with nerves jangled and frayed with war anxieties just had to laugh or explode, but the book sold like the proverbial hotcakes. Edward Streeter was the author, and his hero was one Bill Smith, High Private in the United States army, who was a prolific writer to his girl, Mable Gimp. Bill's style was erratic but it certainly was human, and ran like this: "Remember me to the hired girl and your mother... It aint no use wishing you a Happy New Year cause I know how it'll be with me away and your father what he is...Thanks for the red sweater, Mable, We aint allowed to use 'em. Tell your mother thanks for the preserves and cake. I think that's what they was...I went down town yesterday and spent my last sent on a money belt... It's a good one though," etc. etc. Thanks to J. V. for bringing back wartime smiles long since buried in the discard of forgetfulness. We are pleased to recall Private Bill Smith and his girl "Dere Mable."

The Cancer Crusade

Fighting the Great Scourge With Knowledge—a Campaign to Wipe Out Ignorance, Fear and Neglect

by

J. W. S. McCULLOUGH, M. D., D. P. H.

Secretary Cancer Committee
THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

Article No. 3—What Is Cancer?

Cancer is a disease due to disorders of the cells of one's body. Everyone knows that the human is composed of cells, hundreds of millions of them. The individual cell is extremely small. If a body cell were magnified 500 times it would appear to be about the size of a small pin's head.

Each of these cells, so infinitely small, is a living thing. It is composed of a semi-solid material, has a sort of wall and a nucleus in its midst. The nucleus is the most important part of the cell. Each individual cell is able to move; it is able to gain nourishment from its surroundings; it is able to breathe. What is still more remarkable, each and every one of the hundreds of millions of cells in our bodies is able to reproduce itself.

Reproduction of cells takes place by division. In the division of a cell the operation begins in the nucleus. The nucleus divides in two and, in the course of from three to 12 hours the entire cell divides. In their subsequent life the divisions of the cell mature. When matured, they too, divide just as the parent cell divided. What is he purpose of this division of cells? The purpose is growth. It is by division of cells that the various organs of the body develop and grow. It is in this way that we have development of bones and teeth, of the skin and brain, of the heart and nerves and of all parts of one's body.

Cancer begins as a single cell. At first it looks exactly like one of the normal cells just described. It takes an expert with the microscope to detect any difference between a cancer cell and a normal cell. The cancer cell, like the normal cell, divides for the purpose of growth. So far, the cancer cell and the normal cell are almost alike. The great difference is that division of the normal cell is a regular controlled process. There is certainly some force in one's body which controls ordinary cell division, starts it when necessary and stops it when division is unnecessary. This control in healthy persons is maintained throughout life.

The growth of a cancer cell is uncontrolled. Its growth is riotous. A cancer cell is a sort of Bolshevik. It finds a way of dividing, like the normal cell, in the course of from three to twelve hours, then there may be many divisions of the cancer cell in a short period. It is this rapid, uncontrolled division of the cell that constitutes the main difference between normal growth and cancer growth. If the lever of control in cell growth were discovered we might thereby have a solution of the cancer problem. Some investigators have come pretty close to the solution. One day it will be found.

John Bull Goes 'Physical Training'

(By Jack Bradley)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 15—(CP)—John Bull with an ample chest instead of a bulging stomach seems destined for the cartoons of the future. The "keep fit" idea has caught on and literally all Britain will soon be swinging in recreational rhythm.

Launched with a government $2,000,000, ($9,959,000) physical training and recreation drive, industry for a fitter Britain was taken up and repeated in one form or another throughout the country.

'Keep Fit' Campaign

The Bill was primarily aimed at developing the physical education of the youth of the nation. Its framers were probably agreeably surprised when they found not even tired business men and plump housewives came willingly under its spell.

"Keep Fit" has been used as the advertising theme for foods, recreational articles, lawn-mowers and even real estate promotional schemes. The idea has penetrated to the stage, military tattoos and school closing exercises.

It has reached a point where mass displays, formerly attributed to dictatorial countries as part of compulsory brawn-development programs, have been taking a place of equal importance in community entertainment with the pageantry of the past, long a fixture of the outdoor season.

Final Recreation Grounds

Brown-kneed jikers and cyclists have flooded highways and byways.

In the last few months scores of large manufacturing plants have announced opening of recreation grounds for employees. One big chain of London eaters had opened fencing arenas on restaurant roofs where waitresses are given instruction in the ancient art. Physical education topics predominate in the bookstalls.

The National Fitness Advisory Council, composed of 31 members, hope to have twenty-two regional committees, each composed of thirty members appointed by September.

THREE PUNCTURES IN THREE MILES

After completing over 1,500 miles so far on his summer vacation tour of the United States and Canada without incident, T. J. Sussman, Peru, Indiana, is confident the short stretch of highway between Trenton and this city is the worst yet encountered.

The route on the highway to Belleville late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sussman, driving a new machine, experienced no less than three punctures in nearly as many miles.

Investigation of the new tires revealed that in each case roofing nails had been the cause.

Obituary

MRS. MINNIE STAPLEY

The death occurred at Toronto on Wednesday, July 14th, of Minnie Stapley, widow of Richard Stapley. For many years the deceased resided at Belleville and of late years had been making her home at Toronto. She was born in Ireland. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are three daughters, Mrs. G. T. Theriault, Campbellford, Ont.; Mrs. Joseph Smith, Toronto; Mrs. Percy Catlett, Toronto; four sons, Richard Stapley, Belleville; Edgar Stapley, Whitby, and Ernest Stapley, Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the Belleville Burial Funeral Home, Campbell Street. Further information concerning the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

8 ARRESTED AFTER CLASH

London, July 15—(CP)—Eight persons were under arrest today after a clash between followers of Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist Leader, and political opponents at Hogmoor Inclosure, northern suburb of London, last night.

Mounted police intervened when rival partisans came to blows during a political meeting. Order was quickly restored.

NINE MARRIAGES

woman and I feel that the country at large should be protected against you."

A meat packer by trade, Roedger was born in Grobenzell, Germany. Police said records of the Bremen, Germany, Police Department show he was convicted there six times for misappropriation, swindle and larceny around 1900 and 1901.

In 1916 he was sentenced in Prince Albert, Sask., for cattle stealing and in 1923 he was fined $400 or 60 days in jail at Star City, Sask., on a liquor charge.

Police investigated the death in St. Catharines, Ont., in 1926 of his wife, Meta Roedger. There was no charge against Roedger. He was reported to have married Martha Stender of New York in 1927 but she left him.

Body Found in Well

A couple of years later he was married to a woman whose name Canadian police did not learn. Her body was found in a well in Catskill, N.Y. Then on June 1, 1930, he married Essie Schmidt "somewhere in the east" and her body was found in her bathtub Jan. 30, 1931. She died of epilepsy, an inquest showed.

Martha Stender read about the Schmidt case and a bigamy charge against Roedger followed. He was convicted in Green County, N.Y., on Aug. 10, 1931, and sentenced to two to four years in prison at Dannemora, N.Y.

Police reported the McKenzie marriage in Aldershot, Ont., was Roedger's next matrimonial step. They lived together two or three days in Toronto and then she disappeared.

Police said he married on Nov. 21, 1936, a woman in Montreal whom he met through an advertisement in a Montreal newspaper. Police and Roedger gave his name as George Cook for the Montreal marriage.

Mrs. M. Cook obtained in Montreal on July 13 annulment of a marriage with Roedger on grounds of bigamy and false pretences. Her disappearance after allegedly defrauding Mrs. Cook of a sum of money.

Married in Vancouver

The report further states Roedger went to Vancouver and there married Winnifred Sherman on Dec. 31, 1936. He was alleged to have taken some money from her and disappeared within a few days.

In January of this year he arrived in Edmonton where, according to police, he married Philippina Strasburger, a girl who owned a farm at Stony Plain, Alta. He was living on the farm when a police raid led to his arrest.

The bridal advertisement was inserted in the Farm Journal circulated in Alberta purporting to have been inserted by a widow of means looking for a life partner". Roedger answered the advertisement and his arrest followed almost immediately.

He was brought to Winnipeg for trial. Inspector George McKay of the Ontario Provincial Police and Sergeant A. M. Velich of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Toronto came to Winnipeg in connection with the case. They returned to Toronto last night.

Roedger has not yet been transferred to Stony Mountain, police said, but is being held at the Manitoba provincial jail at Headingly, 20 miles west of Winnipeg.

Worked in Kingston

Kingston, Ont., July 15 (CP)—George Roedger, sentenced to nine years in Winnipeg for bigamy, was known in Kingston, where he worked for about six months, as Roedger was employed by Anderson Bros., grocers and was reported more or less as peculiar. Little is known of his marital life while in the city. He left Kingston in 1935.

He was known as George Rodgers.

Known at St. Catharines

St. Catharines, Ont., July 15 — (CP)—George Roedger, sentenced to nine years for bigamy and theft yesterday in Winnipeg, lived with his first wife, Meta, in St. Catharines and district for about two years before Mrs. Roedger died in 1926. The couple were married for 22 years. Mrs. Roedger died of poisoning by someone "we are unable to decide," said an inquest verdict. She was about 45 years of age.

John D. Buchanan, fruit farmer, said he knew the Roedger family who occupied a farm about a half mile north of the city. They were on the farm about a year.

Roedger had two sons and one daughter Buchanan said. After leaving the farm he went to the United States.

Identifies "Rodgers"

Toronto, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Mrs. W. J. Cook of Thornbury has identified a picture of George Fritz Roedger as the man who married her daughter, Ada Christie McKenzie, at Barrie in August, 1935, under the name "George Rodgers," it was learned.

Other members of the family accepted Mrs. Cook's word after they looked at the picture, a police official declared, but it identified it. Roedger was sentenced to nine years for bigamy and theft yesterday in Winnipeg.

Mrs. McKenzie was born and brought up in Thornbury, moving to Allandale when she married William McKenzie, a Canadian National Railways employee.

Mrs. Cook's daughter was left considerable money by McKenzie and by another relative.

Lost Touch With Mother

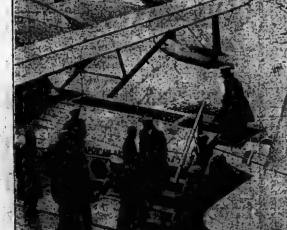
Barrie, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Duncan McKenzie, 20, today described how he lost touch with his mother when she went to Toronto after her marriage here in First Baptist Church Parsonage, Aug. 24, 1935.

Ontario Provincial Police declared the man who married Mrs. Christine McKenzie, Allandale mother, under the name of George Rodgers was George Roedger, sentenced to nine years in prison at Winnipeg yesterday for bigamy and theft.

Letters were received from his mother in Toronto two months after her marriage, Duncan, a service station attendant, said today. Only word received thereafter was a card at Christmas, 1935, signed "George and Mother," and written in Rodger's handwriting.

Duncan said he thought it peculiar his mother hadn't signed the card herself. Police were notified of the family's anxiety and then, he said, Rodgers was identified as Roedger.

The son said he never learned where or how his mother met Roedger.



Nice Personality

"My first impression of Rodgers was that he was a half decent fellow," the son continued. "He had a nice personality and seemed to have plenty of money.

"He didn't say what his job was but he was supposed to be on holidays from a firm in Toronto and was going to be transferred to Winnipeg by his firm. All told, I was talking to him about two hours.

Duncan said after his mother's marriage the couple purchased a car and visited friends in the district. Later they went to United States on a holiday, lived in Toronto for a while and then the son could not locate the couple.

When Mrs. McKenzie married she had considerable money, the son said. He said there was money from his father's estate, including insurance.

U. S. FLYERS GIVEN IRISH WELCOME AFTER CROSSING ATLANTIC

After completing an uneventful, though epic crossing of the north Atlantic from Botwood, Newfoundland to Foynes, Eire, and the landing on the River Shannon, where a new air harbor has been constructed, Captain Harold R. Gray and his crew of the Pan-American Clipper III, climb from their flying boat to receive the greetings of Irish officials and officials of Imperial Airways who are co-operating with Pan-American in Atlantic test flights. At about the same time the British flying boat Caledonia landed at Botwood to complete the east-to-west flights. The crews were being made as a prelude to regular commercial service operated by the two companies.

At the Movies

AT THE BELLE

"Internes Can't Take Money"

A fine cast of players headed by Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, an excellent story well told and played, and expert direction make "Internes Can't Take Money" now playing at the Belle theatre, matinee daily, top grade entertainment.

Miss Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, who are rapidly becoming America's favorite screen lovers, are not long in getting to look at, but a pair of excellent actors who give life and vigor to a fine story.

They are aided in no small measure by Lloyd Nolan, the "menace" of "The Texas Rangers," a splendid actor with great personal charm. He plays the part of an underworld gangster but despite this role and similar ones in which he has appeared previously, there is generally between him and the audience, Stanley Ridges, Gaylord Pendleton, Lee Bowman and others are in the elaborate cast.

"Internes Can't Take Money," is the story of a young soldier, played by Miss Stanwyck, whose child by a former marriage has been taken from her; her efforts to locate the child are known only to an understanding character who devotes a large sum to money for the information.

She meets McCrea, an interne, in the out-patient ward of a hospital, and they fall in love. He is a confirmed bachelor by Nolan, whose life he had saved. It is the sum Nolan's lover, Ridges, demands of the gangster, she pleads with McCrea to give her the money but he does not reveal her reason for wanting it. But McCrea had taken an oath not to accept any money from his patients during his internship.

Their romance is halted temporarily when Miss Stanwyck tries to steal the money from McCrea. The young doctor discovers the true circumstances of things when Miss Stanwyck is forced to put love for her child ahead of honor. In the gripping climax which follows Miss Stanwyck's destiny is worked out by the intervention of McCrea's medical skill and the grateful Nolan.

"Internes Can't Take Money" was directed by Alfred Santell, famed for his ability to get the most out of great story. The musical scores were prepared under the direction of Dr. John A. Tuma, chief resident physician of Hollywood Hospital. They are strikingly handled and set a new high mark for direction to shoot at in the line of authenticity of location.

Several excellent and very entertaining featurette subjects precede the presentation of "Internes Can't Take Money" and balance off the programme to a nicety.

Starting Saturday

After a sensational two weeks' engagement at Low's theatre, Toronto, the management of the Belle theatre is proud to announce to its many patrons that "Captain's Courageous" Rudyard Kipling's great story of the sea, and featuring Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas in the leading character roles will commence a four day engagement at the Belle on Saturday of this week. This production is one of the finest of this year or any other year and will no doubt be well received and talked about in Belleville, during the engagement.

EMPEY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Mackey spent Sunday in Kingston. Mrs. Ashley had an operation Monday morning. Friends hope for a complete recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Mowers, Irene and Geraldine spent Sunday with friends at Plinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McMath and Mac Gillivary spent the dinner hour Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Richmond, Selby. They attended the Memorial Service at St. John's Church, Selby, in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Tucker and Mrs. K. Tucker, also attended the services in St. John's Church, Selby.

Mrs. Frank Harvey and daughter Helen, of Rochester, N.Y., are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey.

The W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid held at Mrs. Waddingham's last week quite well attended. The programme in charge of Mrs. Frank Hutchinson was very interesting.

Several from here attended the Orange Celebration held in Napanee on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Russell and Mrs. Mowers spent the week in Kingston.

Mrs. Thos. C. Akey and Mrs. Nice spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kimmerly.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the cause. Many run the risk of non-operation. Any itching, soreness or painful condition of the rectum or anus, should have proper attention at once. Don't delay. For this purpose get from any druggist a tube of Pazo Ointment. Use as directed. This soothing, relief-bringing ointment quickly relieves the itching and soreness and tends to check further trouble. Pazo Ointment is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Jean Harlow" in "Hell's Angels"

"Hell's Angels," the most expensive and most talked about film-drama of all time is now playing the Capitol Theatre until Friday night.

Nearly three years in the making, and boasting an overhead cost of approximately $4,000,000, this lavish air-thriller is a screen sensation.

Howard Hughes, the 32-year-old producer and director of "Hell's Angels," has shattered all records in time and money spent on a single picture. His prodigal outlay is discernible wherever free films are shown, and fans everywhere are eager to view the first multi-million dollar talkie.

Ben Lyon, James Hall and Jean Harlow who made her film debut in this feature later rose to the height of stardom.

Approximately 127 aviators, and as many mechanics, including nearly every stunt flyer and ex-war ace available in America participated in the epic action of "Hell's Angels," which alone required 18 months to record.

Exactly 87 planes, including 40 true wartype ships, both German and Allied, took part in "Hell's Angels."

The Zeppelin and a giant German Gotha bombing plane also figure prominently in talie-high scenes of the picture. The Gotha is the largest air fleet ever assembled to perform in a motion picture.

More than $2,000,000 was expended on aviation scenes alone, and more than a million was invested in the dirigible sequence, which is a thrilling highlight of the screen play. This latter episode, incidently, is the first authentic reproduction of the famous wartime Zep raid on London.

The exploits of Baron von Richthofen's "flying-circus" have been accurately reproduced also, and in one scene 50 planes are shown participating simultaneously in a free-for-all "dog-fight" between fighting ace devils of Germany and the Allies.

Equally stupendous were the operations on the ground. More than 2,000 extras were employed in the various mob scenes. Exactly 1,700 ex-soldiers took part in a single fantasy battle scene, and extras are featured by other non-flying episodes by the thousands.

Added Attraction

The little tragedies of life turned dramatic. The joys of schooldays and their hilarities, are the human story of us all poured out in an emotional torrent of sensations, screenfare in "Two Wise Maids," starring the new comedy screen pair, Polly Moran and Alison Skipworth. "Two Wise Maids" is shown as hit No. 2 until Saturday night with "Hell's Angels." Come early to avoid the crowds and enjoy a show where it is cool and comfortable, always.

FIRST OFFERING OF GREEN CORN

Produce Sold Rapidly at 30 Cents a Dozen Ears

The government award for the first showing of green corn on the open markets in this province was won this year by Percy Demille, 6th concession of Sidney, the prize winning green corn being display-ed on the Belleville market today and sold rapidly at 30c the dozen ears.

We had green corn on the market before and it was through this showing we received the government award," revealed Mrs. Demille today.

A general decrease in the price of commodities generally was observed today with red raspberries selling at the rate of two boxes for 25c, or 12c straight. The blue type of raspberries brought straight 15c per box, however. Long blackberries sold at 10 and 15c the box while loganberries were offered at 15c for two boxes for a quarter, of a dollar. Black cherries sold at 20c the basket, while red cherries retailed at 10c the berry box. Gooseberries, currants and other seasonable fruits remained unchanged in price, however.

A slight decrease in the price of new potatoes was observed as this commodity saw a new price of 30c per peck, established, new potatoes being of a fine variety. Green peas remained firm at 10c per quart when shelled with string beans ranging at the same. Carrots, new beets and other seasonable vegetables remained firm in price with large mid-week market in evidence.

A few eggs were offered at 26c per dozen, while one vendor displayed a fine showing of young broilers at 25 and 30c the pair. According to the predictions of the farm produce vendors, some of the finest crops of the current season with a bountiful supply of farm produce can be expected on Saturday, weather permitting. The recent rains and general weather conditions have been ideal for growing and farmers report one of the finest crops of fruits and vegetables in many years. The type of produce offered for sale on the Belleville market is the finest in the province and all grade No. 1 produce.

DROUGHT BROKEN BY HEAVY RAINS

"If there was ever a million-dollar rain, this is it," said D. R. Mulvihill, Provincial Minister of Agriculture.

Winnipeg, July 15 — (CP) —With drought broken by heavy rains that came too late to save wheat crops in stricken south-western areas of Saskatchewan, farmers near the International boundary talked today of re-sowing their fields in oats with the hope of obtaining fodder crops.

Recorded as the heaviest downpour received in Saskatchewan this year, rains swept across the province this week from Regina westward to the Swift Current and Shaunavon districts and into Alberta where a new 24-hour precipitation record was marked up in the Lethbridge and central sections.

Commenting on the Alberta downpour, officials recorded at 233 inches at Edmonton, J. M. Gilchrist, vice-president and general manager of the Searle Grain Company, said it meant "at least an added two bushels to every acre of grain."

Though not sharing in the heavy precipitation this week, crops in Manitoba are thriving under previous plentiful rainfall. In the southwestern part of the Province crops face the danger of rust in the section around Morden, 85 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

In Alberta heavy rain yesterday and on and to a critical two weeks of protracted drought that might have spelled disaster to the crops not already seared by scarcity of moisture.

TWO CANADIANS IN SECOND STAGE

First Stage For King's Prize at Bisley Opens

Bisley Camp, England, July 14—(CP Cable)—Young Lieut. G. S. Maitchett of Hamilton and Sgt. T. A. Jensen of Innisfail, Alberta, led Canadians in the opening stage of the King's Prize today with five scores of 100 out of a possible 100, assuring them of places in Friday's

Just how many of the 15 Canadian marksmen at Bisley, second stage of the classic of the clans qualifying for the final will not be known until final careful tabulation of the shooting of the more than 1,100 entrants who fired in the first stage. Only 300 get into Friday's second stage and 100 into the final of the classic Saturday.

Five more Canadians finished today's shooting with 99, compiled at the 200, 500 and 600 yard ranges. These were Sgt. M. F. Dillon of Ottawa, C.S.M. O. M. Ramalie of Toronto, Lieut. C. F. Kennedy of Hilden, N.S., Lieut. Wayne Mackenzie of Ottawa and Capt. T. M. Sienkewicz of Halifax.

Lieut. G. A. Mobecy of Vancouver scored 98, which may qualify.

Rules to Prevent Crooked Teeth In Children

Atlantic City, N.J., July 14 (AP)—Dr. David McLean of Los Angeles promulgated before the American Dental Association today seven rules for preventing crooked teeth in children:

1.—Don't allow a baby to lie on its face. The soft, growing bones will grow crooked and the teeth will be misplaced.

2.—Don't permit children to lean their faces or chins on their hands or fists. The head weighs 10 to 12 pounds and its weight will warp growing jaws.

3.—Don't give a baby a pacifier. All sucking habits cause crooked teeth.

4.—Discourage mouth breathing. The flow of air gradually distorts the teeth.

5.—Have defective "baby" teeth filled because premature extraction is a common cause of crooked teeth.

6.—After the fourth birthday have the dentist look out for signs of crooked teeth.

7.—Give the child plenty of milk, butter, cheese and green leaf vegetables to harden bones.

Long Wings and Low Geared Engine Achieve Record

New York, July 14 (AP)—Flight of three Russian airmen from Moscow to the western seaboard of the United States by way of the North Pole was looked on today by American aviation interests as remarkable, not so much for its duration, as for its route.

The range, or capacity of the plane for regulating long distances without refueling, was achieved by gearing down the engine and providing wings sufficiently long to permit carrying a great load of fuel.

The single motor, of 950 "horsepower, is more or less conventional in design except for the fact its water cooling system was contrived to permit efficient operation at extremely low temperatures.

The Russians would have to beat a distance of 6,587.4 miles to establish a new mark for other than an air line course. Bossoutrot and Rossi of France, hold that record, but it was established in a closed circuit course.

They easily beat the airline record of 5,812.3 miles, held by Rossi and Codas of France.

HIRING NATIVE GUIDE CLAUSE IS ELIMINATED

Albany, N.Y. July 14—(AP)—An Ontario regulation requiring the hiring of a native guide by non-resident fishermen in Canadian waters of Lake Ontario will not be enforced this year, State Conservation Commissioner Lethgow Osborne announced today.

M. C. Nixon, Ontario Minister of Game and Fisheries, informed him the regulation would be lifted, Osborne said, after residents and summer visitors at Watertown, the Thousand Islands, and other New York sections had written the Conservation Department for information and advice.

Non-residents pay a family license fee of $4.00 to fish, on the Canadian side, the commissioner explained, and the daily cost of a guide would almost equal that amount.

CAPT. HAMBRO ELECTED

London, July 14 (CP)—Great Britain's miniature general election ended today with the election of Captain Angus Hambro, Conservative, to the House of Commons for Dorset North.

It was the twelfth by-election since Neville Chamberlain became Prime Minister seven weeks ago. All were in constituencies formerly held by government supporters and in the by-elections National Government candidates won all but one—Cheltenham, where an Independent Conservative defeated the official Conservative nominee.

New York Giants Gain Lead As They Defeat Pirates, While Chicago Cubs Lose to Bees

Terry's Team in Fine Condition For Race Down Stretch

HUBBELL IN FORM

Screw Ball Artist Wins Fifth Straight After a Long Slump

(By Bill Bonh)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Out of the lead for the first time in a month—but by only two points, Chicago Cubs today were strictly on their own as far as their battle with the Giants for top spot in the National Baseball League is concerned.

They can't look for much assistance from either of the other leading Western contenders, the Pirates or the Cardinals Pittsburg, who fell aoul of another Carl Hubbell extra-inning pastering by 4-3, are struggling along so best they can without the services of Arky Vaughan, the players' shortstop who usually can be counted on to hit well at the Polo Grounds.

The Cardinals, who will follow the Pirates here for the Terry-Frisch men's triangular Saturday for a four-game week-end series, also are having their troubles. Manager Frisch's staff that was none too big to start with has been decimated further by Jim Winford's operation and Dizzy Dean's sore leg, which will keep him on the shelf throughout the Giant series.

Luther Ready for Action

The latest news from the Terry Champ camp has an encouraging element to the Cubs. On top of Rube Bell's four-hit performance yesterday—his fifth straight, 18th of the year and further proof that the Cubs have found the needed full control of the situation—came the announcement that Jake Flowers' first baseman, Lou Lesher, bars de combat since his spring beating by Bob Feller, would report at the Polo Grounds today.

In addition, Chicagoans have found a Hornet's Nest in Bees' hive, if you prefer—on the first stop of their current swing through the east. Boston Bees, winners of 13 of their last 18 starts, proved extremely unsociable hosts, as they turned loose 30-year-old Jim Turner and Turner in turn turned loose a five-hit bit of elbowing that froze the Bruins' lead in their tracks by a score of 3-1.

Yanks on Rampage

The only National League contest where the Cards and Phillies were rained out—saw the Dodgers lose to the Reds in the 11th, 4-3.

Meanwhile the Yanks, opening their third western trip tomorrow on the Tigers for a 10-2 shellacking, Yankees ran their winning streak to eight straight, Red Ruffing's personal streak to five, Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak to 12, Lou Gehrig's string of hits to 10, and their last 18 starts, proof extremely unsociable hosts, as they turned loose 30-year-old Jim Turner and Turner in turn turned loose a five-hit bit of elbowing that froze the Bruins' lead in their tracks by a score of 3-1.

Yanks on Rampage

The only National League contest where the Cards and Phillies were rained out—saw the Dodgers lose to the Reds in the 11th, 4-3.

Meanwhile the Yanks, opening their third western trip tomorrow on the Tigers for a 10-2 shellacking, Yankees ran their winning streak to eight straight, Red Ruffing's personal streak to five, Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak to 12, Lou Gehrig's string of hits to 10, and their last 18 starts, proved 8-2 to 8-1-2 games.

The Sox edged the Tigers out of the runner-up spot by cutting loose with a murderous 21-hit assault that embalmed the Browns 18-8. In the other games the Indians trimmed the Senators, 11-3, and the Athletics, having lost 14 straight decisions at the beginning of May, managed to drop the 15th, by 6-4, to the White Sox in 4 1-2.

TENNIS

With decisive scores the Belleville tennis stars took all six points in their regular scheduled matches versus the Point Anne netters on the "cement village" yesterday and added another point when a postponed set of men's doubles was won by the Bay of Quinte tennis squad. The day's winnings elevates the Belleville club into first position in the Bay of Quinte Tennis League.

The results of the play were as follows: Miss Grace McCreery and Art Cole, Belleville, won over Bud Newberry and Miss Rose Ada Long, Point Anne, 6-2, and 6-4, while Miss Shetia Burrows and Gordon Edwards Belleville, triumphed over Miss Hilda Callaghan and Mac Loefler 6-1, 6-3.

The ladies' doubles went three sets before Evelyn Jack and Harriet MacLean, Belleville, defeated Ileen Williams and Pearl Tulk, Point Anne, 6-4, 4-6 and 6-2.

In the men's doubles Murray Mitchell and H. Kerr, Belleville, won over Web Ward and Jack Hart, Point Anne, 7-5 and 6-4 after extra play. In this class also Bud Odell and D. MacLean, Belleville, won handily over Oscar Gemmell and Clarke Fraser by the scores of 6-4 and 6-1.

In a postponed match recently rained out during a league match, Bud Odell and Dewa MacLean won one game from Tom Bowler and Buddy Roseberry 5-3.

NEWARK BEARS TRIMMED TWICE

Jersey City Turns Trick For First Time This Season

(By The Associated Press)

There's a limit to everything and Jersey City Giants, Mickey, masked and all but annihilated by the Bears and mighty Newark Bears, have risen in their wrath.

Risen in their wrath, that is, in the International Baseball League, with title prospect of tottering themselves from the Giants, absorbed beating after beating from every inch in the circuit, those banded Bears and the Bears were hardest to take.

The first one the Jersey rivals met this season there was joy in Jersey Town, for the Giants won. But since then Jersey City adherents have had little cause to rejoice. The Bears, for the time being, while the Giants dropped to the cellar.

On their way up, the Bears have taken two out of three from the Newarkers had been shut out, the first time they had lost both ends of a doubleheader and only the third time they had dropped two games in a row.

JAKE BIDDLE IS WINNING HURLER OVER KINGSTON

Throws Three Hitter as Oshawa Downs Ponies 8-1

PETERBORO WINS

Russ Kitchen Allows But Four Hits To Napanee

Kingston, July 15—(OP)—Holding the hard-hitting Ponies to three hits, Jake Biddle, bespectacled hurler of Oshawa Motors, defeated Kingston 8 to 1 here Wednesday and brought the Motors to within half a game of the league Ponies.

Biddle was in rare form throughout, though touched for a home run by Johnny Goodfellow for the only Kingston counter. He fanned nine batters and pastered the three hits. Doc Bowden and Doug May clouted homers for the visitors.

Peterborough defeated Napanee Oldbards 5 to 1 in a Central Ontario Baseball League game, Wednesday night at Napanee.

Russ Kitchen allowed but four hits in the nine innings, but steadied away to wind up with a three-hit game.

The winners drove Blazetich out in the fourth when they reached him for five hits, three after two were out, to net four runs. Kelly was given an extra base hit and allowed two singles for the balance of the game.

Scarlett's three-base hit and Hanford's squeeze bunt gave Oshawa their opening inning counter.

BOATS FORCED TO STAY AT ANCHOR

Heavy Blow Causes Only One Race to be Completed

In one of the heaviest blows of the season, the annual race craft regatta and the smaller craft unable to put out, on Lake Ontario yesterday were only boats to complete the racing courses during yesterday's activities, marking the end of the racing races off Victoria Park. Duke Smith's Jola became overall winner, finishing line well in front of the class "A" field to make it a sixth consecutive victory for the skipper.

A stiff south wind welcomed the sailors as they faced the starting line. All three class "A" boats got away underway, the proverbial blanket, with a few minor class "A" scratches during the start. Also as the "C" class boats darted across the starting line, Tom Todd, with Skipper Bud Kellar at the helm, came about and capsized directly in front of the judges' stand. Skipper Gord Cook, of the Rambler, immediately about and came to the assistance of his class boat in distress. The remainder crew managed to rescue the floundering crew of the Toots and place them safely on land. As the Rambler returned to the race, however, Skipper Cook found the craft about to meet the stormy blast, only to have the Rambler crew rescue the boat a few feet of the floundering Toots. Both of these smaller boats were later towed to shore under their own power.

AAJMAAS DUNKED INTO WHITEWASH

Defeated by Point Anne 10-0 With Big Game Friday

Pitching five hit ball Stan Luffman handed the Point Anne "Intermediates" into within a half -a game of first place in the local Senior Softball League when they downed the Aajmaas Juniors 10 to 0 at Coleman Flats last evening. For eight long innings the juniors battled the Point Anne team at no ther even terms, only to have the visitors break out in a heavy slugging orgy in the ninth to put the pastime on lov wtig a seven run spurge.

The "cementmen" garnered in two runs in the initial frame and added another in the fourth with Harold Dracup hurling steady ball for the juniors, who were unable to hit in the visitors' pitcher. A barrage of extra base hits, including a homie run with eight other safeties accounted for the final putting to route of the Aajmaas. The Secore-led Point Anne team touched Dracup for a total of 16 safe hits, as Luffman found the juniors in safeties, only one of which was for extra base.

The "cementmen" garnered nine of their 18 hits in the last inning, when Murray hit for the circuit, Secro had a triple and single while Buddy Gaulin led all hitters of the game with two doubles and two singles. Luffman lowered the boom cause with a two base clout and a single while Mansfield was the only Aajmaa batter to hit consistently, the junior shortstop getting two doubles and single. Peets, Moon and Dracup accounted for the remaining three hits while Lindsay, Secro, Stan Jt was Dracup's second league game in successive nights as the junior's pitching pitcher, however.

The win elevates the Point Anne nines into a position one half a game behind the league leading Aajmaas, who they meet in a crucial league game at Coleman Flats on Friday night.

GOVERNING BODY MAY BE FORMED

(By the Canadian Press)

Establishment of a new organization to govern all racing on Ontario tracks, to restore the "confidence of the public" was the objective today of the Ontario Thoroughbred Owners Association.

A resolution adopted unanimously by 87 association members at a meeting here last night favored the move. The association's directors were empowered to draw up a petition asking Premier Hepburn to take steps to set up the proposed governing body.

Feature event on today's card is the Buffalo Club purse for three-year-olds and up at a mile and 70 yards. Seven horses are entered Jack Nichols promising to be an odds-on-favorite, despite the 114 pounds he will be carrying.

Conny Smythe's Shoeless Joe romped to a six-straight victory over yesterday's muddy track in the featured Joseph E. Martin Memorial Handicap, Dark Sun made a grand effort to shake off Shoeless Joe's challenge but was unable to hold out.

ERRORS PAVE WAY FOR KIWANIS LOSS

Defeated by Foxboro 3-1 in South Hastings Baseball Loop Contest

Errors paved the way for the downfall of the Kiwanis juniors at Foxboro last evening, when the homesters defeated the local kids 3 to 1 in a scheduled South Hastings League game. It was the Kiwanis kids seventh loss in eight starts.

Bud Wilkins, former Belleville C.O.B.I. moundsman, opposed Scott "Lefty" Weese on the mound for the Junior kids. Wilkins was touched for eight hits three safeties as Weeks allowed only four safe blows in a six inning battle.

Two bad throws on the part of the Kiwanis infield in the initial frame for errors, coupled with a hit resulted in the homesters chalking up two big runs, which Wilkins protected with his three-hit pitching for the remainder of the pastime. The juniors pulled up a notch as they garnered their lone counter in the third, but the homesters went out to regain the lost counter to score once more in their half of the third on two singles and an error. The hurlers took full command from this point and no more scoring was in evidence.

Whalen with a double, Collins with a single and Kelleher, pinch hitter were the three to hit safely for the visitors while Rod. Wilkins, Brush and Guay were the chief hitters for the Foxboro nine. Amo played a splendid defensive game around the initial sack.

The Kiwanis juniors meet the league leading Canniton "Stuggers" at the Belleville Fair Grounds in a regular South Hastings League game on Friday evening. The local juniors are batting hard in an effort to gain a play-off berth in the league and need support.

The line-ups—Kiwanis Juniors—Ronsky, 3b; Collins 2b; Whalen lf; Amo 1b; Plummer c; McQuade ss; Weeks, p; Doherty rf; McDonald cf; and Kelleher.

Foxboro—Beckley, Guay, Brush, Murray, B. Wilkins, Guay C. Wilkins, Hall and Peacock.

Fights Last Night

(By The Associated Press)
Richmond, Ind. — Red Burman, 170, Indianapolis, outpointed Jack Dempsey, stopped Stanley Ketchell, 220, Newark, N. J. (5).

BOTH CONFIDENT PRIOR TO MATCH

Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, (left) of Germany, twirls his racquet as he marches toward the court with a smiling and confident Donald Budge, American singles champion, for their finals match in the all-England tournament at Wimbledon, Eng. Budge, who won by scores of 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, also repeated his triumphs in the all-England men's and mixed doubles play.

During their first meeting at Oshawa, something of a general bedlam ensued when the patrons of the game thronged the playing fields and entered into fistic encounters during the Belleville Rovers at Oshawa, 22nd C.O.B.I. fixture. As a matter of fact following the final session of the game the Oshawa goalie being one of the aggressors, Friday night's return match between these two squads and a hectic battle is expected when the teams once been bridged as yet. When the Rovers journey to Oshawa Saturday to Norwood on Tuesday night, the result left a decided impression in Friday night's tussle in the Trenton Arena. Incidentally the Rovers are now only one-half a game behind the second place Rovers and a thrilling closing game can be looked for, as both squads have covetous eyes on that second rung.

Whenever the Rovers are without the services of the veteran Joe Lundy, they seem to find it hard to look as though the only survivors for the Moore-Jol club will be assured of Gould's presence at every fixture for the remainder of the league schedule. We are not assuming that Gould is the whole Rover team, but Jacobs, Howard, Bourke, Partridge, Logie, Day, Smart and the rest are all playing good lacrosse, but they'll have to be good Friday.

Last night's 10 to 9 defeat of the Aajmaa juniors at the hands of the Point Anne "Intermediates" has a great bearing on tomorrow night's Point Anne versus Canniton "Lock tilt. Be a matter of fact the "cement-makers" moved to within a half a game of the league leading "lock-makers" and it's do or die Friday night with the chips being down for the league leadership. No matter which way one looks at the matter, the winner of this game takes the league leadership and there is no great amount of good feelings between the two rival clubs.

Latta and Foxboro were the winners in the dual title race in the South Hastings League last evening with Shannonville and the Kiwanis juniors respectively on the losing end. The Canniton "Stuggers" seem to be the class of the league, but the big battle is between Shannonville and the juniors for the fourth play-off berth. If predictions mean anything, it should be an accepted fact that Canniton will finish on top, then Foxboro, second to Latta in the third hole and the other two battling for the fourth position. The two remaining games between the Shannonville and Kiwanis clubs will decide that issue. Incidentally the league-leading Canniton club come to Point

DAPHNE BRETT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Daphne Brett, good-looking, typical modern New York advertising executive, decides to rent a house in Connecticut where her father left her what he was billed in a burning accident. She needs the money for the education of her younger sister, Jennifer, who has just finished college.

Daphne is showing the estate to some realtor-obsessed prospective renters when, unnoticed, an attractive young man steps into the picture offering to take the place. Lifting his appearance, Daphne accepts, learns he is a "Mr. Smith" and asks to pay $250 a month rental. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III.

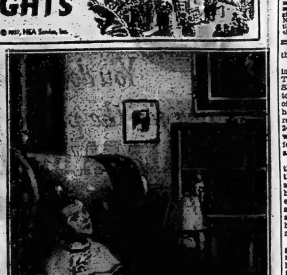
"I'm not quite sure that you mean it as a compliment that I'm not obvious." Larry Lawrence Hunter—Smith said.

"I did." Daphne assured him gravely and then remembered that he hadn't seen the house. "I think you ought to get acquainted with your future home before it gets too dark to see what you're getting into. Come along."

"If the rest of the rooms are like this one, I shall be happy enough," he said contentedly while his eyes traveled slowly and appreciatively around the spacious room keeping the elegance of fine woods and fabrics, the proportions and design—all elements of the taste of the taste of the comfort-loving person who had made them.

"They're not all like this. The rooms are as different as our family was," Daphne said as they crossed the wide hall and she opened a door.

They stopped before the portrait which hung above the hearth in the shabby room that had been Tom Brett's study. Studying the portrait of the gold-haired Margot with her two babies—one a small, yellow-haired cherub, and other a grave-eyed child of six—he saw that they were indeed all "different."



The portrait interested him. Some day when he lived here, he would study those faces, reading the things he saw in the baby and unlike Rosemonts. For they were all sensitive faces, the kind that can hide nothing of the pictures back of them.

"This was Father's study and it is more like him than his photograph." Daphne was filling with warm affection in her voice. Larry Smith looked away from the eyes that were suddenly dim and then suddenly bright. He saw that the old-fashioned desk was closed, that had gathered on the fishing tackle, the guns, the sporting prints, and he understood.

"I'm going to like it here," he said.

"I hope so," she answered and led the way to the staircase. "We'll go upstairs now." She talked as they ascended.

"There are four large bedrooms and two baths. There's also the nursery and the playroom and the sewing room which I expect you will use most of the first floor. In addition to the rooms you've seen, there's also a smaller dining room, the library, which was Mother's favorite room—

She went back to Tom's study and settled down in his worn old chair the way she had when she was a long-legged, sky-eyed child.

Larry was beginning to understand. He stood by Daphne Brett—lovely name, he thought—had been anxious to rent the house. The orphan girls were hard up.

"—then there are little rooms sort of tucked around here and there which you will discover," Daphne finished.

"I've been looking into some of them," he said calmly.

Daphne turned her face to him with a puzzled frown. "I meant to ask you that. Do you mind telling me if you're a mind reader or, otherwise, exactly how did you happen to come to my rescue? How did you know how I felt?"

For a second time she saw the quick and dazzling smile that illuminated his features, too irregular to be handsome.

"So you won't give an ordinary fellow a chance to borrow a little glamour?"

Daphne shook her head.

"I'll tell you then," he said. "I'll tell you the whole story. I'm spending a few days with a chap who has a camp back here near Cornwall. This morning I came out for a cross-country ramble, saw your house, was utterly charmed by it. Reluctant to leave until I had seen all of it and, having a hearty appetite, I—"

"I know." Daphne said and her voice was her apology.

"Since I wasn't invited to see it, I prowled. Prowling, I happened to observe the arrival of your guests . . . who did not, to my way of thinking, add to the charm of the scene. I—"

"I see," with the quickness of a man who would marry a girl if she were not beautiful? Daphne felt like a fool for giving it a moment's thought.

If there were little Smiths, she need not worry about them. They'd be disciplined and their father would see that her things were well protected. He had the same kind of love for beautiful things she herself had. She knew. Yes, Larry Smith belonged. She knew that he would find in Brett Hall the same things that she and Tom Brett had loved—loved every moment of the changing beauty that came with each new season. He would be, she felt, the kind of man who would wonder, as she and Tom had wondered, with awe at the miracle of each new spring and autumn.

X X X

When he had gone, Daphne saw that she had more than an hour until it was time for her to dress for her return to to city. She went back to Tom's study and curled up in his worn leather chair with her knees under her chin the way she had when she was a long-legged, big-eyed child. The ghost of the little girl in a playdress with a slipping red ribbon on her black curls sat there, Daphne knew, seeing her yesterdays and longing for tomorrows that were postponed.

It was only that they were postponed, Daphne promised herself.

There would be other summers to enjoy the hollyhocks, the warm sweet fragrance that came from the garden walls. There would be other autumns, golden, red and fragrant with the scents of pine and burning leaves and good things baking in the oven of the wood stove. There would be other winters when the house was covered with a blanket of snow, would mirror the stars that brought the heavens closer to earth. And with them, peace.

Daphne shook off the thought impatiently. She didn't want peace. That was what old people wanted. She wanted only a slower tempo to her life. She was mentally short of breath, at this period at which her life was paced. But she wasn't ready for the old ladies' home at 24 simply because she was bored with night clubs and occasionally found the proportions of her small apartment confining.

What did she want? She asked the ceiling above her and knew the answer while she refused to admit it. Fun? She had that. She had beaux, parties, dates. A career? Wasn't she moulding that successfully at that very moment and loving it? Money? She would have like to have more because she needed it for Jennifer.

Daphne jumped to her feet. No good sitting here thinking of Jennifer. Lately a disquieting thought had intruded on her when she thought of the little sister she had mothered.

Priscilla had wrung the grandfather's clock. It struck seven.

Daphne hurried her dressing. A thought had occurred to her: she'd wire Tuck the hour of her arrival. Perhaps it was Tuck she would see.

"Daphne Ainsley," she said experimentally, "Mrs. Tucker Ainsley." Then, quite surprisingly, "Smith!"

CHAPTER IV.

The girl at the corner table glanced anxiously at her watch and studied the menu. Then she spied the slim figure in brown tweeds she had been waiting for.

"Daphne Brett! You're unnerving, you're hair an hour late."

"I know, Anne, but I've been over to the house to explain my tenant's check. He's staying on another two months beyond the first November. Also, I've a very good reason for being late. Wait until you hear why!"

"Unless it's bad news, let's order before you tell me. I've got to get some layouts to Murray before 2:30." Anne Lockhardt was a successful young commercial artist and her friendship with Daphne had begun in the Junions Advertising Agency when Daphne was a lesser member of the copy staff.

"You order and I'll talk, Anne." Anne ordered their usual lunch. "Now, talk!"

"I've been promoted. I'm a full-fledged copy writer now with two accounts of my own to handle exclusively, an office of my own with my name on the door and fifty more a month, Anne."

"Bad? It's colossal! From rags to riches, or from stenographer to career woman, in five short years. Tell me, did you always dream that some day you'd be a supersuccessful advertising writer?"

"On the contrary," Daphne denied. "Do you know, Anne, I once wanted to be an actress? People are always surprised to hear me tell them that. I used to be fair at dramatics when I was in college and I meant to go into the theatre when I finished. She sighed almost imperceptibly—"but then Jennifer had to be taken care of and Dad—"

Anne knew all about that; knew that at 19 Daphne had left college to come to New York to support herself. She had done it so that the small sum Tom Brett had left and, dying, charged Daphne with the care of his beautiful child Jennifer. Daphne had done it well. How Jennifer was finished at Miss Maddiston's.

From stenographer to career woman, Anne had seen Daphne thought of those first few months in the general office at Johnstones, then the transfer to a secretarial job where she had learned to write copy.

"Anne," she said, "if I can do this in five years, I've a wonderful future. I'm going to work hard and some day—"

"Some day you'll have a fat bank account and wake up being an old maid," Anne finished tartly. "I wouldn't let this career angle creep into conversations when you're talking to an attractive man. By the way, did you tell the mysterious Smith you were in business, gal?"

"Mr. Smith? I told him I had a job, that was all. Why?"

"Oh, I thought since you two had a cozy tea, you might have gone just a little way into the histories of your future tenants, particularly since you see to have found him interesting."

"Nonsense, Anne." Swift color flooded Daphne's cheeks and throat. "He's married and you know how I feel about married men—"

"What's his wife like?" Anne asking casually.

"I don't know. I've never seen her. I haven't seen him either since the day he engaged the place. He sends the rent over the first of every month. Anne, at first he was a little annoying with questions about the place, but I didn't answer them because of his wife. I don't he doesn't."

"Maybe he's got a twin," Anne profferred gigglily.

"If he hasn't it will be all the same to me. Why are you always trying to find a romance for me? Don't you know that I can't afford any such luxury while I have to see Jennifer through? This year I want her to specialize in some course to prepare her for work. Did I tell you she's coming to me Saturday?"

"Now, isn't that nice?" Anne didn't sound very enthusiastic. "What's the matter with helping her to get a job and helping yourself?"

"Oh, she's only 18 and I want her to have a chance for something worth while. I have grand plans, I thought, when we decide what she's going to do, we could sublease my apartment and move back to the hall. We could commute and it would save money. I haven't mind and I know Jennifer will prefer the country. She's so unsophisticated!"

Anne loved with her fork for a moment and said, "Daph, if I were you I'd drop the mother complex and consider myself for a while."

Daphne pushed back her chair and rose. "I'm late, darling. I've got a lot of work to do because tomorrow I'm taking the day off to rearrange the apartment. Come by the hall in the afternoon and I'll give you tea."

X X X

When the doorbell bussed at three the next afternoon, Daphne, perched a tack from her mouth and from her perilous perch on a step ladder, called over her shoulder, "No matter who it is, Maggie, I'm not at home to anybody."

She gave a last inexpert blow at the defenestant tack, bent it, and hung her print with complete disregard for its safety.

"Pardon me, lady. Would you be interested in some homemade fudge or old spare tires? I'm selling 'em cheap, also——"

"——also charm," she finished for him, as she descended gingerly to the floor. "How'd you get past my faithful jewel, Tuck? I told her I wasn't home to anyone."

"I'm not anyone, Beautiful. The name is Ainsley. Don't you remember?"

How could I forget when you've been under my feet for the past three years?"

At your feet," he corrected.

She looked at him speculatively, nothing his unmistakable turnout. Then she slid forward comfortably in the chair that outlined her lissome figure and a pretty smile dawned at the corners of her mouth.

"Tuck liked it. He liked everything about Daphne. The dark gray eyes, the dark wing-like brows accenting the white translucence of her forehead, and the blue-black softness of her wavy hair.

He smiled back doubtfully and said he suspected it would be a grin if another girl did it.

"It is." she said gleefully, "because you're going to work. Small change. You're going to help me move furniture. Jennifer arrives tomorrow and there's work to be done."

X X X

"Ah, Jennifer, the baby!" Tuck's eyes found the photograph on Daphne's desk, the photograph of a young girl with the face of an angel framed by blond hair ending in a pigtail swung over her shoulder.

"Does she still look like that?" he asked.

"I guess she does," Daphne answered and appealed to him, "but, Tuck, you know she's only 18 and she's not your type. Remember that, please. Your crowd—my crowd—is pretty sophisticated and I don't want Jennifer running around with them."

"What brought this on?" he inquired idly. "You're the girl I'm interested in. I don't want any girl but you."

"Daphne and two complete Zeigfeld Follies choruses," she replied and added, when the banner had subsided, "I'm free."

It wasn't, it was Jennifer.

Not the Jennifer of the pigtail! This was a young sophisticate with golden hair. Jennifer four inches taller than her sister, in spike heels and a smart wool frock and a chic hat. Jennifer who cried, "Dearest! I had to come a day early because I'm going to a party tonight and I had to get in in time to dig up a man. Also, I forgot to pay the taxidriver."

"I'll do it," said Daphne to Tuck after she had introduced them, and went to pay Jennifer's driver.

When she came back, Anne and Jennifer stretched out gracefully on her lounge.

"You are have a cocktail right away, Daph! I'm dying of thirst but my troubles are over for tonight. Mr. Ainsley is going to the party with me. I think he's sweet."

"I'll get us some tea," Daphne said shortly.

Father, Sons, Recover From Food Poisoning

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—Apparently the second case of food poisoning in Toronto recently, Charles Smith and his two small sons today were recovering in hospital. They were seized with convulsions after eating supper last night. Mrs. Smith, who ate the same meal as her husband and children, became ill after purchased from a bakery, bread and butter and tea, was not affected.

NO ARMED FORCES IN OSHAWA STRIKE SAYS THE PREMIER

Toronto, July 15 (CP)—No armed forces were called out to deal with the Oshawa automobile strike last April, Premier Hepburn said last night in answering criticism of his labor policies voiced at a political meeting here by Arthur Roebuck, former Attorney-General of Ontario.

The Premier said police merely had been held in readiness to meet any emergency the Oshawa force might not have been able to cope with. Only at the request of the municipality would they have been sent into the city.

Mr. Roebuck's attitude, said Premier Hepburn, "only justifies what I had to say when I asked for his resignation. He certainly wasn't loyal to me."

In his address, Mr. Roebuck congratulated the Dominion Liberal government on its labor principles. Thus, the Premier said, the former cabinet Minister has now "put himself in the front rank of those eligible for a judgeship or a senate berth."

(Premier Hepburn frequently has announced opposition to the committee for industrial organization, recognition of which by labor union was a factor in the Oshawa strike. Mr. Roebuck, and David Croll, former Minister of Welfare, resigned at the Premier's request because of opposition to his strike policy.)

RAWDON

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Weese, Redneck, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weese.

Miss Orrie Thompson entertained them home after a two weeks' holiday with her grandparents.

Mrs. H. Bennett has returned home and reports her daughter, Mrs. Neil Morrison, Campbellford, much improved in health.

Miss Orrie Johnson and her cousin, Miss Elsie McQuigge are holidaying this week with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Quiggs at Fremont, Ontario, near Hamilton.

Mr. Raymond Mack of Fort Hope is visiting at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Sine.

Miss Dorothy Ryan is holidaying this week with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunham.

On Tuesday morning several homes on the fourth line received a shock as the men were blasting in the quarry at Allan Reid's. Windows rattled and shook in the nearby homes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Stewart, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. R. Stewart, New York, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson.

Mr. Wm. Power, Brighton, a graduate of string instruments, is holidaying this week at the home of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fanning.

Madoc and District

Madoc—Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wellington, and family, of New Jersey are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Wells.

Miss Lois Ryiott of Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. Kelvin Kincaid of Toronto, spent the week-end with Mrs Cecile Kincaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fletcher are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mrs. Grant Wakelin and son, Bob of Toronto, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Gil Alcombrack.

Mr. Aymer of Marlco, is visiting his cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Gil Hayles.

Mrs. Parker Embury spent a week with Mrs. F. Edard of Stirling.

Mrs. O. N. Whyrock is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. L. Newton of Tweed.

Dr. A. Crawford of New York, is visiting his family in town.

The July meeting of St. Peter's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held on Thursday July 8th, at the home of Duncan McKenzie with an attendance of eighteen members. Mrs. R. West had charge of the opening exercises. A hymn was sung and Mrs. W. Whyrock read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. McCaffrey led in prayer. The business was in charge of the President Mrs. McCaffrey. Miss McIntosh, the secretary, gave the roll call. Mrs. Curry reported the June collection of $7.36. The supply secretary's report prepared by Mrs. Hallstone gave a full account of the bale and reported a balance on hand. The sent-out-west fund was then handed in, also two membership fees. The sick and visiting committee reported fifteen visits made. Miss Wright gave some interesting information on her grandmother's home in Kurmuir, Scotland. Her grandmother was the heroine of Sir James Barrie's book "A Window in Thrums". The picture of the home was in Monday's Globe and Mail.

Mrs. McCaffrey read part of a letter from the W.M.S. President of Gananoque Auxiliary who celebrated their fiftieth anniversary in May.

Mrs. E. W. West then took charge of the rest of the meeting and read a beautiful article entitled "Be Yourself". Miss McIntosh read a short poem "God of the Open Air". The collection was taken and the meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

The hostesses were Miss M. Ellis, and Mrs. E. J. Wallace.

The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church met on July 8th in the church rooms.

The president, Mrs. C. Hamm introduced the theme "The Friends of Jesus in Canada" and led the devotional exercises. Following a hymn and responsive reading "Let Us Pray," Pauline Mary Hall's picture lesson was read by Mrs. Jack. The devotional leaflet containing many uplifting articles on the subjects, "Who Are the Friends of Jesus in Canada", "What Are the Marks of a Friend of Jesus" and "What Does Jesus Demand of His Friends" was presented by Mrs. Adams.

A brief period of business was conducted with the secretary, Mrs. Wm. Read, assisting the president. Reports were received from the treasurer, Mrs. S. Ashley and the individual awareness of the stewardship of time, talents and money.

Following the hymn "I Would Be True" a splendid article entitled "Non-Anglo-Saxons in Our Country", was dealt with by Mrs. Cook. A prayer for the welfare of missionaries and people from foreign lands living in Canada was sincerely offered by Mrs. J. Henderson Sr. A hymn concluded the meeting.

SCHOHARIE

Schoharie— Mrs. Lewis Cleave and her guest Mrs. J. W. Clarke were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pettingill of Picton on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gerow were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Shaw.

Friends are glad to know that Mrs. Reuben Hobson was able to return to her home on Tuesday after being ill in P.E.C. hospital for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Obadias Coleman and Billy of Toronto, also Mr. Geo. Ward and Mr. Jack Ward were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hansel Walters on Monday evening.

Mrs. Ralph Warren and little son, of Picton, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hobson.

Mrs. Thaddeus Hyatt and two sons, and Mrs. M. M. Williams, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Warren.

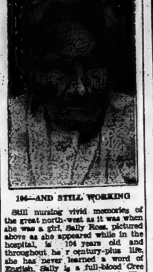
Mr. and Mrs. Earle Jackson and son of Michigan have been visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Ben Payne and Mr. Payne and other relatives in the country.

OUR HILL

Our Hill, July 15—Mrs. Howard Doolittlereturned home recently from the Western Hospital in Toronto much improved in health.

Mr. Howard Doolittle is spending his holidays with friends and relatives north of Toronto.

Mr. Ben Boyd and family of U.S.A. are again at their cottage at Loon Lake, Welcome beach.



The Red Cross bridge brings many familiar faces into our midst again and Maple Lake is again humming with familiar voices and eager Tabernacle who find excellent satisfaction in the sportsman's paradise around Eagle Lake.

Miss Flora Lehigh, Blake Gunter, and Norma Dandfoyd were successful in the recent entrance examinations. Congratulations.

The Our Hill Orange Lodge motored over to Bancroft on Monday to take part in the celebration at that centre.

The Red Cross held a lawn social on the hospital grounds on Friday evening last. Strawberries and ice cream were served. Net proceeds were $31.

Mrs. Mr. Gault and Mrs. Gault arrived the first week in June from Kingston, Rev. Mr. Gault is the United Church pastor. We welcome them to our midst.

106—AND STILL WORKING

Still nursing vivid memories of the great north-west as it was when she was a girl, Sally Rose, pictured above as she appeared while in the hospital, is 104 years old and throughout her century-plus life she has never learned a word of English. Sally is a full-blood Cree Treaty Indian, a resident of Pine Fee Indian reserve in northern Manitoba. She went to the hospital recently, explaining to her family that she was tired and wanted to rest. Her two weeks' resting was sufficient and she is now back in the great-grandchildren's shack doing her bit to keep the home in order.

Dr. Tanner, superintendent of Home Missions, preached in the United Church on Sunday last. His message was very inspiring.

Dr. Semple and Rev. Mr. Merrick preached in the Anglican church on Rev. Mr. Gault on Thursday evening last. A goodly number attended.

Miss Nelson Reg. N., of Trenton is assisting Miss Grover at the Red Cross Hospital in Coe Hill.

A new room is to be built to the Coe Hill School during the holidays, making it a 3 roomed school.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and my cousin Artie was sitting on my front steps feeling the torment with the heat, me saying, I bet this is the hottest day so far this year, what's you want to bet?

Nothing. I'm took weak to bet. I feel like a disagreeing grease spot, Artie said, and I said, I feel like a grease spot that hasn't even started yet.

Being a good sport, and we kept on sitting there feeling hot, and the house saying to our cook Nora, after a while Artie said, I wonder how hot it really actually is, let's go around to the drugstore and look at the thermometer and then we'll know exactly how hot we are.

Aw what's a use, it's less work to wait and see if in the paper or hear people mention it, I said. I'd like to take some of this weather if we start by running maybe it will help to get it started.

Well we did, running till we got around the corner and then walking in back of each other on the sidewalk to make it seem more like having fun.

Proving it's a pleasure to take a lot of trouble to get out of a little work.

I'll send Benny down the cellar to look for it, his cousin Artie is with him and he can help him.

O, hay, how about taking a walk? Artie said. Maybe if we walk good and fast the air against our faces will cool us off, he said, and I said, O, that's a good idea, maybe we'll walk some of this weather.

With that then we heard ma in the house saying to our cook Nora, I'll send Benny down the cellar to look for it, his cousin Artie is with him and he can help him.

FIRST TO SERVE AS A SENIOR SENATOR

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, through the death of Senator Robinson, became today the first United States woman ever to serve any State as its senior Senator.

It was the fifth "first" to her credit.

She was the first woman elected to the Senate by popular vote, first to be chairman of a committee, the first to conduct a Senate hearing, and the first to preside over the Senate.

When Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway died, his dark-eyed widow was appointed his temporary successor on Nov. 13, 1931. She subsequently defeated two men candidates in a special election to serve out her husband's unexpired term and won a full term in the November, 1932, election.

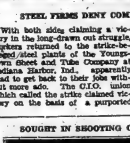
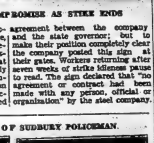
NOTED SURGEON DIES



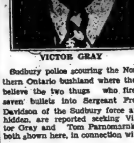
Dublin, July 15 (CP Cable)—Sir Thomas Myles, 80, prominent Irish surgeon, died last night. He was consulting surgeon to Richmond Hospital, Honorary Surgeon to the King in Ireland and a former member of the General Medical Council.



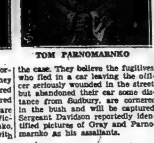
STEEL FIRMS DENY COMPROMISE AS STRIKE ENDS

With both sides claiming a victory in the long-drawn out struggle, workers returned to the strike-bound steel plants of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company at Indiana Harbor, Ind., apparently glad to get back to their jobs without more ado. The C.I.O. union which called the strike claimed victory on the basis of a purported agreement between the company and the state governor; but to make their position completely clear the company posted this sign at their gates. Workers returning after seven weeks of strike idleness paid no heed to read. The sign declared that "no agreement or contract has been made with any person, official or organization" by the steel company.

SOUGHT IN SHOOTING OF SUDBURY POLICEMAN



VICTOR GRAY



TOM PARNOMARNKO

Sudbury police scouring the Northern Ontario bushland where they believe the two thugs who fired seven bullets into Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury force are hidden, are reported seeking Victor Gray and Tom Parnomarnko, both shown here, in connection with the case. They believe the policeman, who died in a car leaving the officers' private wounded in the street, but abandoned their car some distance from Sudbury, are cornered in the bush and will be captured. Sergeant Davidson reportedly identified pictures of Gray and Parnomarnko as his assailants.

ROOSEVELT AIDE DEAD

Death from a heart attack of Democratic Senator Joseph R. Robinson of Arkansas (above) removed from the legislative scene one of President Franklin Roosevelt's most potent supporters in his efforts to secure passage of his legislation to increase the U.S. Supreme Court. Senator Robinson's government leader in the Senate since 1933, had himself been mentioned as a likely appointee to the bench. He was 65 years of age and had been at his parliamentary desk the day before his death.

SERGEANT HAMILL

Hailed as a victor by his buddies of the 36th Anti-Aircraft battalion of the British army, Sergeant J. Hamill, of that battalion is chaired and carried around the camp in triumph after winning the King's Medal and the Territorial army shooting championship at Bisley. The event was one of the early shoots in the coronation Bisley meet which culminates in the shoot for the King's Prize. A band accompanied the cheering 36th as they paraded Hamill.

WAR - - KIDNAPPING - - POLITICS - - DISASTER - -

BUT.... it's the LITTLE THINGS that count....

New drapes for the guest room, and Junior's first haircut. A new recipe for peach pie and new pans for baking it. A picnic at the beach, and a new hat for the weekly bridge. Every day events? Of course! But they're the things that make life livable! What's a war in Illyria and another Arctic expedition, compared to the thrill of the first glimpse of the family that's moving in next door, and the delivery of a shining new refrigerator? What's a royal wedding, and twelve rooms filled with gifts, when Anne has her fifth birthday tomorrow? They're interesting enough, something to talk about, to wonder at, perhaps, but pretty far away from that most important spot and the people who live there . . . your own home.

That's where your heart is, and that's where the real thrills lie, in the things that concern you and the people who live around you, next door, in the next block, anywhere in town. There's news about them in every issue of the daily Ontario Intelligencer in "inside page" stories—and in every ad too, for the ads in the Ontario Intelligencer are news! There's news about new clothes for the family, and new food for the table, and new furniture for the home. There's news about new entertainment, and new ways to get to it. There's news about something new on every page, from the latest dispatch on the front page to the new shoes for Anne on the last . . . all written to you and for you, put up in a neat package and delivered at your door-step every day.

Lost and Found

By CHARLOTTE B. SILLS
In Cobourg Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

Nan Riggins, spending the summer at her uncle's camp, looked lazily out at the pine trees and the sleeping porch where she lay.

A cool breeze was blowing, and she could hear the waves breaking on the rocky shore of the lake. Larry Manners, her cousin, was playing the banjo dreamily and somewhat, Nan thought, absent-mindedly.

It was such a nice, lazy kind of afternoon that Nan wished that she had not promised herself that she would work. But she had, so she sat up on the bed, yawned, stretched her brown arms and said almost aloud:

"Oh, bother! Typing on a day like this!"

She gave a last longing look at the sky, shining like a sheet of straight pines, and the lake, dark blue, the way she especially loved it, with the little whitecaps. Soon her typewriter clicked a dashing little accompaniment to Larry's music. Nan did publicity work; everything she wrote helped, and she needed the money.

When she had worked for nearly an hour, she put in a clean sheet of paper and began a letter to the girl who shared her apartment in Boston.

"Bab, dear," the letter began, "I am in love. Of course you would guess it. But I am. Just in love with Larry Manners. I love him so much that it hurts. And he doesn't care a bit about me, except that he likes to argue with me and bess me at times. I'm always wanting something I can't have, but this is the worst yet."

Her paper caught in the roller and Nan took it out to see what was the matter.

"Nan Oh, Nan! Come for a swim!"

There was Larry under the trees in his bathing suit. It may have been five minutes, but was probably only four, before Nan was in her bathing suit. She ran down and joined Larry and they swam out to the raft. That was a woolly affair that the boys next door had made; it tipped when one climbed on it, and when one sat on it, one was in the water up to the waist, but this did not bother Nan and Larry. They sat there and talked until the waves began to case over them. As they climbed up on the dock and waited up for the swim, a stiff wind was blowing and Nan shivered. But she noticed that the magazines had blown about the porch and she stopped to pick them up. With them she found a piece of the copy she had been working on.

"This must have blown away from my work-shop," she explained smiling, and ran into the house to dress.

Larry walked away slowly, thinking of the picture she made in her red bathing suit, her short black hair blown about by the wind.

On the path through the woods, leading to Mr. Manners' shop, he stooped and picked up another piece of paper.

"The wind is certainly blowing things about," he thought gianting casually at the paper.

By evening the wind had died down and myriads of stars shone over the lake. The Whitbrook's and their cabin was packed, and they were having a big house-warming. Larry stopped to take Nan over in the canoe. Nan had told her uncle to tell Larry that she had a headache and couldn't go. Larry, surprised and disappointed, took the canoe back and returned alone to the party alone.

"Headache, Larry is," everyone said. They all missed Nan, too.

Mrs. Jean Jones from the Monarch on the Winthrop porch floated over to her through the trees. Nan only did have a headache, was drowning with her flash-light underneath the bed. She looked everywhere for the letter to Bab. She couldn't find it, and had decided that the wind had carried it off. But who had found it?

Nan and more worried and annoyed, she gave up the search and went to bed.

She dozed fitfully then, toward morning fell into a heavy sleep. When she awoke, her first thought was of the letter. Her cheeks burned as she dressed hurriedly. She was too nervous to think. Nan had no comforter for all her troubles—her rivver. Whatever anything went wrong, she and Nan's life had never been easy—Nan went to live in little car and thought things out. She had bought it with the accident and her father had left her, and it had been a more faithful friend than her father had ever been. Now as she started the car five, all she could think of was Larry.

What fun they had had when she taught him to run the Ford—Larry, who had a new big car every year! And now she had spoiled everything through her carelessness.

Too miserable to care where she was going, Nan drove on. Finally she stopped by old Tumble Brook and threw herself down in the tall grass. Here, an hour later, Larry found her.

As they tore the letter into little pieces (Nan insisted), Larry said: "I haven't eaten a bite all day—ARE YOU ALL CHICKEN

JUST FOR YOU

FOO-EY-

Gee, Nan, I've been crazy about you all summer, but if I hadn't seen that letter, I might never have got up the nerve—"

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 15 (AP)—Stock buyers got behind selected leaders in today's market but many issues were neglected.

Supporting bids came in when prices had been shaded from a point on the coming stretch. While the activity was small throughout, recoveries were fairly well maintained near the closing period. Transfers at the 1940 of about 800,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, July 15.—(CP)—The Toronto market went through its regular motions today but failed to get far in either direction. A few fields, here and there, threw up enough strength in the Industrials and other groups to make up for the weakness in the yellow metals and the close showed little net change. Strength of the Distillers' group was a feature of the Industrial section. Walkers common moved about two points and Distillers-Seagrams a point while Industrial Alcohol preferred showed a gain of a point. Volume was over the board was a little better than half of the preceding session.

Kerr-Addison, Moneta, Jellicoe, a few other Golds were offered in volume as the week ended. Profit-taking at the session and they tightened up in the final session, practically eliminating the losses. Net losses of 5 to 10 cents were shown at the close for Sherritt, Buffalo, Ankerite, Macassa, O'Brien, Pioneer, Sisco, Teck Hughes, Hard Rock, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Read-Authier, Towagmac, Dome, Hollinger and McIntyre closed lower by fractions.

Sherritt Gordon Resumes Milling Operations

Resumption of production by Sherritt Gordon Mines, with a 200 ton daily basis is reported to be taking place this week-end. Initial milling rate will be advanced to 1,500 tons gradually, and amount calculated by officials to represent the most economical figure.

Based on results tabled by the company five years ago, ore reserves at that time, undoubtedly above 3rd level, consisted of 4,790,175 tons, containing 231,827,800 pounds of copper, 100,129,620 pounds of zinc and approximately $1. in gold and silver. Since then portions of this backlog had been demarcated in the west orebody, which contained 3,029,000 long tons at 2.66 per cent copper and 40.80 in gold and silver at the old price basis. 1936, the preliminary crosscuts on the 412, 5th and 6th level indicated ore persistence downward with little change in width or grade.

Accepting recovery figures of the management, the wet orebody should yield 74 per cent of copper, 75c in gold and silver per ton milled, indicating a gross value of $8.30 with copper at 14 cents per lb. On averages of the three ore bodies, recovery per ton should gross 36.5 lbs. copper, 10.4 lbs zinc and 74 cents precious metals, or $6.42 per ton milled.

The gold stocks, particularly the senior ones, have scored a good recovery from their recent lows and whereas a few weeks ago rumours were rife of a probable reduction in the price of gold, today reports are heard that an increase in the price of the yellow metal is in prospect. In any event, all agree to agree that the persistent rumours heard a short time ago were without foundation.

On The Street

Steel production in the United States is rising weekly—statements of finished steel products by the U.S. Steel Corporation show substantial gains....The common stock of this company is registering gains ....Reflection of such good business is found in the earnings of Steel Company of Canada ....The market for the latter has not responded as yet, to the strength of "Big Steel"....The local market during the next few months will be given excellent leadership....the sort that inspires confidence.

Home Improvement Loans Boon To Many in Belleville

One Man Converted Home Into Duplex And Enjoys Revenue Provided—Home Improvement Becomes Epidemic, Bringing Out Private Funds—Bachelor Apartments—How it Works in the Country.

Not only is the Home Improvement Plan providing employment for many classes of trades and people beautifying homes and adding much needed improvements to city and rural residences in Belleville and district, but it is also opening up hitherto unexploited channels and sources of revenue.

For instance there is the case of an elderly citizen of Belleville, at present employed but who faces retirement on pension in the near future. Under the system of the Home Improvement Plan, he borrowed sufficient money to convert his home into a duplex dwelling, and is now renting the newly acquired addition to his home at a good rental. He now has no end to worry for the future, for not only will the revenue derived from the new source pay for his loan but will add substantially to his income when the loan is paid up. Thanks to the Home Improvement Plan, his home is beautified, has been added to substantially, and is paying a dividend which in all probability will not have been made possible had the new plan not come into being.

Bringing Out Private Funds

Another important phase which is directly responsible to the Plan is the fact that a large amount of private funds which in all probability would have lain dormant are now being utilized in the remodelling and beautifying of many homes throughout the province. This was typified here in Belleville recently when a lady called upon her banker with regard to borrowing a sum of money under the new system with which to remodel her home. Upon being given the information and told the benefits to be derived, the lady in question decided to utilize private funds of her own. Consequently more money is being placed in circulation, more people are being employed, and building and handiess in general is undergoing a stimulation which it otherwise would not have experienced to such an extent.

Bachelor Apartments Produce Revenue

Another instance of the tremendous possibilities and practicalities of the Home Improvement Plan is seen in the case of a city resident who through the medium of loan secured under the system converted a practical "wilderness" into a land of plenty. This particular case is the story of a man who realized the possibility of not only supplying business and labor with a new industry or plant, but utilized the money secured by loan in providing a source of income.

Two thousand square feet of waste land underwent practically overnight a magical transformation. Now instead of the drab view of unused property, there stands a trim, modern building containing three three-roomed bachelor apartments, which will provide sufficient income within the next year to more than liquidate the amount of the loan. In a short time this fine property will bring in a revenue to its owner equal to the yearly pay for taxes, etc., but also supply a handsome income.

Machine Shed and Electricity

Not only have residents of the city taken advantage of this fine opportunity to improve and add to their dwellings, but many rural dwellers have realized their ambition to beautify their homes and erect much-needed additions and improvements to their buildings. One farmer today boasts a modern machine-shed, for which will house practically all of his heavy farm equipment. Others have, in conjunction with the Hydro Commission, installed electricity in home and barns. New additions have been added to farm homes in many instances, and in some cases the installation of a modern bathroom has been the result of the advantages offered under the Home Improvement Plan.

Further instances of how the Home Improvement Plan is working in Belleville and district will be given in Saturday's issue.

KING AND QUEEN ROYALLY FETED

Aberwyth, Wales, En Fete as King Opens National Library

Aberwyth, Wales, July 15 (CP Cable)—Lavishly bedecked Aberwyth welcomed the King and Queen today.

Their Majesties arrived an allnight rain ceased, leaving the skies clear. Flags, including the Welsh red dragon on green and white field, hung sodden on their staffs. Crowds lined the procession route throughout the night or across early Monday morning. Accommodation in the town was filled.

The Royal party arrived by train at Llandrit. Their train moved slowly through the mist-shrouded countryside to Aberywyth, halting frequently amid the beautiful Welsh scenery.

The Earl of Lisburne, Lord Lieutenant of Cardiganshire, received their Majesties at Aberystwyth station. The King, in morning clothes, and the Queen in Aberywyth, greeted by the Mayor and afterwards received addresses were presented to the King and Queen.

The King then opened the National Library of Wales, with its collection of Welsh manuscript and books. This was the 25th anniversary of the laying of the foundation stone of the building by his father, King George V.

Auto-Railer Beats Freight Train by Taking to Highway

Extreme mobility of the new Canadian National Autorailers at points visited this day today was shown by the statement of Mr. F. G. Rochester, superintendent of passenger train service of the Canadian National Railways, Montreal, in charge that when halted or slowed up by any interference on the tracks the vehicles can simply desert the rails for the highway.

"Coming up from Prescott yesterday we were slowed up by a long freight train ahead of us. We decided we could make better time than that, so we simply waited until we came to a cross road, changed from rails to the road and ran into Brockville on the highway," he said.

Mr. S. J. Hungerford, President and Chairman of the C.N.R. conducted the test of experimenting with a view to testing its suitability for railway service.

SLOT MACHINES ARE MECHANICAL THIEVERY STATES POLICE CHIEF

London, Ont., July 15—(CP)—Executive of the Police Association of Ontario at their annual meeting today, passed resolutions of the "slot machine racket" and declared the slot machine is the bane of the Attorney General.

Branded as "mechanical thievery" the question of slot machines was condemned by the association in general here today and a resolution made to seek legislation for the control or prohibition of the devices.

Motion to have the matter placed before the Attorney General was made by Chief Constable R. MacLaughlin of Eastview, and seconded by Chief Percy Sharpe, Ottawa.

Inspector John Barlow of Ottawa, however, said the best solution to all Ontario's "racket" problems, the appointment of a provincial police commissioner.

Address on Machines

Discussion of slot machines followed an address by Chief Martin, who declared what he described as the apathy, ignorance and in some cases active support of members of some municipal councils with regard to the "growing menace" of the vending or slot machine racket.

That the majority of owners, distributors and operators of the machines were solidly entrenched, financially and otherwise, was an obvious conclusion, said the chief. Likewise, he said, it was evident leasing and operation of the machines now were ready to come out into the open and challenge members of municipal councils in the courts on a greater scale than ever.

The chief asserted that licensing slot machines seemed to put them into a legitimate channel of trade, and to remove from them the stigma of racketeering. He saw no objection to their operation, if the institution of the gambling fever in children, many of whom take money from employers or parents to satisfy their gambling whim.

TAXI DRIVER IS BEATEN TO DEATH

Evidence Adduced to Show That Man Hit With Lead Pipe

Port Erie, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Dr. T. W. Cmoliwany of Port Erie today a Coroner's inquest here today, into Wednesday, 36-year-old taxi-driver, was beaten to death with a piece of lead pipe. Kasimer was found dying behind a thornhedge on Albany Street Monday and died in the head crushed.

Dr. Cmoliwany said the pulp-like dent from continued pounding rather than from one blow. He estimated death of the taxi driver was reduced to 50 pieces, according to post mortem examinations. A wound three-quarters of 4-5 inch deep above the right brow, but below the hair line, may have been caused by the man falling forward against the cash board of his cab or from being dragged over sharp stone.

Evidence of police Chief A. E. Griffin varied from the above. Chief Griffin said that when the dying driver was discovered by Walter Hardison and two young boys, attracted to the hedge by groans,

27 POWERS AGREE TO DISCUSS COMPROMISE

Sense of Relief is Felt Reception of British Plan Better Than Anticipated

Italy And Germany Agree to Consider Compromise Plan

SMALL POWERS FOLLOW

Eden Plan Would Scrap Patrol And Set up System of Observers

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 16 (CP. Cable) — Italy and Germany today accepted the British control plan for Spain as a basis for discussion.

First reactions to the plan were evidently received in British London with a sigh of relief.

The Earl of Plymouth formally submitted the plan today to the 27 nations gathered at the Non-Intervention Committee table.

Some objections had been expected but the plan's complete lack described in British circles as "highly satisfactory" and "better than we might have anticipated."

Premiers Consulted

Representatives of a large number of the smaller powers spoke. . . In each case the plan was considered either in principle or as a basis for discussion. The French and Russian representatives have not yet spoken.

Success or failure of the plan was viewed by most observers as hanging by this balance-thread: whether the opposing foes could be reconciled to Eden's requirement that withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain be started before "limited" belligerent rights are granted them by the Spanish government and to General Franco.

Question of Valencies

In Paris, a foreign office spokesman said France still favored an effective control system to keep men and munitions from all of Spain and elimination of foreign volunteers but could not approve even temporary recognition of belligerency until both these points had been fulfilled.

BRITAIN BUBBLES WITH PROSPERITY AND GOOD TIMES

Mr. Jamieson Bone Returns From Trip to Europe

GENERAL PROSPERITY

British Motorists Praised by Mr. Bone For Their Courtesy

The British Isles, bubbling with optimism, good times and prosperity, are today leading the world in humming activity and progress, one which is reflected everywhere, it is described by Mr. Jamieson Bone who returned to the city last week after an extended overseas vacation.

Cafes, restaurants, theatres, railroad stations and trains filled to overflowing with cheerful crowds; giant factories planning smoke from tall stacks a twenty-four hour shifts; offices busy as never before, and new building setting all time high records. These are only a few of the impressions retained by Mr. Bone, following his visit through Britain and France during his trip.

"France compared with Great Britain is dumpish. There is hardly any comparison, Canada . . . . well . . . . "

Prosperity Everywhere

In the peaceful County of Devon, with its rolling hills, the calmer highlands of Scotland, London, itself, Mr. Bone stated, with the exception of the journey being covered in a light-hearted fashion, made no pretense for the purpose. Everywhere the same signs of prosperity and good times were evident. Even in comparatively quiet Scotland, one little well known town today had a new record for the construction of new homes.

"There seemed to be a difference the minute we stepped off the boat"

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Editor Meteorologist

Dry ice! Ice without moisture is called "dry ice". It is the solid form of carbon dioxide, one of the constituents of the atmosphere. It is the gas we exhale. It is found in the earth as well as in the atmosphere and also can readily be manufactured. This gas when solidified is white like snow. For commercial use it is packed into cakes 10 by 10 by 10 inches, each weighing about 45 pounds. One pound of water in the melting point is 109 degrees below zero, and it passes directly from the solid to the gaseous form. It is used largely, as it is well known, as a refrigerating agent; and also by physicians in treating warts and other skin diseases.

BEST AGGREGATE SLOS UP LT. MATCHETT

Had a Score of 581 in 10 Separate Service Rifle Matches

Bisley Camp, England, July 16 (CP)—Lieut. H. A. Matchett today annexed Canada's second victory at the National Rifle Association meeting when he posted scores of the Grand Aggregate Challenge Trophy.

The Hamilton youngster had an aggregate of 581 of the ten separate rifle matches that make up the grand aggregate. He added the Challenge Trophy, the N.R.A. Gold Cross and Corporation Medal, the first cash prize of $50, to the Duke of Cleveland's Cup and Gilt Medal won in the Duke of Gloucester yesterday.

Matchett to date is the only Canadian getting a first place in any of the great shoots of the Corporation Bisley. Others have tied for top in various events but were beaten in shoot-offs.

Twelve Canadians were among the 300 marksmen who went to the butts in the second stage of the King's Prize today, with first places among the "King's hundred" in to-morrow's final stage of this great shoot.

Sgt. T. A. Jensen of Innisfail, Alta., tied best score with Lieut. Matchett and Sergeant Hodgins in the second stage with an aggregate of 145 out of a possible 150. Sgt. M. F. Dillon of Ottawa had 141 and Lieut. G. E. Matchett of Hamilton 140.

Canada's team of 11 men was a heavy-scoring one. Its lowest member, fired at the longest ranges here, was Sergt. Jensen, Alberta's only winners of the trophy last year, did not qualify.

Scotland finished the big shoot with an aggregate of 1,021 points to a possible 1,200. Canada had 996, Australia 960, England 927, India 919, New Zealand 906 and Guernsey 856.

The Canadian Isles won the Junior MacKinnon, otherwise the Bartnett Imperial Challenge Cup for teams of four, with 316 of a possible 400. British Guiana had 315, Trinidad 310, the Gold Coast 311, Tanganyika 310, the Malay Straits 307, Jamaica 286, Sierra Leone 284, the Sudan 281.

BUTCHER KNIVES PART OF EFFECTS OF G. ROEDIGER

Trunk Left in Toronto When Man Departed, Held by Police

MUCH-MARRIED

Police Working on Theory Allandale "Wife" Was Slain

Toronto July 16.—(CP)—General V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Ontario Provincial Police, today conferred with officers who have been sifting the martial tangle left by George Roediger, sentenced at Winnipeg to nine years for bigamy and theft.

Inspector George MacKay of the criminal investigation Department, Provincial Police, and Detective Sergeant A. M. Veitch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were closeted with the Commissioner. Inspector MacKay and Sergeant Veitch returned today from Winnipeg where they questioned the German butcher.

The two officers have been attempting for six months to solve the disappearance of Mrs. Christine Roediger, Allandale, Ont., married to Roediger, then known as George Rodgers, in Barrie in August, 1936. The officers refused to give any information of Roediger's answer to questions regarding Mrs. Roediger.

General Williams gave orders for strict secrecy to be objected to from other publicity.

"The case has been published already," said the General. "It is interfering with the police work on the case."

Toronto, July 16.—(CP)—Acts involving some of George Fritz Roediger's marital adventures were expected to arrive here today, awaiting the spotlight to the Ontario episodes in the much-married bigamist case. Inspector George MacKay, Provincial Police, and Sergt. A. M. Veitch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who traced the 53-year-old German born butcher to Winnipeg, were returning to Ontario.

After Winnipeg the worst was done. Roediger was under nine-year sentence there for bigamy and theft, and now intensive investigation

PATROLMAN EFFECTS A DARING RESCUE

New York, July 16 (AP)—This is the tale of a log, a life-preserver, three young men and Patrolman John Mulligan, especially Patrolman John Mulligan.

The three young men, Peter Ryan, 18, Joseph Ryan, 18, Noe Ryan, 18, went swimming in the Hudson River yesterday. The current was strong. The log and tried to push it ashore. He couldn't so swam ashore, grabbed a life preserver and went back.

Mulligan slipped the life preserver around George and towed him ashore.

Mulligan's third trip completed the rescue. Asinger in the life preserver and Ryan swimming with Mulligan's help.

CARRYING BABY KILLED BY CAR

Ten Year Old Girl Mangled And Driver of Car Arrested

St. Boniface, Man., July 16 (CP) — Ten-year-old Jeanette Roby who was carrying a 14-months-old boy, was struck and killed by an automobile here last night.

Her cousin, James Gosselin, whom she was carrying, was thrown nearly 30 feet. He was believed to have sustained serious injuries. The girl was dragged nearly forty feet by the car.

Maurice Parisiau, 23, St. Boniface, was arrested on a charge of driving to the common danger.

SUPPER HEAT WAVE AT THE NORTH POLE

Heat-oppressed Canadians may find cool inspiration from this picture of the Russians at the North Pole. But latest reports state the heat wave which has swept the north temperate zone also was felt to a degree by this group—the thermometer going up to 32 degrees. Two of the Soviet fliers are seen building a snow house on a drifting ice floe. Note their survey plane in the background.

Chinese Ambassador Charges Violation of China

DEFIANT REPLIES BY FOES OF BILL

Claim President Taking Advantage of Death of Robinson

Washington, July 16.—(AP)—An injunction from President Roosevelt that it is "the Duty of Congress" to pass judiciary legislation at its session drew angry, defiant replies today from foes of the bill for reorganization of the United States Supreme Court.

The White House called after the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson was shattered even before his state funeral at noon.

"We will select our own leader and dispose of the Court Bill in our own way without dictation from any source whatsoever," said Senator Van Nuys (D.-Ind.)

Senator Burke (D.-Neb.), commented, "if the President is determined to have the matter brought to him in life, he will find the Opposition ready to welcome the contest."

Opposition Senators struck back vigorously at the President's statement he was expressing his views before Robinson's funeral because he find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning.

The tone of his statement and the replies of the foes gave a hint of the bitterness with which the Senate debate will be resumed next Monday.

President Roosevelt made his demand for action on court legislation in a letter to acting Senate Leader Barkley of Kentucky.

RAINS DRENCHED WEST PRAIRIES

Western Feed And Crop Situation Improved by Downpour

Winnipeg, July 16 (CP)—Rains drenched the Canadian prairies today as downpours continued in northern and central Alberta, and good precipitation was reported elsewhere in Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan and heavy showers in many parts of Manitoba.

The western feed and crop situation improved extensively with the rainfall and in Southern Saskatchewan garden seeds were being sown and farmers of the drought-stricken areas looked for fodder crops were a week ago on harvest of any kind was expected.

Edmonton's deluge continued past its 48th hour last night with that six-inch mark exceeded and no sign of let-up. Officials believed that part of Alberta was missed by rain. Rain was still falling in Southern Saskatchewan and at Ceylon 60 miles south of Regina four and half inches have fallen since Sunday. Four inches have fallen at Palmer, west of Ceylon, since Wednesday. Two inches fell yesterday at Assiniboia, in the worst of the drought area. A similar fall was recorded at Moose Jaw.

The rain extended yesterday eastward from Assiniboia and heavy falls were reported as far as Estevan in the Southwestern corner of the province.

Rain-sodden highways in all directions out of Edmonton stripped tire and truck traffic and the provincial government banned use of the province's main highways by heavy vehicles because of soft feed surfaces.

Chief Kerr Hitch Hikes To Probe Killing

Oakville, Ont., July 16 (CP)—Chief of Police David Kerr, called from London where he was attending a police convention, hitch-hiked his way to Oakville yesterday to take charge of investigations into the killing of the five-weeks-old daughter of Mrs. Doris Keeley. The chief discovered that his train schedules would not allow him to reach Oakville in time and he got a London policeman flag an Oakville-bound automobile for him.

DAUGHTERS TRY TO RAISE BAIL FOR THEIR FATHER

He is Held on Charge of Attempting to Murder Them

INSURANCE INVOLVED

Daughters Escape With Their Brother From Burning Home

Lansdowne, Pa., July 16 (AP)—Three daughters of Albert R. Knight, 54, tried today to raise $10,000 bail to release him from jail at Media, where he was held on charges of attempting to murder them to collect $130,000 in insurance.

Knight was arrested on a charge of arson in a fire at his home, May 28. The murder charge was filed yesterday by William R. Toal, Assistant District Attorney of Delaware County.

Toal said he learned Knight had taken out policies aggregating $60,000 face value, with a double indemnity clause, six months before the fire.

The daughters insured were Ruth, 25; Sue, 19, and Mary, 17. With their brother, David, 15, they escaped from their burning house.

A fourth daughter, married and living in Honolulu, was named beneficiary.

BRITAIN'S ARMS BUDGET PASSES

House is Quiet, And Many Are Away as Bill Passes

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 16 (CP Cable)—Britain's great armament budget was passed its final stages in the House of, Commons today when the Finance Bill, which gives legislative effect to the budget proposals, was given third reading by a vote of 271 to 95.

The discussion closed in an atmosphere different from the Commons' usual Thursday excitement. Many of the members were away. There was no crowd in the galleries. There the benches were packed. Today Friday attendance.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, as "Chancellor of the Exchequer, Designate" reports today and tomorrow.

Sir John Simon, Chamberlain's successor as Chancellor, closing the discussion, frankly admitted that a huge expenditure of £1,500,000,000 ($4,140,810,000) in taxation was unprecedented in peacetime. "It is very sobering figure," Sir John said.

PASTOR ADMITS STRIKING WOMAN

"Devoted Friend" Hit With Hammer in Roadside Quarrel

Pittsfield, Ill., July 16 (AP) — An 11-page signed statement of a pastor's attack with a hammer on his "devoted friend," Mrs. Ennis Kelly, with a hammer during a roadside quarrel after she asserted her husband was claimed by authorities today. They said it solved the bizarre Mississippi River "floating body mystery."

Meticulously, the rev. C. E. Newton, 51, a married man, toiled in the jail cell where he has been confined for six hours at the jail here over the weekend for how he described former Paris, Mo., parishioner, met his death.

When it was ended, States Attorney Merrill Simmons, Pike County, Illinois, announced the statement, and said Newton indicated willingness to sign it. Then he said he and Grand Jury indicts him. Newton, for 13 years pastor of a Baptist church at Paris, is charged with first degree murder, a crime for which the electric chair is the supreme penalty.

Simmons quoted Newton as saying Mrs. Kelly insisted he accompany her to Hannibal on her flight from home and husband which began Monday night at Paris in Newton's automobile.

Civilians Flee Peiping, No Order to Evacuate Given Declares Embassy

Japanese Construct Semi-Circular Line of Trenches Near City

CHINESE LAY CHARGES

Declaration is Made That Japanese Seek Basis For Encroachment

LONDON, July 16.—(AP)— The Chinese Ambassador to London, Quo Tai-Chi, presented to Foreign Secretary Eden today a memorandum from his government setting forth the "status and circumstances of the present fighting" around Peiping in North China.

The Chinese Embassy said a similar communication had been made to all other signatories of the Washington treaty of 1922 except Japan, and also to Russia and Germany.

The Embassy estimated more than 100 Japanese airplanes and 20,000 Japanese troops already had been concentrated in the Peiping-Tientsin area, where fighting broke out on July 7, and that they were "ready to precipitate a major clash at any moment."

Hands-Off Policy

The nine-power convention pledged the signatories to a "hands off China" policy and to help China to develop a unified nation.

"While China is obliged to employ all means to defend herself, defend her territory and national honor in the end of her existence," the Embassy statement said, "She, nevertheless, holds herself in readiness to settle differences with Japan by any or of the peaceful means of international adjustment at her treaties."

Ever since the original outbreak Chinese authorities, anxious to reach a peaceful settlement, have used their best efforts to arrange for cessation of hostilities by mutual withdrawal of troops.

Japanese Attack

"Soon almost immediately after such a withdrawal arrangement was made, it was nullified by resumption of attack by Japanese forces.

"It need hardly be pointed out that the sudden attack on Lukouchiao (captured by Japan) and the invasion of North China by a Japanese military force constitutes a clear violation of China's Sovereignty, contrary to the letter and spirit of the nine-power treaty, the Paris Peace Pact and the Covenant of the League of Nations".

YOUTH ELECTS TRIAL BY JURY

Stanley Caldwell Will Face Charge of Assault Against Female

Chatham, Ont., July 16—(CP)—Instead of spending 13 when he was arrested in connection with assault of Miss Jeanne Tetry, music supervisor of rural schools, in a car on August 15, 1936, Stanley Caldwell, 22, of Tilbury and formerly of Chatham today was committed for trial on three charges.

Caldwell had previously pleaded not guilty to the charges but, representation of counsel, he changed today, he elected to take trial before judge and jury, waived preliminary examination and consented to being committed. It was said the plea had been examined by a psychiatrist since his last court appearance.

The charges on which Caldwell will stand trial allege assault of a female under 14 years, assault of Miss Terry while armed with a dangerous weapon, to wit, a motor car and attempted suicide.

Miss Terry was found by Tilbury home where. Miss Terry, when teaching in that district was boarding with Mrs. Lum. It is alleged that he struck her on the head with a piece of a rake he had concealed in an attempt to get possession of the car, almost ditching the Kruger, Jr., automobile, man's screams attracted the attention of Lorne Brisbois who chased Caldwell through the fields. It is alleged the swallowed poison in an attempt to flee but he was captured.

SECURE COUNSEL TO DEFEND MOTHER ON MURDER COUNT

Police Believe Mrs. Keeley Worried Over Child's Incessant Crying

FOUND IN CELLAR

Husband in Toronto When Tragedy Took Place and Parents at Work

Oakville, Ont., July 16 (CP)—Preparations were made today by relatives to engage counsel for Mrs. Keeley, 25 year old Toronto mother, with counsel to defend her on the charge of murdering her five-weeks-old daughter. Police, meanwhile, probed for a motive behind the alleged crime and learned only that Mrs. Keeley was worried over the child's incessant crying.

Its head cleft by an axe blow, the baby's body was found yesterday in the basement of the home of Mrs. Keeley's father, Harry Duncanshaw, with whom she was visiting. She was immediately arrested and is being held in Milton jail on remand until next Friday.

Mrs. Keeley's husband, Jack, was in Toronto when the slaying took place. Coroner Dr. J. H. Reed announced. He said Mrs. Keeley appeared to be in excellent health and well cared for. He described Mrs. Keeley after her arrest as be-

ROEDIGER WORKED IN KINGSTON SHOP

Butcher in Meat Department But Reported He Was Quite Bossy

Kingston, Ont., July 16 (CP) — Sensibility in the case of Mrs. McKenna, missing wife of George Roediger, was in Kingston, August, 1935, developed here today with the story of a business association. Roediger was sentenced at Winnipeg to nine years for bigamy and theft.

The woman who operated the boarding house where Roediger lived while here, said she was almost certain she recognized Mrs. Keeley's house in August, 1935, was Mrs. McKenna who married Roediger in Barrie in 1933.

The boarding house proprietor said the woman accompanied Roediger to Kingston on their honeymoon. Records in the Baptist Church at Barrie show the marriage of George Roediger and Mrs. Christina McKenna in August, 1933.

Inserted Ad.

PICTON COUPLE WEDDED 66 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller Ricks of Picton, today celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary. They were married on July 16, 1872, and for many years have lived in the Picton district. The groom of 88 years ago is 89 years of age and his wife one year younger.

LARGE GARTER SNAKE SOON DISPATCHED

Duties of a Lifeguard on Victoria Park embrace more than the many protection of tyro bathers who ventures into deep water off the park pond. Yesterday, for example, Geo. Sexsmith, lifeguard at the dome where an excited group of children had gathered near the park building, found one of the largest garter snakes observed for some time. Sighs of relief from bathers were evident when the 36-inch reptile was dispatched.

CANADIAN AIR PUT IN TIRES

To the wondering attendant of the downtown gasoline service station who had watched the Ontario special carefully deflate all four tires of his automobile at the air pump in the yard, and then so carefully inflate them to proper pressure again the visitor explained:

"I'm just about half way on my summer trip right now, and the American air I had in the tires seemed 'tired.' It may be just an idea of mine, but I think I can finish the trip in more comfort on good Canadian air. I'll have a souvenir to take back home with me, too."

ALL FISH CAUGHT RETURNED TO WATER

Fishing by visitors using local waters does not necessarily mean the keeping of those that have been caught and safely landed. It is revealed by Joseph Goyer, well known guide of the city, who landed four visiting party down the bay a day or so ago.

Though a creditable catch of bass and a few pike were made by one keen member of the party, all fish caught by him were carefully liberated and returned to the water safely.

"I fish for the sport. Why should I keep them when I don't really need them," he asked the guide.

HYDRO WORK NEAR THOMASBURG FINISHED

Forty-five men, part of a force from this district engaged for the past three months by the Chats Falls Hydro development through the section, left Thomasburg on Wednesday. Thomasburg are jobless today as the result of the completion of work in this district yesterday. About half this force have been sintred with the camp in the Shelbury district on further extension work. The men have been hired through the local Employment Service of Canada office, and a number have been re-employed at other work at the office at once.

LIVE BAIT SALES NOW QUITE HEAVY

Extent of the tourist trade through this district from day to day is not only revealed by registrations at the Tourist Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce, but also by the number of live bait sale made by purveyors. During the past week or two sales have been particularly heavy, with a keen demand for minnows and worms noted. Catches of fish, however, have not been commensurate with the outlay involved, various parties report.

CHILD RUNS INTO SIDE OF VEHICLE

In attempting to cross St. Paul street yesterday afternoon, little Patrick Mondaville, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Mondaville, 43 St. Paul Street, ran into the side of a moving automobile driven by Derwood Archer, 87 S. George Street. The force of the impact knocking the little fellow violently to the road, where he sustained severe cuts on the knees and several body bruises. The little Mondaville lad ran out from in front of a parked truck that blocked his view of the approaching car and also blocked the view of the driver, who did not see the lad until he ran into the right rear fender and was knocked down. Medical attention was afforded the boy, who suffered more from fright than actual injuries. Traffic Officer Doug. Ellis investigated and reporting the incident purely accidental.

CHILDREN LEARN RULES OF SAFETY

Adults Could Take Lessons From Youngsters Says Fire Chief

"Try not the children we have to watch," is the oldtime saw. And many an adult could take lessons in safety from the youngsters, commented Fire Chief Wm. Lynch today after a casual checkup of the number of fires directly attributable to children playing with matches or fire.

"We haven't had a call of that sort for a long, long time. Children today are a lot wiser than they were a few years ago in the matter of carrying matches or playing with fire. In a lot of cases, where they have been blamed, investigation has shown it's the grownups who have been responsible. The novelty of the match has about disappeared, so now have other things which interest them more.

"Blame it on the cigaret butt. That's the chief cause of fires. Most of the alarms we receive for fires in homes have been caused by dropped butts or sparks on the chesterfield and a lot more are caused by cigaret butts being dropped in dry grass or rubbish."

Mr. Lynch regretted that in the past few years have caused other hazards of fire caused by the department. How such alarms resulting from short circuited electrical appliances, defective wiring in automobiles and from gas are not uncommon, he is reported.

While present dry grass danger period is present a warning against throwing lighted cigaret ends from automobiles along the roads is given by the department.

ENJOY TEN DAYS AT SUMMER CAMP

53 Entertained at Moira Lake Under Supervision of "Y"

Sunbanned and sunburned, 53 joyous teen-aged boys with hearty appetites and healthy zest enjoyed their outing returned home from the Y.M.C.A. boys' summer camp at Moira Lake today.

For two never-to-be-forgotten weeks 53 boys enjoyed the freedom of the great out-of-doors and eminently displayed the advantages afforded them by their appearance, all being robust and the very picture of healthy Canadian boyhood. Under the supervision of J. E. Stocks, camp director, and Instructor Godfrey Scott, who was in charge of athletics and aquatics, a regular programme was rigidly adhered to in daily routine to assure the boy campers of the proper discipline in boys' training.

Organized boating, swimming and fishing trips were enjoyed on the lake water while the conventional land sports and team games constituted the sports and recreation enjoyed on the vicinity of the Moira Lake "Y" boys' camp. The 53 teen aged campers were transported back to Belleville this morning in motor and private automobiles. As they entered the city their joyous shouts and boyish voices proved the boys had undoubtedly enjoyed to the utmost the two weeks of summer holidays enjoyed through the facilities of the "Y" summer camp at Moira Lake.

Next week the camp will be occupied by a contingent of girls from the Belleville C.G.I.T. group under the direction of Miss Gertrude Ellis.

POLICE COURT

With two exceptions all cases heard before Magistrate A. E. Hillier, K.C., in today's local police court were for alleged breaches of the Liquor Control Act.

Three men and a woman appeared in the court charged under the L.C.A. today, their cases being a sequel to an alleged drunken brawl at Kingston at No. 4 Doyle's Theatre. Pinnacle St., by Constables Ross and Ellis last evening. Harold Loft, Phillip Snider and John Marshall, all of Kingston, pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness today, while Mrs. J. Hedger faced charges of permitting intoxication in her home. The latter case was enlarged until Monday while sentence in the former three common drunk charges was postponed at the request of Chief Kidd.

Leonard Fry, who gave 265 Pinnacle St. as his address, appeared charged with assaulting his wife. His case was also enlarged until Monday owing to the absence from the city of Crown Attorney D. C. Donnah, K.C., local Crown Attorney, who is attending military camp at Kingston.

Fry was arrested by P. C. Evans last evening following complaints received from his wife regarding her husband striking her and terrifying the family. The officer in charge reported Fry had been drinking. The accused man was detained at the police station and officially charged with common assault today.

Thomas Conley and Floyd Smith, both pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and received the conventional penalty of ten dollars and costs or 13 days. The former intimated he would be willing to pay the fine if given time in which to secure the cash.

A case in the domestic relations court, that was held in camera, resulted in the parties concerned signing separation papers to the mutual agreement of all. The matter had been one of contention to the court for some months.

ELECTRIC STORM VISITS DISTRICT

Transformer And Manhole Cover Struck in The City

Pounding out of inky clouds from which streaks of lightning flashed at split second intervals, the heaviest local storm of the season drenched the city and immediate district in a miniature cloudburst late last evening.

Struck near section of a stray bolt, an electrical transformer on a pole on Grove Street was put out of commission, causing the interesting fused. This was the sum total of damage reported today by the local office of the Public Utilities Commission. For the height of the storm electrical service was attended by a greater part of the city.

Another lightning flash was reported by a resident to have struck an iron manhole cover at the corner of Bridge Street and Front Street in a telephone message received by Engineer Chas. Mott. Investigation revealed the heavy cover had been bounced from its seat into the road. It was replaced by Wm. Mattis, city fireman. No other damage was reported.

PREMIER HEPBURN DEFENDS ACTIONS

Addresses Police Chief Convention on Oshawa Strike

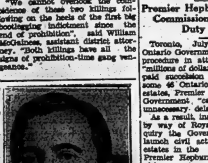
London, Ont., July 16 (CP)—Mention of officers and selection of a site of the 1938 gathering will bring to a close today the three-day convention of the Police Association of Ontario.

Delegates last night heard Premier Hepburn defend his actions in the Oshawa strike. The Premier asserted the present labor conditions in Ontario in the last two months justified his fight against the committee for industrial organization at the time of the General Motors walkout.

"Subsequent events have justified my stand," he said. "We have had strikes but they have been orderly strikes."

Late yesterday Judge Joseph Wearing, one of the featured speakers, surprised his convention with the announcement he was "trying to make a address."

"I haven't got over the effects of the last one," remarked Judge Wearing, referring to his address in Toronto June 30, when his comments concerning the Dominion government's failure to void certain Provincial legislation provoked criticism from Premier Hepburn and Arthur W. Roebuck, former Provincial Attorney.



GANGLAND 'RIDES' BELIEVED CAUSE OF TWO KILLINGS

New York July 16.—(AP)—Two murders bearing earmarks of typical gangland "rides" confronted Brooklyn Police today, within 24 hours of the biggest batch of Federal bootlegging indictments since prohibition repeal. The indictments numbered 46.

One of the victims, found early today, had been taped with Adhesive, his skull blown open, gasoline poured in and his body fired. Police said identification of the body would be difficult.

The other identified as Samuel Silverman, 28, was found yesterday in the charred ruins of an automobile, three bullet holes in his head and his body saturated with kerosene. A blonde woman reported in his company earlier was taken into custody for questioning.

"We cannot overlook the coincidence of these two killings following on the heels of the first big bootlegging indictment since the end of prohibition", said William McGoldrick, assistant district attorney. "Both killings have all the signs of prohibition-time gang vengeance."

CAN. BROKER ARRESTED

On a warrant issued by New York city police, charging grand larceny, Kenneth F. MacLaren, 30-year-old Toronto stock broker, was taken into custody in the Ontario capital and released under $10,000 bail. MacLaren is charged with theft involving $30,000.

WANTED MEN ARE KNOWN IN AREA

Police Believe Pair Moved in And Established a Hideout

Sudbury, Ont., July 16.—(CP)—Police Sergeant Fred Davidson, victim of last Sunday's shooting which resulted in one of the greatest manhunts in the north, today was described by hospital officials as showing improvement. The officer was shot seven times by a man he believed was changing license plates on a stolen car.

Police under Inspector A. R. Knight of the Provincial Force opened the hunt for Victor Gray, 36, Kirkland Lake, and Tom Porcupine, 46 of No. 1, Cabanticon, wanted for questioning. Davidson, from his hospital cot picked a picture of Gray as that of the gunman.

Inspector Knight said the wanted men were well known in the district. Numerous persons declared they know Gray and three persons told Inspector Knight they knew Porcupine.

Wanted in Ottawa

The pair moved from Toronto to North some time ago, the Inspector said. Gray is wanted in the Ontario capital on a wounding charge. The Inspector said Toronto officials said they learned the men headed north with certain plans they intended fulfilling.

"It is quite possible the men might have established a hideout, cached a supply of provision in it while waiting their plans to mature for pulling off some holdup in this district," said Inspector Knight. "We know that the men came to the Sudbury district from Noranda three days before the shooting occurred. The stolen car proves this.

Police officers, armed with high-powered rifles besides service revolvers worked in pairs on the search today. Old Tote roads in abandoned mining camps were combed in the belief the pair established a hideout, while preparing for a robbery at the Falconbridge mine.

CIVIL ACTIONS TO BE STARTED

Premier Hepburn Abandons Commission to Collect Duty Taxes

Toronto, July 16— (CP)—The Ontario Government has revised its procedure in attempts to collect "millions of dollars" in allegedly unpaid succession duty taxes from some 46 Ontario estates. In these estates, Premier Hepburn said, the Government "cannot afford any unnecessary delay."

As a result, instead of proceeding by way of Royal Commission Inquiry the Government intends to launch civil actions against the estates in the Supreme Court, Premier Hepburn made the decision on two Toronto estates, those of Robert and Jessie Cameron Laidlaw.

In the Laidlaw cases, estates counsel questioned jurisdiction of the Royal Commissioner, Mr. Justice G. F. McTaghe, and was granted permission to take a stated case to the Supreme Court for decision. Mr. Hepburn believed this would cause delay and yesterday announced he had rescinded Mr. Justice McTague's appointment.

Declaring his intention to press investigation into all the estates the succession duties department has questioned, the Premier said he would, if necessary, call a special session of the Legislature to amend succession duties legislation should it be held invalid.

COMPANY REFUSES TO MAKE WAGE INCREASES

Peterborough, Ont., July 16, (CP)—Refusal to make any wage increases today was given the striking employees of the Auburn and Bonner Worth Woollen Mills by Henry Barrett, managing director of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds at conference seeking a settlement of the strike.

Twelve employees, six from each mill, headed by Alex Townley met Henry Barrett and the managers and superintendents of every mill, in a three hour conference. According to the strikers no concessions were made on either side.

The strikers, now out 17 days, seek a wage increase and better working conditions. At a mass meeting, attended by more than 500 of the 700 persons laid off at the Mills, they decided to stay on strike.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR BRAMPTON

Million Dollars Will be Expended on Tuberculosis Sanatorium

London, Ont., July 16 (CP)—A $1,000,000 hospital will be constructed by Ontario at Brampton, northwest of Toronto, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said last night. It will be an isolation hospital for tuberculer patients from all Ontario.

Beside the new institution, the Government is studying plans to enlarge other sanatoria through the province, the Premier said. Free travelling clinics to test for tuberculosis germs will be sent out.

Legislation is expected in the near future which will compel tuberculosis sufferers to undergo treatment.

The new mental hospitals at St. Thomas and Orillia, Premier said, relieve present congestion and will not take the place of present institutions, he said.

UNNAMED MAN IS HELD IN BUFFALO

Police Say Man Left Fort Erie Cottage on Day Kassirer Killed

Fort Erie, Ont., July 16 (CP)—Search for the slayer of Edward Kassirer, Fort Erie taxi driver, became international today with the questioning of an unnamed suspect in Buffalo, Ontario Provincial Police were called to Buffalo last night to examine a man being held there.

The Buffalo prisoner is said to have been a close friend of Kassirer, found dying in a thicket near Fort Erie Monday. His skull had been smashed with what physicians said were repeated blows from a heavy, blunt weapon.

The suspect is said to have left the cottage where he was staying in Fort Erie, the day Kassirer was killed. Police declined to make any statement after questioning him.

No items has been found of the weapon described at the inquest yesterday by Dr. T. W. Conuiveney. His post examination of the dead man's head led him to believe a lead pipe was used in the beating.

REV. S. F. DIXON DIES SUDDENLY

At Time of Death Was Press Secretary of Bay of Quinte Conference

The Rev. Sioford F. Dixon, superannuated minister of the United Church of Canada, passed away at the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, July 15th.

Some time ago Mr. Dixon fell in his residence at 76 Carrollton Road, Belleville, and sustaining a fractured hip and it was as a result of this accident, that he was a patient at the hospital since April 23rd, last. His death came unexpectedly and suddenly and was a great shock to his fellow ministers and friends in this city. Throughout many parts of Ontario where Mr. Dixon had ministered the announcements of his death will bring to many friends sincere feelings of regret. He was a man of ability and of very fine character. Where he ministered during his years of active service he was successful in his work and beloved by his people. His life was devoted to doing good, and memory of him will be retained long by those who knew him and shared his friendship.

The late Rev. Sioford F. Dixon, who was in his 67th year, was born at Castleton, Ont., his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Dixon.

After many years of service in the ministry Mr. Dixon was superannuated to Milford, Ont., a little over one year ago. He was press secretary for the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, and filled that position most efficiently.

During his ministry he served at the following places: Milford, Bath, Redmersville, Odessa, Lakefield, Bawdon Circuit, Courtice, Penetanguishene and Pinna.

Surviving to mourn his passing are his widow, who prior to her marriage, was Miss Grace Waldron; two daughters, Mrs. W. G. Walker, Kirkland Lake, Ont; Mrs. Howard Broad, Oshawa, Ont; three sons, Mr. J. N. S. Dixon, Toronto; Rev. S. Clark Dixon, Toronto, and Mr. W. D. Dixon, Belleville; one brother, Mr. J. C Dixon, Warkworth, Ont. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

SEEK CAUSE OF MINE EXPLOSION

Twenty Miners Killed in Blast 212 Feet Below Surface

Sullivan, Ind., July 16 (AP)—State and Federal investigators grouped today through a fog of gloom enveloping this community for an explanation of an underground gas explosion which cost the lives of 20 coal miners.

Seared, mangled bodies of the victims were removed from the scene of the blast 212 feet below the surface of the Glendora Coal Company's Baker mine, near here.

Nine other miners were injured. Two of them may die.

One hundred and seventy-four miners escaped the force of the explosion yesterday. They organized rescue efforts and brought the injured to the surface, but fire and poisonous gases prevented them from reaching the dead.

Representatives of the Federal Bureau of Mines, the State Bureau of Mines and Mining and the Coal Operators' Association joined in an investigation of the disaster, one of the worst in Indiana's mining history.

MACHINE GUNS DOMINANT FORCE

Spanish Civil War Gives Chance to Try Out Instruments of Death

Berlin, July 16.— (CP) — The Spanish civil war has afforded an ideal opportunity for experimenting with the most modern weapons of war which might be expected to be used in future part in any future clash, says a military expert, writing in The Berliner Zeitung-setzung.

According to the writer, General Francisco Franco, Insurgent leader, can no longer hope to win the war by force of arms, as a balance has been established between both parties rendering any prizes by either side more and more impossible.

On the strength of experience gained in the Spanish War, the article says, the Soviet Military committee has recommended a particular type of light car for motorized infantry and urged replacement of a number of airplane types by speedier and better equipped craft.

The author lists the following as the most important military lessons to be learned from the Spanish embroglio.

Machine-guns retain their dominant role in all fighting, just as in the Great War.

Modern weapons, like tanks and bombing airplanes, seem to lose their terrifying effect on soldiers and civilians alike the longer war lasts.

Modern attacks do not seem to be possible without tanks.

The 37-millimetre anti-tank gun used by the Insurgents has proved an effective defensive weapon against this phase of warfare.

CHINA'S MODERNISED ARMY DEFYING JAPANESE MIGHT

Japan's armies, sweeping into Hopei province in North China are making their objective the ancient capital of Peiping and the invaders are reportedly equipped with light artillery such as that shown (at left), and with aeroplanes and tanks (at right). Troops of the Nipponese army hold the Chappel sector of Shanghai. Proof is given that modern equipment is theirs in China is massing to repel the in-vaders and Chiang Kai Shek's Nationalist armies are a more formidable force than they were when the famous 19th route army held Shanghai against the Japanese for a week. With a modern antiaircraft rifle, China is reported ready to meet the Jap. at last.

safe type now being rushed northward from Nanking to defend Hopei, are shown (at right) sweeping the skies with a searchlight, while the soldier at top is drawing a bead with a modern antiaircraft rifle. China is reported ready to meet the Jap. at last.

PRESENT VALUES OF LIFE EARNINGS

"Although the professions may seem to be very badly crowded, in the light of the incomes of unskilled labor, farming and even of skilled labor, there is no doubt that by and large the professions need many more people in them. Professional service is a type of service that people are willing to pay more for because it is scarce."

These are the words of Prof. Harold F. Clarke, head of Educational Economics at Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, who has published a survey of the professions as regards earnings during a lifetime. On the basis of income and working life span, he says it is now possible to predict how much a budding doctor, lawyer or architect is worth as an investment when he starts his profession.

The survey is of course American and it perhaps holds good in its summary in a general way for Canada as well. At least it is interesting to Canadians and to young Canadians who are considering a life work. Prof. Clarke's survey shows that the present estimated value of the future life earnings in the various occupations ranges from $108,000 for medicine to $10,400 for farm laborers.

Following is a table of the working life span and the present value of average earnings for a working lifetime in the sixteen selected occupations in the United States:

Occupation	Working Life Span	Present Value of Average Earnings For a Working Lifetime
Medicine	43	$108,000
Law	43	98,400
Dentistry	43	86,500
Engineering	43	85,300
Architecture	41	82,500
College Teaching	44	69,300
Social Work	46	51,000
Journalism	46	47,500
Ministry	44	41,000
Library Work	46	36,000
Pub. Sch. Teach.	46	29,700
Nursing	46	23,300
Skilled Trades	44	20,500
Unskilled Labor	44	15,200
Farming	41	13,500
Farm Labor	41	10,400

Dr. Clarke's inference is that people should be encouraged to go in for all the professions that have incomes above the average and to stay out of all occupations where incomes are below the average. He says that keeping very able people in routine jobs is a good way to breed great unrest and create disturbance in what was once a smooth organization.

Dr. Clarke's figures are the amount which it figured would be given when the average person enters a profession for the surrender of all his earnings.

'CRASH' PICTURES COMING

'Crash' pictures through newspapers are to be used to bring before the highway driving public of Ontario, the menace of recklessness or carelessness. Such would not be needed but for the growth of accidents on the arteries of travel across the Province. It should be easy enough to every driver on the roads to imagine to himself what the result of carelessness or misjudgment might be but somehow people won't see the thing that way. For this killing on the highway is a "thing" to be shunned as worse than any plague, for it goes on day after day, night after night.

Many a day it makes sickening reading in the newspapers to read of death upon death in motor accidents. But the newspapers in their duty to the public dare not omit this tragic aspect of the ordinary life of the people. To pass this over would be neglecting its duty to the people—to warn them that there is a menace in their midst.

Back of this slaughter on the roads seems to be a peculiar spirit which appears to accept the possibility of accident and fatal accident. It seems to be taken for granted that these accidents almost of necessity occur whereas the feeling ought to be the opposite and people should feel that an accident is something that could not happen. The spirit that sooner or later one is going to "get it" is the negation of every principle of happiness and life. It may even hide indifference and cover the mood of carelessness.

For it is essentially anti-social for one to hold so pessimistic a philosophy, because it is unnatural and fatalistic and a fatalistic mood is bound to bring a disintegration in character.

So shortly through the daily and weekly press of Ontario there will appear accident pictures. It will be the Highway Department's effort to save motorists from themselves. And the public should read them not dodging them because they are unpleasant, but reading them because they teach a lesson.

If this does not do, then other means will have to be devised to save life on the roads. It may be necessary to have schools for motorists in which the young motorist will indelibly through moving pictures or through actual street conditions have the fact borne in upon his brain and intelligence that the motorcar is an engine of death, yet it is not in itself to blame. It is the driver on the road who must face the charge not the car. Cars are today quite as perfect as they can be made and that fact puts the onus on the driver. If he has an old car and it is not in fit condition, he is again to be held to account.

INDIAN PAINT BRUSH

The Adirondacks shouldered to the sky
In their amazing glory fold on fold;
But none was lovelier than this cloth of gold.

From the dark shadows of the ancient world
They swept the valleys with their brilliant light;
Speechless I passed and dreamily was hurled
Into the ecstasies of this dazzling sight.

On windy hills the flaming gypsies shone,
And woke my heart with nature's own desires;
The tuneful river played their beauty on,
And left me gazing on their sunset fires.

The comfort of a thousand loves awoke
Down thro' the ages of immortal hours,
And startling was the voice that gently spoke
In adoration of these simple flowers.

QUITE A FEW BELLEVILLE FAMILIES

have been considering seriously increasing the value of their home properties and adding to their comfort and convenience. Every member of the family has ideas, some conflicting. However the collective ideas will simmer all summer and boil over into joint action in the fall. Looks like there would be such a rush of work in the fall that some jobs will have to wait. Better get busy now in the normally slack season on home improvement.

FISH STORIES KEEP COMING IN, one of the latest concerning an incident which occurred down the bay a bit. Belleville fisherman ran his boat to shore and left his pole at the end of the boat with the line hanging in the water. He left the boat for a few minutes and on returning found the pole missing. The disappearance of the pole and line was a mystery, but he finally decided that some denizen of the deep had seized the bait and decamped carrying the line and pole to the bottom. As the pole was an expensive one arrangements were made to drag the bottom, and considerable work of that kind was done without success. The next day the fisherman observed a large fish floating with head submerged. Close examination revealed that the fish was attached to a line. Upon being drawn up the missing pole was found attacheted to the line and the mystery was solved. If the fish had been any larger it might have taken the boat—so what's the use?

NECESSITY AND WISDOM OF HOME IMPROVEMENTS

seems to be impressing itself on folks more as the season advances. During the first two weeks in June more home improvement loans were taken out than in any other two weeks since the plan was started. New loans numbered 2,236 with a total of $879,819. The aggregate since November is 16,207 loans for $6,130,427. Ontario leads with loans for home improvement of $2,316,681 while Quebec has taken to the home improvement idea to the extent of $1,328,900.

PRONE BIGAMIST'S PAST

Conviction of George Pritz Rodiger, 35, on a bigamy charge in Winnipeg and subsequent sentence of nine years in prison has started police from one end of the Canada to the other delving into the past of this man, who is reported to have had nine wives, four of whom are dead, or vanished under mysterious circumstances. Toronto police are endeavoring to discover the fate of Mrs. Christina Mackenzie, formerly of Allandale, Ont., whom Rodiger, German by birth, married in 1935, and who reportedly vanished from her Toronto apartment a few days later. Her whereabouts have been a mystery since. Rodiger's matrimonial ventures stretch from Montreal to Vancouver and into United States, according to police and at least three of his wives are dead. He was charged with murder in New York state, but was acquitted.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop we taking a walk before supper and Skinny Martin went passed, saying, High, Benny, dont forget those 3 cents.

Benny, I hope you haven't been borrowing money again, pop said, and I said, No sir, O, you're wrong him that for a long time.

That makes it worse for Feet sake, pop said. Aren't you ashamed to look him in the face when you owe him? he said and I said, Well I try not to see him too often.

There you are, you've got a detter's conscience, that's the whole thing in a nutshell, pop said. During the world war the different countries lent each other money like billions of drunken sailors, and now they've all got detter's conscience and hardly associate with each other any more, and that's a way it is with you and that Martin boy. Uneasy hangs the pocket with a claim on it, and as a proverb of the wisdom of frends dont owe each other anything, he said.

Well then O, pop, it's just as bad to lend nobody anything as what it is to borrow something from them, because when you lend them money you're just helping them the bad habit of borrowing, I said, and pop said, That's a very profound observation and does credit to your tender years. Many a broken friendship would of remained whole if the party of the first part had not lent money to the party of the 2nd part, or vice virtue.

Well then, Jimmuny, pop, I'm going to tell Skinny Martin to never get those 2 cents, and I'm going to tell him if he asks me again I'll give him a kick in the slats for trying to make a borrower out of me, I said, and pop said, No, wait, for Feet sake dont let's get too radical, there's 3 cents to pay him off.

And he gave them to me and I took them very quickly, so scohnt of Skinny Martin being too good of a scholler for me to get radical with anyways.

As an evidence of the possibilities of aerial navigation in time of peace, the delivery of mail at Belleville yesterday may be taken as the forerunner of future competition by sky skimmers with railways and ships in transporting passengers and mail. A number of aviators from Camp Mohawk while guests at Hotel Quinte received mail here which had arrived after they left camp. The letters were tied in bundles and brought to Belleville by an aviator who circled about until directly over Hotel Quinte when he dropped the bundles of letters to his comrades waiting below. His aim was good and the mail delivery was perfect.

SURVEY FLIGHTS OF FLYING BOATS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Clipper III Alights at Botwood And Caledonia at Foynes

UNEVENTFUL CROSSINGS

Caledonia Favored by Tail Winds And Makes 179 M.P.H.

Foynes, Irish Free State, July 16 —(CP-Havas)—The huge Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia alighted at Foynes today, completing the return Transatlantic hop of its commercial survey flight to the United States.

The 18-ton ship swooped down to a graceful landing on the River Shannon at 10.32 a.m. (5.32 a.m. E.D.T.) after a 12 hour, seven minute flight from Botwood, Newfoundland. This bettered the eastward flying time of the Pan-American Clipper III by 27 minutes. The time of the Caledonia's arrival at Foynes indicated she had maintained an average speed of 179 miles an hour over the 1,930-mile run.

The Caledonia hopped off from Botwood at 5.35 p.m. E.D.T., a few hours after the Clipper III roared aloft from Foynes and sped westward on its return flight across the Atlantic.

Clipper Arrives

Botwood, Nfld., July 16.—(CP-Cable)—The Pan-American Clipper III sailed on the mirror-like waters of Botwood Harbor at 7.53 a.m. A.D.T. (3.23 A.M. E.D.T.) today after completing the return flight across the Atlantic.

Captain Harold E. Gray and his crew of five aboard the 32-ton flying boat encountered head winds on the 1,930-mile jump across the northern route, but completed the experimental test from Foynes, Ireland in 16 hours and 22 minutes.

The Clipper III made a perfect, an uneventful hop across the broad expanse of water that brought them back to the point from, which they took off 11 days ago for the other side on the first experimental flight that will lead to the establishment of a regular and safe mail service between England and Canada and the United States.

The British Flying boat was favored by tail winds and completed the west-to-east flight in 13 hours, seven minutes.

Hundreds of residents of Botwood, shipping point for a Newfoundland pulp and paper mill, turned out to welcome the Pan-American Clipper back to this side of the Atlantic.

MOTORISTS Try Courtesy

and See How Others Will Follow

WHEN NEXT you go motoring resolve to "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way and see how much more enjoyable your trip will be and how quickly other drivers will respond to your courtesy. If I could but persuade half of the motorists to "Try Courtesy" I am confident that the other half would follow suit and the world have established the greatest single factor for safe motoring—courteous driving.

Again I suggest that you "Try Courtesy" the next time you are driving. Try to refrain from "pocketing" your fellow-motorists when he gets into a traffic difficulty. Try to give him some warning of what you intend to do next whether it is to slow down, stop, change direction or overtake him. Try to give him his share of the road as an act to remove him by a "close shave." Try to remember to dip or dim your headlights when you meet him at night so that he will not be "dizzled" or drive straight on when he should take a curve. Try to remember that blind spots are danger spots—keep to your right side of the road when you come to them.

In these and the dozens of other ways, which will occur to you, I sincerely recommend that you "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way.

POSSEMEN WATCH FOR PETE TRAXLER

Escaped Texas Convicts Kidnap Wealthy Boy But Release Him

Sapulpa, Okla., July 16—(AP)—Possemen stood watch on blockaded highways today for Roy "Pete" Traxler, No. 1 bad man of the southwestern United States, believed fleeing northward after releasing the kidnapped son of a wealthy New York oil man.

The youth, 21-year-old Baird N. Markham, son of Gen. Baird Markham, an official of the American Petroleum Institute, was seized near Ada, Okla. Traxler, his left arm shattered by a bullet, and two companions, all escaped Texas convicts, took young Markham's automobile and forced him to accompany them.

Markham was released near here after eight hours, fifteen minutes during which time he said the men criss-crossed through the country, dodging a posse from which they had escaped by abandoning their own car and taking to the woods only shortly before.

Markham, a Yale student, is working for an oil company for experience during the summer.

Beddie Traxler, Markham identified a second man as Charles Chapman. Chapman was wounded in the shoulder, Markham said.

The third man, Markham said, was referred to as "Fred." Fred Tindol of Jasper, Tex., was one of the nine men, who with Traxler and Chapman, escaped from the farm amid gun fire July 3. Four of the nine were recaptured, one killed and a guard was wounded.

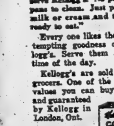
FIVE OF FAMILY DROWN IN RIVER

William Stoopnikoff, Wife And Three Children Victims



Nelson, B.C., July 16—(CP)—An entire Doukhobor family of five was drowned in the Columbia River between here and Trail, B.C., last night when their row-boat overturned.

The dead are William Stoopnikoff 36-year-old rancher, his wife and their three children, Polly, eight, William, five and Mabel, three.

The family were rowing from the shore of their Columbia River ranch to the other side of the mighty stream to pick berries when their craft overturned.

The swift river waters sucked under the three children but the parents clung to the boat while it drifted 300 yards then it disappeared under the surface. When the boat reappeared, the figures of the father and mother had disappeared.

Imperial Airways' giant flying boat Caledonia re-fuelling at Montreal for the continuation of her trial Flight from Southampton, England, to New York and return, on gasoline and oil supplied by Shell.

THE first of Imperial Airways' trans-Atlantic flying boats has come and gone—on gasoline and oil supplied by Shell. Thus is another link forged in the vast network of regularly travelled air routes which link all parts of the Empire. Imperial Airways adds another to its long list of triumphant achievements.

For all flying conditions—there is gasoline from Shell—just as gasoline supplied by Shell is at Southampton England, Foynes Ireland, Botwood Newfoundland, Montreal and New York, chosen for its utter dependability for such flying as across the Atlantic. And just as Shell has world-wide flying experience, so Shell has world-wide motoring experience which is used to make better gasoline and better motor oil for your car. With every gallon of Shell you get something you cannot see. It is the massed experience of Shell in 86 countries, sent to Shell's Canadian refinery for your benefit! CRASHING MOVIES DEPENDS ON LUCK SAYS DEANNA DURBIN

Hollywood, July 16 (AP)—Silver-voiced Deanna Durbin dispensed advice today to youngsters who would like to sing their way into fortune.

Of herself Deanna said "I was a very lucky girl."

Just now Deanna formerly of Winnipeg Man., is hiking up Arpeggios in a motion picture with Conductor Leopolde Stokowski, but it wasn't many months ago that she herself was wondering for her "crash" Hollywood. One studio finally took her under its wing but neglected to give her any roles. She went to another to make "Three Smart Girls". It was her lucky day.

As for advice:

"I think the most helpful thing I can suggest is go to a reliable voice coach and ask his honest opinion of your voice. If he tells you that you have possibilities, and you can afford to take lessons, take them.

"But as for breaking into the movies. That depends, I know, on luck."

BEAUTY REPORTED ENGAGED TO BRITISH PEER

London society circles are abuzz with report what charming blonde and blue-eyed Virginia Cherrill married Cary Grant, stalwart, (above), film star, will shortly announce her engagement to wealthy and youthful Earl of Jersey. Miss Cherrill was formerly married to Irving Mansfield.

BUTCHER KNIVES

cerned here on the two-year-old mystery of Mrs. Christina McKenzie of Allandale, Ont., one of the nine women Roediger was known to have wed.

Butcher Knives Found

Police here held a trunkful of Roediger's personal effects, including two long, keen-bladed butcher knives, found in the Vaughan Road home where he lived as George Rogers with his Allandale "wife". It was from this Toronto home the woman disappeared in 1935, a few weeks after her marriage and police were frankly working on the theory the man slain.

Reopening of an old inquiry into a skull found March 31 in a dump near the Vaughan house was ordered yesterday, but late night police said they had little hope it would prove a useful clue. They were inclined to believe the first theory regarding its finding; that it had been discarded by some medical student.

In tabloid, these were the marital episodes in Roediger's career that held police attention:

Body Found in Well

New York States records indicate his acquittal of murdering an unnamed wife in 1929 or 1930. The woman's body was found in a well.

In 1926 his first wife, Meta, died of poisoning at St. Catharines, Ont., after 22 years of married life. Two of which were spent in St. Catharines. A coroner's jury found it was unable to decide, who administered the poison.

"Marriage" with Mrs. McKenzie under the name of George Rogers at Allandale, bringing her to Toronto. Neighbours missed her two days after they moved into the Vaughan Road house. Police searched the house.

Other Marriages

June 1, 1930—Elizabeth Schmidt married Roediger and she was found dead in a bathtub at Freehold Green County, N.Y., in January, 1931. A jury said "death from causes unknown". But Roediger was arrested for bigamy and sentenced for the slain.

Martha Stander New York, married Roediger in Toronto, in 1927. They went to Brooklyn, where she left him and later, on her complaint, he was convicted of bigamy and fined.

In 1936, he married Mrs. Julius Reginald McTavish, Man., which led to his latest conviction.

Now, 21, 1936, married a Mrs. Bernard, the marriage later being annuled.

Dec. 31, 1936, married an unnamed Vancouver woman and then disappeared.

Jan. 1937, married Phillipine Strassburger, on whose farm at Stoney Flain, Alta., he was arrested.

Presentation to Popular Couple

The friends and neighbors of Carmel gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds on Tuesday to honor Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boldrick (nee Irene Reynolds) on their recent marriage. Mr. John Patterson called the meeting to order and a programme of music and readings was enjoyed. Miss Hazel Horton read the address and the bride and groom were presented with a miscellaneous shower. Mr. and Mrs. Boldrick thanked them for the lovely presents and invited all to their new home. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung. The ladies served a very delicious lunch.

Following is the address:

Corbyville, Ont., July 13, 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boldrick,

Dear Irene and Alnur:

A writer once said there are three occasions in the life of nearly every person when he is brought prominently before the public eye. You have reached the second of these occasions.

When we learned that you had decided to board the same life raft, sail the sea of matrimony together for better or for worse we felt that we should grant you some timely advice and wish you all that is great and beautiful for your future happiness upon this sea.

Those who have sailed on this sea tell us there are shoals of doubt and breakers and reefs of misunderstanding to be encountered as you continue the voyage but if the ship is sound and you have the right pilot and keep the course of love any trust which truly binds the marriage vow you can weather all the gales and the storms.

Irene you have grown up in our community and have always been an earnest and willing worker in all our church and social activities.

We greatly appreciate your generous help and kindly spirit. Your cheerful disposition has won for you many friends who will not forget you and we hope that you will continue to win many more friends in the community in which you are going.

We regret that your home will not be among us still we assure you we shall always welcome you back and include you in the circle of the friendship chain.

Arthur you are not a stranger to us and we extend to you our heartiest congratulations on your choice of a life partner.

"To Irene, we hope you will always be true,
And do all the things she tells you to do.

We hope you will bring her back once in a while
To join in our gatherings and help make us smile."

Irene we felt that it was impossible to allow this season of greetings to pass without some expression of the love and esteem we cherish for you so we ask you to accept these gifts accompanied by our wish.

CONSTIPATION CUTS DOWN YOUR ENERGY, DULLS HAPPINESS

Don't let common constipation take all the fun out of living. This condition drains your vitality and enthusiasm. It may also be the cause of dull headaches, poor appetite, sleeplessness. You feel punk.

Why endure half-alive days when you can correct constipation due to lack of "bulk" by eating a delicious cereal?

Millions of people have used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with satisfactory results. Laboratory tests prove it's safe and effective.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water. It gently cleanses the intestines. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Three times daily in severe cases. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream or in recipes. Sold by all Grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

AT THE CAPITOL

Dick Forhan in "The Cherokee Strip"

The brave days of old when Uncle Sam was throwing open free homesteads to the pioneers willing to race for them and develop them, live again in "The Cherokee Strip," the melodrama starring Dick Forhan, which opens at the Capitol on Saturday only, matinee and evening.

The choicest land went to those who claimed first, travelling by cow ponies, buckboards, covered wagons or on foot.

All this is depicted with historic accuracy. No writers' fancies were needed in plotting "The Cherokee Strip," which First National has made on a vast scale.

There are two heroines, Jane Bryan and Helen Valkis, and a number of other noted players, including Ed Cobb, Milton Kibee, David Carlyle.

Dick Forhan, the singing cowboy, is not a cattle puncher this time. He's a young (singing) lawyer who takes part in the race and loses his shingle in one of the boom towns as well as in the hearts of one or two of the local belles.

It's a Western picture, but far removed from the ordinary type and with songs by M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl—notably "My Little Buckaroo."

Leon Errol Comedy

An added attraction is a select number of short subjects are shown A Leon Errol comedy "Honeymoon Bride," also a cartoon "Gold Dust Line," a terrytoon "Birdland" and a Tom Patricola Buster Keaton comedy "Miss the Bride," complete this splendid show with evening performances at 6.15.

Ends Today

Shown for the last times today Jean Harlow in the great air drama "Hell's Angels" and the new comedy team, Polly Moran and Allison Skipworth in "Two Wise Maids," with last complete show at 8.30.

AT THE BELLE

Rudyard Kipling's Thrilling Sea Story "Captains Courageous" Comes to the Belle Screen, for Four Days Engagement

One of the great sea stories of modern literature, Rudyard Kipling's thrilling saga of the Gloucester fishermen comes to the Belle screen for a four days engagement starting tomorrow and also Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee as usual each afternoon commencing at 2.30 and evening performances at 7.00 and 9.15 p.m. with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "Captains Courageous" with Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas in the leading roles.

For the first time in his screen career Freddie Bartholomew plays a wholly American boy a wide departure from any previous role. As Harvey Cheyne he is the pampered son of a millionaire who has never known the meaning of work and worthwhile effort. Bound for Europe on a super-liner he falls overboard off the Newfoundland banks and is picked up by a fishing dory manned by fishermen. The latter portray the part of Manuel, a Portuguese fisherman. This role, the pint-sized lad that Tracy has to Add, rivals even that of the priest in "San Francisco."

The boy is taken to the fishing schooner "We're Here" captained by Lionel Barrymore as captain Disco. His tale of being a millionaire's son is attributed to the shock of having fallen overboard. He is put to work and gradually he too generation begins. The hardy honest Gloucester fisherman make a man of him. The action version follows closely the story and builds up to one of the finest human productions ever made.

Spencer Tracy, teamed with Freddie Bartholomew in "The Devil is a Sissy" and who recently played the leading role in "Love Finds Andy Hardy" which played the Belle a short time ago again appears with him in "Captains Courageous" as Dan, the Captain's son. The large supporting cast playing the schooner's crew includes Charley Grapewin, Jack Large, Oscar Apfel, Walter Kingsford, Donald Briggs and numerous others.

"Captains Courageous" is the year's greatest screen offering and truly a glorious feast in entertainment from the very beginning until the final fade-out scene.

The Belle News Flashes of interesting events gathered from every where will also feature presentation at each performance.

Tonight Only

Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea in "Internes Can't Take Money" will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time. Complete performances starting at 7.10 and 9.15 p.m. This picture is a romantic drama with plenty of action and exciting situations throughout and with the exceptionally fine short subjects in addition to the feature "Internes Can't Take Money" it is a programme of outstanding merit and well worth attending.

INAUGURATE NEW SERVICE

Rome, July 16 (C.P.-Havas) — Italian transatlantic postal air service linking Rome with the Brazilian and Argentine capitals will be inaugurated in October by Air Marshal Italo Balbo, Governor of Libya, it was announced today.

Balbo, who commanded the Italian mass flight from Italy to North America and back in 1933, will be accompanied by another pilot and a mechanic on the inaugural flight.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL AND HIS WIFE AFTER TRIAL RUN

Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England, who set a world automobile speed record of 301.13 miles an hour at Bonneville, Utah, in 1935, has turned his attention to breaking speed records in a new field. He is shown here with his wife after making a test run on Loch Lomond, Scotland, in a speedboat in which he hopes to break the Wood's record of 124.86 miles per hour.

GIRLS HOLD THEIR OWN CUP RACE WITH COUPLE OF TUBS

Not that the racing yachts "Endeavour" and "Ranger" are a couple of tubs, but just as a means of whiling away vacation time, Betty MacLean and Anne Holmes, both of Augusta, Maine, staged a cup race of their own. The genuine America's cup races between the two boats of the above-mentioned names, will commence off Newport, R.I., on July 31. Endeavour is the Britian, challenger boat owned and skippered by T. O. M. Sopwith, wealthy British sportsman and aviation magnate. Ranger, owned by Harold S. Vanderbilt is the United States' defender of the coveted yachting mug.

BISONS BACK IN FIRST DIVISION BY DOUBLE WIN

Defeat Rochester Twice as Squad Pistahns 24 Hits Over Diamond

TORONTO LOSES

Tied For Third Spot And Only Game Ahead of Syracuse

(By the Associated Press)

Back in the first division, their vaunted batting power once again hitting on all cylinders, Buffalo's defending champions were a happy lot today.

After a fruitless week in which they lost seven games and couldn't do a thing at the plate, Bisons found their slugging ability hadn't deserted them altogether.

They waded into Rochester Red Wings pitching last night and belted 24 hits over their home park to take both ends of a twi-night bill by 16-4 and 10-3.

As a result the Bisons were back in the first division today, tied with Toronto, which lost to Montreal 10-2, for third place and a half game in front of the Syracuse Chiefs, who dropped back to the second division.

Eddie Boland was the big gun of Bisons attack. He belted out two homers, his first coming with the bases loaded in the third inning to climax the Bisons' 10-run uprising in that frame and his second in the fifth with a mate on.

Ten hits were repped out by the Bisons during the second fray with honors going to catcher George Savino. George drove out a single and a homer and batted in four runs.

Toronto couldn't do much with Orip Polli or no-hit fame but the Montrealers found the offerings of Willie Meola and Yale's Ted Horton very agreeable.

The Royals with Big Bernie Cobb and Ivy Jeffries leading the attack, pounded out 14 hits. Big Bernie Frazzoni cut two doubles that drove in five runs while Jeffries got four hits to score three runs himself and send another pair home.

Newark-Jersey City and Baltimore-Syracuse tilts were rained out.

BANNED FROM TEAM

Marathon runner Clarence De Mar, pictured here with two of his children, is banned at action of A.A.U. Secretary Dan Ferris in dropping him from the United States track team that will compete in the Pan-American games at Dallas, Texas. The 49-year-old athlete, prize fighter, teacher and lawyer was banned from participation in the game because he allegedly had demanded "more than expenses" for the trip to Texas.

WILLIE LAMB IN TOP SPOT WITH 67

Score Included 15 Pars And Three Birdies in First Round

Ancaster, Ont., July 16 (CP) Willie Lamb, Lambton Club professional, Toronto, was assured of a large gallery today as he started the second day of the Ontario Open Golf Championship favourite to win the trophy he captured in 1936. Lamb ended the first 18-hole round yesterday with a 67, two strokes better than the three pros in second place. His score included 15 pars and three birdies in a sensational round.

Bill McWilliams, Toronto St. Andrew's; Dave Noble, Simcoe; and Bobby Aiston, Thaulter, Ottawa, each posted 69 over the west windswept course. The four leaders had each beaten the 70 par.

Jack Nash, London, was leading amateur with 71. Rose (Sandy) Somerville, London, whose Ontario amateur title this year gives him a place on the Ontario team for the Willingdon Cup matches, carded a 74.

Prize money for the tourney was increased this year. The winner will receive $300 instead of the $100 awarded last year. second prize has also been doubled from $75 to $150; third prize, $50; fourth prize, $25; and five prizes of $10 each. Three non-cash prizes will be given the leading amateurs.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Lefty Gomez, Yankees—Allowed five hits and fanned eight in six-inning pitching to whip Tigers.

Tex Carleton, Cubs— Beat Reds 5-1 with eight hits.

Earle Brucker and George Caster, Athletics—Former drove in all A's runs, Caster pitched four-hit ball in 3-1 victory over White Sox.

Billy Knickerbocker, Browns—Hit three doubles, scored three runs in 4-2 win over Red Sox.

Hal Trosky, Indians—Hit homer and single and drove in two runs in 6-3 victory over Senators.

Yankees Stretch Win Streak By Clubbing Detroit Hurling; Chicago Cubs Regain Top Spot

New York Team Appear Headed For New Set of Records

GIANTS IDLE

Castor And Brucker of A's Whole Show as Team Wins

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Yanks are coming so fast they're even ahead of themselves.

The New York slaughter squad, specialists in making automatic rubbish out of first-rate pitching talent, is not only on the way to another walk to a pennant, but again years headed for a bigger and better year than the record-breaker of 1936.

When they finished re-writing the record books last autumn, it was generally agreed that the maximum in home batting had been reached for some time to come—that another stretch of years would pass before the records would have another such general going over. But it seems now that Ruppert's crew was only warming up.

For taking the season's figures to date, and throwing in a few "angles" that don't appear on the surface, Getting Organized has set to make more of a chopping block than a team of American League competition.

That fact stood out today as the Yanks completed one on a 7 1-2 game lead, while over in the National League Chicago Cubs were once again at the head of the parade by virtue of a 5-1 thumping of Boston Bees during yesterday's program—or that part which wasn't washed out.

Longest Winning Streak

Every man in the lineup climbed aboard Detroit pitching yesterday as the Yanks scored another of their 13-6 victory over the Tigers, thereby stretching their undefeated streak to ten games—nine wins and one tie — their longest in four years.

The Cubs, meantime, after spending a day in second place in the National League, went out in front again as Tex Carleton re-mastered his first love, the Bees, in the only senior circuit contest that escaped the weather. The Giants, through enforced idleness, dropped back to second.

Except for the Yankees and Cleveland Indians, who trounced Washington's Senators, 11-4, the Americans posted his 19th homer, American League favorites found the going rough.

The sky-rocketing Boston Red Sox had an edge for five innings, but St. Louis Browns put on a three-run rally in the sixth to come through with a 5-3 decision.

A couple of youngsters, George Caster and Earle Brucker, combined to give the Athletics a 2-1 win over the White Sox, thus ending a string of 16 games in which the Philadelphians had failed to break into the victory column. Caster handcuffed the league champs with four hits, while Brucker belted in both of the A's runs.

Kingston Ponies are holding a half game lead in the standing as the teams enter the second half of the schedule. They have taken four straight from Peterborough, four out of five from Napanee, and three one out of four from Oshawa. Their front-running position is clearly at the expense of the weaker teams.

The Peterborough line hovers over Napanee. On Wednesday night Littlelock squad made it four in a row from the Oilsbards and at the same time made their play-off berth a little more secure. They meet them in Peterborough tomorrow.

Jack Chief Williams' mound days appear to be numbered. He only has one win in five games that he has started, but effectively relieved in saving awed two of them for the ponies. However, Jack has been one of the best left handers that ever greeed a C.O.B.L. diamond, and when he made his bow with Belleville about 17 years ago following his return from overseas, he was touted heralded as the finest pitching sensation of the province. He tied the mound against Napanee, Oshawa, Spring and Hillcrests' Cannon-Ball Scott in playoff Tuesday that were real classics.

Vernie Bishop, young pitcher with Napanee last year, whose throwing put them in a playoff position and whose transfer to Welland was refused by the O.B.A.A. this year, is billed to pitch for that senior team on Monday next against the All star team in a benefit game.

Oshawa can take over first place with a win over Ponies at the Motor City tomorrow.

Some run by Johnny Goodfellow on Wednesday, saved Kingston from a shutout. It was one of the three hits allowed by Biddle.

TWO JOCKEYS SCORE DOUBLES

(By the Canadian Press)

Jockeys Allaire and Jos. Hamiland each scored double wins on Fort Erie's racing card yesterday. Hamiland rides the Cosgrave stable's favored jack Patches home in the featured Buffalo Handicap.

Patches came from well back to overtake Movieman after Samson had set the pace nearly all the way. Hamiland added a win in the end and finished out of the money. Storm Maker, second to Patches, was placed behind Movieman.

It was a good day for the forebetors, as there was not a single winner all around. Aimers' second winner, Bunty Lawless, paid the day's best price in the third race, but it was little better than four-to-one. Bunty Lawless performed great in the fourth three easy winners.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 16 (AP)—A certain big league club has 14 cats on Rabbit Maranville of Montreal Royals for manager . . . They guessed.....The Yankee winning streak of nine straight is the richest since 1879 when the club won nine in a row.....Hope the report that Mickey Cochrane isn't getting well quite as fast as the doctors hoped is all wet.

Mule Haas of the White Sox is one of the world's worst base stealers.....His average over a nine-year stretch is one per season.....Reason Pacific Coast League fans aren't bowling at Al Schacht's capers is that Al demanded a $7,500 guarantee for eight appearances.....Tommy Loughran (who fought Tommy Farr) says if Joe Louis is a hurry to get away from there the night he fights the Englishman it won't go a round.

Old Babe Herman is having one "of" a time hitting .300 for Toledo in the American Association.....Dr. Mal Stevens, New York U. football coach, says you'll see more forward passing next season than ever before.....Paul Dean's arm still gives the Cardinals fits.

They're about run out of ideas on how to headoff the Newark Bears in the International League .....Jack Ogden, Baltimore business manager, put a black cat in the Bears' dressing room, but the hex didn't pan out.....Bill Cotton didn't pan out.....Bill Cotton performed a curcousins before a shot had been played that he would take care of the Americana single handed.....and did he!

PERTH COMBINES PUT ON PRESSURE

Close Six-Game Gap Between Selves and Leading Glovers

(By The Canadian Press)

Perth-Cornwall Blues are putting on the pressure in an effort to close out the six-game gap separating them from the League-leading Gloversville Glovers.

Perth-Cornwall took a 9-7 decision from Brooklyn Pirates yesterday while Ogdensburg Colts set back the second place Glovers 6-1.

Blaons pushed across two runs in the tenth inning to break a 7-7 deadlock and then added two more runs behind in the ninth to knot the count. A single and two successive doubles in the first part of the extra frame put Perth in the lead for the two-homed team as they held Pirates scoreless in the last.

Duke Farrington's wildness, on the mound, paved the way for single and fourth innings, including an error, two walks, and a wild pitch gave Colts their two runs. Valiles-Dirdiatis poled out a 365 foot homer to account for the other run. This defeat stopped Glovers winning streak at six and it was also their 13th loss of the season.

Smith's Falls Beavers rapped Ottawa Senators pitchers, Phelan and Carr for 18 wallops to hand the latter their fifth defeat. Shellacking Beavers coasted to victory led by the batting artistry of Bill Hickman with a double and two singles and A. Smith with four for five while Gerry Dorosh hit a two bagger and a pair of singles. Braves threatened until the last half of the sixth when Beavers drove five runs across to put the game on ice.

Today's games: Rome at Ottawa; Ogdensburg at Cornwall (night game) and Gloversville at Smith's Falls.

Just where the heavyweight boxing situation is leading leads one to just wonder who's who and why. Apparently contracts today mean little to parties concerned, as two important breaches of contract have been made with no great amount of adoo. Braddock walked out on his contract for a return with Schmeling, as more recently did Tommy Farr. And both did the skipping act for the same purpose, to meet Joe Louis. There are those who firmly believe the New York interests, who held Braddock's contract for a fight with Schmeling last month, were amply rewarded by the Chicago promoters, who staged the Braddock-Louis scrap. As a matter of fact it would not surprise many to learn that the New York interests were behind the scenes in the Chicago fight, that left Schmeling holding the bag.

A couple of days ago, Mike Jacobs and his crowd, who have signed Tommy Farr, the British Empire champion, to meet Joe Louis originally in September, have advanced the date of this bout to late in August, presumably in order to stage a return bout between the winner of the Farr-Louis go and Schmeling along the latter part of September, just prior to the World's Series. Of course there is no doubt but the paramount reason for giving Schmeling the run-around is due to the fact all concerned are satisfied the Black Uhlan fell well behind in the matter lifting the heavyweight crown and then high-tailing it for Germany, thumbing his nose at all concerned and saying "come and get it." It is a recognized fact that Schmeling was promised the Athletic Commissioner Hitler position of Germany if he won the heavyweight title, which perhaps is why he is being given the "bird".

In viewing the decision of Farr relative to his present move, nameplate's go the scene United States bound to meet Louis on Aug. 26th, the British Boxing Board of Control more recently denied they recognized Max Schmeling as heavyweight champion of the world, and they did say they considered the heavyweight title was following Braddock's run-out powder taken from the active schedule of Jim Braddock. The British boxing moguls go so far as to say they will not even recognize Farr as the lightweight champion of the world even if he beats Louis.

The Oshawa sport scribe says we are warming up to the Belleville Rovers these days because they are in second place in the Central Lacrosse League standing. The most ridiculous part of this billion is the fact the Rovers have always been in second position since they played their initial game of the current lacrosse season. Of course the fact for both the Rovers and the Oshawa 222's will be tonight in the Trenton arena when second position in the league is really at stake with both these squads being at full strength for the tussle. We hope the Motor City scribe is not too busy to accompany the "labourites", and turn out in uniform, even though he is much too modest regarding his own lacrosse accomplishments. Yes, mister fan, the Oshawa scribe is a valued member of the Oshawa lacrosse squad.

Did you know that every team in the South Hastings League fear the Kiwanis Juniors more than any other club in the loop? This news especially goes for Skipper George Sherry's league leading Cannifton "Sluggers", who meet the Juniors at the Trojan Grounds this evening. "We can walloy every other team in the league and score runs running into the double column, but if we squeeze out a one run victory over your squad, we consider ourselves lucky. Why is it?" asked the Sluggers' ace moundsman, Erwin Smith, of the Manager Twin Woodley today. "Well, it's like this; we've got the best fielding club in the league, at the new league will prove. We also have the best pitching staff in the loop, but our kids haven't started to get their eye on the intermediate baseball pill as yet in the league. Once they do you fellows won't know which end of a bat they're pitched to," answered

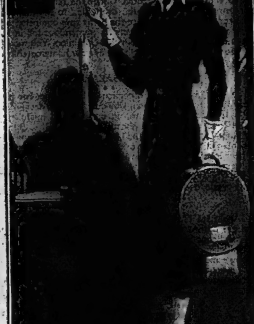
CHAPTER V.



Before she returned to the living room, Daphne slipped into the bedroom. She had once told Anna that she couldn't live in a one-room apartment unless she had to have a bedroom for running away purposes. She had intended to tidy herself up but her real reason now was to give herself a few minutes of adjustment before she returned to this new and unexpected visitor.

She looked around at the room that was no longer hers alone. Jennifer's bags had been dropped on her bed, crumpling her spring of the silk cover. Jennifer's pocketbook spilled its contents over Daphne's dressing table, her open-ed powder box making a wide and dusty ring.

Daphne picked up a gold eyebrow pencil and experimented on her own brows which did not need it. Then she swept everything up neatly, removed the bags from the bed and stripped off her soiled frock.

She selected another from her closet that contained most tailored shirtwaist frocks, tailored suits, two or three simple evening gowns, sensible shoes and one dressing hats in various colors.

When she was cool and fresh again she went back to the living room through the kitchen and was called to Tuck. "Give me a hand with the tray."

It was Jennifer. Not the Jennifer of the pigtail! This was a young sophisticate with golden hair. Jennifer with every point of beauty emphasized by artful make-up.

Tuck placed the big tray with its silver cargo on the coffee table beside Jimmier.

"Ta!"

Jennifer looked up, sniffed. "Bacon and she had, her nose wrinkled haughtily as it had when she was a little child. "How quaint! No cocktails, really?"

She looked, Daphne thought, exactly 10 years old instead of her true age while, except that a 16-year-old would never have such cleverly mascaraed lashes.

"On occasions," she answered, "but this isn't one of them. I think you'll find the tea refreshing, the sandwiches and cake the best Maggie has to offer, which is excellent."

She had meant to say it easily and was piqued to find that a nervous, anxious note flavored her high voice. She didn't want Jennifer to think she was a quaint. After all, there were only six years between them.

Under the circumstances, we'll make the most of it," Jennifer said cheerfully. "I'm so hungry. She passed a plate of sandwiches to Tuck and did very well by them herself. Daphne noted in grateful silence.

Daphne, studying Jennifer, poured tea and tried to assort her emotions.

X X X

She didn't know whether she was pleased with Jennifer's poise or annoyed with her lack of consideration. She didn't know whether she was glad that Jennifer was growing up or sorry that she was no longer a child, but she did know that she recognized beauty—greater, than she had expected—ripening in Jennifer.

Jennifer had chic. Daphne, who had pictured her in a school uniform, was not prepared for Jennifer's chic. Instinctively she eyed Jennifer, recognizing the line that accented her delicate curves, her slim waist, her long line from hip to toe; recognizing, moreover, Jennifer's ability for making the most of these.

Daphne looked down at her own simple tailored frock and was a little surprised to find that her own figure compared favorably with Jennifer's. The knowledge did not lighten the feeling, however, that she was the older sibling and the chaperon.

"What do you think of our diner?" Daphne getting herself promoted to an executive job?" Tuck asked Jennifer.

Daphne liked him rather more than usual for the way he put it.

Sometimes—very few times—Daphne permitted herself the luxury of romantic conjectures about Tuck Ainsley. She knew him for exactly what he was. But she was a girl and he was an attractive man who had long protested his devotion to her. Tuck, who'd been a crew man at college, who'd spent 10 years in all his 36 years, who followed the races and from a man in a long time. Have you tried analyzing the thing?"

"No. I'm not much given to self-analysis."

"Maybe that's what you need. It seems to me there are lots of things you need. Want to hear them?"

Daphne tilted her glass upward and nodded.

"Well, one thing you need is a new and exciting beau. The old ones that you have are not enough."

"Had it the word. My beaus are all coming around to see Jennifer now."

"Really?" Anne asked, a bit surprised. "How about Tuck? Strange as it seems to all of us, it appears that Tuck really has a heart and he seems to have given it to you."

"I don't take Tuck seriously, Anne. Maybe that's why he likes me. I can't see any other reason. I'm not the type you'd expect Tuck would care for, am I?"

"Why not?" Anne asked, reasonably.

Daphne twirled her glass by its slender stem. "Oh, I mean that I'm sort of mouselike and you'd expect Tuck to demand the gorgeous type. Jennifer is the gorgeous type."

"Phooey," Anne said, indignantly. "You'd be if you wore different types of clothes. You happen to wear simple things that don't draw attention to your good points. Oh, you've got them or you wouldn't have dozens of beaus hanging around all the time. Maybe, on second thought, it might be a good idea for you to splurge on a new outfit. Something you really can't afford. It's been known to help."

X X X

"It would be nothing new to me to buy clothes I can't afford," Anne Cockerell. With all the clothes Jennifer has, she felt the urge to had to get some new things when she went to work in Wall Street." She hurried on. "Of course, she's going to pay for them later. She's getting $25 a week and when she gets clear, it's going to help."

"Did you happen to tell Jennifer that you wanted to get a new evening dress for the party in New Haven after the game?"

"Yes, but she said she was absorbed my black lace and she thought it would be best with some new flowers."

"Oh, she did, did she?" repeated Anne with asperity. "That's darn generous of her! Look here, Daphne Brett, I know what's the matter with you. In a word of three syllables, it's Jennifer! Good that you were going to break out in lavender and old lace. It haven't seen you with that revitrified look since the day you first described that Smith person to me."

X X X

"You will persist in remembering that, won't you? He's leaving the Jennifer was a dream in blue as she "I'm going to get a job in Wall Street when I'll meet lots of millio naires. I'm going to marry one," she said to Daphne.

heavens, girl, can't you see why you are depressed?"

Daphne summoned all the dignity she could muster. "No, it isn't. Jennifer, whatever you may think. I understand Jennifer and she doesn't bother me the way she bothers you, Anne."

"Permit me to point out this to you: When Jennifer's around you're a smoothie, capable of handling all comers. With Jennifer around, you do a shrinking violet act and take your cues from her. Jennifer is a personality girl, terrifically impressed with her own self —and why not? It's all new to her. She's just discovered what she is. She loves the spotlight and she hasn't looked beyond her own mirror to see what's going on around her, so she doesn't realize a right to that spotlight. She's taking your money, your beaus and undoubtedly everything you have, and will do so until she gets some grown-up sense or until you apply a firm hand. When she wakes up, she'll see that she has real competition in a girl like you. You're both built on the same but different ways."

"Thanks, Anne. Maybe you're right. I'm not used to having anyone as young as Jennifer around me. I didn't realize six years made so much difference in age." She changed the subject, speaking with animation. "Do, you know, I believe I'll get huge red poppies for that black evening gown some in my hair."

Anne saw Daphne's features light up. "Atta girl! I'm glad to see you snap into it. I was afraid

Belleville Citizens Borrowed Over Twelve Thousand Dollars For Home Improvements Up to the First of June

As Much More Spent From Private Funds—Urge For Home Improvement is Becoming Epidemic, Providing Employment for Many Workers — Home Improvement Plan is Getting Into its Stride And Big Things Are Looked For in The Near Future

Home improvements loans in cities and towns of Canada with population of over 5,000 numbered 9,388 and amounted to $3,678,427.10 at the end of May for all Canada, it was announced by the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, acting Minister of Finance. This was an increase of 1,361 loans amounting to $527,045.26 over the figures up to May 15th. In cities with population of 40,000 and over, loans up to May 31st numbered 5,290 amounting to $2,095,682.68. In the classification between 20,000 and 40,000 there were 1,105 loans totalling $433,542.65. Cities and towns between 10,000 and 20,000 accounted for 1,426 loans worth $576,292.23. Loans in towns ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 population numbered 1,567 and amounted to $572,909.54.

In the cities and towns of Canada operating under the loan, thirty-three in number, Belleville is on the list with forty-one loans amounting to $12,043.26. New Westminster tops the list with 136 loans which amount to $40,483.93.

Peterborough has a loan total of ninety-seven which accounts for $26,533.06; Oshawa has 102 loans out worth $24,442.51; twelve loans have been granted to Cobourg and district residents amounting to $4,263.36, while Lindsay has accommodated 28 borrowers with loans amounting to $12,435.86.

Timmins, Ont., in the Porcupine gold mining area, has shown a remarkable reaction to the Home Improvement Plan, with its residents borrowing $54,332.77, in 76 loans to beautify homes and building in this enterprising northern town.

Many Men Put to Work On Home Improvements

Belleville Responds to Home Improvement Urge—Four Trades Benefit on One Job—Duplex Houses Popular—Modern Bathrooms in Demand— H. I. P. Makes Many Improvements on Farms—H. J. P. Urge Brings Out Private Funds —Belleville Bankers Report Increasing Demand for H.I.P. Loans.

While the wide-sweeping possibilities of the Home Improvement Plan, as set down by the National Employment Commission of Canada, has met with a splendid response on the part of the general public of this province, the avenues of benefit to be derived from the plan have scarcely been touched. Such is the consensus of opinion of a number of business and tradesmen of Belleville.

Designed primarily to inaugurate a restoration of building activity and consequently a return to prosperity, the plan has met with the universal acclaim of a large number of residents of Belleville and farmers of the surrounding rural districts.

Locally, men in close touch with the H. I. P. activities, state the plan is enjoying universal appeal, and is opening up to people of limited means an avenue to obtain funds which they could not get from any other source over the length of time granted them under the plan.

Covering a wide scope of activity, the reaction of the local public has resulted in a stimulation of building and a pronounced increase in the actual workings of many of the trades.

FOUR BELLEVILLE TRADES BENEFITED

Evidence of this is seen in the instance of one resident who changed his dwelling into a duplex apartment. Four different trades, carpenter, plumber, painter and electrician benefited directly from this single loan while supply firms also noted an increase in business.

The general urge on the part of the borrowing public, however, is to enlarge their places of residence. Many have not only done this but have entirely remodelled their homes along a "duplex" system whereby they not only derive sufficient revenue to pay their indebtedness but assure themselves of a definite income in the future.

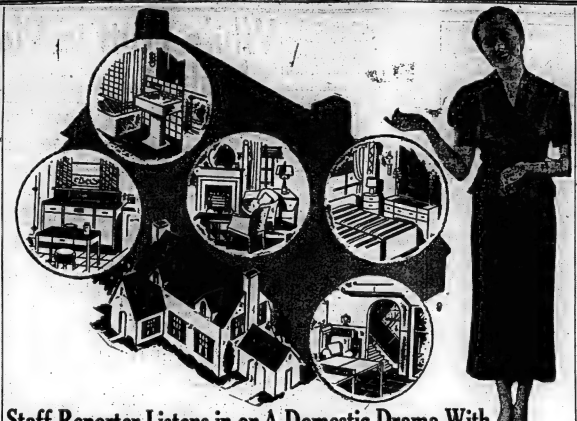
MODERN BATHROOMS INSTALLED

Another noticeable feature of the people taking advantage of the plan, is the number who have at last fulfilled a long-felt desire to instal modern bathrooms and sanitary plumbing.

FARM IMPROVEMENTS MADE POSSIBLE

Many rural homes and buildings have benefited greatly from the use of money secured under the plan. Farmers realising the generous and the easy payments have taken advantage of the new system and have remodelled and beautified their homes, installed electricity, made much needed additions to house and buildings, erected new barns and machine-sheds and in some cases where the proper facilities have been available, installed bathrooms. Many a rural home and barn sadly in need of repair have received a new lease of life through the medium of this plan. New shingles and siding have given decrepit looking barns a new appearance. Coats of paint and repairs have caused many a family homestead to reinstate itself once again as the family pride.

PRIVATE FUNDS BROUGHT OUT



.....An indirect result of the plan, and one which perhaps was not foreseen by its originators, has been the expenditure of the private funds of individuals in the remodelling and beautifying of their homes and buildings which in all probability would not have occurred had not the advantages and feasibility of the plan been exemplified to the individual. Details of the plan and the easy financial arrangements opened up a new vista which had hitherto been closed either by neglect or procrastination. The resulting beneficial effects to all concerned with perhaps an earnest desire to help bring the long-delayed prosperity prompted people in a number of cases in Belleville and throughout the district to utilize the funds for the beautification of their homes. This in turn has added to the stimulation to business, building and the trades concerned.

SEE YOUR BANKER

On the other hand, as one official puts it, the plan has brought to home owners who have neglected their property through lack of immediate funds, or limited means, the opportunity to fulfill a long felt want in the securing of funds through their banker which otherwise they would be unable to obtain.

But as has been previously stated, the surface has not yet been scratched. There are plenty of homes in Belleville yet which could be converted from a dilapidated dwelling into a home of beauty with a little effort.

Help Prosperity.
See your banker. &

Staff Reporter Listens in on A Domestic Drama With The Wife in Leading Role

Not Just a Case of Keeping Up With the Smiths But One of Utilizing Opportunities—She Knew What She Wanted and How to Get It—Other Women Can Do Likewise

The attractive young matron glanced at her husband seated at the opposite side of the breakfast table reading the morning newspaper.

Deeply ensconced in the sport pages he failed to notice the look of worry on the pretty face of his wife.

Finally his wife could stand it no longer. "Jack," she said, "there is something I have been waiting to tell you for some time."

"Huh," yes, Mary, what is it?"

"I am really serious about this, Jack..... I wish you would pay attention to what I am going to say."

"All right, little woman, let's have it," smiled her spouse, placing his paper on the table.

His wife arose from her chair and crossed the room to where he was sitting. "Jack," she said, "what I am going to say is about our home..... Can't something be done about it. It is falling into a bad state of repair. The paint is beginning to peel off it, the roof needs fixing and there are a lot of things to be done to it. Our relatives will be here soon on vacation and I am actually ashamed to ask them here when the house is in such a condition."

Her husband shook his head. "I am sorry, Mary, but there isn't much we can do about it. I know it is badly in need of repair, but I am not a millionaire, and the salary I am getting will not permit of any repairs this year. You know as well as I do that it is almost impossible to obtain long terms of credit with the trades and building firms, and I cannot go into debt any further. We are now paying instalments on a lot of things and I cannot see my way clear to do it just now."

"What I can't understand is how the Smiths across the way can afford to fix their homes up the way they are doing," said Mary. "I know for a fact that he doesn't get any more salary than you, yet look at the improvements he is putting on the house."

"I don't know either," returned her husband. "He is certainly making his home look fine."

The next morning a shining-faced wife greeted her husband. "Jack," she smiled..... "I have found out the secret of the Smith's apparent prosperity. It isn't prosperity at all. Do you know what can be done? You can go to your banker, and under this new Home Improvement Plan borrow amounts up to $2,000, to improve, modernize and beautify your home. Mrs. Smith told me all about it yesterday at the Bridge Club," she continued excitedly.

"Is that right. How do you pay it back?" asked friend hubby.

"Oh, that is the easy part of it. You can get time up to three years in which to pay back your loan, in monthly instalments," his wife said. "Oh, Jack, wont' you please go down and see the banker about it. We can pay the loan back every month and we won't miss it."

"All right, little woman I'll see what can be done."

The next few weeks saw the little home the centre of a hive of activity. Workmen, painters, carpenters, and plumbers went into action, remodelling and beautifying, and installing a modern bathroom.

Today the young housewife views with pride the brand new, shiny appearance of her home. No more does she feel ashamed to invite her relatives for the week-end. It all came about through the easy terms and facilities of the Home Improvement Plan. Not only did she have the satisfaction of seeing her home beautified but she also felt the glow of pride as she realized she had by her efforts stimulated business and employment.

"I don't know what can be done about it," he confided to his neighbor one day. "My father and grandfather would turn over in their graves if they could but see the present condition of the house and buildings. Then I promised my wife a bathroom and that is far from becoming a reality. To tell you the truth, Brown, I can't afford it. Practically all the income revenue is eaten up in taxes and interest on the mortgage. I am afraid to ask my banker to loan me the money as I know I cannot pay it back in the time given me. I guess I must let things slide, and sit down and wait for something to turn up."

FARMER BROWN TO THE RESCUE

A week or so later, Farmer Brown drove into his neighbor's yard. "Listen, Jones," he said, "we are thinking of going our place over the week-end and he told us something which I figured would interest you mightily. He tells me that the Government has gotten out what they call a Home Improvement Plan, under which folks can borrow money to modernize and beautify their homes and buildings."

"What good would that do me?" asked Jones, "that loan is likely for the city folks who have a guaranteed income coming in all the time. It's easy for them to do it."

"No," returned his friend, "the wife's brother told us as how farmers can borrow money under the plan too. And mind you you can get as high as two thousand dollars and have three years in which to pay it back."

Farmer Jones' eyes brightened. "Do you suppose there is something in that?" he asked. "Let's get in the car and run over to town and find out what is what."

BANG-UP CREDIT AT THE BANK

And Farmer Jones was not disappointed. Arriving at the bank he was graciously received by his business friend and the many advantageous points of the Home Improvement Plan were carefully explained to him.

"It will be a pleasure for us to loan money to men of your standing," the banker told him. "You can have three years in which to pay this money back. There are no unusual strings attached to this method of loaning money. It is purely a business transaction."

Today the Jones buildings again gleam with newly-applied coats of paint. A modern up-to-date milkhouse has taken the place of the dilapidated shed which served for this purpose previously. The red of the barns shows in vivid contrast to the gleaming white of the house.

"MA" JONES PLEASED AS PUNCH

Inside Mrs. Jones beams her pleasure and pride as she shows her friends her newly-appointed bathroom. "I have wanted it for so long and thanks to the Home Improvement Plan we have it at last. Plan my dreams of having such a thing have at last come true."

"And mind you," she confided to a neighbor, "we not only improved and beautified our home and buildings, but we stimulated business and trades. Why we had carpenters, painters, plumbers and others here for quite a while. It certainly made things pick up for them."

"Oh, yes," she continued, "we can pay this back in three years. You see it can so be arranged that we farmers can pay the loan back in seasonal instalments, instead of a monthly basis as the city folks do. It was certainly a blessing to us."

The Awakening of Farmer Jones

Modern Sketches by Box — (Not Dickensonian)

Farmer Jones was in trouble. Not the kind that calls for action on the part of the law, but the sort of mental sickness that at times drags one down to the lowest level of despair. Yet on the surface he had nothing to worry about. Crops were good, or at least the prospects were the best evidenced in a number of years. The stock was sleek and fat. Milch cows were giving yields far in excess of former years. Prices were showing a definite upward trend. Yet Farmer Jones was in trouble.

His sense of pride was hurt. He came from a family which for generations had been noted for their innate sense of pride in the care and cleanliness of their buildings. The bright red of the Jones barns and the white of the Jones house had long been a landmark of this particular locality.

DOWN AT HEELS

But of late years this had changed. The former clean appearance of the buildings had disappeared. Ugly patches of gray were showing through the dull red of the barns. Paint was peeling off in many places. The white of the house and other buildings had changed to a dirty grey color. The Jones dream of a brand new cement milk house and stand was far from realization.

YOUR HOME

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

Is your home safe?

Every home owner in Canada wants comfort, convenience and beauty in the home. Practically every home owner would be astonished and incredulous if informed that there is an essential of even greater importance which he or his neighbor IS NEGLECTING OR FORGETTING. They are simply taking it for granted.

That essential is SAFETY. Above everything, your home must be safe. One of the great virtues of the Home Improvement Plan is that it can help you to make it so.

The importance and real value of home repairs and improvement has been drawn to the attention of Canadians from almost every angle. The exceptional opportunity to make such repairs and improvements opened up by the Home Improvement Plan, has been stressed. Numerous reasons, and excellent reasons, for seizing this opportunity have been offered.

SAFETY

But until now no great emphasis has been laid on what is certainly one of the most, if not the most, urgent reason for home survey, and if necessary, home repair and improvement. This reason is summarized in the single word "Safety".

DO YOU KNOW?

Never before has the average citizen enjoyed a better opportunity to obtain improvements to his home which will reduce or eliminate fire hazards. Under the terms of the Home Improvement Plan, funds are available, to the home owner which can be utilized to make the home safe against one menace which year after year exacts its tremendous toll in human lives and material wealth from this Dominion. You may think that there is little or no possibility of your home catching fire. But do you know?

ELECTRIC HAZARDS

It is well known that a portion of losses from fire may be traced to faulty construction. Obvious faults of design, inadequately protected electric wiring and kindred mistakes contribute their share to this ghastly annual bonfire. But there is another factor which should be emphasized. It is the human element. People frequently ask their edectric wiring to carry a higher load of current than it should. If the cord connecting the lamp or radio with the outlet is not long enough, they extend it. They may or may not do it properly. If not, it, as well as the overloaded wiring, is a fire hazard.

GAS HAZARDS

Again, to illustrate, in some kitchens where coal and wood are burned the stove-pipe leads to a fire hazard chimney, perchance balanced uncertainly on a wooden bracket. Or if the fuel for cooking is gas, the pipe joints, and burners in the stove may not have been checked for years. Chimneys may have never been cleaned or cleaned so rarely that they are a source of danger. Your home may be beautiful and comfortable, but is it safe? And, if not, shouldn't it be made so?

INSPECTION A NECESSITY

Where does the Home Improvement Plan come into this picture? Well, in the first place, and on the proven principle that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure", why not have a competent electrical contractor go over your wiring and general installations? Tell him all about the apparatus you use — stove, heaters, lights, iron, toaster, etc. This will enable him to estimate the load you are carrying. If he suggests changes — the Home Improvement Plan stands ready to assist you in making them.

If you burn gas or coal, a similar inspection followed by necessary repairs and improvements, is in order. Your entire heating plant, including the chimney, should be checked over, and Summer is a good time to do it. Faulty chimneys have caused a lot of fires. And remember, if your contractor tells you repairs or improvements should be made, it is no solution to shut your eyes and trust to luck. The real solution, in many cases, is the Home Improvement Plan.

FIREPROOF WITH INSULATION

Insulation is a real help. Homes can be fire-proofed, or partially so at least, by the use of fire-proof insulating materials and shingles. If you look into the matter you will find that many, very many fires start in attics, or in that unfinished wooden loft at the top of the house which no one visits, unless necessity drives them to it. They start, no one knows why often, but a fire in a dry attic means trouble, unless the attic is fire-proofed.

Fire sometimes starts in oily rags, or among piles of papers. A fire-proof storage closet for oil mops and such things is safety equipment. Installation of fire-resisting materials around or over the furnace eliminates another possible source of danger.

CHECK FOR FIRE HAZARDS TODAY

Check your home for fire hazards. Do it today. No truer maxim was ever written than "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And remember, if you find work which must be done, do it. The Home Improvement Plan can help you.

Mysterious Miss Mimn

By BETTY ARBOTT
McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

From behind the plate glass window upon which home is gilded in letters a foot high the names of "Clay and Rand, Attorneys-at-Law" the junior partner watched the promenade of what he termed "a bunch." It was a full hour after noon that the vision had appeared.

In the office time he recalled things always happened at the tiring round.

Tom Rand watched a flimy blue scarf wave mockingly as it disappeared behind the shrubbery in the little park opposite. With a courteous glance at the senior partner buried in the "Whereas's" of a legal document, Tom threw away seven-eighths of a perfectly good cigarette and slid into his coat.

As the lawyer who had unwittingly hired him thither came around a bend in the gravel walk, Rand hastily stumbled over the stooping form of a young man evidently engaged in search of something.

"Oh!"

"Pardon," said the young man, straightening. "Guess I can't find it."

"Too bad," she murmured, sympathetically.

"Would you mind if I walked along with you a little way? Might find it you know—if not."

"I don't mind." Then she added, with a sidelong glance: "You might find it—but I doubt it."

Other skirmishes came and went and the pleasant ones found Tom and his mystery girl in the park. She would not allow him to escort her home, nor did she give him any clue to her surroundings.

One of the green and gold days he became bold and asked her name.

"Miss Mimn," came the answer, musically, from behind the veil of lace.

Further emboldened, Tom requested, in his best legal tones, "Given name, please."

"Mimi Mimn."

Tom looked at her quizzically. "Sounds as if you had your mouth full of pins."

Whereupon Miss Mimn drew herself up rather haughtily and went home.

When Mary Minster and her semi-invalid mother came to 8— Mary, having read in a Sunday article that mysterious women were the vogue, resolved that she would be one of these unfathomable creatures. Mrs. Minster's sister, Molly, sent them boxes of her beautiful clothes, which lost none of their charm on Mary, and helped her out a slender income. The bewitching Mary, although willing to help, was determined not to be a clock-puncher.

The next day, after her austere leave-taking of Tom, Mary dearly set to find out whether he were locked out of the window in the morning. With extreme care she arrived herself in Aunt Mollie's latest shipment and set out on the park.

As she crossed a square, with her eyes on the traffic officer, a new and nervous driver slid into the middle of the street, regardless of signals. Miss Mimn was directly in his path. Even a gentle bump from a twin-six is likely to be disastrous, and a surly bob and two slim, silk-clad legs shot down and out as the car came to a jarring stop. Almost simultaneously the officer, panic-stricken driver, and excited young man sent over the much-frightened girl.

"Mimi, oh, are you hurt?"

"No-o-o, I guess not. Where's my hat?"

"Yes, you are, too. You're terribly hurt. You can't walk on your leg. Of course not! I'll take your case. I am the young lady's lawyer," he said with dignity unduly for the slowly willing driver. "Your name and address, please?" he asked.

"I'll take this young lady home, Jerry," he added to the irate policeman.

"All right, Mr. Rand. Hope she's not hurt too bad."

"We will hope for the best," said Tom heartlessly, and picking up the amazed Miss Mimn, he deposited her with tender care in the seat of a long, low roadster.

"Why—" she began.

"Don't talk till we are calmer. I saw the whole thing. Was on my way to the office and saw you before he struck you. Which way, dear?" he asked as they came to a cross street.

"Twenty-eight, Wilmot," she answered weakly.

"Is this car yours?" she demanded suddenly, "I thought you said you were a struggling young lawyer."

"Now, listen. I am young—and I do struggle, but I am not an orphan. My father gave me this car, and I took it from whence it came. I have not tried to deceive you—Mimi," he added with a wicked twinkle.

Silence.

"Really, you know, you are my first case in every sense of the word," he went on softly.

"Since you are my attorney, I think perhaps I had better tell you that my name is Mary Minster. When I was little I used to call myself Mimi Mimn, and it popped into my head the day you asked me my name.

"I did so want to be mysterious, and have you—everybody—wonder about me." Her voice faltered.

"Don't you know, Mary, that all girls are mysterious to us poor men?" He gently squeezed her arm.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg.—Everybody was glad of the nice rain on Sunday as it was badly needed and it cooled the air after a week of intense heat.

Several from here attended the Orange walk at Stirling on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lough of Port Colborne, Quebec, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wes Morton. Miss Florence Beatty, Reg.N., returned home with them to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, Mr. Grimshaw and Miss Young all of Toronto, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Sherry.

Several of the young people attended Marion Jones' birthday party last week.

Master Billie Coulter returned last week from Wetaskwin, Alta., where he has been visiting with his uncle for a couple of years.

Miss Emma Potter is entertaining friends from Hamilton.

Mr. Charlie Henry of Vancouver, on old Thomasburg boy, is renewing acquaintances after several years' absence.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Shaw and children, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. Shaw's mother here.

Mrs. W. Gatzell of Tweed, spent Sunday with Mrs. W. S. Embury.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thompson and children spent Sunday with friends at Harlowe.

Berry picking seems to be the order of the day and they are quite plentiful.

The July meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the home of Mrs. J. R. Bateman on July 12th.

ROSLIN

Roslin—The July meeting of the recently organized Ladies Guild of St. Paul's Church, was held on Wednesday evening, July 14th, at the home of Mrs. Fred Ouiller. There were twelve ladies present.

The president, Mrs. B. Calder, presided. Mrs. Beaser led in prayer. Mrs. Fred Ouiller was appointed as leader for programme at the next meeting. After the business period, Mrs. Alford took charge of the programme.

Misses Georgina and Helen Goodfellow gave recitations and Miss E. Alford gave an appropriate reading on the work of the Ladies' Guild.

Mrs. Beaser on behalf of the Rector and congregation, expressed their thanks to the ladies for their donation of $40.00 towards the hall. A hymn was sung and Mrs. Beaser closed the meeting with prayer. After this the hostess served a delicious lunch.

An accident occurred on the Shannonville road, south of Goodfellow's store on Tuesday morning, when a car driven by Orville Tarbiden, struck a bicycle Jean Tracey was riding. The Davidson car was damaged to some extent and Dr. Welsh was called to attend Jean Tracey, who was injured. The Provincial Police investigated.

Many from here attended the Orange celebration held in Stirling on Monday.

The storm which passed over the district on Sunday afternoon was not severe here, though several hours already rain which fell will be of great benefit to the crops.

An Orange service was held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon, but owing to the heat and threat of a severe storm, the attendance was not very large.

Miss Lily Colden of Belleville, is spending her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Colden.

Dr. Welsh and Mrs. Welsh spent Saturday in Niagara Falls.

Miss Annie Stirk of Ottawa, is spending the week with Mrs. Stirk at their cottage.

POINT ANNE

Point Anne—Mr. Cole Cummings of Cayne, is visiting at the home of his son, Daly.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE (Closing)

Toronto, July 16 (CP)—Today's Stock Market was without life from prices slightly lower on the whole and trading quiet. The list popped up a little in the last half hour, particularly the golds, scaling the week losses. But other mines sang with the golds. Other mines sang with the western oils and the industrials closed with narrow net losses outnumbering gains.

O'Brien dropped to 4.30 and recovered to 4.70 for a fraction loss and Wright-Hargreaves changed a narrow loss into a gain of about 15 cents. Flinflon prices showed small gains for Pioneer, Lac Cap, McIntyre, Noranda, Hed Crest and Paymo. On the down side were Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore and McKenzie by fractions.

Losses were general in the base metals but changes were small. Hudson Bay, Nickel and Consolidat of Smelters declined fractions and Ventures, Sherritt, Normetal, Jack Waite and Base Metals Corporation showed a few cents each.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 16 (AP)—After an advancing gesture at the opening, stocks turned downward in today's market and many of the leaders yielded fractions to 2 or more points.

U. S. Steel ran up above 117 to a new high for the move in early proceedings, but lost most of its gain later when Chrysler dropped sharply and the rest of the list exhibited signs of weakening. Transfers were about 800,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

Many Canadian companies will not be affected by the conditions existing in Western Canada. In this category can be included such concerns as Montreal Power, Shawinigan, Steel of Canada and many others. For the immediate future, investors would be well advised to give consideration to the prospects for their companies with special emphasis on the conditions in the West.

B. A. Oil is steadily reducing its funded debt and by September this year, the company's bonded indebtedness should amount to approximately $7,000,000 as compared with a peak of $11 million in 1935. B. A. Oil was fortunate in arranging refunding of its bonds at the lowest rate of interest for any industrial concern in recent history. This attests to the high regard held by investors for the company's securities.

Annual Meeting

The special meeting of shareholders of Cyprus Mines and Aldabattine Company is scheduled to be held in Paris, Ont., today at 3 p.m. (Standard Time). A quorum of holders of the fight for control has attracted wide attention, therefore a large turnout of shareholders is expected. As a matter of fact, it is believed that the fighting will be so hot it will be adjourned in order that a large hall might be secured so that all those seeking attendance will be able to gain admittance. Apparently, thirty thousand shares shall be voted in person—it is this vote that will probably decide who is to control the future destiny of Cyprus.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 16.—Receipts of cheese yesterday were moderate compared with the previous days' heavy movement. Dealings during this market were considered very satisfactory, with the following prices: New Ontario Westerns, 14 1-2c to 14 5-8c; Western colored, 14 1-2c, to 14 5-8c; Quebec white, 14 1-2c to 14 5-8c; Quebec colored 14 1-2. Produce receipts included 1,702 cases of eggs, 71 boxes of butter and 9,712 boxes of cheese, with 535 cases of eggs and 1,000 boxes of cheese for export.

There were 400 boxes of Quebec white, 100 boxes colored sold on the Commodity Exchange yesterday, 200 boxes of Grade A-medium sold at 25 7-8c; Quebec fresh 92 score was traded at 25 7-8c.

The produce market was firm, with the following prices in effect: Western white, 14 1-2c, colored 14 1-2c, to 14 5-8c, Quebec white, 14 to 14 1-4. The open egg market held firm with receipts moving freely. There was a particularly good demand for Grade A-medium eggs. Graded shipments were selling on spot in free cases as follows: Grade A-large, 25c; medium, 25c; pee 1-2-24c; C, 18 1-2c. Some lots of pullets were sold at current prices, change. Ontario A-large were offered at 26c; A-medium, 25c; B-large, 21 1-2c; C, 18 1-2c.

WHEAT FUTURES UP FULL 5 CENTS

Second Time in Week Pegged Price Reached on Market

Winnipeg, July 16.—(CP)—Wheat values boomed for the second time this week on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with July and October futures climbing the full five-cent permissable limit. December came within 1-8 cent of the full limit.

At the close prices were 5 to 5 3-8 cents higher with July at $1.53 7-8, October $1.45 1-2 and December $1.41 3-4.

Traders disregarded bearish reports of drought-breaking rains in Western Canada and bought liberally, principally on news of dust and damaged wheat fields in the United States. The market rise almost duplicated Thursday's when all three futures went up the five-cent limit. New seasonal highs were established by all wheat futures.

HAD MONEY IN SEVERAL BANKS

George Roediger Known to Have Accounts For Considerable Amount

Toronto, July 16.—(CP)—Police here today revealed George Roediger, wanted in Canada for nine years for theft and bigamy, had deposited money in several Toronto banks.

Police said he also had accounts in other Ontario cities but they refused to reveal the total sum the former confidence man is supposed to save. Authorities expressed the belief there were accounts they had yet to uncover.

$510,000 Lawsuit 'Annoys' Manufacturer

Los Angeles, July 16 (AP)—Thomas Warner, Jr., automobile accessory manufacturer faced with a $510,000 damage suit, admitted today he was "very annoyed" and added: "That's all I've got to say."

Mrs. Pearl Antibus, Hollywood detective, sued the former General Motors director, charging he instigated a raid on her home to "rescue" his son, Thomas Warner, Jr., Twelve investigators of the District Attorney's office, alleged to have participated in the raid, were named as "John Doe" defendants.

District Attorney Buron Fitts declared the raid, which Mrs. Antibus said was illegal, was requested by Warner.

Fitts said young Warner had been missing from his home, a fashionable private girl school, in the home of Mrs. Antibus against his mother's wishes. After the raid, a "peace parley" was held, Fitts said, at which "all was forgiven".

9-Power Action Urged in Orient

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador, said today he has asked Secretary Hull China's plea that the United States use other friendly power treaty signatories "take action" in the present Sino-Japanese crisis.

The envoy conferred with Hull before attending a dinner in honor of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, D., Ark., majority leader of the United States Senate.

The throng of frock-coated diplomats marched into the gold and marble Senate Chamber for a simple funeral service for Senator Robinson's casket, almost hidden by flowers, occupied the centre of the hall.

SENSE OF RELIEF

The Soviet Government's view was believed to be generally the same as Franco's.

Eden's proposal stipulated that recognition of belligerent rights by the non-intervention committee would become effective when their representation on the committee was notified that "arrangements for withdrawal of foreign nationals are working satisfactorily and that this withdrawal has in fact made substantial progress."

System of Observers

The British plan for the dissolution of the naval cordon around Spain—which Italy and Germany withdrew last month—and establishment of a vast system of observers to supervise the entering Spanish waters and at seaports and other vantage points in an around Spain.

All Powers Agree

London, July 16 (CP-Havas)—Great Britain's compromise proposal to revive the non-intervention deadlock was unanimously accepted here today by the "Committee of Spain" committee as a basis for further discussion.

A sub-committee was expected to meet Tuesday to consider details of agreement.

Russian View Outlined

French Ambassador Charles Corbin and Ivan Maisky, the Russian envoy, outlined their respective government position when the committee reconvened at 4 p.m. after a one-hour recess. It was during which the German and Italian representatives obtained their governments's approval in principle of the British compromise proposals.

All the smaller nations followed the lead of the big powers.

The session were called to consider the compromise proposals calling for abandonment of naval patrol, the establishment of neutral observers in Spanish ports, dromes and seaports and the conditional recognition of the contending factions.

Corbin argued that establishment of non-intervention observers at Spanish ports and the withdrawal of foreign volunteers should be clearly determined before the question of granting belligerency status is brought under discussion.

French Appreciation

The French Ambassador at the appropriate time will present recommendations for practical measures under which such recognition would be granted, the Ambassador added, suggesting that any recognition be turned over to a sub-committee.

Expressing his appreciation of Great Britain's work, the French Ambassador said:

"In the first week he spoke at the beginning of the meeting the President (Lord Plymouth) presented this plan as a basis for the whole the different parts of which were reciprocally conditional.

That, in effect, is the most striking character of the project, which establishes relationship between the recognition of belligerency rights, itself dependent on reserves, and the preliminary execution of certain conditions."

"These conditions bear on two principal points.

"First, the re-establishment of ing "perhaps a bit indifferent." She did not appear to him to be upset.

Mother Testifies

During the 14-mile trip from Cakville to Toronto Jail alone with Police Chief David Kerr, Mrs. Keeley had little to say, he said. She was not nervous or hysterical. "When we got to the jail, though, she was quite upset," Kerr said.

"Both her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall, worked," Kerr said in the chief continued. Both are employed at an Oakville tannery, it was explained.

From wounds on the dead child's head, police believe she died first blow with the long-handled chopper which stained minute hair and lethal blow was given.

Informed of the child's death, Chief Kerr raced home from the police convention at London to take charge.

The house where Alice died also was nine months old." said Mrs. Hall. "Alice was very much like Sue. She has been perfectly well, it seemed, and was apparently quite happy. She was a wonderful girl."

The blinds of the trim little white and black cottage were drawn, the inside sat the father and the husband of the arrested woman.

declared Mr. Bone today. "Enthusiasm, that spirit of better times that was a wonderful thing, didn't need to see the filled to overflowing. Hotels and restaurants and tubes nor the crowds in restaurants and theatres and the fact that it was evident wherever you went.

Echoes of Coronation

Echoes of the recent Coronation are still felt in England where crowds of United States visitors still linger, it was reported. Many of the visitors had their own cars. Even in their motoring service at the Empire's service stations along the smooth and winding roads the visitors brought under control by motor. Speed in service is just as rapid as on this continent, but others are not. Self-serve has been installed. There is the simple matter of turnstiles for each pump for the convenience of car owners who wish to turn their pumps around.

American's Delighted

Americans have been quick to remark the friendly courtesy of the country as well as its spirit of better times. This was illustrated in no better way than by one family from the United States who were stopped by passengers on the boat train with Mr. Bone from Dover to London.

"That chap and his wife couldn't say anything good enough about England, the way they had been treated and the progress it has made lately," stated Mr. Bone.

In spite of the fact that he was forced to drive on the opposite side of the road, the visit hand side to the right-hand drive car rested him, little difficulty was experienced by the local resident during his trip through Britain. Heavy lorry and transport drivers were a revelation in the manner they guarded the safety of the motorist. By hand signals from the cab they indicated whether the narrow road ahead was clear, and willingly pulled well over to allow passing.

Canadians at present residing in Great Britain have found ideal working conditions and are declared perfectly content and happy, with no expressed desire to return to Canada. Almost every profession is represented, with opportunities unlimited for those with the ambition to carry them through.

CHARGE COMPANY WITH LONG LIST

Labor Relations Board Orders Hearing on Wednesday

Washington, July 16—(AP)—The Labor Relations Board charged the Republic Steel Corporation today with a long list of "Unfair Labor practices" and called a hearing "for recent steel strike.

The Board ordered a hearing here Wednesday on its complaint, which covered only the company's Ohio plants.

First item of the Board's complaint was a charge that the company discharged 73 employees for joining the steel workers organizing committee, subsidiary of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization. Workers were also threatened with discharge, the Board said.

It added that Massillon and Canton employees were "locked out" as a result of union activity.

The company also was charged with "maintenance of extensive arsenals" at the Youngstown, Niles, Warren, Canton and Cleveland plants "for the purpose of interfering with, restraining and coercing employees and their agents in the exercise of their right to self organization."

The steel firm had increased its police forces at the time of the strike last March, it said, for the purpose of interfering with the rights of the employees peacefully to picket the plants."

Thomas C. Donnellan, presenting the charges of Wagner Act violation was issued after an investigation which included a public hearing of complaints against Robert Stanley Dow, Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

CAMBRIDGE CADET OFFICER WINS KING'S PRIZE

D. L. Birney Scores 283 Leading the Field into Final Stage of Shooting

Lieut. J. Smith of Royal Artillery Close Second

STRONG CROSS-WIND

Particularly Troublesome on Long Ranges of King's Bisley Camp, England, July 17 (C.P. Cable)—Cadet-Officer D. L. Birney of Cambridge University Officers Training Corps today won the King's Prize, classic of the Empire's meetings of the National Rifle Association.

Had 283 Score

Birney finished the prelim today about with an aggregate score of 283 out of a possible 300 in the second and third stages of the King's Prize of $1,250 in cash, the N.R.A. Gold Medal, Gold Badge and Coronation Medal.

He had led the field going into the final distance of today's last stage. The final stage was at 900 and 1,000 yards and at 900 he had 92 points Birney's aggregate of 72 for 215 was two points better than the next man, Lieut. J. Smith of the Royal Artillery.

Cross-wind Blowing.

The final stage of the great match was fired with a cross-wind blowing that was particularly troublesome on the long ranges of the Kings.

Birney's victory in the King's Prize marked the end of the Coronation Bisley in which Lieut. G. E. Matchett of Hamilton won the only Canadian gaining victories. Matchett succeeded for all three of Canada's first places, capturing the Challenger Trophy valued at $1,250 in the all-comers' competition, the Championship Trophy, Gold Cross and Gold Medal in the Grand Aggregate, and the Duke of Connaught Trophy, Silver and Badge.

No other Canadian reached a first place and the Canadian teams were beaten in the shoots for the Kolapore and Mackinnon Challenge Cups.

FINDING OF BODY MAY SOLVE CRIME OF GIRL'S DEATH

Henri Fissault Hangs Self in Home of Business Associate

HELD FOR MURDER

Dismissed After Police Unable to Link Him up With Death

Montreal, July 17 (CP)— A strip of soiled brown paper with strands of women's hair pasted on it, found near row, the picture of an unidentified woman, and a crudely-written testament by a man found hanged in a basement were laid out in a police laboratory here today, possible clues to the unsolved, nine-months-old disappearance of a pretty girl and the apparent suicide of her companion.

The strange assortment was gathered yesterday by police after discovery of the hanged body of Henri Fissault, 33 year old Cement Company executive, questioned in Noranda, Quebec, in the kidnapping and then murder after Rianne St. Pierre failed to return a mid-night motor ride with him.

Fissault, who died a year long is described search for the girl drug store clerk proved fruitless.

The paper bearing the strands of hair, police found on a table in a kitchen, just above the basement door. Fissault's body was discovered. The picture lay on the dusty basement floor, about two feet beneath the boots of the grotesque dead figure, strung from a pipe with a piece of clothes line. The testament was found under it, in a file of Fissault's office.

Franc at 11 Year Low, London Trading Excited

Today's Price of Franc is 3.77 Cents .05 of a Cent Lower Than Yesterday's Close—No Movement in New York

New York, July 17 (AP)—A new flight of French "hot money" across the English Channel today sent the franc plummeting downward to its lowest level in 11 years and rushed gold to Wall Street of a second financial crisis in Paris within the month.

There were 19 transactions in New York, the rate here being based on the London quotation where excited trading ruled as French funds were poured into the market.

Difficulty of the new Chautemps' government in financing treasury needs, a heavy prospective deficit and lack of confidence of the people themselves in their currency were assigned here as the factors that caused the steady capital expatriation.

The franc today was quoted at 3.77 cents, .05 of a cent lower than yesterday's close.

Wall Street bankers said movement of French funds here was negligible. Instead, they said, some French balances here were being transferred to London, impelled by the threat of higher taxation on foreign accounts.

Japanese Gov't Decides To Quicken Negotiations In the Sino - Japan Crisis

Troop Movements of Chinese Forces Veiled in Secrecy

Tokyo, July 17 (AP)—The Japanese government today announced the situation in North China "does not permit further procrastination" and declared Japan had decided "to accelerate negotiations" in the Sino-Japanese crisis.

The government did not disclose, however, what measures were contemplated in the tangled situation.

Officials of the war, navy and foreign offices were in conference to determine a unified policy in the face of what Japan terms a threat to her nationals and property in North China where her troops have clashed repeatedly with Chinese soldiers.

While Japan pressed 50,000 prisoners into service as munitions-makers to supply possible war needs, Japanese negotiators and the mainland were instructed to renew demands for settlement of the crisis.

Cavalry Concerned.

The government, gravely concerned over the situation developing from clashes between Japanese and Chinese troops near Peiping since July 7, wired instructions to Shigeru Kawagoe, ambassador to China, and Lieut.-Gen. Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander of Japan's North China cavalry.

(Peiping dispatches reported the main armies of both Japan and China were moving toward the trouble area, creating the danger of much more serious engagements than the small clashes that heretofore disturbed North China.)

Say Fatal Shot Fired Over Border

Winnipeg, July 17 (CP)—Border strife was never engaged the attention today of Manitoba and Minnesota authorities. So far, at least, there has been no jurisdiction dispute over, where John Klym of Sundown, Man., was killed by Minnesota constable Klym fired a shot across the line from Minnesota border and killed Cuthrey Mcdshuk, who stood on Minnesota territory. The state will apply Monday in Manitoba court of King's Bench for extradition of the Canadian.

Klym alleged the neighbors quarreled over ownership of hay.

Life imprisonment is the maximum penalty for murder in Minnesota, but Klym's counsel has stated he will fight extradition. Since the shooting June 23, Klym has been held by Manitoba police.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

A farmer's favorite question! All know that plants require light, heat and moisture. The last, moisture, is the farmer's greatest headache! There may be plenty of moisture considering the average rainfall, but it may be so inefficiently distributed or any one year's supply may be so far below the average as to form a year of drought. Or interrupted in its growth by growth by lack of moisture can no be repaired by later abundance. The remedy is irrigation. In the west water is impounded and allowed to flow on the crops as needed. But in the east where would cost less as there is an abundance in the rivers, lakes and underground to be had cheaply by pumping. It may be applied according to the need of the crop.

UPHOLDS LEAGUE AS STILL VITAL

"We Must Use It" Says Miss Courtney of London, England

Vancouver July 17.—(CP)—"The League of Nations has not failed" Miss Kathleen Courtney of London, England, contends.

The Canadian support on international affairs made her defense of the league at a banquet given last night by the British Columbia Government in honor of delegates to the Pan Pacific Women's Association in convention here.

Miss Courtney said the league is as good as ever it was and we've got to use it," she said. "It is the will to work the machinery that has failed. If we hadn't allowed things to go as they did in Abyssinia we would not have the war in Spain or the situation as it exists in Palestine today.

CLIPPER NOW ENROUTE TO HER HOME PORT

Rotwood, NfM., July 17 (CP)—Two trans-Atlantic flights successfully completed the Pan-American Clipper III took off today for Shediac, N.B., en route to her home base at Port Washington, N.Y. The giant 21½-ton flying boat was expected to complete the hop in five hours.

The United States ship, pioneering commercial air route across the ocean in co-operation with Imperial Airways' 18-ton flying boat Caledonia, arrived at Rotwood yesterday after a flight from Foynes, Ireland. The Caledonia flew from Rotwood to the other side at the same time.

The Clipper Ship will stop overnight at the New Brunswick point and continue her flight to Port Washington Sunday.

GOV'T READY TO HELP FACTORIES

Hepburn Agrees New Choice Should Not Be Before Exported

St. Thomas, Ont., July 17 (CP)—Premier Hepburn announced yesterday the Ontario Government is prepared to assist cheese factories in the installation of proper storage facilities. Either in the form of a loan or guarantee of bank obligated through banking institutions, so that factories may be brought up to date with the new compulsory marketing regulations.

The new regulation, a Federal one, requires that all cheese factories have facilities to store their cheese for days after it is made, so that it can be graded before it is exported.

Many cheese factories of Elgin are not equipped to comply with the regulations.

"While our department has nothing to do with the regulations now compulsory on June 1," said Premier Hepburn, "still I am in sympathy with it, for I realize that if we are going to get top prices for the cheese, then we must have the new-made cheese and see that it has had the opportunity to set and is not likely to shake to pieces."

TRAINING SCHOOL PARTY A SUCCESS

Dance is Social Background To Return to Normal Life

Tecumseh, Ont., July 17 (AP)—Everybody said the party was a great success.

So today the girls at Tecumseh State Training School who didn't quite make the grade, however, to be just as good as they can be in order that they, too, may come next time Mrs. Drydgen, Burnham's wife, gave a dance for the honor girls.

Thirty-eight girls, best-behaved inmates dined, danced and enjoyed an impromptu floor show last night with the young men from the nearby college boys — the superintendent called the dance.

The party, Mrs. Burnham said, was to give the girls social background against their return to a normal "outside" life, plans to hold the dances every month, rotating the best-behaving girls as others qualify.

Eighty Rubber Balloons Used To Study Stratospheric Area

Dr. Jean Piccard Awaits High Pressure For Observations

BALLOONS UNDER TEST

Rochester, Minn., July 17 (AP)—Dr. Jean Piccard of the University of Minnesota watches development of a high pressure area which may enable him to make a stratosphere test flight in the new smaller balloon craft today.

Piccard hopes to demonstrate the feasibility of his craft of two cubic feet of 10 rubber balloons each about four feet in diameter, for scientific observations in the upper layers of the stratosphere.

Piccard planned to ascend only two or three miles. If the test bears out his theory his 80 sounding balloons have a payload of 200 pounds than the large one-bag fabric balloons previously used, he will build a craft of 2,000 balloons for a stratosphere flight balloons for a 100 lb. to an open gondola weighing 65 pounds.

ROEDIGER'S SON WANTS PEACE

Son's Wife's Plea to Have Identity Secret Is Respected

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—A son of George Frederick Roediger, Montreal and Bigamist, was located today living quietly with his family here. To protect them, he has since changed his name and with his wife made application for a marriage license.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Toronto concerning possibilities for ceramic purposes of large bodies of nepheline syenite in Haliburton County, particularly in Dysart according to the Canadian Research Bulletin of current issue. The nepheline-bearing rock contains mainly of a mixture of the mineral nepheline, a silicate of alumina, soda and potash, and also feldspar, the gelo-rich variety of feldspar, with some potash feldspar. The nepheline helps out as the rock is higher in alumina than pure spar. It is attracting attention as a substitute for the latter in the glass industry.

With the Canadian Nepheline Company, Ltd., was incorporated to acquire a large deposit of the syenite rock in Ontario and the company has erected a grinding and cleaning plant at Lakefield. The plant has a capacity of about twenty-five tons daily of finished product and has been in steady operation since 1935. It has been in operation since 1935. It has been sale for the output. Considerable experimental work has been carried on in Hastings and adjoining counties recently in an effort to locate large bodies of the rock, which is known to exist in plentiful quantities.

CHILD SWEPT TO HIS DEATH

Disappears From Mother's Side And is Sweep Silently Away

Woodslee, Ont., July 17 (CP)—Disappearing from his mother's side, Ralph, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Woltz, was swept into the current of the Canadian Belle River and drowned last night. Woodslee is 20 miles south of Windsor.

His body was found caught in a wire fence about a hundred feet a mile downstream from the place where he disappeared.

The mother heard a sound, never saw him. It was just as though an invisible hand had suddenly picked him from our midst," Mrs. Woltz said.

She explained she had gone down to the stream, 300 yards from the Woltz home, to haul some railway ties which were floating around the river.

"My other three boys, Bobby, 11, Eddie, 9, and Billie, 6, and myself were clad in bathing suits and had brought one tie to shore and were pushing on it while my husband was pulling it out. The last time I saw my boy," she said, "he and I were sitting on some other ties we had pulled out and which stood on shore. He was playing with the dog."

POPE PIUS COMMENDS CARDINAL MUNDELEIN

Castel Gandolfo, July 17 (AP)—Pope Pius today commended George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, whom the German Government recently demanded be reprimanded for a speech criticizing the Nazi regime.

The Pontiff told a group of Chicago residents in general audience their "great Cardinal" is courageous in defence of the rights of God and the Church and the welfare of souls."

It was the Pope's first direct reference to the Cardinal since the German protest the basic conditions for normal relations with the Vatican no longer existed because the Chicago Cleric was permitted to pass without censure.

Col. T. A. Kidd Elected 1st Imperial Grand V.P. Orangeman of World

Glasgow, July 17 (CP)—T. Ashmore Kidd of Kingston, Ont., yesterday was elected First Imperial Grand Vice-President of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World.

The meeting unanimously approved a resolution paying high tribute to the public services of Karl Baldwin of Bewdley. It was moved by Col. A. D. McInnes Shaw, Grand Master for Scotland and seconded by Kidd.

Shaw was elected Imperial Grand President; Senator Sir Joseph Davidson of Belfast Imperial Grand Master; Loftus Reid, Toronto, Grand Secretary and George Scott, Toronto, Imperial Deputy Grand Secretary.

Poet Laureate Honors Sailors Of Merchantmen

Southampton, July 17 (AP)—Poet Laureate John Masefield declared in his public poem, an ode to the sailors of merchantmen and fishing fleets, that they had helped to make Britain's first merchant navy week "the best spent week of the year."

They dare all weathers in all climes and seas,
In every kind of ship; and risks
Are all the greatest underneath the sun.
Their trade is as flinty as their bread.
Some traces nature grants them, nerve
The work they do is hourly unseen, unheard.

By them we make our money and are fed.
Let Britain, doing justice, honor these."

An exhibition designed to give a complete picture of the empire's merchant marine was opened today and the merchant navy week celebration.

FORMER INSTRUCTOR VISITS OLD FRIENDS

G. G. Fullow, former Chief Dominion Instructor in this district has been in the district making a personal call on several friends during the week. One of the factories in Prince Edward County were visited by the former official during which time he renewed acquaintance with many of the well-remembered makers. Ill health forced the resignation of Mr. Pullow from the position some years ago but his interest in the cheese industry has been keen and unflagging.

Patna, India, July 17—(AP)—An estimated 281 persons were killed and 250 injured today when the Calcutta Express was derailed fifty miles from Patna.

Earlier advices placed the dead at 100, but the Exchange Telegraph Press Agency listed the death toll at 281.

Authorities suspected sabotage, because the up-turned rails removed probable tampering with the tracks.

All the European passengers were reported safe. The train left the Calcutta on the Ganges River, is 240 miles east of Benares.)

SPANISH WAR ENDS FIRST YEAR

Government Forces Knife at Rearguard of Madrid Besiegers

By ALEXANDER KIRK

Madrid, July 17 (CP)—The Spanish Government army, grown to full fighting fettle since civil war began, knifed today at the rearguard of Madrid's besieging besiegers.

Determined to smash the farflung positions which Generalissimo Francisco Franco's legions have held during most of the war, Gen. Jose Miaja's elite has been forward in the Brunete and Ciempozuelos sectors.

Brunete, wrested from the Insurgents, lies about 18 miles west of Ciempozuelos about 25 miles south of the blue capital's center city.

Would Face Back Fronts.

Miaja, commander of all government troops on the central Spanish front, threatened to surround the large Insurgent army in at least the towns and villages. Such a feat would force Franco's troops back at least 20 miles from Madrid.

The block for operation, Insurgent infantry divisions, preceded by a fleet of tanks, launched three attacks that carried them through Pardillo, a few miles north of Brunete, which failed to regain the town.

Like Brunete, Villanueva had fallen to the Insurgents in mid-summer.

Nearer to Madrid, along the Coruna road to the northwest, Miaja's militiamen tried to seize Villanueva Del Castillo—from the east and north. Insurgent defenders in the partly destroyed village were reported to have suffered heavy losses.

10-YEAR BOY'S FOOT IS CRUSHED

George Clarke Injured as He Runs in Front of Wagon Loaded With Peas

Wellington, Ont., July 16 (Staff)—With his right foot nearly crushed by a pulp, George Clarke, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke, Wellington, was rushed to the office of Dr. R. S. Thompson at noon today. The boy had badly following an accident in which the youngster's foot was run over with a wagon load of peas. Hurried to the X-ray examination revealed several bones in the foot fractured besides painful flesh lacerations.

Young Clark was with a group of his chum on playing on the side-walk, when the loaded wagon passed en route to a canning factory. With whoops of delight the children made a dash for the wagon and endeavoured to grab armfuls of the vines. In the general scramble, Clark was knocked down and rolled beneath the wagon, the wheel of which passed over his foot.

The injured youth was rushed to the doctor's office where the extent of his injuries was ascertained. At present he is resting at his home under medical observation.

THREE CONVICTS ADMIT ASSAULT

Prince Albert, Sask., July 17 (CP) —Three Saskatchewan penitentiary convicts pleaded guilty before Magistrate W. C. Rider yesterday to charges of causing grievous bodily harm to Prison Guard James McKenzie on June 26, Sentence was reserved.

The convicts, Earl H. Browning, Ross Lloyd and Norman Wilfred Watson, pleaded not guilty to similar charges involving an alleged attack on Guard C. B. Giles. The case was adjourned until Monday.

Evidence was that McKenzie was attacked when he investigated absence of the three men from their cells in the cell block and found them together in one cell. The men assertedly attacked him without warning, beat him about the head and body with iron pipes and kicked him.

Giles was allegedly attacked when he went to McKenzie's aid.

CHILDREN'S SLIDE PLACED AT BEACH

As the first step toward equipping the civic beach with proper amusement devices, a children's slide 60 feet has been in constant use by the younger bathers the past week at the beach this week by members of the Bay of Quinte Beaches Association. A larger slide, which will be of the same smooth wooden construction, has been ordered and is expected to be set up today for adult use. Heartened by the increasing popularity of campgrounds, officials of the Association have started on the work of improvement with renewed vigor during the week. A diving tower and floating raft is expected to be furnished later. At present, fine sanding of the shore line is being carried out.

MAY ADD COURSE IN PLANE ENGINE

Students of the Belleville Vocational classes at the Collegiate Institute in the fall term may commence the study of more modern subjects if efforts of the Department of Education are successful. An attempt will be made during the coming school term, to inaugurate a course of study in Diesel and aviation engineering, the former covering the practical study of both types are expected to be purchased by the board for the purpose. It is hoped to enlist the aid in the formation of the Royal Canadian Air Force station at Trenton for the course in aviation engineering.

VALUABLE CASE IS RECOVERED IN BASIN

While a small knot of citizens congregated to view the strange performance, a visitor opened the valise flamels, and open-collar white shirt tugged strenuously at the case in the depth of a catch basin on a downtown Front street corner last evening. Purchased at a second-hand newspaper from a hovering newsboy, the visitor agreed to pay the boy the road fringe on the basin, and lying prone attempted to delve deeply into the dark interior. Failing this, he descended bodily, groping in the muck and finally emerged triumphantly with his parting. He had dropped an engrossed copy of the Constitution in the grating and successfully recovered it.

FIRST CAMP VISITOR AGAIN VISITS CAMP

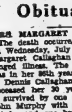
The first visitor to sign the first name in the visitor's book at the city tourist camp when the camp was first opened in about the year 1925, Mr. W. Jamieson, of 15 Fifth Avenue, Ottawa, again entered his name and that of his family in the camp book yesterday. The car containing Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson and two daughters was driven to the same spot in the camp on which it was located so many years ago.

"Not much if scarcely recognizable," he has indeed improved, so said it," declared Mr. Jamieson, gazing the while at the surroundings. "One of the cleanest and best camps in the province and we have always glad to stop in Belleville because we have always been shown every courtesy," he affirmed.

WINDSHIELD STICKERS TO ADVERTISE CITY

Narrow courtesy windshield stickers which will serve the double purpose of advertising Belleville and indicate the owner is a visitor to Canada, and deserving of all the assistance that can be given by Canadians along the highway may soon be given out by the local Chamber of Commerce as the latest move toward drawing the attention of tourists to this city. The gummed stickers will bear the name of "Belleville" in suitable lettering and colors and will be issued free by the, who call at the local Chamber.

MOTORISTS ASSIST COLLECTING ARTICLES



Busy eastbound traffic on No. 2 Highway just east of the city near the Ontario School for the Deaf was halted for five and fifty last evening while a Michigan motorist dodged in and out between lines of cars gathering up stray articles of personal attire and effects scattered far over one of the shoulder yards along the road and embankment. Stopped by the rear bumper of his machine, a heavy suitcase was dislodged by a slight bump in the road, became loosened and struck the highway, scattering its contents far and wide. Frantic toottings of a following car advised the driver of the accident and an immediate halt was made. Other drivers assisted in the recovery of the scattered articles.

CORN IS EAGERLY BOUGHT UP ON LOCAL MARKET

Golden Bantam Sells at 40 cents And White at 25 Cts. Dozen

BERRIES PLENTIFUL

Red And Blue Raspberries Both Sell For Two Boxes For 25 Cts.

Evidence of the bounties of the various crops of farm market produce showed on the Belleville market on Saturday when one of the most colorful and attractive displays of farm products in Ontario was afforded the purchasing public. The result of fine planting and seasonal growth was clearly evidenced with the presence of several varieties of fruits, vegetables, dairy produce and floral displays being presented by the growers of this district when an abundance of such commodities really kept the busied housewife puzzled as to when and where to make her purchases.

The market was largely attended by venders and purchasing customers alike.

No marked differences were observed in the general run of the market except in the price of butter that advanced to straight 30c per pound roll, with no discount for larger lots. Eggs remained firm at 20c the dozen for grade No. 1 eggs and ranging down to 22c for smaller and lesser grades.

Berries Plentiful

The outside market presented a beautiful picture as the various colors of newly picked vegetables and fruits blended together in an array of kaleidoscopic hues. Raspberries from the fields was seen with red and blue raspberries bringing 10c for box cigars and heaping boxes. Mulberries sold at 10c the single box and blackberries brought 30c the box or two boxes for 50c. A scattering of strawberries sold at three boxes for 25c, with currants, all types, and gooseberries weighing 10c the quart box measure, although black currants sold as high as 20c the quart box. Cherries proved more plentiful at 50 and 60c the six quart basket, and proved to their quality.

Golden Bantam Corn.

A small showing of green corn brought a ready market despite the high prices asked. Golden bantam sold for 40 cents the dozen ears while the white type sold for 25 cents the dozen. Peas found a ready market as eager purchasers soon bought up the entire showing. Beans were displayed slightly in prize to sell for 50 cents the peck measure. Fresh beets, carrots, radishes and lettuce found a ready market at 5 cents the bunch, with 5 cents per pail, according to the size and weight of the fowl. Five young chickens sold for 80 cents to $1.25 each, however. A few small broilers were offered at 30 cents the pair, although they were not predominate owing to the smallness of the fowl.

A goodly showing of home cooking was seen at the booths of the ladies with a few vendors offered cut and potted flowers for sale to add to the floral color and beauty of Belleville's market, renowned throughout Ontario as the finest market in this province.

OTTAWA PARADE

Back Stage in the Dominion Capital with WILFRID EGGLESTON

Paul Martin, member for Essex East, who was 'on the air' last week with addresses on behalf of his association, tells a good yarn about a trip he once made from Ottawa to his native city—to Montreal.

It was his first drive to Montreal in his car, and he decided to cross the river at Hawkesbury. For those who are not familiar with these parts, it should be explained that you drive down to Hawkesbury with the Ottawa River on your left and then cross it and have it on your right most of the rest of the way.

Paul thought it would not take him over three hours in his new car. He duly crossed the bridge at Hawkesbury and drove on and on. After what seemed a very long time, he came to a town and found that he was nearing the outskirts of Montreal.

Eventually he did see a sign, but it was like a terrible start. He said: Five Miles to Hull! He had taken the wrong turn across the river at Hawkesbury and was practically home again.

Paul says he was so annoyed he turned back and drove a few miles before he put up for the night at Masson, completing his trip to Montreal next day.

Paul is one of the few members who entered parliament as the result of early pioneering. Perhaps due to his birth in the capital he always had an ambition to enter politics. He has studied his university course accordingly. Unlike most small boys, he never had a real hankering to be a fireman. He wanted to be a lawyer, and he succeeded law with politics in the English manner.

The member for Essex East has one traditional tie with Canadian politics. A great grandfather, Lemire was Speaker of the Quebec Legislature.

He is one of those rare figures in Canadian public life, a scholar. He has translated Emerson and Kant than a murder mystery or a cowboy yarn. He has also published numerous articles on legal, political and philosophical subjects.

I asked him if he recalled any humorous incidents of his political career. He said:

"I have had two rather interesting election campaigns. It is very difficult to recall anything that has happened during campaigns about either of them. This may interest you perhaps:

"I was nominated as Liberal candidate for East Essex in June of 1926. The nomination meeting was, I suppose, one of the most turbulent in some years, certainly the most turbulent in this district.

"My main opponent, Dr. P. E. Campbell, had been fighting hard for the nomination, holding public meetings almost every night for a week and a half.

"We were hardly as surprised, Pyefinally at the nominating convention. The situation was exceedingly tense. We both had spoken says, anyway.

and were waiting the outcome of the second ballot. We were smoking cigars nervously and I, especially was out of cigars. My nerves were on edge. I inquired of several people on the platform if they had any cigars. All replied in the negative. There could be only one left who would have a cigar, and that was Dr. Campbell. Should I ask him? If I did, what would he say? "I probably answered my sufficient courage and approached him. He looked very surprised and a bit angry but with a little smile held one out saying:

"Here you are. I hope the blasted thing has dynamite in it!"

The repetition of the drought in Western Canada recalls the now-forgotten fact that the aridity or fertility of those plains was for many years a bitter political issue in the House of Commons. I imagine the controversy reached its peak in the '70's. It seems the Critic Grits were pessimistic and the Yes were mainly optimistic. The promoters of the Canadian Pacific Railway naturally liking to feel that their line was penetrating a country of rich promise. The opponents of the C.P.R. were less certain. There were good arguments on both sides.

The controversy used to quote Palliser, Governor Simpson, of the Hudson's Bay Company, Archbishop Taché and Professor Hind, all of whom had condemned the arid plains, south of what they called the fertile belt.

The great surveyor on the other side was John Macoun, who originally went out as botanist with a Canadian Pacific survey party.

Macoun was an Irishman and a jolly good man. He held that the Grits were playing dirty politics, trying to injure Western interests.

One time, after he had supplied Hon. Alexander Mackenzie with a copy of his own highly favorable report on that region, he was greatly disturbed by the attitude of the Grits in the Galleries, to hear the Liberal leader denounced, not only by opponents but by his own colleagues.

Whereupon an usher swooped down upon him, and told him that if he didn't keep quiet he would be thrown out from the Chamber.

He tells all about the incident in his autobiography.

"Then neighbor Jones bought a LIBERAL car at TRUDEAU'S! I thought I'd have to buy one, too. He knows a darn sight more about cars than I do!"

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

(By R. W. Cross)

Get your entries in today for our mixed rink tournament to be held Wednesday, July 28th. Games commencing 1.30 p.m.

This is our first mixed tournament at home. Let's make it a big event.

The men's doubles are now underway. Skips contact your opposition, and complete games on scheduled day, if possible.

Ladies' rink skipped by Mrs. Mc-Manus brought home the bacon with two wins high, from Kingston, yesterday. The games have been keenly contested and our lady bowlers deserve great credit for their skilful playing.

Our new bowlers this year are showing wonderful ability to keep the game. This augurs well for our club.

LATTA WINS GAME 2 TO 0

Triumph Over Shannonville in Hurling Duel

Shannonville, July 17.—(Special)—In one of the most important encounters of the season here, the Latta nine defeated the Shannonville Hawks by 2 to 0. Latta has scored in every time Ken Juby ascends the mound for Shannonville a pitcher's battle ensues and night the pitchers on both teams had the batters completely at their mercy. In the time, Harris started on the mound for Latta and struck out five batters allowing four hits and striking out seven, while Young who pitched the route, struck out the three men to face him, allowing four hits.

Latta scored their runs in the third and fourth. In the third March first batter singled, stole second and scored on a hit by Lee. In the fourth Fargey singled between second and third, advanced to second when Harris grounded out and scored on a hit by Jack Cowe.

Due to their last game night Shannonville must defeat Belleville Kiwanis the time game they have yet to play with them in order to gain a play-off berth. In the only game that so far this year Belleville defeated Shannonville although the game was only an exhibition and Shannonville did not arrive on the schedule time. Shannonville declare that they are out for fourth place and therefore the game with Belleville should be "Thrilling". The lineups—

Shannonville—Liddle, 1b; Reid 3b; Houston ss, Juby p, Graham lb; Coutts c, Speer cf; Hall rf, Little lf.

Latta—Cowe cf; Marsh ss; Orr 1b and c; Hall 3b; Young lf and p; Parks 2b; Doherty c and 3b; Fargey rf; Harris p and lf.

Score by innings . . . R. H. E.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Milton, Ont., July 17.—(CP)—Fire today destroyed the home of Robert Deforest after the kitchen stove had been lit. Deforest first started the stove, returned from the garage to find the house in flames. He fought his way through the fire to awaken his wife and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clarence Deforest who escaped.

TAXI MANAGER ROBBED

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Robert Dowell, taxi manager, was robbed early today of $181 by two men who tied Dowell up before fleeing from his office. Dowell's cries attracted passersby who freed him.

LIBERALS HOLD MEET IN OCTOBER

Picnic May be Held With Premier as The Speaker

West Hastings Liberal Association will hold its annual meeting in October, it is unofficially stated by local members. So far date has not been definitely fixed but "probable" will be named to represent the riding at the next general election when they will be discussed, it was stated today by one prominent member.

Within the next few weeks, probably in August, according to officials, a monster Liberal picnic for this district will be held in the vicinity of Belleville with Premier Hepburn, the Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader, will be the speaker. The meeting is being arranged by the executive for the purpose of rallying Liberal member, who will also address his constituents.

POLICE BLOTTER

Driving a truck with allegedly defective brakes and inadequate lighting resulted in Cecil Rodgers, Bonnieh tucker, being apprehended by Belleville police last night. Rodgers was driving his truck south on Front St. when the vehicle collided with the rear of an automobile, resulting in some $35.00 damage to the motor car. P. C. Fraser who investigated reports that the brakes on Rodgers' truck were defective and recalled in the damage as the truck could not stop, when the automobile came to an abrupt halt. The truck was held in custody by police until today when it was released to Rodgers with instructions to get the defective brakes adjusted immediately. The question of probable charges are pending. No arrests were necessary in the city last night while Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine reported "a clear" in the matter of motor accidents on adjacent highways. One less transient drunkard without interruption in the cell block last night.

Boy Scout Hero of Wellington Will Be Honored in Hometown

Jimmy MacDonald Receives Recognition From Far And Abroad

LIFE BELTS ON PIERS

Wellington, Ont., July 16 (Staff)—There is in this village a tall slim youth, just past fourteen years of age and with his fair skin bronzed to a golden brown by the heat of summer and naturally shy, he seems almost afraid to meet people on the street. He stammers a little when one speaks to him of his exploit. His blushes like a young girl, and looks for an avenue of escape if one attempts to praise him for his heroic act.

He is Jimmy MacDonald, young Boy Scout whose promptness, bravery and quick thinking in an emergency saved the lives of two small children from drowning in the waters of Lake Ontario here a few weeks ago.

Congratulations From Afar.

Since his act was flashed to the world, Jimmy has been the recipient of letters from all over this country and the United States. The mayor of Washington, D.C. newspaper has offered him a substantial sum for his story and picture. A retired ex-service man in far north wrote complimenting him on his heroism. Boys' and girls' organizations of the U.S.A. and Canada have sent him congratulatory letters.

But all this has failed to change the naturally reticent disposition of Jimmy. He is still shy and retiring, and does not want to talk of what he did. "Smoky," he says, "any other fellow in the town would have done the same thing. I just happened to be around."

Fay Tribute On Holiday.

But local modesty refuses to take this explanation, and are now making efforts to show their appreciation of what Jimmy did tangible form. A substantial sum of money has been collected by voluntary subscription and on Civic Holiday, at the local Legion celebration, Jimmy will be presented with a handsome gold wrist watch suitably engraved, in recognition of his heroic act. His fellow Scouts who rendered invaluable aid will also be awarded.

A prominent member of the village council stated this morning that the council would, at a meeting to be called in the near future, offer MacDonald the position of lifeguard on the local beach.

An aftermath of the MacDonald episode is seen in the placing on the piers which run out into the lake and which form the favorite swimming spots of the youth of the village, of a number of lifebuoys, rope and other life-saving equipment.

JAPANESE GOV'T

minaro Konoye conferred with cabinet leaders to devise a means for staving off war, though the government was convinced that settlement must be based not on the recent incidents but on the issues outstanding between the two nations.

Japan believes the lives and property of 74,000 Japanese in China are menaced by successive incidents, and alleges that Chinese anti-Japanese propaganda inflames national hatred in China.

Yelling in Secrecy

Peiping, July 17 (AP)—Impressive troop concentrations were reported today to be moving toward the North China theatre of the clash between the Japanese Empire and the Central Government of China.

Actual troop movements were veiled in secrecy but clogged railways and other indications pointed to massing of military forces of greater proportions than previously were involved in skirmishes between Japanese and Chinese troops outside Peiping.

Reliable reports said "more than one" of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's German-trained divisions had reached Paotingfu, 90 miles southwest of Peiping.

Such a movement of Nanking's forces might bring China's main military forces face-to-face with a large Japanese army for which reinforcements are on the way from Manchuria and Japan itself.

Observers in Nanking agreed reports of 30 Chinese divisions advancing toward Peiping were exaggerated. The figure was believed instead to represent the Central Government's military strength north of the Yangtze, particularly along the Lunghai railway on a line that would be Nanking's main defence line in the event of major hostilities.

The Lunghai and Pinghai railway lines were said to be congested with troops below the Hopeh border.

Reports from Tientsin, the seaport serving Peiping, said Japan was preparing to increase the China garrison to a full army corps with 7,000 troops waiting in Korea to move to China as soon as billeting arrangements are completed.

COPS WOULD STOP REVOLVER SALES

Ask For Statute Banning Sale as far as Public is Concerned

London, Ont., July 17 (CP)—The executive of the Police Association of Ontario will ask at the September session of the sale and manufacture of revolvers and ammunition with a view to keeping them out of the hands of slayers, hold-up men and other social undesirables.

At the final session of the fourth annual convention here today Jas. H. Wilkinson, head of Windsor's Identification Bureau, yesterday submitted a resolution asking for enactment of a Dominion statute to ban firearms as far as the public is concerned. Such a move, he contended, would help police and reduce crimes of violence.

The motion called for confiscation of all weapons and ammunition now in the possession of private persons and urged that the enforcement of the law be punishable by a penitentiary term, without option of a fine.

On the suggestion of Inspector E. A. Cowley, London, chief constable and president of the association, the resolution was left with the executive for further study and report.

Other matters to be dealt with by the executive will concern slot machines, which the policemen termed "wonderful robbers," and the proposed indiscriminate parding of prisoners.

Chief Constable William Hodgson of Kitchener, was appointed second to succeed Chief Constable William Clark, North Bay, and Toronto, was chosen as the convention city for 1938.

FRANTIC CALLS OF WOMAN UNHEEDED

Three Children Wade Beyond Their Depths in Rouge River

Hawkesbury, Ont., July 17.—(CP)—Coroner J. H. Mason of Lachute, Que., presided on inquest will be held into the death of three Bells' Falls Que., children, drowned yesterday in the Rouge River. Wading beyond their depths, the children drowned before the eyes of a woman whose frantic calls for them to turn back went unheeded.

The dead are Alma and Allan MacLean, 11 and 10 years old respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. David MacLean, and Alma MacNeil, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas MacNeil, all of Bell's Falls.

Mrs. Thomas Monkhton, accompanied by her three children, had gone with the others to bathe. The MacNeil child ventured out into the centre of the river, the MacLean children following her.

Mrs. McMahon, who was unable to swim, called frantically for them to come back. Apparently stepping off a ledge into 30 feet of water, the children disappeared. Mrs. McMahon's children remained close to shore and did not follow the others.

Bell's Falls is ten miles north of Hawkesbury.

PRINCIPLE ENDORSED

Vancouver, July 17.—(CP) — Churches have endorsed the principle of Birth Control by recognizing there are moral and economic grounds for it in many cases, Dr. Nadina Kravinoky, Los Angeles, yesterday told the Pan-Pacific Women's Conference.

She especially urged the value of Birth Control to counteract the menace of septic abortions, saying deaths from this were increasing in all countries, particularly with women who have more than three children.

HYDRO LOADS INCREASED

Toronto, July 17.—(CP)—Increase all along the line is recorded in Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission summary of loads for June.

In primary loads, maximum 30-minute peak horsepower for all five systems was 1,338,825, a rise of 18.3 per cent over June, 1936 and in primary and second loads the total of 1,818,826 horsepower represents increase of 17.1 per cent.

Niagara System primary peak load total was 1,002,011, an increase of 18.4 per cent.

FINDING OF BODY

A wisp or two of woman's hair clung to a detective's hand when he felt curiously through the clothes on the body. The detective also discovered a few more strands of hair in the dead man's open mouth.

Clues Given Expert

All the "clues" were turned over to Dr. Rosario Fontaine, medico-legal expert summoned from his home to his laboratory at police headquarters.

Most puzzling of the collection of articles found on the hanging's scene seemed to be the strips of brown paper. The thirty strands of hair carefully laid out on it all were of different shades, and police thought, from the heads of many women.

Authorities expressed belief the collection might have been gathered from a beauty parlor floor. They said they also had found three hairpins and a few hair curlers.

Dr. Fontaine was to train his microscope on all the hair strands and analyze them today while an autopsy was performed on Fistiault's body. The woman's picture will be checked with records and its identity will be sought. It was not a picture of Blanche St. Pierre, police said.

The paper marked "testament De Henri Fistiault" will remain with police temporarily. Dated Jan. 27, 1937, just after its author had been freed by police after questioning in connection with the disappearance, the will left all to Hector Beaupre, president of the Bull Dog Grip Cement Company, with which Fistiault was associated.

Fistiault's estate consisted of two insurance policies of $1,000 each, a small sum of money and a few shares in the cement company, the instrument stated.

Body Found by Brother

It was in the home of Beaupre the young man's body was found by a brother, Yves Fistiault.

Fistiault had returned to Montreal Wednesday after accompanying Beaupre and a daughter to New York where they sailed for Europe.

The telephone call brought no answer and investigation resulted in the discovery of Fistiault's death, attributed to strangulation by a cord or who was present when the body was cut down.

The house was searched without success by detectives seeking a note or some clue to the disappearance of Miss St. Pierre. They knew nothing more today than when they took Fistiault into custody last year, police said.

Searching the automobile last fall in which the man had taken the young girl on the mysterious ride, police announced they had found Montelais and revolver cartridges, though no trace of a gun. Fistiault admittedly carried.

Held by authorities for weeks the missing drug store clerk's companion was hysterical most of the time.

"I can't remember anything," he cried in reply to practically all questions and muttered incoherently.

One time Fistiault told questioning police he had driven out of the city with Miss St. Pierre the night she disappeared. He awakened on Montreal's northern outskirts hours after the girl had disappeared. He said he did not remember where or when she had left.

Police Find Quantity of Poison in Belongings of Roediger

Toronto, July 17.—(CP)— Piece by piece, police today piled up evidence regarding the way George Roediger, philandering sausage-maker, had with women. He married at least nine of them and proposed to many more, police learned in an international check-up along his matrimonial trail.

While the much-married German remains in a Winnipeg jail cell under an 18-year sentence for bigamy and theft, police here continued to pry into a handful of personal belongings he left before going west. Latest discovery, it was learned last night, was a quantity of poison, hidden among his possessions.

Analysis to determine whether this was the same kind of poison as that which caused the death of Mota Roediger, his first wife with whom he lived in St. Catharines and whom death in 1926 was investigated by a Coroner's jury. The jury could not determine, who administered the poison.

Two long-handled butcher knives were also in the trunk left at a Vaughan Road address where Roediger lived with Mrs. Christina McKenzie, whom he wed at Barrie in August, 1936, and into whose disappearance police now centre their investigations.

CHEDDAR CHEESE QUITE POPULAR IN ENGLAND

Montreal, July 17 (CP)—P. Woodhams, London, England, wholesale grocer visiting Montreal, said Canadian Cheddar cheese is the "most popular in England in its season".

Cheese-loving English people like a "full cream cheese" and Canadian Cheddar with an 80 per cent cream content is preferred over other varieties, said Mr. Woodhams.

New Zealand Cheddar ranks next in popularity in England but it and Canadian don't compete since their seasons supplement each other, the grocer added.

BRITAIN PRACTISES 'FITNESS'

The "keep fit" principle is being developed in every part of the world. A dispatch from London the other day said in future the comic cartoons of John Bull would show him with an ample chest and not with a corpulent stomach as John Bull has been known to date. Physical training, in other words, is to be adopted by the physical training bill has been passed in the cry for a "fitter" Britain.

Recreation grounds have been opened up for employees in many scores of plants.

The open air development stage has been reached. Twenty-two regional committees have charge of the improving of the British physique good as it is.

That the outdoors is gaining more devotees than at any other time in its history has been clearly enough indicated this summer, when practically the entire male population has taken to the most comfortable clothes or lack of clothes. It is nothing unusual to find a youth bare-chested and tanned, like folks of a warm clime, on the streets or see him in the home.

These are all signs of the throwing down of the barriers against the enjoyment of fitness and good health.

Fit as the present generation is, it would appear that the generations ahead will be still more fit if wars do not enter the picture to drain off the physically fittest of the race.

CANADIAN USE OF CREAM

The consumption of cream, as well as the consumption of almost any other food product may vary with the locality. It may not be the same in urban as in rural areas, and it may also vary to a considerable extent from one rural area to another and from one urban area to another. In the recent survey of milk and cream consumption in Canada by the Economics Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture it was found that the consumption of cream is highest in farm areas where it stands about 0.36 of a pint per head per week. The consumption of cream is almost the same in cities as in villages, the figures showing a weekly per head consumption of 0.26 and 0.25 of a pint respectively. This gives an average figure of 0.28 of a pint for all localities.

All localities situated in Alberta show a much higher consumption of cream than localities in either Ontario or Quebec. In the city of Calgary the consumption is 0.48 of a pint, while in the city of Oshawa in Ontario it is 0.17 of a pint and in Quebec city 0.14 of a pint. The difference is still greater with the villages. The weekly per head consumption of cream is 0.49 of a pint in Claresholm, Alberta and only 0.09 of a pint in Uxbridge, Ontario, and 0.11 of a pint in St. Romuald, Quebec.

The farm areas show great variations in the rate of cream consumption. Two cheese producing farm areas (one in Ontario and one in Quebec) show a larger consumption of cream than two other cheese producing areas in these provinces, and the Alberta farm area under review shows a much higher cream consumption than the two farm areas in Ontario and Quebec. The Quebec cheese-producing farm area has a low consumption of cream with a weekly per head consumption of only 0.8 of a pint and a weekly per family of 0.32 of a pint. The latter is even a lower rate than the per head consumption study are to be found in the April tables dealing with this cream consumption study are to be found in the April Economic Annalist, a copy of which may be obtained from the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

SPAIN AS TESTING GROUND

The tank was the great surprise of the Great War and really had much to do with winning the war, before the foe could secure an effective means of combatting it.

So far the present fighting in Spain has not developed any new factor, says a military expert.

Anyhow if any of the greater powers have developed surprises which they might use in a future war, they would not lose the effect of surprise by exposing it in the small civil war which is draining Spain. Such would be held back for drastic surprise and for the sake of preventing the enemy discovering a defence against it.

But there are no signs of a surprise in store according to military men who see nothing of the kind as likely. The Spanish war has given nothing new in the way of military tactics, though it has been a trying ground for other nations.

That's found on the fur or the pelts
Of dogs owned by anyone else;
Our dog is distinct
And we're terribly proud
That our dog isn't linked
With the rest of the crowd;
Our dog we would bid you all

DIG OUT

Many years ago Louis F. Swift, the packer, said to a group of his employes, "Boys, I am going to give you some advice that will surprise you. Get into debt and dig out. I know this is contrary to what you are usually told but my judgment, backed by experience, is that this is one of the best ways of getting ahead. Do not deprive yourselves of the things you want and ought to have because you cannot pay cash down. Get yourself a home, furnish it decently, and do other things that will tend to your comfort while you are able to enjoy them. What sense is there in hanging on to savings until all the zest is gone out of life? So I say again, get into debt and dig out. Then you have some real object before you."

"Save money" is such safe advice that it is given frequently. Most of us are disposed to give safe advice. We want to be free from responsibility if anything goes wrong. Bankers and lawyers invariably urge caution; consequently successful business men usually act first and then consult bankers and lawyers.—Bagology.

"PEACE AT ALMOST ANY PRICE" is the British Government's policy, said Mr. Anthony Eden in the British House of Commons in replying to attacks by Labor members who complained that Great Britain was not aggressive enough in meeting the emergencies arising out of the Spanish civil war caused by the actions of Germany and Italy. These people who shout war should be given muskets and placed in the thick of the fighting and see whether their belligerence would last. Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, is doing a good job preserving international peace under extremely difficult circumstances.

HARD ON THE SOIL

A farmer who was always complaining about everything was showing the result of fine growing weather and superior skill in cultivation, when his visitor said to him: "Well, you ought to be satisfied with such crops as these. There is certainly nothing lacking. You have nothing to kick about this year."

The old farmer stood in a meditating mood for a minute, then replied, "Well, you know, son, such crops as these are pesky hard on the soil."

11 DISTRICT MEN PAY A $5 FINE

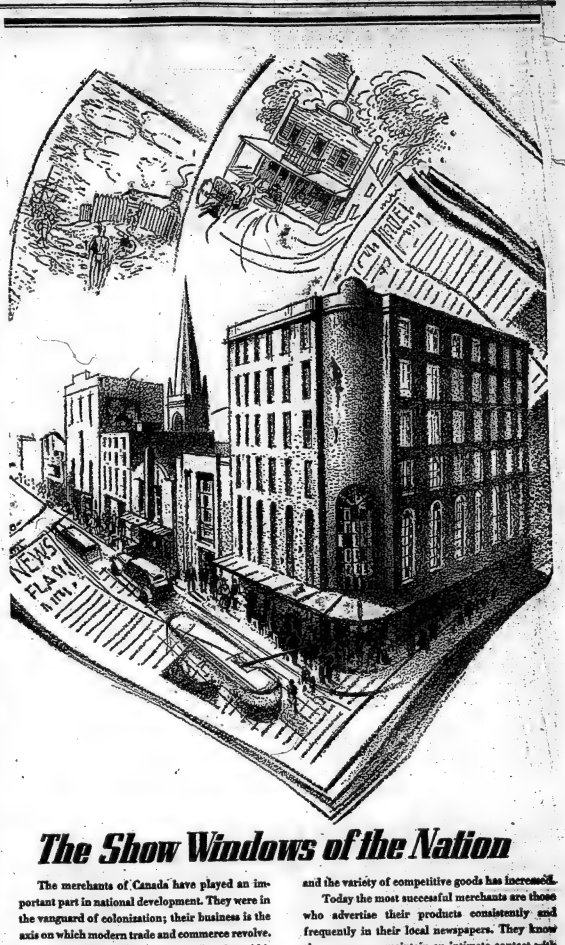
Evidence Showed They Tarred Toronto Traveller at Orangeville

Orangeville, Ont., July 17 (CP)—Cries of "get out of town" followed F. W. Johnson, Toronto traveller, when he stepped from the court-house here yesterday after eleven young district men had been convicted of assault. Evidence indicated they had tarred Johnson July 4. Each was fined $5 and costs.

Spectators who crowded Magistrate Jr. J. C. Bull's courtroom gathered outside as Johnson and Mrs. Robert Lemkow, the woman in the case, emerged after the hearing. Jeers sounded as Johnson drove away in an automobile.

Among the eleven convicted were Percy and Marvin Smith, brothers of Mrs. Lemkow who admitted, she and Johnson were "going together." Charges against two others were dismissed after evidence was heard, while three of the original fifteen charges were dropped. Johnson told the court he was assaulted by a gang of men while returning from a picnic with Mrs. Lemkow and her young daughter.

Dashed With Tar Chief



He said the men choked him and pulled off his clothing, dashing him with tar. When he pleaded he was in poor health they desisted and did not apply the feathers one of them said.

"Bob was mad," he said of Mrs. Lemkow's husband but denied paying "secret attention" to the woman.

"You had no right to take the law into your own hands," said Magistrate Bull in warning the men against "mob rule". He commented that Mrs. Lemkow's attitude in court "does not warrant respect for her".

Mrs. Lemkow had admitted Johnson did not see her at her home, but said "that is his affair."

The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

ARCH-BIGAMIST FAKED SUICIDE, TORONTO POLICE LEARN

Following the weird trail left by George Fritz Roediger, convicted of bigamy in Winnipeg and sentenced to nine years' imprisonment, Toronto police, who seek the whereabouts of his wives who mysteriously disappeared from the Ontario capital, have discovered that Roediger was married at least 20 times.

They also learn that he has accounts in numerous banks throughout Canada, sufficient to make him a wealthy man. A macabre angle is added to the former German butcher's career by the fact that he tried to fake a suicide last summer by disappearing from a Lake Ontario steamer and leaving as evidence of his "death", the grip-case and contents, shown (Upper Right). A new picture of the arch-bigamist, is at Left and below at Right one of Mrs. Myla Roediger, the wife who accompanied him from Bremen, Germany, and, who died of mercury poisoning in St. Catharines, Ont., in 1926.

"HARVEST" GRASS-HOPPERS TO SAVE CROPS IN U.S. GRAIN BELT

Millions of grass-hoppers, sweeping through the great grain belt of mid-western United States have laid waste vast tracts of hay and grain fields and in many states farmers have organized to combat the scourge which, threatens complete destruction of their crops. One method of "harvesting" the insects is shown here; mules pull a sled-like contraption, 12 feet wide, through a field of alfalfa and the hoppers, after hitting the backboard, drop into trays filled with poison mixture. The Garden Party held last evening by Group 2, Tabernacle W.A., at the home of Mrs. Ernest Allen on Park Street, was very successful. The lawn was in splendid condition, and ga and lanterns was an inviting scene. Booths, prettily decorated, contained candy, ice cream, soft drinks and a fish pond was well patronized, members of the Group being in charge. Ice cream and cake were served at small tables. During the evening music by the Salvation Army Band was greatly appreciated by the guests.

Schoolmates met for a delightfully-arranged re-union today when Miss Lillian M. Gunther, Belleville, D.C., entertained at luncheon at the Queen's Hotel for a number of her former class-mates at Bloomfield School. A similar event last year was so thoroughly enjoyed by the guests and their hostess, that it should rightly be planned. After luncheon, the guests spent the afternoon at Victoria Park, where a pleasant time was spent together. Those present were; Mrs. Lloyd, Toronto; Mrs. Ellis Thrasher; Miss Basil Spencer, Mrs. Lowery, Mrs. Ross and Miss J. Ross of Bloomfield; and Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Defoe, Mrs. Shorey, Mrs. Clapp, and Mrs. John Moore, all teachers at Ameliasburg Hill School, all of Belleville.

QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, July 13th., twenty-three members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Geo. Conner leader of the girls project work spoke a few words of how their work was progressing.

At this was the first regular meeting since the annual meeting the members wished to show the Past President in some way the love and appreciation all felt towards her for her untiring and cheerful work over such a long period of time, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, president, asked Mrs. Garbutt to stand and the following address was read

Dear Mrs. Garbutt,—

We, the members of the Quinte Institute, learned with regret that you would not this year again accept the duties of our president.

We can say with pride that the twenty-five years during which you have been our president, have been filled with activities and successes inspired by the zealous interest and support you have always given our Institute.

We know that you must have often been discouraged and felt that your work was overlooked, but inspite your modesty and busy hours ties, you have given us of your best.

So just because we're human We find that hard to let you go And feel our fellows cheering By gift or word is meet

As a token of esteem

Although it's in arrears

Of loving service rendered

Through many faithful years.

We ask you as a small token of our esteem for you, and your many efficient services rendered our institute, to accept these gifts, not for their intrinsic value, but as a simple token of our love and esteem for you and your services. We shall treasure the memories of your helpfulness and kindly co-operation we extended to us and enjoy our best wishes.

Signed on pass conver our indivi dual feelings

We'd like to be the sort of friend that you have been to us

We'd like to be the help that you have been and always glad to be

We'd like to go the big things and the splendid things for you

But brush the gray from out your skies and leave them only blue

We're wishing at this time that we could but repay

A portion of the gladness; that you've strewn along the way

And could we have one wish this year

This only would it be, we'd like to be the sort of friend that you have always been.

(Signed on behalf of the Quinte Institute)—Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, Mrs. Geo. Conner, Mrs. W. Mitchell, Mrs. Noble Brown.

Mrs. Garbutt thanked the members for their kindness and surprise and thanked the members in her usual cheery way for the Pyrex plate and Institute pin given her.

All joined in singing "Blessed Be The Tie that Binds". The members enjoyed the solo given by Mrs. Insley and also the musical number given by Master Garnett Mitchell. Mrs. Conner gave a paper on house posts especially the fly. Mrs. Harry Grills gave a reading on the topic "The Girl's Chance". The Roll Call "Sing, Say or Pay" was well responded to only three times being received. A report of the District Annual was given by Mrs. Arnold Mitchell. There were one hundred and eleven tickets sold for dinner. The seven branches in the district were well represented and a very successful day enjoyed by all.

"Captains Courageous"

Magnificent and Stirring Version of Kipling's Sea Epic Now Playing with Lionel Barrymore, Freddie Bartholomew and Spencer Tracy.

"Captains Courageous", Rudyard Kipling's famed tale of the heroic Gloucester fishermen and the boy from whom they regenerated through ideals of courage and humanity, opened at the Belle today (Saturday) for a four days' engagement, after a sensational two weeks' showing at Loew's Theatre in Toronto. It is a spectacular, picturesque and compelling screen version by the company who gave the screen that earlier brimpus of the sea, "Mutiny on the Bounty." And once again Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has captured, in terms of camera magic, the spirit and beauty of the sea and of the men who go down to it in ships.

As for the cast—it is as perfect as a cast can be. In a portrayal surpassing even his acclaimed role in "David Copperfield" the brilliant child star, Freddie Bartholomew, brings to life the spoiled hero of "Captains Courageous" making the boy a creature of warmth, sympathy and understanding. Equally effective is the outstanding work of Spencer Tracy as the Portuguese fisherman, Manuel, who is the first to instill ideals of manhood into his little protege's mind and who becomes his fast friend to the very end. Tracy, ever revealing new acting power, plays the virile fighting Portuguese to the hilt and then adds a surprise by offering a half-dozen or more sailor changes in a pleasant if untutored baritone voice.

Then there is the always to be depended on Lionel Barrymore in a picturesque role as the ship's captain, and Melvyn Douglas in an effective and sympathetic part as the boy's father who only in the climax of the story is able to claim his son's affection. Of the supporting cast, too numerous to mention, there remains in one's mind the excellent work of Charley Grapewin as Uncle Ballen, the delightful Mickey Rooney as the captain's son, Jack La-Rue, John Carradine, Walter Kingsford and Donald Briggs.

When you have, besides this, the stirring story of a human heart taught a new meaning of life and a new understanding of the world and men's ways, aided by a group of the finest artists on the screen, you have a production that lives in your memory for years to come. Such a production is "Captains Courageous".

In addition to the above, the issue of the News for the present day and Monday only, has the only scenes taken of the clash between strikers and police, near the Redstone Steel plant, South Chicago, they are shown exactly as they came from the camera, WITHOUT EDITING. It is a fact that the censorship has profoundly stirred the U.S. and that the "reality" of it is now considered one of all thinking people. Don't miss it! Remember this newsreel is only presented today and Monday, matinee and evening, another newsreel is presented Tuesday and Wednesday, with the above feature "Captains Courageous". Perfect management starts daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.15 p.m. Feature begins at 2.40, 7.10 and 9.25 p.m. daily. Please come early for a better choice of seats.

AT THE CAPITOL

Jean Harlow in "Riff Raff" and Fredrick March and Charles Laughton in "Les Miserables"

Jean Harlow has never displayed her versatility as an actress to better advantage than in "Riff Raff," coming to the Capitol on Sunday, midnight, Monday and Tuesday, as a return engagement by popular request for the legion of Harlow fans who still cherish her charity in their memory.

She follows her smashing hit in "China Seas" with another sparkling role, again against the background of the sea, but in a vital, romantic story, which gives her the finest opportunity of her career.

Teamed with her for the first time is one of Hollywood's finest actors, Spencer Tracy, and the two miss no opening to get the most out of the powerful and sweeping story, which mixes the most hilarious comedy with the most touching pathos.

The story of "Riff Raff" invades a broad new locale for universal fishing fleet that piles the waters of the Pacific off Southern California. Much of the story takes place in the fishing village adjacent to the great California metropolis—a community affiliated with the city, yet entirely separated as though in a different world. There the fishermen and their families live their lives, and work out their destinies without contact with outside influences.

"Riff Raff" tells of the love of Miss Harlow and Tracy, a love that transcends man-made laws, yet is masked with a veil of rough badinage that cannot entirely conceal its depth and sincerity. It presents Miss Harlow in one of her most unusual roles, as part of the waterfront who marries a braggart and a bully and spends the rest of her life trying to reform him.

Tracy is shown as a swaggering skipper of a tuna clipper, a two-fisted sivvy man who rules the fleet with an iron hand. Into the story are woven economic problems as vital as tomorrow, and thrills such as the screen has seldom seen.

On the Same Bill

Fresh laurels are heaped on the heads of Fredric March and Charles Laughton as co-stars of the production of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," playing at the Capitol on Sunday, midnight, Monday and Tuesday as revival hit No. 2.

A truly great picture, handsomely mounted and flawlessly directed this production follows the eventful life of Jean Valjean who suffered five years of torture in the galleys of a French prison only for stealing a loaf of bread and found his whole life darkened in the shadow of the law in the person of Javert, a fanatical detective who has dedicated himself to capturing out that Law to the letter. March does the finest work or his career as the unfortunate Valjean, and Laughton as that hero as Javert. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, the celebrated British stage and screen star is splendid, making his American screen debut in the role of the kindly Bishop who vens who starts the brutalized ex-convict on the road to a noble and prosperous life.

Rochelle Hudson as Jean Valjean's ward, Cosette, and John Beal as her sweetheart Marius furnish the love interest which offers a counterpoint to Valjean's desperate adventures in his life-long attempt to evade the relentless Javert.

Saturday Only

Shown today only with matinee at 2.30 and evening at 6.15, Dick Foran the singing cowboy is seen in the western thriller "Cherokee Strip" with Dick singing the song he made famous "My Little Buckaroo." The comedy, latest news events, musical comedy, cartoon, and a treasure chest novelty complete this splendid show.

Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, and Spencer Tracy in "Captains Courageous" now playing at the Belle.

Home Improvement Loans Boon To Many in Belleville

One Man Converted Home into Duplex And Enjoys Revenue Provided—Home Improvement Epidemic, Bringing Out Private Funds—Bachelor Apartments—How it Works in the Country.

Not only is the Home Improvement Plan providing employment for many classes of trades and people beautifying homes and adding much needed improvements to city and rural residences in Belleville and district, but it is also opening up hitherto unexplored channels and sources of revenue.

For instance there is the case of an elderly citizen of Belleville, at present employed but who faces retirement on pension in the near future. Under the system of the Home Improvement Plan, he borrowed sufficient money to convert his home into a duplex dwelling, and by renting the newly acquired addition to his home at a good rental. He now has no eed to worry for the future, for not only will the revenue derived from the new source pay for his loan but will substantially add to his income when the loan is paid up. Thanks to the Home Improvement Plan, his home is beautified, has been added to substantially, and is paying a dividend which in all probability would not have been made possible had the new plan not come into being.

Bringing Out Private Funds

Another important phase which is directly responsible to the Plan is the fact that a large amount of private funds which in all probability would have lain dormant are now being utilized in the remodelling and beautifying of many homes throughout the province. This was typified here in Belleville recently when a lady called upon her banker with regard to borrowing a sum of money under the new system with which to remodel her home. Upon being given the information and told the benefits to be derived, the lady in question decided to utilize private funds of her own. Consequently more money is being put in circulation, more people are being employed, and building and business in general is undergoing a stimulation which it otherwise would not have experienced to such an extent.

Bachelor Apartments Produce Revenue

Another instance of the tremendous possibilities and practicalities of the Home Improvement Plan is seen in the case of a city resident who through the medium of loans secured under this system converted a newly acquired "wilderness" into a land of plenty. This particular case is the story of a man who realized the possibilities of not only supplying business and labor with an added stimulant, but utilized the money secured by loan in providing a source of income.

14 hundred square feet of waste land underwent practically overnight a magical transformation. Now instead of the drab colors of unused property, there stands a trim, modern building containing three three-roomed bachelor apartments, which will provide sufficient income within the next year to more than liquidate the amount of the loan. In a short time this fine property will bring in a revenue to its owner which will not only pay for taxes, etc., but also supply a handsome income.

Machine Shed and Electricity

Not only have residents of the city taken advantage of this opportunity to improve and add to their dwellings, but many rural dwellers have realized their ambition to modernize their homes and erect much-needed additions and improvements to their buildings. One farmer today boasts a modern machine-shed, one which will house practically all of his farm implement. Others have, in conjunction with the Hydro Commission, installed electricity in their barns. New additions have been added to farm homes in many instances, and in some cases the installation of a modern bathroom has been the result of the advantages offered under the Home Improvement Plan.

Further instances of how the Home Improvement Plan is working in Belleville and district will be given in Saturday's issue.

Hector Bolitho, a biographer of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, presents a fresh biography of "The Hamlet of the House of Hanover, the Life and Times of Viii His Life and Reign." Mr. Bolitho is a New Zealander who was attached to the Duke of Windsor when he made his tour of New Zealand as Prince of Wales, and was able to gain many first hand recollections of the Duke's early manhood. The Duke is shown as against the background of his history, of his war and political activities, his home and family circle, of the social and political conditions of the times. The interesting of this biography in the New York Times sums up the story which he says, "The sentence passed on Edward by authority is oblivion. People are requested to forget him. This volume is proof that the forgotten man will ever be remembered."

"South With Scott," is an incomparable record of the famous Polar Admiral Sir Edward R.G.R. Evans, Commander of the Second British Antarctic Expedition of 1910. The author has written his story to keep alive the interest of English speaking people in the story of Scott and his little band of gallant adventurers, scientific explorers and companions. "Certainly" says Admiral Evans, "no expedition ever left our shores with a more ambitious scientific programme or with more enterprise of this description ever undertaken by a more enthusiastic and determined personnel. The story of courage and hardship in the tireless search for the lost Scott, only to find that the Norwegian Expedition had reached it a short time before, is one that will live as an epic of heroism in the face of death. The records made by Scott of his memorable last marches on his return journey from the Pole cannot fail to impress even the casual reader. This volume is outstanding also in that it is illustrated with the remarkable photographs taken at the Pole by Herbert Ponting, official photographer to the Expedition.

With the thirty-second annual issue of The Studio Year Book, "Decorative Art 1937" comes the question "what trend is foreshadowed in architecture and decoration in the year of the coronation?" On glancing through the pages of this lovely book, the reader will be delighted to find that amplification is the theme of the decoration. Architects and decorators are ridding homes of non-essentials to plan for twentieth-century conditions of life. The designers of homes have certainly not merely a men of good taste but as interpreters of social life. Trends are illustrated with photographs of actual homes in England and America. All the details of the home are considered from home plans, lighting, furniture down to the most minute details of fabrics, table arrangement, pottery and glass.

MAJOR GRAFTON DIES

Dundas, Ont., July 17—(CP)—Major James Stewart Grafton, 48, Vice-President of the Grafton Company and son of Col. J. J. Grafton, died at his home here last night.

Born in Dundas on Dec. 24, 1888, he was educated in the town schools and Highfield School, Hamilton. He entered the Grafton Company in 1905, and has for many years held the position he occupied at his death.

A keen military man, he belonged to the old 77th regiment before the war and later became a major in the Westwood Regiment. He went overseas in 1914 with the first contingent and was gassed, when the vapour was first used. He enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of sergeant.

MINER FALLS DOWN CHUTE

Sudbury, Ont., July 17.—(CP)—Joseph Kakko, 36, Sudbury, was killed when caught in a run of ore and pulled into a chute at Frood Mine last night. He fell about 30 feet.

Employed at Frood Mine of the International Nickel Company since February Kakko was working in the 2950 level in stope 23 as a timberman when the falling of concrete skull was fractured.

He is survived by his widow and two children.

TWEEDSMUIR PARTY IN ALBERTA

Red Deer, Alta., July 17—(CP)—The Governor-General and his touring party leave today for Pincher Creek following several days in the Drumheller and Red Deer districts of Central Alberta. The viceregal party will remain in Edmonton until Monday.

Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir took advantage of cessation of heavy rains yesterday to drive 124 miles to Settler and back to this town. Crowds greeted them at Innisfail and Lacombe.

Davis Cup Seems Sure Thing for U. S.

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, July 17—Now that the Chinese, Bessarabians and Mexicans have been clubbed out of the picture, the International Davis Cup imbroglio begins to make sense. There still are three firms doing business, England, Germany and the United States and it won't be long until you know which is the best of these.

"The Germans knocked off the Czechs, removing the last barrier to a battle with the team from the U.S.A., consisting of Donald Budge, Gene Mako, Frankie Parker and Sitzy Grant. In giving you those four names, we are merely dutifully supplying the entire cast. It would have been easier and more accurate to have written the name of Donald Budge. He's the American ball club.

Von Cramm is the Man

Germany has a chap named Hinrich Henkel on the team, but the drama of the Davis Cup this year will be enacted by Baron Gottfried von Cramm as far as Europe is concerned. Lines are drawn for battle between von Cramm and the Californian redhead, Donald Budge, at Wimbledon. The winner will have the right to challenge England for the cup which left the United States years ago. Budge is the only American on the premises who has defeated the Germans. Back in 1935 he chilled both Henkel and von Cramm in singles. Since then Budge has so improved that he will be favorite to wipe the courts with the Germans. Those who have seen him at Wimbledon say he is unbeatable.

Following this line of reasoning to its bitter end, a victory for the United States appears close to certain this year. England is picked to lose, even by English Journalists who have plumped for the team in past years. George Patrick Hughes, one of the greatest doubles players in the game, has been driven to the sidelines with a nervous breakdown. The plan is to have Frank Wilde team with C. R. D. Tuckey in the doubles, and this pair should offer no great problem for the Americans to overcome.

That brunt of the singles struggle will fall upon the shoulders of H. W. (Sunny) Austin. Austin beat Budge two years ago, 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5, but since then the Britisher has gone so far back, while Budge has come forward so steadily, that a repetition of this is not expected. Austin's game has been indifferent this year.

It's all over then. It appears, but the shouting.

"HUNCH" BETTORS HAVE FIELD DAY

By the Canadian Press

"Hunch" bettors were cheered at Fort Erie track when four long shots paid off in yesterday's seven-race card. A good crowd of 6,000 saw Charlie McTague's mount bring Lady Camelot home in the second to pay the longest price of the week, 47-10-one.

The Verchere Stable's Nolsette captured the featured Hotel Ford purse when Frankie Vaise steered the horse into the lead at the last turn and thumped in a good five lengths ahead of Goanwin of the Cosgrave Stable. Conny Smythe's Ocala made up time after taking a wide turn but failed to catch Goanwin and finished third.

Jockey Lindfergh rode Timon to a surprise win in the opener over Neil Kuhlman and Sowmogo. King Bob and Chips were the other good-price winners in the sixth and seventh respectively.

STRETCH!—A fast baseman has to reach out for one now and then. You see Harry Davis of the Nats was going after a long throw.

POINT ANNE IN FIRST PLACE BY BEATING CORBINS

Lorne Bateman Beats Johnnie Bawden in Thrilling Game

SOME FINE FIELDING

Point Anne Made Their Blows Count in The Clutches

Lorne Bateman's hit in the eighth inning connected the ball with the right field fence and saw the Corbin Locks blow up and the Point Anne "Cementmen" go on to win a regular baseball game by the score of 13 to 8 over the "lockmen" at Coleman Plate last night. The Point Anne victory elevated the "cementmen" into first place in the league standing, a half a game in front of the defeated Corbin team.

Spectators at Point Anne team seven runs in the first three innings the Corbin Locks staged a moneyed comeback to knot the score in the fifth as Lorne Bateman and Johnnie Bawden hooked up in a stellar pitchers' duel, of which Bateman emerged a well-deserved victor.

After tying the score however, the Corbins went to pieces as the "cementmen" applied the pressure and scored six big runs by taking advantage of the Corbins' lackness in the field sighth.

Making the most of their hits and pounding out base blows in the clutches the Secore-lead Point Anne team made no mistake in the field in the game. Generaeur hit for the circuit with the bases filled at Point Anne scored four in the second inning. Corbins scored four in the third by virtue of three successive singles, three of which were bunts, that left the visitors literally flat-footed. Shad Athler put the "lockmakers" back in the running with a home run in the fourth inning and the score was all knotted up in the fifth. The visitors took command at this point until the eventful eighth when the Corbin balloon ascended and the "cementmen" counted six more runs on four hits, two walks and an infield out.

Winners Outhit

The Corbins outhit the Point Anne squad 13 to ten, but failed to connect Bateman's darts in the last two frames, when hits meant runs. Shaky in the early stages, Bateman pitched away and as the game progressed to finish in fine style. "Farmer" Rigby, Corbin pitcher, was also one of the hitters of the game with a triple, double and two singles to his credit. Athler had a home run five times at bat, a double, triple and a single, when Heen Johnson, Corbin catcher, was also one of safeties. For the victors Bateman helped his own cause with two singles, one of which sent what proved to be the winning run across the plate. Generaeur hit for the circuit and added a single in two tries. Dickey Johnson connected had a brace of safeties while Gus-tin Lewis hit safely in three attempts. Bateman struck out three batters and walked one while Bawden struck out four and passed five via the four ball route.

The fielding sensations were provided by the third basemen, Rickey Johnson of Generaeur to drive in the fifth and Merav's pickup of Tuttle's liner in the eighth to stop a Corbin rally. The Corbins scored one in the ninth on Rigby's hit, but could not overcome the advantage piled up by the new league leaders.

The line-ups—Point Anne—Murray lf, Whildehed 3b; Sero ss; Generaeur; Claudio 1b; Dickey 2b; Bateman p; Merav 3b; Tummon cf and Bateman c. Corbin Locks—Johnson 3b; Ehler 2b; Rigby cf; Reid 1b; St. Denis rf; Nunn ss; Cook ss; Tuttle c and Bawden p.

COCHRANE BACK IN MONTH

Detroit, July 17 (AP) — Mickey Cochrane expects to be in uniform and managing Detroit Tigers within a month, but he won't catch any this season.

The Tiger boss, convalescing from a fractured skull, said today in an interview—the first here since his injury May 26—that he still was uncertain whether he ever would be able to play again.

"It's too early to tell whether I will ever play again. I'm likely to have a lot of funny thoughts if I ever step on the baseball field again. Frankly, I don't know whether the lid confidence will ever come back."

GREYHOUND TROTS MILE IN 1.59 3-4 ON A HALF-MILE RING

Goshen, N.Y. July 17.—(AP)—Greyhound, American trotting champion owned by E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., smashed the world half-mile track record for trotting one mile today as he made his first start of the season on the semi-final day of Goshen's Grand Circuit race meeting.

The lanky grey horse, which has been matched with the Italian-owned Mustafa, champion of Europe, for a pair of races this fall and winter, trotted the mile over the historic oval in 1.59 3-4. This bettered his own world record of 2.03, made on the Allentown, Pa., half-mile oval last fall and the track record of 2.02 3-4, made by Uhlan in 1911. It also surpassed, the best mile ever made by a racer over a half-mile track 2.01.

Yesterday's rain made the track still slow. Nevertheless, Greyhound, driven by Sep Palin and paced by a running mate driven by Will Fleming, covered the first quarter-mile in 30 1-2 seconds, the half in 1.00, three-quarters in 1.30 1-2, and the last quarter in 29 1-4 seconds to finish in 1.59 3-4.

Gas House Gang of Cards Within Shooting Distance Of Top Teams by Twin Win

Tigers Also Knocked Off Yankees to Make Race Close

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Group Writer.)

The baseball pictures on a somewhat screwy slant today as the alleged big-time looked like the maddest Bowl League.

The National League gave signs of the screwy spell of wild goofiness a 1910 model car yesterday. The Yankees and Tigers put on a burlesque that may have been entertaining in a circus sideshow as 43 pitchers paraded from ball pen to mound to showers in nine games; 136 runs were scored and 226 hits banged out; there were more defensive finishes than a 32-saw parade. Out of the merry-go-round, the Cubs staggered with their same three-percentage point margin over the Giants in the National League race, although both nose-dived to defeat. The Yanks, soundly whipped, had their American League lead cut to two games.

Giants Three One Away

Both the Giants and the Cubs, by their performances of the last few days, seem to be out to out-lose each other in their close fight for National League lead. The Cubs were crippled by Lou Fette's three-hit pitching and lost a 4-1 decision as Boston Bees. It was their fourth beating in six games.

The Giants gave a chance to climb back into the driver's seat, threw it away by handing Pittsburgh Pirates an unearned run in the 11th inning, and a 4-3 decision. That setback was the Giants' second in four starts.

As a result, the Bucs and the St. Louis' gas-house gang of Cardinals are back within shooting distance of the pace-setters again. The Cards knocked the ruffling out of two pitchers and clubbed the Phillies 10-3 and 18-10 in a double-header that went into a third-place tie with the Pirates. St Johnson was the winning pitcher in both and, going the route in the opener and the last two frames of the 10-inning nightcap. The Cards scored eight runs in the extra frame of the afterpiece.

Sewell Walks Given Tigers

Screwiest of all, however, was that pat on by the Yanks and Tigers before the Detroits came through with a 14-7 win. Shut out for five innings, the Tigers exploded in the sixth and scored seven runs. But the payoff was that they collected just one safe hit during the rally. Seven walks and a pair of errors were handed them on a platter.

Brooklyn's fans, who get queer baseball at best, were still dazed over the 6-5 thumping their Dodgers handed the Reds. Although they knocked 19 hits all over the lot, the Brooklyn beauties had to put on a three-run rally in the ninth to win.

Pinh Higgins' homer gave the Red Sox a 6-4 victory over St. Louis Browns. The Chicago White Sox breezed in with a 9-4 win over the Athletics. The Indians cuffed the Senators again 11-5.

"Sluggers" Chalk up Tenth Straight Win of Season

Behind the two hit pitching of slongated Ernie Smith the Cannifton "Sluggers" pounded their way to an 8 to 0 win over the Kiwanis Juniors at the Fair Grounds last night for their tenth consecutive victory, without a defeat in the season, in the South Hastings League last evening. The game was terminated in the sixth owing to darkness.

Smith's fireball whizzed past the local juniors in succession, Kelleher and Carson counting the only safeties registered against his deliveries, both being doubles, however. The "Sluggers" touched Joe Kelliher for a total of eight safeties, L. Jarrell, the visitors' second baseman getting three successive singles in four tries. The Shorey-Bartlett-Jarrell trio batted home runs in the third inning on three hits, three errors and an infield out and added three more in the sixth on a walk, an error and two on DeGray's Chuck Barclay connecting with one of Kelleher's fast balls for a triple.

Kelliher held the hitters of the night with a trio of singles. Outgetting a double and a single in his efforts, while Simpson touched Kelliher for a two base blow in his fatal second. In the second inning when the Cannifton Club scored five runs on three errors and a hit batsman there was not a single earned run to cross the plate, however. Kelleher hurled steady ball but five errors behind him resulted in defeat being chalked up against the local righthander.

Strike Out Ten

The Kiwanis juniors are only one half a game out of a play-off position in the South Hastings League, however, and expect to move into that coveted position on Monday night, when they meet the Foxboro team in the second game at the Fair Grounds, Foxboro won the first by 19-8.

Smith struck out ten in the six innings while Kelleher walked five. Smith walked four, however, as Kelleher only passed one through the four times he was issued an at times Smith hit two batters and lost to be out-done, in the walking one. The Kiwanis kids kicked in with five glaring errors to the visitors' credit.

OLD BILL WALKER STILL A HURLER

Cardinal Farm Hand Defeats Jersey City 9 to 2

(By the Associated Press)

Old Bill Walker must be reading the papers these days. It was just the other day that Ferd Sam Breadon, president of St. Louis Cardinals, was bewailing the Cards lack of hurlers.

Now this may not have anything to do with it, but Walker, 40 year pitching for the Cards' Rochester farm of the International league, popped up, opportunely enough, with a well-pitched game last night.

Bill held Jersey City Giants to nine hits to give the Red Wings a 9-2 victory. Besides the performance, was not anything to rave about, it still was a good, steady job.

It was the wily southpaw's eighth victory against five defeats for a fifth place club. Jersey City pilots show Old William to be a fair pitching prospect for the big march with 16 years of organized baseball behind him.

Another pitcher, young Whitey Moore, came through with another one of his sterling performances. Moore set Toronto down with four hits and fanned 13 as the Syracuse Chiefs walloped Leafs 13-1. Victor put the Chiefs back on the .500 mark and boosted them into third place, a half game in front of the Reds and Buffalo Bisons, who lost 10-5 to Newark Bears.

The Baltimore-Montreal game was rained out.

From a reliable source we learned that a deputation of influential Trenton business men recently approached Hilbo Walker, former outstanding athletic coach and trainer now residing in Belleville relative to changing his address to near Trenton, Ont. The farseeing sports sponsors of Trenton realize the distinct advantage it would be to have a man the calibre of Billie Hughes at the helm of their athletic ventures. We understand the Trent sportsmen to approach Mr. Hughes offered to give him all available facilities and a free hand at sponsoring and advancing sport in their town if he would merely take up residence in that community. There has been such a general exodus of sport and athletic talent from Belleville during the past few years that the situation is really appalling. In Billie Hughes a golden opportunity to stimulate interest in sporting activities among the young citizens of Belleville and the City services of a proven coach was belittled by the mere asking, but according to those who should be accurately interested in the re-establishment of athletics in our midst are letting their grip slip to a lamentable degree.

A new sporting venture is being tried in Belleville on Sunday when the Belleville Yacht Club will hold their weekly sail race on the bay. Any one of the numerous yachts and boats that are moored in the re-establishment of athletics in our midst are letting their grip slip to a lamentable degree.

A new sporting venture is being tried in Belleville on Sunday when the Belleville Yacht Club will hold their weekly sail race on the bay. Any one of the numerous yachts and boats that are moored in the re-establishment of athletics in our midst are letting their grip slip to a lamentable degree.

The funeral of Albert Jackson, brother of Clayton and Bill Jackson, of the Belleville Redmen lacrosse, late O.H.A. champions was held from the family residence in Deseronto yesterday. A large floral tribute was by the Belleville Hockey Club through Manager Eddie Thomas. Albert having played his first O.H.A. hockey with the Belleville juniors last winter.

After a rather flashy start Lorne Bateman settled away to hard extremely steady ball and the Point Anne "mudballers" not only trounced the Corbin locks 13 to 8 last evening, but the "cementmen" snatched the league leadership of the heat under artificial light right from under the noses of the Corbins. It was a rather queer game. The visitors pounced on Johnnie Bawden's deliveries for six runs in the second and were leading seven to nothing in the third. The Owens hailed from Corbin had knotted the count in the fifth and scored certain winners, but Bateman tightened up and when the premium was applied the "lockers" blew up in the eighth and before the balloon came down the Point Anne team had bumped in six big runs. Bateman helped his own cause with a timely single with the bases loaded to the hilt. Some sensational fielding was shown, Ridley of Merav's appealing third sacker starts making fine plays in the city's lines, but both teams were guilty of some dumb ball as well. The Corbins' pass were not there when the chips were down and the "cementmen" reserved the day's honours. Incidentally the largest crowd of the season witnessed the game and the Point Anne Athletic Club was too good for the Corbins.

Minus the services of Joe Gould, Sam Partridge and Lorne Smart, three of their leading regulars, the Trenton-Belleville Flying Rovers took a 12 to 7 beating at the hands of the Oshawa "222" last night. The game was fast and clean and despite the fact the home team had the better of the game witnessed a tidy struggle.

CHAPTER VII.

Larry Smith and her married! He lived at Brett Hall with his mother and his sister.

Daphne said, "Let's have frog's legs for dinner and something gala for a sweet."

"Not for me. My figure means too much to me," Larry answered promptly and stretched her lithe form full-length on the floor.

"Why the sudden celebration?"

Daphne couldn't tell her that she was suddenly light and gay inside her—lighter and gayer than she had been these last two months. She couldn't say that it made her happy that Larry Smith wasn't married. She took her happiness into the kitchen and she was afraid Larry could think. She wanted to think of her own stupidity and be aware of the knowledge that he had dropped in to say her, Daphne, a word.

He must have, she reasoned, because he didn't known Jennifer. She now had the upper hand. After a brief moment the thought of Jennifer's beauty made her heart depressed her. Then she set her mouth in the determined line she sometimes found there when she had a difficult problem at the agency to overcome.

Let Jennifer take what was hers and fight for what was mine. Daphne didn't mind a little competition.

Not that she was in love with Larry Smith—

She dismissed the thought instantly as being ridiculous. And that satisfied her. She was glad to hop in her car and be back at the theatre in time to meet her friend. The first man to whom she had been instantly attracted. The first man she had ever known so briefly and never been able to forget. Even a year had passed that.

She thought of Tuck Ainsley and a small frown puckered her smooth forehead. Could it be possible that Tuck Ainsley had resents when she thought of taking Tuck seriously? Was it a game? He was a challenge to her. She'd introduced him to so many attractive girls that he had never thought yet he was devoted to her—as devoted as Tuck could be. And he had asked her to marry him.

"Well," she told the salad she was mixing, "if someone like Larry Smith doesn't come into my life, I'll probably marry someone like Tuck some day."

XXX

"How was the job today?" she said to Larry when they were seated at the candle-lit table. Usually she avoided the subject since Jennifer could be counted on to be happy about it. Tonight her sense of well-being needed to tolerate even of that unpleasantness.

"Lousy," Jennifer said carelessly. "Darling why don't you attack it from a different point of view? You wanted me to work in Wall Street and you're working there. There must be something good about it. I know that you're not used to being cooped up but that's what goes with it, you know. When you get to like it, it doesn't seem confining. What exactly is the trouble?"

"Mrs. Jennifer said. "The wrong ones. There are some awfully attractive boys in the outfit but I never see them. I don't meet them. Then old Harrison asks me to lunch and I suppose I have to or he could have a date with me on Friday night. You can imagine what it's like."

"I can," replied Daphne. "Of course, Jennifer, I'm sorry. It isn't the conducting age. And he does have possibilities. Some night as well learn now as later. Jennifer, that the attractive boys you meet in the new girls in their own set."

"I'd like to know if you mean that I'm not good enough for them!" Mrs. Jennifer's tone was quite frosty.

"I know Daphne went on patiently, "but we can't go around with a marked page 'S' of the social register on our backs. And we can't talk about it. New York is a big town, Jennifer. Every working girl is labeled the working girl here the same as anywhere else even if she does manage to have more chances. She has to work for it. You can't use her job as a social wedge. Not your kind of a job."

"Why not?" Jennifer disagreed. "If I get a chance to meet the kind of men I want to meet you can't I take advantage of the opportunity? I am a girl—"

"You're not a chorus girl, Jennifer."

"Not yet," Jennifer said, and seeing the shadow darken her sisters face, she went on, leaning over the table and kissed Daphne on the lips with her hand.

"You're like a naughty child," Daphne said "and you'll have to be punished for frightening me. You can wash the dishes and I'll wipe them."

Jennifer splashed water merrily on her sister and Daphne ducked about it, I can send it to the cleaners."

Daphne wanted to protest that every dollar—

"Why didn't you tell me how attractive the Brett tenant is?" Jennifer interrupted and Daphne had no answer. She didn't—or hadn't seem much point in extolling the attractions of a married man to her young sister.

"I thought he was very attractive the one time I saw him," she said, concentrating on the glass she was drying.

"He trouble with you, Daph, is that you don't know how to make

"Did the feeling you sense ever you suddenly," Daphne went on. "that you were nothing more than dull lump of clay? That the girlhood was gone forever?"

the best of your opportunities."

Daphne smiled a quizzical, eyebrow. Jennifer went on:

"I do! The one thing you saw him, indeed! I saw him once and made up my mind I was going to see him again."

"There's a 9 o'clock train. You might run out and ask him if the water pipes are working." Daphne said dryly.

"No need for that, I'm subtle. I'll do it my way—the subtle way."

"It's a great help to be subtle," Daphne agreed pleasantly.

"What are you doing Sunday afternoon?" Jennifer asked a minute later.

Daphne suppressed a smile. Was this the subtle way?

"Sunday? I see—oh, yes, the Frankiands are having a supper party for Kim Preston and his bride. We're both invited. Don't you remember? You said you were going to wear your black velvet."

"Oh, heavens! Another of those dreary suppers! How can you, Daphne? And singled an invitation to the last one. I think I'll stick to it. I never get a chance to get outdoors and on my one day away from the office I'm apt to stand around a smoky living room with a lot of old fogies."

Daphne digested the disclosures in Jennifer's speech.

Daphne buried her face in the Sunday newspaper and pretended not to see Jennifer's scrutiny. She stretched her legs in her velvet lounging pajamas as though she were settling down for the winter.

"I'll three, Daph. Aren't you going to get dressed?"

Jennifer looked at the little wrist watch under her tweed sleeve.

"What are you going to do, Daphne asked lazily.

"Tuck is coming around in his new roadster and I'm to drive in the country."

The country. Daphne knew meant Brett Hall.

"That must be Tuck now," she said when an imperious rap sounded at the door.

It was Tuck.

"Hello, kids. What's this? The demon worker Daphne in pajamas at this time of day?"

Daphne managed a look of appealing sweetness.

"Don't scold, Tuck. I'm feeling lazy and fussy and dreading going to a smoky party with a lot of old fogies."

Jennifer gave her a sharp glance.

"When why go?" Tuck said at once as Daphne had intended he should. "Get into your clothes and come with us."

"Where are you going?" she asked innocently.

"Thought you knew. No place special. Jen wanted to drive up to Brett Hall to see the foliage."

"Fine!" Daphne answered over her shoulder as she disappeared into her bedroom. "Since you're going no place special, I'll be to see the foliage myself. I'll be ready in a jiffy."

Jennifer's angry eyes missed here.

CHAPTER VIII.

Daphne came back to the living room ten minutes later. She wore her bright green tweed suit a big collar of soft black fur. Her small green hat hugs a tantalizing fashion of pleated brush bangs and its crown. The brightness of the colors painted up the warm, soft black contrast of her skin and hair.

Tuck looked at her approvingly while she drew on her black gloves. Then his glance swung around to Jennifer—Jennifer looking very much like a vermilion cover girl in her yellow wool coat, a shade deeper than her soft flaxen hair which flowed out from beneath a childish bonnet of brown velvet.

He sighed.

"I wish I could make up my mind which of you two girls is the more beautiful. You're such perfect foils for each other. Ah me! A man has troubles."

Daphne avoided Daphne's eyes and was angry with herself for doing so. "Why not make up your mind, Tuck? It isn't likely Jennifer will have any competition for her into any competition for a mere man: Would we, Daphne?"

She made her eyes admit a question. They were cool, penetrating eyes and left no doubt of their meaning.

Daphne laughed. "Don't be ridiculous, you two. Who ever thought of such an idea; Jennifer, don't ever take Tuck seriously. He never means anything he says."

"Suppose you help make my own conclusions? I'm not really a child, you know." Jennifer's voice was a little sulky.

"You certainly are." Tuck said and pretended to shove her out the door.

XXX

She is really a child, Daphne thought, noting the rudeness in Jennifer's tone. I must get to the roadster. She kept her lovely eyes straight ahead and answered Tuck's cheerful attempts at conversation in monosyllables.

She is acting like a child and I'm not a child, Jennifer thought bitterly. Daphne's thoughts ran on, unfortunately.

But she couldn't be unhappy for long. Wasn't she going to see Larry Smith?

It would be nice when they got out into the city. Tuck was telling Jennifer. Daphne thought it was nice in the city. The scampering of the el pillars, the crowded, gray streets, the unattractive stragglers on the sidewalk all these were drawn into the warm anticipatory mood of Daphne. Her thoughts raced ahead of the car and between the hurrying blurs value of every treasured moment, she savored the next even as she wished she could have held on to the last. This is quickened sense was something she had never experienced.

She was a fool to feel that way. Trying to put her thoughts back in their proper order she looked about her. Tuck was driving through the familiar backwoods roads of Plainsport and were at last on the Brett Hall road. Daphne sighed with relief to find that she was not a fool.

Something in Larry Smith's eyes when he saw her had told her, too, that she was not silly.

She saw him before they got to the house. He was on the lawn of the first Hall to see the foliage. Several men were standing around over her shoulder as she disappeared into her bedroom. "since you're going no place special, I'll be to see the foliage myself. I'll be ready in a jiffy."

Jennifer's angry eyes missed here.

THE COUNTRY IS CALLING

From Belleville good roads reach out in every direction leading to the great open spaces, the finest of scenery, the best of fishing and hunting in season. Over the Hills of Hastings lie thrills in which romance and reality join to make the most enjoyable of outings. Reminiscences of old time gold rushes can be heard from the Oldest Inhabitant in the villages, mineral indications can be seen everywhere, for this county has more and varied mineral deposits than any other section of Canada of similar area. Hills and valleys, lakes and rivers, big and little, abound with splendid roads winding in and out, ever opening to new scenic beauties revealing an endless panorama of marvelous scenic beauty.

On either side Lennox and Addington Counties and Northumberland County offer their own attractions while to the south Prince Edward County, rightly called "The Garden of the Gods," invites admirers of beautiful scenery, well tilled farms, agriculture in all its phases, and spendid fishing. Belleville's excellent hotels make splendid headquarters for visiting motorists who spend the days in the country in the most beautiful surroundings and return each night to Belleville if desired.

Belleville citizens should spread the glad tidings of this great playground of Nature of which this city is the centre. Let their friends near and far know that a vacation can be spent pleasantly and profitably here. You can entertain your summer visitors grandly if you know the best places to take them. Ask the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for information regarding the best vacation spots of this district. The Chamber of Commerce is yours —use it.

Spunk, the loader, was doing something very queer when Spike came into the room. Slowly and deliberately, with an inscrutable smile on his lips, he was burning a black mask, holding it over the gas jet with a pair of tongs.

Spike dashed forward to rescue it, but was pushed back by one wave of Spunk's long left.

"Say," he did manage to gasp, "you gone floola, Spunk, or what's the ill-fired matter with you?"

That seemed the fourth one responded Spunk, inconically. "Now there's only one left."

"What the—! Say, them ain't yours. Gotta one of 'em's yours. You ain't got no business burnin' mine. And what about the gang? What we gonna do tonight when we pull off the big stuff?"

"There ain't gonna be no big stuff pulled off tonight" Spunk coolly informed him. "From now on we're off that stuff."

Spike slid into a chair and, speechless, watched his companion burn the last mask.

"Say," he blurted out at last, "you better see a doc. I'll take you over to the Loonatic place right now. What's all this about anyways?"

Spunk, his black eyes glowing with purpose, perched on the edge of the rickety table, calmly lighted a cigarette and surveyed Spunk through a cloud of smoke.

"The matter is this," he returned, "that we're off this stuff for life, you'n me'n the gang. From this day on we're livin' honest."

Spike began to get the floor like a caged lion.

"You ain't gonna get off with no such stuff with the gang," he raged. "They got their hearts set on tonight. Say, that's the biggest haul my honest burglar ever got away with. You know you're gonna cheat 'em out a spittin' the deal 'n everythin'?"

"Sunk puffed placuxy.

"I'll make it right with the gang," he said. "They'll follow me—even if it's honest."

The other came closer to the table and eyed him curiously.

"Is it a skit?" he asked.

There was no reply.

"Say, ye might of knowed," fumed Spike. "Say, I thought you was off dame."

Spunk's eyes became luminous. His had the eyes. In fact, everything about Spunk was fine. Anybody meeting him for the first time would take him for a nice college boy—until he spoke.

"This," he told Spike, "ain't no skirt—and it ain't no dame. It's a—well—she's even better'n a lady." His subject made him eloquent. "Lady. She's like—well, I guess somewheres back I musta had a mother like most kids, and she's like what she most likely was like. Aw, gosh, you know what I mean, Spike."

"Naw, can't say I do. You got 'em bad. I dunno how you ever got that way—runnin' with the cold eye to all the dames you met. Who is she anyways?"

"She works down to Pebble Department Store. Rolls men's ties. I've bought most all their ties since I met her. She thinks I'm a teller in a bank."

Spike slapped his knee and laughed hilariously.

"You! Oosh!" he exclaimed. "You only know you ever seen the inside of a bank was when—"

"Aw, shut up," interrupted Spunk. Irritably. "I gotta get to be a teller or somethin'. I'm goin' to the Brown's 'school nights. I'm takin' English and Accountin'—"

"You! Oosh! You goin' to school for a skirt. Aw, lay off her. She'll ditch you when she knows."

"She knows," said Spunk, the rapt look still on his face. "I was thinkin' of her all last night. She ain't got nobody but me. Tomorrow I start goin' to school in earnest. We was married this mornin'. She's comin' here—"

As if in answer to his statement, there was a timid knock on the door. As Spunk opened it, a girl flew into his arms. She was all that he had said she was. Like the Madonna. A girl with love transfiguring her whole being, with the stars in her eyes, and the moonlight in her hair.

Spunk always was a lucky bum, ruminated Spike, as he watched the two. Now here he was meeting the gang, but catch him, Spike, the police working honest!

"This," Spunk made the introductions, "is Spike, my best friend. You like him, Mary. He's my best friend."

The girl extending a small, slim hand. Her eyes, great, honest gray eyes, met his squarely.

"I know I shall like him," she said softly. "I've heard so much about you, Spike."

"Oosh! Oosh!" Spike groped blindly for the door. Down on the street he stood and ruminated. "I wonder could Spunk get me in on that loadin'? I wonder where he is that Evenin' School. I wonder would take him for a nice college boy—until he spoke."

Suddenly he squared his shoulders, and set off down the street with a new-born purpose in his eye. "Oosh!" he whispered to himself. "I had a mother myself once!"

CHARGES HAVENS FOUND IN JAILS

J. R. Wilkinson of Windsor Pleads For Finger-printing

London, Ont., July 16.—(CP)—Finger-printed only when convicted, scores of Canada's public enemies, escaped convicts and parole violators are finding safe havens in the country's county jails.

Declaration to this effect was made today by James R. Wilkinson, Superintendent of the Windsor Bureau of Identification, pioneer finger-print expert, at the closing session of the Ontario Police Association convention.

Backing his contention, Supt. Wilkinson cited the case of Ed. Harlton, who shot and killed County Constable Jack Waddell near here.

Harlton, he recalled was sought all over the continent while for months he hid in security in the county jail at Ottawa, under an assumed name. He had been given a six-month term for damaging street car. Had it not been for a fellow-prisoner upon release informing the Warden, Harlton might still be at liberty. As it was, his prints were taken, sent to the R.C.M.P., and the gunman identified.

SEVEN CANADIANS IN FINAL STAGE OF KING'S PRIZE

Bisley Camp, England, July 16.—(CP Cable)—Seven Canadians today won their way into the final stage of the Kolapore Cup match, one of the empire meeting of the National Rifle Association.

Finishing marksmanship in today's second stage of the gruelling shoot, resulted in one of the best Canadian challenges in years for the stage of the great match tomorrow afternoon.

Scotland won the Macdonnan Challenge Cup and Lieut. C. E. Matchett of Hamilton, was posted winner of the fine Challenge Trophy on the grand aggregate.

Canada's King prize finalists with their second stage scores, which will count in the final tomorrow, are Sgt. T. A. Stinson of Timmins, 154; Sgt. M. J. Dillon of Ottawa 161; Lieut. Matchett 140; Major A. C. Lucas, Timmins, 136; Sergt. Major MacKichan, Ottawa, 139; Capt. S. W. Graham, Toronto, 136; and Lieut. C. F. Kennedy of Hilden N.S., 134.

JOE NORLOCK BAIL VICTIM

Timmins, Ont., July 16 (CP)—Crushed beneath the wheels of a freight train which crashed into his car at Brown's Siding, near Porquis Junction, Joe Norlock, of Amanville, was killed today.

Amaville police said that it was apparent Norlock did not see the locomotive approaching and drove the car into the path of the train. The car was smashed beyond repair by impact and the driver crushed in the wreckage.

Norlock was employee of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company at the Iroquois Falls plant. His widow and two children survive.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Walkers Common and Paulin Farmer were in demand in closing session of the week on the Toronto Exchange and they advanced about a point each. Fractional gains appeared for National-Grocers, Loblaw A, and Canada Bread A and in the beverages Industrial Alcohol A and Canada Malting perked up with Walkers. Brazilian added slightly, Steels were quiet along with the Banks and Building issue. Minor issues were boarded for Biltmore Hat.

Changes in the Oils were mainly on the up side. International Petroleum and McColl Frit added 1-4 point each and in the junior group Trans-Canadian, Peabody and Dalhousie posted minor gains. British Dominion dropped a cent or two.

Trade picked up in International Nickle and a gain of 1 1-4 was posted.

Aside from losses of 3 to 19-cents for Pioneer, Premier, Madsen, O'Brien and Central Patricia and minor gains for Pickle Crow, Wright Hargreaves, Reno, San Antonio and Paymaster, there were no changes of importance in the Golds.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 17 — Feeble rallies in some of the steels, rails, motors, coppers and specialties punctuated today's drab stock market session.

Transfers were around 260,000 shares.

Traders apparently found no great stimulation in another batch of favorable second quarter earnings statements. Restraining the buying urge, it was said, was the tenseness of the U.S. Congressional flight over the Supreme Court Reform Bill, darkening clouds over Da Far East and a new French financial crisis.

In the Canadian division Canadian Pacific and Bearcats were inactive, while Rhiam Walker gained more than a point. Lake Shore Mines on the curb gave up a fraction and McIntyre Porcupine improved slightly. Base Mines was inactive. Dominion funds crept up a little and Cobalts were quiet. U.S. Steel shares cancelled a 1-point drop at the opening and latched on again. Bethlehem, Republic and Rose-Sheffield did better.

Ahead most of the time — some slipped as the last—were Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison and International Telephone.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 17.—There was an increase in sales for butter on the Commodity Exchange yesterday, when 1,000 boxes were traded. Cheese held firm and a good demand developed for grade A-medium eggs. Potatoes were higher in price. Receipts included 494 cases of eggs, 6,283 boxes of cheese, 250 cases of eggs and 1,736 boxes of butter for export.

There were 1,100 boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter sold on the Commodity Exchange yesterday, in four lots of 200 boxes and one lot of 300 boxes at 26c. Offerings for Quebec fresh 92 score were at 25 3-4 to 26c.

Western white and colored cheese ranged from 14 1-4c to 14 1-2c. Quebec white and colored cheese was quoted 14c to 14 1-4c. Ontario July, 14 1-4c to 14 1-2c; June 14 1-2c to 14 3-4c.

AN INVITATION
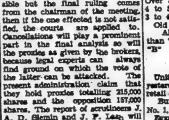
EVA LAKE
GOLD MINES
Limited

H.B. E. de Campe, F.C.S., P.E.O., the company's consulting engineer, and R. J. S. Walwork, C.P.A., Secretary-treasurer, will be at Pittard, Trenton, on Monday July 19 and Tuesday, July 20, and will be glad to meet shareholders and discuss with them important developments now taking place at the Company's properties.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.



Disappointing Results at Kaw-Crow Patricia

Exploration on the Kaw-Crow Patricia Gold Mines property in the Pickle Crow-Central Patricia area has given disappointing results, but possibilities are still held for further work, shareholders were told at the annual meeting. The company has $25,526.16 cash and 2,000 shares of Pickle Crow Gold Mines.

The uncertainties which have been dominating the situation during the past few months are tending to disappear, state Jones Heward in Ont. Mid-Week Review. Labour strife is less intense, the U.S. is at last hoarding gold to Europe, and although business is experiencing a slight lull, the forward momentum is still basically powerful. Crop news from the West is changing the financial pages, but wheat prices are 75 per cent. higher than a year ago and total farm purchasing power in the prairies will probably be higher. At the same time, excellent prospects for eastern crops point to sharp improvement in rural spending.

Gypsum

The final result of the special meeting of shareholders of Gypsum, Lime & Alabastine Canada, Ltd., will not be known until next Monday. The lawyers will be busy in the meantime checking over the proxies. Dr. Bell-Irving is not anxious to throw out as many proxies as possible but the final ruling must come from the chairman of the meeting. Then if the one effected is not satisfied, the courts are applied to. Cancellations will play a prominent part in the final analysis as with the proxies as given by the brokers, because legal experts can always find ground on which the vote of the latter can be attacked. The present administration claims that they hold proxies totalling 215,000 shares and the opposition 197,000 shares. The report of scrutineers J. A. D. Cherrin and J. F. Lee, will probably alter these figures considerably.

A total of 3,101 cheese sold at two prices at today's trading on the Belleville Cheese Board. A total of 385 sold to Mr. McCreary at 14 3-16. The remainder sold at 14 1-4 cents.

Buying of the remainder was fairly evenly divided among Mr. McCreary, Mr. Hunter, Mr. Cook, Mr. Hart, Mr. Fralegh, and Mr. Murphy.

Buyers present were—Messrs. Taylor, Meyers, Hart, Hunter, McCreary, Cook, Morton, Fralegh, Murphy, and Ashton.

2 SHIPS CEASE PACIFIC SEARCH

Carrier And 3 Destroyers Still Continue to Comb For Fliers

Honolulu, July 17 (AP)—Tapering off the seemingly hopeless South Pacific hunt for Amelia Earhart, the first two vessels in search started homeward today. The United States aircraft carrier Lexington and three destroyers remained to comb the horrid areas where the aviatrix and her navigator vanished two weeks ago.

The Coast Guard cutter Itasca and the mine sweeper Swan were ordered to return here from equatorial waters after completing a vain search of the Gilbert Islands, 600 miles west of black Howland Island.

On July 2, Miss Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan disappeared on a 2,570-mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland, the most precarious hop on a world-girdling journey. Miss Earhart said was "just for fun".

STATION AGENT ACTS QUICKLY

Pulls Stop Signal Cord When Derailed Car Noticed

Haileybury, Ont., July 17.—(CP)—Quick action by Robert Trahil, Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Station agent here, averted what may have been a serious wreck. He boarded the northbound Toronto-Timmins crack flier, the "Northland", and pulled the air signal as the train was pulling from the station with the front undercarriage of a pulpwood car derailed. Undetected by the crew, but spotted by Trahil as the train pulled out, the latter boarded the fast moving passenger flier and gave the engineer the stop signal. A level crossing platform was torn up.

Partmarnock Winner Of Breeders' Stakes

Esher, Surrey July 17 (CP)—Sir Humphrey de Trafford's colt Portmarnock, a son of the 1928 St. Leger winner Fairway, today won the 45th running of the National Breeders' Produce Stakes for two-year-olds at Sandown Park.

The Aga Khan's Tahir was second, 1¼ lengths behind Portmrock, while Viscount Furness' unnamed colt by Fairway-Golden Hair finished third, another 1½ lengths back, in the field of 12.

The winner paid 10 to 1. Tahir started at 11 to 4 and the Fairway-Golden Hair colt at 6 to 1. The race was over five furlongs.

Four Days' Term Imposed on Driver

Chatham, Ont., July 17—Earl Lamb, St. Thomas, convicted of recklessness, and failure to produce a driver's license was sentenced to four days in jail.

The charges were laid after an accident last night on highway hal'f a mile west of Eatonville. A car driven by Lamb sideswiped an automobile driven by Andrew Farobek of Buffalo, N.Y. Lamb suffered a cut on his right leg, while Walter Halliday of St. Thomas, a passenger in the car, received a bad cut over the right eye.

Concede Compromise Fair Chance of Success

London, July 17.—(CP-Havas)—Great Britain's compromise non-intervention plan, unanimously approved by the 27-power "hands off Spain" committee as a basis of discussion, was conceded a fair chance of success by the Press today.

While Conservative newspapers saw cause for rejoicing in the committee's unanimous acceptance of the plan, opposition press took a more pessimistic stand, declaring rejoicing would be premature until the plan had been put into operation and had given successful results.

PLAINFIELD COUPLE DEFY TWO THUGS IN HOLDUP

Mr. and Mrs. Creeper Protect Office Money Although Shot is Fired

Grocer Employs Ruse to Force Flight at Plainfield

FEDORA HAT FOUND

Police Systematically Search District Without Avail

Brandishing revolvers, two armed and masked bandits forced their way into the general store and Post Office, owned and operated by Frank F. Creeper, at Plainfield, to hold up the Creeper family at the point of guns late Saturday night. Demonstrating courage, Mr. and Mrs. Creeper defied the armed bandits and as Mr. Creeper lured one bandit out of the building, the diminutive Mrs. Margaret Creeper struggled with the other armed "stick-up" man during which one shot was fired, but missed its mark and the two armed, masked robbers dashed from the home to escape under cover of darkness their efforts in robbery having been foiled.

Shortly before midnight Saturday night, Mr. Creeper closed his place of business for the night and was listening to a radio program when suddenly a knock was heard at the back door of the Creeper residence that is situated at the rear of the store and Post Office at Plainfield. "I was suspicious and my wife ask-ed who was at the door," the lady hearing was a muffled voice in reply, when suddenly the door was broken in and two men with dark cloth masks forced their way in, each holding a revolver in his hand and stating they wanted money," Mr. Creeper informed Provincial Police when they arrived to investigate.

Stalled Them Off

"I stalled for time and took good observation of them, but they continued to flourish their guns and demand money, so told them there was someone at the

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Too much rain! The Weather Bureau's definition of excessive precipitation is one inch an hour or more. The rate at which rain falls is valuable information. It enables engineers to calculate the size of storm sewers, gutters, ditches, culverts, etc. Most storm sewers are built to cause the condensation process in a slow one. They become excessive when the rain-making process is speeded up, as in a violent thunderstorm. The highest rainfall rate recorded in this country was 1.02 inches in one minute at Cyclo's Ranch, Calif., on April 5, 1926.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, July 19 (CP)—Pressure is high over the region of the Great Lakes Quebec and the Atlantic States with a deep disturbance centred over the Prairie Provinces. Showers have occurred in New Brunswick and Northern Ontario, locally in the Lake Superior district while in other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair. It was warm yesterday in the western provinces but temperatures have been moderate elsewhere.

Lake Superior—Fair and warm, Tuesday, moderate variable winds.

Georgian Bay—Mostly fair and warm today and Tuesday.

Lakes and Kawartha—Mostly fair and warm today and Tuesday.

Manitoba—Fair and warm today and Tuesday.

Saskatchewan—Fair and warm. Tuesday, thunderstorms in a few districts.

ZINC DEPOSIT NEAR ENTERPRISE

Culminates 22 Year Search by George Beauvoleil of Montreal

Kingston, Ont., July 19 (CP)—Discovery of a deposit of zinc near Enterprise, 50 miles northwest of here, was reported last night. It was said to culminate a 22-year search by George Beauvoleil, Montreal.

The Montreal man persisted in spite of geologists who said no minerals existed so far south of the Northern, Ontario mining areas. In the past two weeks test holes have been sunk and are said to reveal a high concentration of ore.

23 PERSONS DIE IN ACCIDENTS

Weekend Over Canada Claims Heavy Toll of Life

A death list of 23 was counted today as Canadians reviewed the week-end's accident toll in which automobile accidents crashes accounted for the greatest loss of life. From the Maritimes to the foothills of Alberta came reports of lightning strokes interspersed with news of drownings and other fatalities.

Fire weather lured motorists to highways throughout the Dominion and in Ontario eight persons were victims. Five persons were drowned while a nine explosion, a train and a fall each took one life.

Two men, a child and a woman were killed and ten other persons were injured near Regina when two automobiles collided Saturday. In a second traffic accident in Saskatchewan, a 60-year-old woman was killed when a truck overturned.

The most gruesome accident was reported from Minden, Ont. R. W. Dance of Toronto burned to death in his motor car after it plunged down an embankment late Saturday. Two others were injured, one fatally. Two sons, after rescuing their mother and sister from the burning car, were also critically injured in the flames.

The death list:

Region—Douglas Bell, 30; Tony Bayer, 4; Bob Bridgeman, 24, and Mrs. John Wagner, 30, killed in collision of two automobiles. Ten injured.

Kingston, Sask.—Miss Ethel Mickey, 26, killed when truck overturned.

Calgary—Robert Nelson, 11, drowned while bathing.

Edmonton, Alta.—Margaret Kreiling, 13, drowned while bathing.

Taber, Alta.—C. J. Whiteman, 60, drowned while swimming.

Three Rivers, Que.—Charles Lougal, killed by car.

Montreal—Lucille Landreville, 14, drowned in Lachine Canal.

Sydney, N.S.—Daniel Campbell, 30, killed in highway crash.

Edmonton, Jasper, Yednak, 37, decapitated by train.

British Warships Under Steam As British Steamer Captured

Candleston Castle Formerly Seven Seas Spray Taking Out Refugees

OFFICERS MISS SHIP

London, July 19 (AP)—Two British warships steamed out from St. Jean de Luz, France, today after the Admiralty announced a British merchantman, the Candleston Castle, had been captured by an insurgent warship inside Spanish territorial waters."

An Admiralty spokesman denied, however, the sudden departure of the battleship Royal Oak and the destroyer Basilisk was connected with the British ship's capture.

The Candleston Castle, which formerly sailed under the name of Seven Seas Spray, was captured Saturday and was understood to be under convoy of destroyers from Pernambuco, on the north Spanish coast. The Admiralty received a telegram from the captain saying he and the crew were safe, but the message did not state the ship's position or whether it was still in insurgent hands.

First to Run Blockade

As the Seven Seas Spray, the ship was the first to run the insurgent gauntlet and reach Bilbao in April with food supplies during the insurgent siege.

Both the British warships departed in the direction of Spain so suddenly that five officers of the Royal Oak were left ashore. They overtook the battleship in a speedboat a few hours later at Bilbao.

Officers at St. Jean de Luz expressed belief the ships were ordered to sea in connection with the Candleston Castle capture.

The merchantman had been lying off Santander, her owners stated, waiting for a chance to slip into Santander to take out refugees. Santander is the last important northern city still in government hands.

Reports of 23 under Captain Herbert was aboard.

VERMONT WOMAN IS FATALLY HURT NEAR KINGSTON

Eight of Eleven Killed Over Weekend Due to Car Accidents

BURNED TO DEATH

Assistant Secretary of Compensation Board is Victim

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight of 11 persons killed in accidents in Ontario Saturday and Sunday were involved in motor car crashes. Drowning claimed one victim, a mine explosion another, and a Toronto man died after a 50-foot fall from the roof of his home.

R. W. Dance, Assistant Secretary of the Workmen's Compensation Board, Toronto, was burned to death at Minden in Haliburton County late Saturday, when his motor car plunged down an embankment, overturned and burst into flames. Two sons, Bruce, 21, and Gordon, 19, escaped the tumble seat and rescued their mother and sister, Marion, 16, who were enroute to Algonquin Park for a holiday.

GLOBE TROTTER CALLS ON STAFF

A. Turner of England Covers 3,000,000 Miles in 18 Years

Mr. A. Turner, globe trotter, of Worcester, England, who has travelled over three million miles during the past eighteen years via the hitch-hiking, freight train, canal, mule, boat, etc. methods, called at the local office Saturday afternoon. His travels have taken him to Australia, New Zealand, China, South Africa, America and many other countries. During his travels in automobiles Mr. Turner did considerable prospecting and reports finding gold in Ontario. He hopes in the near future time to establish a mine on this claim, which he has named after his mother. While in Bellville in Hollywood he made plans for a picture to be called "The Fugitive Stowaway" which will give the world's record. This will be met Robert Montgomery, who was a personal friend, Mr. David Jackson, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, is manager. Mr. Turner on the remainder of his journey. They plan to visit Russia next.

REJECTS PROPOSAL TO CHARGE DEMURRAGE

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)—Proposal of railway companies to charge demurrage on grain cars at terminal elevators has been rejected, the Board of Railway Commissioners announced today.

Decision of the Board followed hearings in Winnipeg and in Bellville of the railways and opposing elevator and grain companies.

Reasons for judgment were not announced today, but will be made public later.

AMELIA EARHART AND NAVIGATOR BELIEVED LOST

United States Navy Ends Search For Earth Girdling Aviatrix

HOPE EXHAUSTED

With Navigator Forced Down Near Howland Island July 2

Honolulu, July 19 (AP)—Mystery of Amelia Earhart lay locked in the silent watery waste of the vast Pacific today. Four naval vessels of the United States and the 1,500 weary men who sought her and her navigator sixteen days gave them up for dead and sailed for home.

More than 250,000 square miles of equatorial ocean, reefs and islands were scoured by ship and plane in an almost hopeless search for the world-hailed aviatrix and her companion, Capt. Frederick J. Noonan, who dropped from sight July 2.

Somewhere near the dot which is Howland Island, Miss Earhart and Noonan dropped from the skies in their fuelless land plane on a 2,570 mile flight from New Guinea, to the mid-Pacific sandspit.

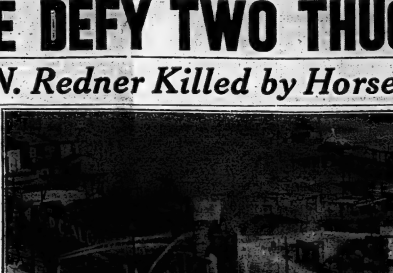
ESKIMO BAND GREETS VESSELS



Arctic Patrol is Welcomed On Labrador Coast

Ottawa, July 19 (CP)—The steamship Nascopie carrying the Canadian Eastern Arctic Patrol, and the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud with Dr. Donald B. MacMillan's Arctic expedition on board are on their way north after the two expeditions spent a day together in Hebron on the Labrador coast, according to radiograms received today by the Department of Mines and Resources from Major D. L. McKeand, commander of the patrol.

When the two ships arrived at Hebron on July 16, Rev. Georges Harp, representative of the Moravian Missions at Hebron, greeted the voyagers with an Eskimo brass band. The band played the national air for them and sacred music on board the Nascopie and the music was broadcast on short wave to the Thebaud to be the first time an Eskimo band has been on the air.

Hebron was a busy ocean port at that time, the dispatches stated, with four vessels in the harbor. As soon as the Eskimo musicians had completed their program they went on board the ships to unload supplies from the Nascopie to the trading schooner Fort Garry and Fort Amadjuac for Ungava Bay and other points in the North.

OVER 100 INJURED IN GASOLINE TANK BLAZE

An airview of the fire in Atlantic City, N.J. in which more than 100 persons were injured, some seriously when 40,000 gallons of gasoline exploded and shot skyward from storage tanks at an oil company plant. All available fire fighting apparatus was called to fight the blaze. No accurate estimate of damage has yet been given, but the loss is believed to run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Fire bosses can be seen playing on the fire.

U. S. Net Stars Win Doubles In Cup Play

Wimbledon, July 19—(CP)—Don Budge and Gene Mako of the United States today on their Davis Cup doubles match with Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel, German pair. Scores were 4-6, 7-5, 8-6, 6-4.

Thady Vicory gave the United States a 2-1 lead in the intermene finals, with two more singles matches yet to be played, and made the young Americans strong favorites to win the series and gain the right to battle Great Britain for the coveted international trophy in the challenge round starting Saturday.

Even should Henkel defeat Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, Ga., in tomorrow's singles, Budge is strongly favored to whip Von Cramm for the deciding point.

The red-headed ace from Oakland, Calif., trounced Von Cramm in straight sets recently to win the all England singles crown and nothing has occurred in the intersone finals thus far to indicate the tilted Teuton can turn the tables.

SEES MORE HOPE OF WORLD PEACE THAN YEAR AGO

Foreign Secretary Eden Pins Faith on World Peace Organization

CONFIDENCE IS NEED

British Warns Spanish Rebels British Ship Must be Surrendered

London, July 19 (AP) — Foreign Secretary Eden disclosed to the House of Commons today that Great Britain has demanded that the Spanish insurgents release the rugged British merchantman Molton. Eden said the request was sent to General Franco through Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Spain who is at Burgos on the Franco-Spanish border.

Hope in League

London, July 19 (CP)—Before the House of Commons this afternoon Foreign Secretary Eden assured the disturbed world and found the hope for more greater than a year ago.

He frankly pointed out the dangers and difficulties. Though he said there could be no lasting confidence until an international organization of world cooperation was entrusted with the arbitration of differences and the settlement of disputes, he told the house:

"I see more hope for world peace today than a year ago."

He said there could be no lasting confidence until an international organization of world cooperation was entrusted with the arbitration of differences and the settlement of disputes, he told the house:

"I see more hope for world peace today than a year ago that the nations of Europe will settle their disputes and that peace will be preserved.

(The "box" referred to by Eden is a long brass-bound cabinet on the clerk's table, which stands adjacent to the middle of the front government bench, where the Prime Minister and his principal colleagues in the House often lean upon it while speaking.)

The past year at times had been tempestuous in the international sphere. Yet the outlook was not entirely dark. Some encouragement were; yet also there were patches of clear sky.

"On the whole the atmosphere is less tense and less lowering than 12 months ago," the Foreign Secretary went on.

The mere fact of recurring crises over Spain, without the whole of Europe being involved, in itself was a cause for modified encouragement. No nation desired the conflict to spread.

Perhaps, too, Spain had taught the lesson that it taught that in modern warfare quick victory was not easily won.

No International Bloc.

"We will not join an international bloc against anybody," Eden reiterated. "Neither will we join an international bloc against Fascism."

He paid tribute to the highly increasing friendship between Great Britain and Italy.

"One of the factors which has enabled us to pass through the last 12 months without the major disaster of a European conflict has been the steadily growing confidence and intimacy between our two countries. Fortunately that friendship now is nowhere misunderstood. No one could want to weaken it. . . .

"We are convinced that the present French government are sincerely anxious to bring about a real improvement in their relations and the agreement as a prelude to that wider

WARNING GIVEN TO CHINESE ARMY OF RISK OF WAR

Chiang Kai-Shek Says Rights of Chinese to be Preserved

'INDEPENDENT ACTION'

Firing by Chinese on Japanese Reported Near Peiping

Nuling, China, July 19 (CP-Havas) —"Peace or war depends upon Japan if we permit the loss of a single inch of territory we shall be guilty of an unpardonable crime against our nation," General Chiang Kai-Shek declared today.

Addressing a group of Chinese educational leaders at his summer headquarters here the Chinese dictator said China's minimum program for settlement of the dispute in North China was:

1. The Lukouchia incident should be solved without infringing upon the political or territorial integrity of China.

2. The political status of the Hopei-Chahar Council as fixed by Nanking should remain unchanged. Local officials named by Nanking should not be removed.

4. The 29th army should be permitted to remain in Peiping and Tientsin.

That is the minimum program," Chiang declared. "We want peace but not peace at any price.

Last Warning Given.

Nanking, July 19 (AP)—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported today that the Japanese army has served as a "last warning" on China to settle the North China crisis on Japan's terms or face war.

The virtual ultimatum, Domei said was delivered to General Ho Hsing-Chin, Chinese Minister of War, and General Cheng Chien, Chinese Chief of Staff, by Major General Seitoku Kita, Japanese Military Attache to China.

The news agency said Kita told the Chinese commanders they must "disregard minor differences" on the

GEORGE ROEDIGER A GOOD FATHER SAYS DAUGHTER

Mrs. Mancuso St. Catharines Gives Interview on Bigamist

MOTHER IS DEAD

Says She Took Poison From a Bottle By Mistake

St. Catharines, Ont., July 19 (CP) George Pritz Roediger, arch-bigamist, under sentence at Winnipeg, was a good father and taught his children to live honestly and fear God, his daughter Minnie, now Mrs. Joseph Mancuso, said in an interview at her home here last night. She is the wife of a taxi-driver and has a three-year-old daughter.

"He has done wrong and must be punished," Mrs. Mancuso, daughter of Roediger by his first wife, Meta, who died of poisoning here in 1932, said of her father.

"I feel bitter, but whatever my father has done he has brought on himself. I don't know anything new about the things he has done.

Whereabouts Not Known

"I don't know where my brother George is just now. As far as I can tell George is out in California. Oh, I don't want to talk at all. What have I or my husband to do with the crimes of my father?"

(At Toronto yesterday a married man who said he was known as Roediger had legally changed his name and was living quietly with his wife and family. On his plea for privacy, the name was not revealed.)

5 - Year Search Believed Ended

Sherbrooke, Que., July 19—(CP) —Five-year hunt for David Arthur Aldrich of Granby St. Elie D'Orford appeared ended when word was received today that a man in Montreal was held in Toronto on charges of housebreaking, theft, forgery and robbery.

Since 1932 police, who claim he was responsible for theft of articles valued at thousands of dollars from more than 50 cottages in the eastern townships, have searched for Aldrich, who fled a police net in that year.

When the wholesale robbery trail led to his home he had fled and game warden and made his getaway by automobile.

Toronto, Ont., July 19—(CP)—David Arthur Aldrich of St. Elie D'Orford, near Sherbrooke, Quebec will be sentenced here tomorrow on several charges of fraud including several laid at Toronto. Aldrich was arrested July 13 and has pleaded guilty to the charges.

TEAM FRIGHTENED AFTER HOOKED UP: MAN IS TRAMPLED

Believed Horse Stepped on Him Inflicting Internal Injuries

NO INQUEST

Living Retired in City But Helped on Farm in Summer

William N. Redner, 64, Highland Avenue, of this city, was killed shortly after nine o'clock this morning on his farm, one and one-half miles south of Rednersville, Prince Edward County, when the team which was attached to a binder became frightened and ran away. It is believed one of the horses knocked him down, stepping on his abdomen causing internal injuries. The ambulance of the Bellerlle Coal Company was also called but Mr. Redner expired just as it arrived. He was attended by Dr. O. Van Luven of Consecon at the scene of the accident. Dr. R. A. Thompson, coroner of Bellleville, went to the scene and after investigation decided an inquest was unnecessary and released the body for burial.

CAR OCCUPANT LOSES HIS LIFE

Automobile Fails to Make Sharp Turn at Bridge

Owen Sound, Ont., July 19 (CP) — Robert Crandler, Toronto, was killed early today when a car in which he was riding overturned when it failed to make a sharp turn at the bridge leading from Meaford to the Saugeen Indian Reserve, Southampton, a 39 miles east of here. Maitland Gibbons of Southampton, driver of the motor in which Crandler and three others were riding, was arrested and charged with driving.

Hope to Recover

Others in the car were Ernest Gibbons of Southampton and Joe Kever of Detroit, the latter owner of the car.

The turn at the bridge is sharp and when the car failed to make the turn it ran down an embankment and turned over. None of the others were hurt.

ASSASSIN TORN BY HUGE BOMB

Warsaw, July 19 (AP) — An assassin's bomb intended for Adam Koc, leader of the Polish Nationalist movement, failed that night, it was learned today, when the bomb exploded prematurely and tore the assassin to pieces.

The attempt on the Polish leader's life was made at his villa in the village of Swidry, not far from Warsaw. The assassin was said to have made his way into the garden of the villa with a powerful explosive. It apparently exploded before the time for which it was set.

Say Electric Eye Greatest Invention

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Pictures, sent by radio and scientists say research experts, spread out the results of the scrutiny of far-reaching developments, hailed the electric eye as "the greatest invention of the twentieth century", and recommended long-time study.

This report holds out the hope that we can anticipate some of the effects of major inventions," the scientists said, "and plan the plans to meet new situations that will arise as these inventions come into widespread use."

POLICE COURT

The lengthiest police court docket of the season welcomed Crown Attorney H. A. Hyndman, K.C. on his return from holiday to the Belleville police court this morning. Magistrate J. J. Butler's local police court today. The court being somewhat lightened by the absence for the present of the proceedings at high court assizes, which are being presided over by Mr. Justice Wright.

Nelson Reid, Belleville, was charged with the theft of scrap iron from the Fruit Gardens property on Dundas Street, Belleville pleased not guilty. At the conclusion of the evidence Magistrate Butler His Worship found the accused man technically guilty but dismissed the charge without suspended sentence. Mr. F. B. Foley, proprietor of the Fruit Gardens, Belleville, testified the scrap iron was his property. Constable Ernest Wilson, testifying for the accused man, told the court that he had been found the scrap iron in the Moira River and was thereby abandoned property. Smith accused the scrap iron to be his property, and that he had purchased the iron in question, however. "I do not think he knew it was technically guilty", was His Worship's finding.

Two young men charged with under the Masters' and Servants' Act, resulted in chores, were dismissed by Magistrate K. C., counselling the parties concerning to settle their differences out of court. It is learned on him told that his employer, Harry Woodely, owed him a small balance while Clarwin Martin, Montreal painter, held him for board while in Belleville, owed him for wages. In both cases the matters were settled out of court, the complainants laying an ante room and settled their differences. Both charges were dismissed by the court.

Six persons appeared charged under the Highway Control Act of drunkenness. All pleaded guilty and each in turn asked for time in which to raise their assessed fine. Their requests were granted.

Joseph Keating, Campbellford, appeared charged with criminal negligence in the case being enlarged until Sept. 10th, at the request of Crown Attorney H. A. Hyndman, K.C. Keating was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence following a motor accident north of Stirling some time ago, resulting in the death of Mrs. Preston, of Stirling, sustained severe injuries and is still confined to the hospital.

After being apprehended on a charge of theft from the C.N.R. station by the police state is fifteen years of age, address unknown, was later released on suspended sentence in the Provincial Boys' Training School in Bowmanville, over two months ago.

The boy appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in juvenile Court today charged with the theft of a bicycle. His case was remanded until the Bowmanville authorities have also completed their apprehension. The youth assured local police authorities he would rather stand trial for the theft of the bicycle and receive a jail sentence rather than be returned to the Bowmanville institution, after signing a statement admitting the theft of the bicycle.

The lad was apprehended by Provincial Constable Smith and Reid Reid-Searles; Floyd Ketchenson; Keith Nash and Norman Hamilton.

PICCARD BALLOON IS DESTROYED

Twisted And Charred Wreckage Is Located Valley

Lansing, Iowa, July (AP)—Twisted and charred wreckage in an isolated farmhang valley was all that remained today of Dr. Jean Piccard's unique multi-ballooned aircraft in which he made a six-hour experimental flight from Rochester, Minn.

The stratosphere flier studied the results of the flight from mental notes. Fire which enveloped the craft as it landed in a clump of trees destroyed data recorded by delicate instruments.

Dr. Piccard was non-committal as to whether the flight had achieved his objective—to determine the feasibility of using a cluster of small scientific balloons in place of the conventional single large bag for stratosphere explorations.

The Swiss-born inventor of several successful stratosphere flights had planned a long flight over arctic regions with a craft lifted by 2,000 sounding balloons if the experiment were successful.

Dr. Piccard escaped from his flaming craft with only bruises, suffering more than singed hair. The scientist said the fire might have been caused by the explosion of T.N.T. which he planned in order to facilitate the descent.

FASCIST LEADER NEEDED ESCORT

Stones Thrown at Sir Oswald Mosley After His Address

Southampton, England, July 19 (CP)—Police were called last night to escort Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, through an angry crowd after he had been struck in the face by a stone when he finished an address. One of his staff was struck heavily.

From the top of a loudspeaker van, Sir Oswald addressed a crowd estimated at 10,000. He was interrupted frequently but police kept physical peace until he was leaving. Then the stone was hurled.

Surrounding Mosley, police conducted him through the crowd, commandeered a taxi and guarded it by lining the front and back with uniform cashions. The taxi proceeded through the town, followed by shouting opponents of his views.

Trouble started as soon as the Fascist leader began his 5-minute speech. Hecklers screamed their disputers. One man tried to climb atop Sir Oswald's motor van, hailing his aides.

The man desisted when Fascists tore off his trousers.

FIGHTING PLANE READY FOR TESTS

U. S. Army Claims For Machine Most Formidable in World

Washington, July 19—(AP)—The United States army is ready to send into the air what it terms the most formidable fighting plane in the world—a monoplane with a speed of the sub-stratosphere.

The new fire-sealed fighter, being prepared for test flights at Wright Aeronautical Corporation (Plant) Buffalo, N. Y., is a radical departure from previous military designs. The air corps will devise new tactics to fit its use up to altitudes of 30,000 feet.

The all metal armoured plane is a twin-motored "pusher" (with propellers behind the wings), carries six machine guns and light bombs, and has new devices to increase its speed and fighting power.

The War Department said the plane has been designed to cope with the "giant bombing planes of the Flying Fortress type now flying in the leading nations of the world."

TREMORS CENTRED IN LONG ISLAND

Quake of "Slight Intensity" And Lasted About Three Minutes

New York, July 19 (AP)—Residents of New York State sighed with relief today as the third earthquake in three days blasted and died with no apparent damage except to the nerves of apprehensive residents of Long Island, where the earth tremors centred.

The earthquake, described by Dr. L. Don Leet, director of the Harvard University seismograph station, as of "slight intensity", began at 11.53 p.m. E.D.T. last night and lasted for about three minutes.

The shocks were felt in sections of Connecticut and Long Island, but did not extend to Manhattan Island, where a majority of the metropolitan area's rock-bedded skyscrapers towered unperturbed as the earth quivered and rocked with the trembling earth.

Seismographic and radio stations were besieged by hundreds of telephone calls. Described by the tremors, a woman at Douglaston, on the north shore of the island, said she felt a slight tremor, but it was not severe enough to be frightening."

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN WATER

Brockville Residents Discover Body While on Fishing Trip

Brockville, Ont., July 19—(CP)—Authorities here today were without information concerning the identity of a woman's body found in the river by two Thornton-Cliffe, residents of Senator A. C. Hardy.

The discovery was made by Carl J. Smith, an employee of Senator Hardy and his brother, Lloyd N. Smith, a city fireman, who were fishing in the vicinity.

Parts of a reddish dress adhered to the body.

HE RAN AWAY TO SEA AT 15

Navigator With Miss Earhart Spent 22 Years at Sea

Honolulu, July 19 (AP)—Frederick J. Noonan, navigator of Amelia Earhart's ill-fated plane given up today as lost in the Pacific Ocean, ran away from home at the age of 15 and followed the sea for 22 years before he took to the air.

Noonan spent his hit lot and during the Great War, with the American and British forces, he was on three torpedoed ships. He served on windjammers and rounded Cape Horn three times.

Noonan was born at Chicago in 1893, attended public schools and private military academy there, and later the London Nautical College.

He left home in 1908 at the age of 15 and shipped aboard a vessel, during his 22 years of ocean travel and navigation.

Once Rescued Five Sailors.

Once, on a trip across the stormtossed Atlantic from London to Montreal, Noonan aided in the rescue of five French sailors adrift on a raft.

After Noonan turned to aviation he served as instructor in aerial navigation with various air transport organizations and entered the Pan American Service at its start in 1930.

He made exhaustive studies of aerial navigation and was considered one of the foremost authorities on this important phase of air transportation. Noonan was originally a transport pilot and later served as airport manager in Fort Au Prince, Haiti, as travelling airport inspector, and as instructor in the Caribbean division.

A short time before taking off with Miss Earhart on the world girdling flight, Noonan divorced Josie Sullivan Noonan at Juneau, Alaska, and eloped with Mary Beatrice Margenau, who operated a beauty shop at Oakland, Calif.

TAX BILLS FOR CITY BEING DISTRIBUTED

"I'm just about as popular this morning as a pole cat at a strawberry social," commented a burdened carrier of a sheaf of tax bills issued for distribution by the office of the tax collector this morning. This year the bills have been printed simultaneously to a few days for carriers, who ay carrying the various sections of the city on the same day.

'HALO' HATS BANNED IN CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Louisville, Ky., July 19 (AP)—"Halo" hats—the latest feminine headgear craze were banned today as "mockeries" for wear in Roman Catholic Churches of Louisville.

Father E. F. Willett, pastor of St. James Catholic Church and Vicar-General of the Louisville diocese frowned on the open crown hoppiness today expressing doubt they were adequate head covering under the church laws.

"I understand these (hats) are called halos," Father Willett said. "I am sorry that the ladies here will have to wait until they get to Heaven before they can wear their halos."

TEAM FRIGHTENED

Sheet to Cut Barley

It appears that Mr. Redner was standing in front of the team after hitching them to the binder preparatory to moving to the field to cut the crop of barley in a nearby oat field. The team is some way be came frightened and started through the gateway towards the farm of Allwood Spencer, a neighbour. Mr. Redner was thrown violently to the ground in trying to check the team and one of the horses knocked him down and stepped on his abdomen. First aid was given by those hastily called to the scene but the victim complained of his heart and he succumbed shortly after. Coroner Dr. Van Loven.

Retired From Active Farming

The late Mr. Redner retired from active farming last fall and purchased a home on Highland Avenue in this city to live retired, but he always retained his interest in the farm and was wont to return to help in the busy season. At the time of his accident, he was assisting in harvesting the crop for the fall. He was a highly respected citizen of this city by all that knew him and his untimely demise will mean as a great shock to a wide circle of friends in this city and Prince Edward County. He was born in Prince Edward County 64 years ago, being the son of the late Peter and Mrs. Redner and lived his entire life on the farm on which he was born until he moved to this city last fall. He was a member of the United Church and left to mourn are his two daughters, Mrs. Albert Shanks of Wakefield, Que., and Miss Helen, at home. His wife predecessed him some years.

GEORGE ROEDIGER

Roediger, his daughter recalled, had often attended church in his 22 years of residence in St. Catharines with the first of his nine wives.

Never Whipped Children

He never whipped us for being naughty," Mrs. Mancuso continued. "As far as I can remember—I was only a child at the time, there was never any trouble with my mother. Of course, there were occasional squabbles but I suppose all husbands and wives have those. He was a stern father but a fair one."

Mrs. Mancuso said her mother died as the result of drinking from a bottle containing poison, mistaking it for another bottle. After her death, Roediger sold the furniture and they moved to Yonkers, N.Y., where he married Augusta Schmidt. Mrs. Mancuso said she liked her father's second wife "very much."

"She was a lovely woman and I really think she and father were very happy," she said. After Roediger was found dead in a bath-tub, Mrs. Roediger faced criminal charges and was later deported.

"I really think there was something wrong with him mentally," the daughter said. "You know, he hurt his head while working in Kingston and I don't think he was ever the same after that. He complained about severe headaches."

AMELIA EARHART

The 36-year-old woman flier, known the world over for her aviation exploits was described as the "best fun fun," she said, but also to have possible new commercial routes.

Exhausted Every Hope

The great naval officer said he had left yesterday when navy authorities decided they had exhausted every possibility of ever finding the missing fliers.

The closing order crushed the last hope of rescue held by George Palmer Putnam, motion picture executive husband of Miss Earhart, who obtained leave from his duties to further her world-flight plans.

"I am deeply appreciative of what the navy has done," the grief-stricken husband declared in Los Angeles. "That is all I can say."

The aircraft carrier Lexington, with its fleet of 63 fighting planes and three destroyers were the last searching vessels. Last night the doughty coast guard cutter Ithaca, the mine-sweeper Swan and the sailboat Colorado steamed to their port after searching thousands of square miles by air and sea.

By air and sea, the search extended for a radius of between 300 and 800 miles around Howland, 500 miles south of here.

MR. AND MRS. CREEPER

side door and as the one bandit turned to look, I made a dash for the open rear door, the other bandit turned and "ran down the" as he took after me. A shot later rang out, but I was outside by then. Later the two men ran out and disappeared in the darkness," stated Mr. Creeper.

Mrs. Margaret Creeper, diminutive 100-pound wife of the plain-clothed Police keeper, stated to police that when her husband made a break for the rear door she struggled with the second bandit and during the encounter the "stick-up?" man's gun was discharged. "As soon as the gun went off the robber ran out the door following his companion," explained the brave woman under questions by Inspector Frank Gardner shortly after midnight, the attempted robbery having taken place just before the midnight hour on Saturday night.

Description Given

A description of the robbers was given the police by the Creepers. One was described as being fairly tall and of fair complexion and hair, while the second was short and stocky and dark. Both were slouch hats and were shabbily dressed. "The strange and oddity was the fact that one of the men asked for four dollars," Mrs. Creeper informed Inspector Frank Gardner upon investigation.

Police and farmers organized posses and all roads for miles around were thoroughly searched but no signs of the would-be robbers were evidenced. Some neighbours stated they had heard what appeared to have been a shot, but passed it off as the noise of a possible back-fire of an automobile, but later search by police and the sole did resemble a shot.

Inspector Gardner, Sergeant Thomson, Constable E. Smith and Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Bryans each formed posses, with farmers from the surrounding districts bringing into use their fire arms in the man-hunt, that proved futile, however.

Fodero Had Found

On Sunday while continuing the investigation Provincial Police Officer found a battered old fedora hat lying alongside of the road with far from the Creeper home. Mr. Creeper later stated that he thought the abandoned did resemble somewhat the hat worn by one of the stick-up men. All the automobiles on the highway were stopped and searched until Monday, no clues leading to the identity of the robbers were found. Twice yesterday Provincial Police apprehended men acting suspicious north of Belleville, but when confronted by authorities the persons held all established their innocence to the satisfaction of the authorities.

While returning from Oak Lake early Sunday evening, and Mrs. Creeper saw two men loitering on the highway near Foxboro and believed them to be their assailants, but subsequent investigations by Sergeant Thomson of Constable E. Smith revealed the tip to be of no value in the case.

Hope For "Break"

Inspector Frank Gardner of the O.P.P. stated today a number of interesting clues had been tracked down and the authorities were holding out brilliant hopes for a "break" in the case soon. Late last night Inspector Gardner, Constable Smith and Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine made a hasty trip to Colborne where two men were reported to have been seen who answered the description of the would-be bandits. Police found the men and questioned them. Although their stories did not exactly coincide, we made no arrests as there was not sufficient evidence upon which to arrest the men. Inspector Gardner revealed this morning.

In detracting the bandits' attention when hold-up Mr. Creeper used an old and proven ruse. As he intimated there was someone at the door Mr. Creeper spoke in a loud saying—"Hello Blake, glad to see you"—As he spoke one of the gunmen turned to see Mr. Creeper's imaginary friend, and as he did Mr. Creeper made a dash for the door and general excitement and scuffles followed, during which the robbers were foiled.

GEO. W. BATEMAN KINGSTON, KILLED

Believed to Have Jumped From Car, When Rear Tire Blew

Elgin, Ont., July 19. — (CP) — George W. Bateman of Kingston, Ont., was killed yesterday and four other Kingston persons escaped injury when the car in which they were driving swerved into a ditch after one of the rear tires blew out.

Bateman's body was found on the highway and it was believed he opened the door and tried to jump out or roll clear as the car went into the ditch.

Miss Alice Bateman, the driver, Mrs. E. R. McKenna, and her two daughters, Betty and Edith, escaped injury.

The accident occurred near here on the Kingston-Ottawa highway.

CHINESE GOV'T REJECTS OFFER

Refuse to Withdraw Troops From Hopie Province

Shanghai July 19.—(CP-Havas) —The Chinese Government today rejected the Japanese "ultimatum" demanding immediate withdrawal of all Nanking troops from Hopei Province and a halt of Nanking troop movements in North China.

In a note handed to the Japanese Embassy, Nanking, the Chinese Foreign Office said the demands presented to War Minister Ho Ying-Ch'in in last Saturday could not be fulfilled.

The reply was understood to have been couched in conciliatory terms, however, and to have left the way open for further negotiations.

The "ultimatum" was handed to General Ho on Saturday by Colonel Sanji Ohkita, assistant military attache at the Japanese Embassy. It gave the Central Government 48 hours to halt the entry of troops and military planes into Hopei Province.

The Japanese charged the entry of Central Government Nanking troops into North China was a violation of the Ho-Umetsu accord of 1935, which the Central Government refuses to recognize.

SLOW TRAFFIC

The slow driver problem is one which has been mentioned by Premier Hepburn as something requiring solution in the near future. Slow-moving motorcars are to be checked up.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review notes that there is a feeling that large trucks on the highways halt traffic as many drivers will not take the risk of passing them, particularly if more than one of these vehicles are in front of them. This assuredly demands solution for the held up traffic is an impatient traffic and in the end may lead to an accident as some one tries the chance of getting ahead of the tardy procession.

The Sentinel-Review suggests "that at intervals the slow-moving but cumbersome vehicles ought to halt at convenient places to permit the lighter vehicles to pass in safety. Such action would be an exemplification of the courtesy that the department is trying to get drivers in Ontario to practice."

It is noted that a number of drivers have not taken the full advantage of the upper limit of the speed law which permits a rate of fifty miles an hour when it is safe to use this speed but drive along somewhere above the old top of thirty-five miles.

Then too on the crowded highways cars proceeding at very low speeds, cars which previously did not approach the thirty-five mile top under the old law assuredly today require to be checked up as there is a very real menace in these extra-slow vehicles.

FOR MORE TRIM FIGURES

Men from the United States who attended the coronation of King George Sixth and wore knew breeches feel more than a little pride in the statement of former Ambassador James W. Gerrard that they showed a fine set of legs. "There wasn't a knocking-knee or a bandy-leg in the whole outfit." Every U.S. man will glory in this praise of his brothers.

Now truth is, men do take pride in such perfection of figure. They have not changed much from the days of knee-breeches which adorned the nether limbs of the gallants of other generations. Though the leg of the modern man is generally obscured in the modern pant leg which makes the knock-knee and the bandy leg look like a trim, straight beautiful limb because not one of them is to be seen except in that place which exposes as much, the modern bathing-beach where the nicely formed legs, bodies and arms have their chance and the bandy-leg and the knock-knee look as nature made them. In some respects the less seen of some folk's legs the better for the sense of beauty, but that should not be because even the most classical gathering has a face not so attractive as to why should an ill-suited pair of "limbs" annoy?

Americans are taking pride in this because there was no survey of pedal architecture in the choice of U.S. representatives at Westminster Abbey ceremony. This must mean that probably all men have fairly fine sets of legs.

Perhaps it is suggested that if men's legs were seen more, men would try to develop straighter, slimmer supports as many have tried with success to do with their faces but for all this the fact remains that there are faces that are not beautiful still to be seen anywhere and everywhere.

John Bull has gone to work on the belt-line or waist line and is going to cut down on the circumference. If that is done, even legs will look better because of the trimness of the male figure which is to be because of reduction in avoirdupois and fat about the stomach.

GONE WITH THE BEARD

It has long been deplored by misanthropists that men have ceased to grow beards with the gusto and originality that marked the growths of happier decades. One of these cynical gentlemen contended that, in this clean-shaven era, males in general were about as indistinguishable as so many billiard balls. They no longer held authority over women-children or governments. With the decline of the beard and its culine prestige sagged; it was a bad state of affairs.

Gradually the bearded patriarchs passed into legend and, like the sailing ship, they left only sentimental echoes of regret. We can think of only one prominent apostle of the beard who still survives—Chief Justice Hughes of the United States supreme court. And at this critical stage of affairs in his country it no doubt stands him in good stead.

And now another blow has been struck at the beard. While England is preparing for future enemy gas attacks from the air, a warning has gone out that "it is difficult to fit a bearded man with a gas mask, and should an emergency arise those with beards more than a fund long may be faced with the alternative of cutting off their beards or getting gassed."

Not even Bernard Shaw, who will have to sharpen up his razor if war comes, has publicly challenged this admonition. It is a sorry comment on the misdirection of science. Yet the price must be paid—Hamilton Spectator.

MAROUF
Young Cobbler of Cairo

Marouf, cobbler of Cairo, sits limp in his shop
Tap-tapping away on an old sole of leather;
So day upon day, without charge without stop
He works on unceasing in foul or fair weather.

In the round of existence he finds no content,
Though others may smile in their lowly estate;
He dreams in clear visions most magnificent,
Of splendors of life that his young heart elate.

The dome of El Akbar gleams white in the sky
And the muezzin calleth the faithful to prayer
With a piercing, high-pitched, most tremulous cry
That echoes and dies in the hot sunlit air.

Then brow to the dust the young cobbler doth bend,
And petition to Allah the Highest doth make;
Oh hear me, Inshallah, thy countenance lend
To the plea of Marouf for his soul set at stake."

"Must I all my life but a poor cobbler be Hearing, enduring most unkind reproof
And taunts that the men of ill mind speak at me?
Must I now, and for always, be but cobbler Marouf?"

"O grant me a prospect of happier days
And lighten dark hours that deaden the soul;
Then through all my life will I chant to thy praise,
And in spirit give thanks while the round earth may roll."

PASSENGER BUSSES DRIVEN UNDER ALL KIND OF WEATHER CONDITIONS for one year, 28,000 miles without an accident, is the proud record of the drivers of the Rawson Bus Line of Belleville—a record which should be a matter of satisfaction to citizens generally as well as those directly concerned. The importance of this record was recognized by the National Safety Council of Canada which issued medals and card certificates to the drivers. Senior drivers Morgan Jarvis and Joe Schemmerhorn have over six years service with the Rawson Bus Line and their records for careful driving have been excellent throughout. Junior drivers Noel Langton and Bruce Thompson have had shorter terms of service but are recognized as careful drivers and they also received honorable mention from the National Safety Council. The Rawson Bus Line covers both east and west sides of Belleville, giving a half-hour service which has proved a great convenience to householders and those desiring to visit the Belleville General Hospital. The line was established about twelve years ago by the late Fred Rawson, and since his death has been operated by his widow, Mrs. Rawson, who has proved herself a capable business woman, providing a good bus service and keeping the plant up to date with modern vehicles.

Old Poquelin

By Charlotte Becker Sain
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service.

Poquelin sang merrily as he went down to the morning spring. When people asked him why he would shrug his shoulders and twinkle his little blue eyes and say, "Mon Dieu! Why not?"

Sometimes he answered, "It is my philosophy to sing so life will not know how to one day snatch this and they thought it was just because he was funny little Poquelin that he sang. Because it was his nature to be happy. But often when he was by himself he dropped this happy-go-lucky air. His face grew pale and his eyes did not squint, but opened wide as if in horror. Abruptly, as suddenly little son, say him one day. In one of these spells of fear Rose screaming to his mother, telling her that Poquelin, that funny little blue-eyed Poquelin had gone quite mad. But his mother only laughed and dropped the flirty blue blouse she was washing at the fountain to take the tousled-haired little boy in her arms.

"There, there, my Billie Jacques you are tired because you have been in the sun all day. You are not really afraid of old Poquelin, who wears the funny clothes and tells the nice stories in the store—good old Poquelin!"

When she had quieted the child she had no time in calling over the wall to her neighbor, Jean, the carpenter's wife, to tell her what had happened. For everyone in Peninsi loved old Poquelin though he was ugly and queer. Each he was different from other people and they never could understand him.

Sometimes they laughed and said it must be love that made him act so queerly, for that he loved Annette, the barber's daughter, was clear.

"She'll never have him, they would say. "She has her eye on for a duke or a prince. Poor old Poquelin! Annette will never marry him."

Poquelin lived up at the old chateau on the hill, and helped with the garden. But the old baron stayed there only because he was too poor and tired to go anywhere else, and he did not care any more how the place looked. So the vines grew thick on the crumbling old walls and no one paid any attention to the garden or the servants, and Poquelin had the time he wanted to wander about the village.

Then, to this quiet little French village of long ago, came a new interest. A band of strolling players arrived, a rough and ready little troupe in a big cart drawn by four thin oxen. Poquelin did not come down to the village any more, but they were all too excited to miss him. To Annette, the actors represented all the gay big world she longed for, and dreamed about, and, wide-eyed she watched them making their preparations.

One day when the villagers were gathered about the old barn where the plays were to be given, Annette heard the leader of the troupe asking for a man named Poquelin. A famous actor by that name had disappeared from Paris years before, he said, after an accident which had crippled him, and it was feared that he had died or gone mad in his wanderings. But they were asking at every town.

"It surely our little Poquelin," the leader said, and the men all laughed.

"It might be Poquelin," said Annette. "No one ever knew where he came from. He's been to Paris."

The man laughed again but the actor got up quickly and went over to Annette.

"Let's find your Poquelin, girl," he said. "My father played with the great Poquelin who disappeared and he always told me that some day I must find him. If I could take him back, all Paris would do him honor."

So Annette and the stranger climbed the hill to the old chateau. On the way she talked to him about Poquelin.

"He's wonderful," she said. "He's like a jester. He cheers us all up with his jokes and stories but I know that sometimes he is very sad." Then she told him of Poquelin's queer philosophy. He seemed to have the idea, she said, that life had somehow hurt him and he must always be gay and laughing so that she would not know he cared. "Life must not find me out and laugh at me," she told the man he said.

The actor looked at Annette, as though noticing her for the first time.

"How seriously you talk for a little village girl," he exclaimed. "I'm not a little girl," answered Annette, growing very red. "I'm grown-up and I'm tired of this old village with its gays all alike!"

The chateau gates were closed when they reached the old place and there was no one about save an old man in a faded smock who was weeding the dingy garden.

Poquelin never greeted the old gardien again. His days were all happy ones when he got to Paris. And there, too, he found a new philosophy.

"Life is kind," he said to Annette, "when people applaud an old actor like me."

"And a new one like me," said Annette.

And they both laughed.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was fanning herself and pop was smoking to himself with his coat off, and ma said, This would be a nice night to go to the movies, Willyum!

In what way? pop said, and ma said, Well, most of the principal movie theatres are air cooled, for one thing.

One thing leads to another, let's go, pop said.

And he opened the paper to the movie advertisements, saying, Well, here's something Lovey Darling in The Loves of Lovey.

Why Willyum you're not serious, are you? ma said. I mean the name Lovey Darling has always been a substitute for poison ivory as far as you are concerned. I mean I've never been able to lure or drag you to one of her pictures so why this sudden conversion? she said, and pop said, Well, I've passed a lot of pickris in front of various store lately, and I've come to the conclusion that a man oughtn't be unfair to any kind of labor under any name, and after all the awful name of Lovey Darling no doubt represents a kind of labor, such as it is; what there is of it, so let's go.

Well, I'm sure I'm delighted, even though tonite I must admit I was counting on seeing Ronnel Ronnel in The Romance of Nonsel, but I'm sure I'm not going to discourage you in your new change of hart. I'll put my hat on, ma said.

While she did, and on their way out ma picking up the paper, saying, It's at the Narcissia, isn't it? Yes, the Narcissia. Well of all things. Enter Added Attraction, the Slumsky Carbonay Ice pictures, Willyum. Posts I cap, see through you like a transparent book, she said.

I don't know what you're talking about, let's go, pop said.

While they did, ma still laughing to herself and pop pretending not to know what at.

WED—THEN ARRESTED

Her wedding brought about her arrest. This seeming scandal in the career of Mary Dimitro (nee Burt) is explained by the fact that pictures of the pretty gipsy girl at her colorful wedding in a Toronto Labor temple, caught the eagle eye of a police detective who recognized Mary as the girl wanted in Philadelphia, Quebec, for telling fortunes and then jumping bail. Three days after the nuptial rites, Mary was taken into custody for return to Nowanda.

Martha's Plain Face

By SUSIE POTTER HESSE
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service.

They were ready at last. Glenna Lowning gave a final dab at her cheeks and smiled into her mirror, satisfied! Glenna was adorable. Everyone conceded it. Martha Dennis watched her soberly. Martha did not look into her own mirror. She was not adorable and everyone knew that—she thought they did. She was plain even to her name, and when you say sane and plain—well, nothing much comes your way, at least not the things that youth most wants.

Today the two girls were leaving the hot, hurrying office for a whole month's vacation in the cool, green country. "A good time to forget my grievance," Martha said to herself sturdily, "and perhaps, just perhaps, the folks there will like plain faces."

At last the journey ended. The two girls arrived in the little town of Blueberry, and with the arrival came at once to Martha the overthrow of all her castles. When she looked into the steady, shining eyes of Herman Morris she knew that the kind welcome which he gallantly assisted old Mrs. Brodwell to her place and dexterously seated her in her chair. When the introductions to herself and Glenna came, she felt him sweep her with a quick, unseeing glance, while Glenna caught and held him as was her wont with men.

After that, as the time sped by, it seemed to Martha that he came from business a bit earlier each day, always ready for some pastime with the two girls. At first she went along with a sort of desperate determination. She would make him notice her—and he did. With his accustomed courtesy he saw to it that she was properly escorted.

But I know the difference between politeness and devotion," Martha said to herself, brokenly.

Then, finally, with an heroic resolve: "I'll leave them to their own devices." So the next afternoon she pleaded illness and watched them hurry away, teasing and bantering each other. "And so pleased I'm sick," thought Martha. She did not catch the queer, indefinable look on Herman's face. Glenna did not see it, either.

The dreary afternoon to which Martha had condemned herself was abruptly interrupted. Sadie, the maid in deep despair, came calling for Mr. Morris. His mother had gone to her room too ill to talk and what should she do about supper? The cooking had never been delegated to anyone.

Martha's pleasant She might be masterful-itive but she was not helpless.

"Tell Mrs. Morris to not to worry, I will manage supper." And she did. "The mixed biscuits Mrs. Morris ever made," unanimously agreed the boarders, "and the very best croquettes."

Martha did not know of the conference between mother and son in Mrs. Morris' room that evening nor did she see a certain peculiar expression rest again on Herman's face.

Several times during the next few days, when she could escape Glenna, she slipped away into the kitchen to lend a helping hand, into the mixtures was again in charge.

"The finest little lady I know," Mrs. Morris confided to her son, and failed to catch the acquiescence in his eyes.

Then Herman decided to appeal to Glenna. She was a good pal and would not fail him. So he began one afternoon on the lake, when Martha had again declined to accompany them. "There's something of great importance to me, Glenna, that I must ask you."

Glenna's heart turned completely over and she knew she was going to say "Yes" much more promptly than she had ever intended to say it to any man. Then he went on and she heard as though from a great distance: "Miss Dennis has not taken an incurable dislike to me. I wish you'd help me find the way to her heart."

Glenna gave one quick look into his troubled eyes, swallowed hard and thought fast. After a considerable pause, "I think I know the route," she answered steadily. To herself she said: "People who don't happen to be handsome shall have no monopoly on sacrifice. I'll show them."

The next afternoon she waved a smiling good-by to the two from her seat on the verandah. When they had gone a little distance the smile vanished and she watched them with tight-closed lips until they were beyond sight.

"I'm glad. I will be glad!" she breathed. "Martha needs him and I—well, I can't have him, that's all."

Some time later, Martha, still half afraid, said shyly, "Are you sure you don't mind that I'm home-ly, Herman?"

"Homely? Are you?" and he laughed. "I didn't know—I didn't notice. I just saw YOU."

Man, Your Story Is News, Too! LET THEM KNOW IT!

Lots of people tell us, "Gosh, it must be a hard job to write a newspaper! "Well, they're wrong. They're simply all wet. Our big job, getting out a paper, is to gather, edit, set up, print and distribute the news before it's cold. It isn't hard to write news—because real news writes itself! All our reporters have to do is answer the vital question "Who? What? Where? When? Why?" Then they let the facts tell their own story.

Now—the text books may not say so, but all that goes for advertising, too! Clothe your advertising message with the fast-moving informative authenticity of a live news-story—and it's our bet that your goods will move quicker! Why? Because readers are hungry for news and every advertiser's story, well told, is news!

Tell 'em WHO: Make sure the reader sees YOUR name!

Tell 'em WHAT: Let every reader, every buyer know what your stuff looks like, what color it is, what it's made of—in a word, how good it is!

Tell 'em WHERE: How can a stranger find your store if she doesn't know the address? How can a reader find your merchandise if she doesn't know the department?

Tell 'em WHEN: If your "special" starts tomorrow tell 'em so and tell 'em how long it will last.

And finally tell em WHY: Tell 'em and sell 'em all the reasons why every man and woman ought to own, use and enjoy your merchandise!

As we've mentioned, writing the news isn't hard—when you know how. And every member of our advertising staff does know how! Every one of them is trained to be a good NEWS-writing job, trained to help you write your message so that it will be read and understood . . . and acted upon as NEWS!

Get news into your advertising! Let the Ontario Intelligencer help you. Let us help you sell more goods at less cost with copy that gets read

Weddings

CHUMBLEY—SAVAGE

The wedding took place on Saturday, July 17th of Alfred Howland Chumbley, 36 Murney Street, and Jean Elizabeth Savage, 19 Bridge Street, Rev. George Marshall officiated at Bridge Street Church Rectory in the presence of parents and immediate relatives of the couple.

BIRD—REDDICK

A pretty mid-summer wedding took place Saturday afternoon, July 17th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Reddick, Trent Road, when their daughter, Evelyn Pauline was united in marriage to Kenneth M. Bird, son of Mrs. Bird and the late Richard Newton Bird.

The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the ceremony being performed in the bay window of the living-room banked with ferns, palms, delphiniums and other flowers.

Mr. G. B. Reddick, father of the bride officiated, assisted by Dr. Semple.

The bride entered the room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mr. William Connor and was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of white satin with long train, fashioned in panels buttoned in front from a high lace collar to the hem of a full skirt, the skirt falling in soft folds. The veil of tulle was caught in a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride and groom were unattended.

During the signing of the register, Mr. S. Alec Gordon and Mr. William Connor played a duet, an arrangement of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held and a dainty luncheon served.

Later the bridal couple left for a motor trip through Eastern Ontario and Quebec, the bride wearing a navy blue lace dress with full pleated skirt with contrasting collar, fin girdle of cerise, matching blue accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

Upon their return they will reside on North Front Street, Belleville.

NO CLOSED SHOPS SAYS DUPLESSIS

Quebec Premier Makes Declaration Praising Hepburn

Montreal, July 19 (CP)—Premier Maurice L. Duplessis declared today closed shops would not be tolerated in Quebec province.

The premier stated workers, whether they belonged to International or National Catholic Unions, will be allowed perfect freedom to work at reasonable wages and under satisfactory conditions, but without outside interference being tolerated.

"The closed shop is a cause of disorder and an attempt against the freedom of the worker," he said.

"The laws are made and applied for the benefit of the people at large, by elected representatives. No other individual or organization can substitute itself in that function."

Mr. Duplessis congratulated Premier Hepburn of Ontario and proceeded to co-operate with him in efforts to prevent, the introduction in this part of the country of such elements as the C.I.O., which, he declared, aims to progress through the spread of subversive elements. He said he hoped Ottawa would co-operate with Ontario and Quebec in the matter.

The officers and senior N.C.O.'s who accompanied the 34th Battery camp were: Major W. E. Van Sternburgh, Capt. J. H. McVeigh, Lieut. J. H. Wells, Lieut. R. L. Bird, Lieut. G. McLaughlin, B.S.M. C. Gould and B.Q.M.S. W. Lindsay.

JEAN I. GUNN NAMED OFFICER

Former Belleville Resident First Vice President Congress of Nurses

London, July 19 (CP Cable)—The International Congress of Nurses, attending by 3,500 delegates, was opened today by the Princess Royal at a colorful ceremony amid the flags of the 40 nations represented.

"In these times when far-reaching medical and surgical research-es are being made," her Royal Highness told the delegates, "it is more than ever necessary that nursing should retain its high standard."

Dame Alicia Still, matron of St. Thomas's Hospital, presiding, warned against over-emphasis of the educational phase of nursing.

"We are in danger of making a study of nursing instead of becoming informed and skilled through practising it properly. We need both science and art, but it must be applied science and practical art," she said. The report of the Winnipeg General Hospital, read the report of the education committee which recommends the study of a curriculum drafted by the Canadian Nurses Association as "being worthy of the interest and study of the world nursing organizations."

Effie J. Taylor, Yale University nursing graduate, was elected vice-President of the Congress. Miss Taylor was advised a day before weeks' complete rest because of illness and is at present at the home of his parents, Rev. R. J. and Mrs. Kofferd, Brookmount Drive, Toronto.

34TH BATTERY BACK FROM CAMP

Successful Training in Artillery Manoeuvres at Petawawa Camp

The 34th Field Battery returned Sunday morning from the Artillery Camp at Petawawa where they received eight days' training under conditions as nearly approximating actual field conditions as could be provided. The Battery went to the Petawawa Camp on the morning of Saturday, July 10th and after medical inspection entered their period of intensive training.

Tactical Training

This training included firing from corrections made by aeroplane observation and manoeuvres in order to become proficient in imaginary infantry forces which was in a defensive position and being attacked by another enemy force. Part of the scheme was to take up a position during one day's march an enemy attack the following morning. The supporting artillery (which included the local Battery) took up position after dark to open fire the following daybreak. The troops were out all night and when the fire was brought down at the crack of dawn the enemy encountering a solid band of shell fire covering the enemy front. Per those who witnessed the fire it was a beautiful sight and demonstrated the accuracy and efficiency of the Canadian Artillery.

Rain Aids to Drifting

The work of laying the guns during this part of the manoeuvres was made particularly difficult by a heavy rain which started during the afternoon and continued off and during the night. Everyone was wet and what little sleep the men got was secured under trees but in the open. Conditions were made worse by the swarms of mosquitoes which made the object of their opportunities. In spite of such conditions the troops were steady and did their work in an efficient manner.

Battery Complimented

The local Battery received many complimentary letters on the appearance of the unit and on the excellent degree of accuracy of their fire. Every man did his best and the co-operation within the unit could not have been better.

TWO FILM EXTRAS HELD BY POLICE

One Held on Suspicion of Murder And Other as Material Witness

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—An autopsy was ordered today on the body of Mrs. Dorothy May Garland, 31, former deputy city prosecutor, while police held two film extras in connection with her death.

Arrest of Miss May Tutwiler, 29, an aspiring motion picture actress, and Allen, 33, as a material witness resulted from a report by Mrs. Garland's physician.

The two women and Allen had participated in a drinking party, Mrs. Starr asserted. Mrs. Garland died in her home July 2.

A brilliant law student at the University of Southern California, Mrs. Garland was appointed to the city prosecutor's office in 1929, becoming one of the few women in the district department.

She resigned in 1934 when she was chief trial deputy, to practice law with her husband, James P. Garland, from whom she was later estranged.

A $700,000 love theft suit was pending against her when she died, filed by the wife of a police official, Mrs. Earl Varnell. In an answer, Mrs. Garland had denied alienating Varnell's affections.

BULLET PIERCES CAR WINDSHIELD

Two Stray Bullets Are Investigated at Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., July 19 (CP)—Aftermath of two stray rifle shots which fell on highway in the district, a man is in hospital with a shoulder wound and police are investigating the case of the bullet which pierced the windshield of his morning automobile.

James Munn was brought to hospital Saturday night with a 22 calibre bullet in his right arm, received while driving his lorry along the Dundas-Hamilton highway. A farmer claimed to have been shooting rats about his home when the shot strayed.

The second incident also happened Saturday night when the windshield of the car driven by Arnold Hagan was pierced by a similar calibre bullet. Wilson was also approaching the high level bridge with his wife and child in the car. The bullet made a clean break in the glass, scattering none the top of the windshield.

ANONYMOUS NOTE FOUND BY BODY

Called Upon Suicide Victim to Give Himself up to Police

Montreal July 19 (CP)—To the bizarre mystery surrounding the disappearance of Ellanee St. Pierre and the suicide of Henri Emile Plaisaid, police added today a note addressed to Plaisaid from an anonymous writer.

At headquarters police said the note was found beside the body of Plaisaid, discovered Friday in the St. Lawrence River at Longueuil.

It read: "You coward, why don't you go and give yourself up? Remember, you have left seen in Plaisaid's car. Then they found the automobile was clipped from a Montreal newspaper.

At the same time Captain J. Cardin dismissed a rumor Plaisaid left a note in Esperanto—a secret language that might contain information concerning the disappearance of Miss St. Pierre, his niece.

Police also said they hoped to gain information from a young man detained at the St. Jean de Dieu Hospital for the insane, Lake St. Louis. According to detectives, he was taken there by Plaisaid and a friend a short time ago and now is under observation of a group of alienists.

SAY 'UNWORTHY' EXPELLED

Karlsruhe, Germany, July 19 (CP)—The Newspaper Sankt Konrad, Catholic diocese of Freiburg, today announced that 1,000 priests had been expelled "unworthy members" of the Franciscan Lay Brotherhood at Paderborn.

The Brotherhood, one of the oldest in Germany, counted immediately trials, henceforth will be organized on a new basis and only priests and brothers in honor of the Holy Cross, the newspaper said.

COMMUNISTS PLEDGED TO COMMON AIMS

Paris, July 19 (CP-Havas)—The French Communist Youth Federation, during the visit here of a delegation of the Soviet Union, pledged friendly co-operation with the Communist Youth of the Soviet Union League for peace and other common aims. There are 150,000 communists enrolled in the French Communist Youth Federation.

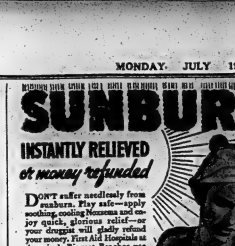
The pledge was contained in a letter from R. Guyot, President of the Federation, addressed to the Communist organ L'Humanite, to the President of the League, and the President of the Ukranian organization's annual Congress.

2 PETERBORO MEN SUFFER INJURIES

Lindsay, July 19 (CP)—Hospital authorities today reported improvement in the condition of G. F. Leith, 34, and Clare Scholard, both of Peterboro, who were injured yesterday when their, car crashed into a culvert.

Mrs. Gerald Neeley, also of Peterboro, the couple was returned from a Lindsay hospital. Leith suffered head and face lacerations and Scholard escaped with a slightly cut arm.

Mystery Surrounds Windsor Girl's Death



Windsor, Ont., July 19.—(CP) — Mystery surrounds the death of 22-year-old Antoinette Bondi, Windsor, whose body was identified at the Wayne County Morgue, Detroit, from the week-end after being found in the Detroit River, at Suburban Grosse.

Eugene Langlois, assistant city prosecutor, said the girl's mother, Mrs. Gerald Bondi, had been missing since July 7. Her body was taken from the river July 10.

Mr. Langlois mentioned it was announced Miss Langlois' death was due to asphyxiation resulting from drowning.

F. L. Jacklich Dies

New York, July 19 (CP)—Fred L. Jacklich, 49, who managed Montreal's professional baseball baseball team in 1886, died at his home here yesterday.

FACES ARSON CHARGE

Albert R. Knight, 35, former wealthy oil executive pictured here in police custody at Lansdowne, Pa., after his arrest. He is being held on $10,000 bail, on charges of attempting to burn his three daughters. The blaze which partially damaged the Knight home, occurred on the night of May 26th. The children were said to have been insured for $250,000.

Foreign Secretary Insisted

The Foreign Secretary insisted that Britain had no desire to interfere with the internal affairs of Spain, but British interest in the integrity of Spain was very real. British disinterestedness in the internal affair of Spain, Eden pointed out, only proceeded, must not be taken simply to mean disinterestedly where British interests were concerned.

"There must be no mistake," the Foreign Secretary declared. "It is against these principles that the conception anywhere. But while we are determined to defend our rights we have no intention of infringing the rights of others.

"That is why we made the agreement with Italy last January, which, I repeat, was not in the main arterial road, and it is, there is plenty of room for all on such a road. We have no desire to injure our place on it, and we do, we have no intention of doing so. I turn anyone else off it. I call on do we wish to interfere with those who geographically stand upon it. There is room for all. Free traffic through and out of the Mediterranean is the common interest of Britain and all the Mediterranean powers.

Come From Behind

Budge handed Mako a terrific trouncing in the second of last Saturday's singles matches after Mako opened with a flourish and had the opener just as conclusively.

Today's match found the American coming from behind in each of the last three sets.

After losing the opening set by breaking through Mako's service in the eighth game, Budge's in the tenth, the Germans evened it in the 12th game by the end-set; were within one point of winning the third set in the ninth game of the fourth when before the Americans rallied, and won the last three games in succession.

But the two young Californians were not to be denied and in the second set by cracking Henkel's delivery in the ninth game of the fourth set, Budge "crashed" pulled the fourteen-game match to a close in the fifth set, bringing from Henkel's service in the thirteenth game.

Despite these brilliant comebacks, Budge and Mako saved their best tennis for the last set. Even the third, fourth and fifteenth games which broke the hundred point and trailing 4-1, the Americans won the next five games in a row, breaking Henkel's service in the seventh game and Von Metaxa's in the eighth. They netted 5-4 going into the tenth game and Budge, after losing four successive points, the last on a close, ace, to win set and match.

In the second crowd was Henry Cotton, recently crowned British open golf champion.

Farm Helpers Few, Best Wages Since '30

Chicago, July 19. —(AP)—A new headache plagued the United States farmer today as he strung into the harvest months. Reports from all over the country showed:

The hit midwest grain belt, in the northeast and throughout the vegetable-growing region, farmers reported harvest crews shorthanded. They were offering Federal statistics said, the highest wages since 1930 for farmhands.

Farmers, the statisticians said, could not get an adequate supply of help even from unemployed men seeking agricultural work.

Insect Bite Fatal To East Zorra Boy

Woodstock, Ont., July 19—(CP)—The bite of an insect two weeks ago proved fatal to 14-year-old Henry Ropp, East Zorra Township boy, who died yesterday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ropp.

Bitten on his right leg, blood poisoning developed. He took a sudden turn for the worse Saturday evening, lapsing into a state of coma from which he never recovered.

Jean Harlow in "RIFF RAFF" and All-Star Presentation of "Les Miserables."

Jean Harlow took her place among the outstanding dramatic actresses of the screen, Spencer Tracy turns in the finest performance of his distinguished career, and Cliff Edwards is simply tops for entertainment honors in "Riff Raff," brought to the Capitol Theatre for the delight of fans of Jean Harlow to the Capitol until Tuesday night when 2nd revival hit "Les Miserables."

Thoroughly "different" and thoroughly entertaining is "Riff Raff." It is in many respects one of the most unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood in many a moon, dancing in its theme, uncompromising in its treatment, and vividly realistic from first scene to last.

Always original, Irving G. Thalberg selected M-G-M's two most elemental stars to top the distinguished cast and they do not disappoint the selection proves to be happy. Tracy's role makes him a domineering, dominating, two-fisted, gun-going man who thinks he is the master of destiny when until he meets Miss Harlow, the belle of the water-front, who disrupts the smooth running of men in giving him a love that is almost glorious, yet masked with biting sarcasm.

The love affair of these two, their marriage, the trials and tribulations of them and their ultimate union of understanding makes for romance and scene drama is humor of the sort that brings a lump to the throat and a tear to the eye. It is recommended without reservation.

"Les Miserables" shown at the matinee at 2.30 and the evening at 7.00 o'clock and 9.25.

"Les Miserables"

Victor Hugo's immortal classic is shown at the Capitol until Tuesday night as 2nd No. 2 starring Charles Laughton, Fredric March and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

The role of Jean Valjean, originated onthe stage by Frederick Warde, finds Laughton in the galleys of the French prison ship for the theft of a loaf of bread and finds his whole future life darkened by that action. As the years pass the understanding of March's brilliant career, Laughton's fine characterization of Javert, who has dedicated his life to the literal interpretation of the law, and Hardwicke's characterization which affords a psychological glimpse into the mind of Victor Hugo, the author, a man-hunter.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, distinguished stage and screen star, is seen as the benefactor Bishop of Bienvenu. Hardwicke takes the hunted Jean Valjean from an unfeeling beast to a noble and courageous man.

Come early and avoid missing this grand feature. Matinee shows start at 2.30 with "Les Miserables" shown at 2.35 only in evening and at 4.00 p.m. at Belleville.

Firing Is Reported

Tokyo, July 19 (CP-Havas)—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency announced tonight Chinese troops today opened fire on Japanese detachments "without provocation" west of Peiping.

Japanese officers said Chinese soldiers engaged in the construction of a concrete pillbox at Lukouchiao on the Peiping-Hankow line, south of Peiping, opened fire on a Japanese force.

Other details were lacking.

The Chinese government yesterday protested to Japan against Japanese scouting planes had machine-gunned Chinese troops and supply trains in Hopeh Province, violating China's territorial sovereignty.

The Chinese counter-charge came but a short time after Japan's charge the situation in direct aggression against Japanese interests.

Aldermac at 1,000 Tons Shortly

With present tonnage running between 400 and 500 tons daily the 1,000 ton mill is expected to be ready to run at full capacity within a few weeks. The mine is being steadily opened up to supply mill feed at full capacity. Development work is being largely concentrated on Number 4 vein which is proving rich and are opening up rapidly. On the 4th and 5th levels, number 4 vein is being opened up and stopes prepared on both horizons. Above the 500 foot level stopes have been started in the body and good ore sections are reported. Diamond drilling has been started on the 1,135 ft. level but so far has been confined to extending the ore deposits. Drilling is progressing on the 4th level development work. Good grade ore sections are being developed containing around 20 per cent copper and fair values in gold and silver. Diamond drilling is being held in anticipation of the erection of a sulphur plant at the property. The experimental plant with which research for the recovery of sulphur from Aldermac concentrates is being carried out at Niagara Falls, is still in operation and it is believed that successful results are being obtained. Aldermac is exclusive Canadian rights for the manufacture of sulphur by the Wescott process.

Massey-Harris — Sales to May 31st 50 per cent. greater than in the corresponding period last year.

Hiram Walker — Net earnings equal to $2.10 a share on the 724,096 common shares outstanding at May 31, 1937, reported for the third quarter of current year as against $1.55 a share on the 600,000 common shares outstanding for the corresponding quarter of the preceding year.

Some traders are greatly disappointed over the action of the Dominion stock market, particularly when it is considered that New York has practically recovered. The only explanation being advanced is that the poor crop prospects have caused to dampen speculative enthusiasm.

The consensus in the Street, is that a better market will prevail before the Fall or as seasonal influences become felt in the autumn. The betterment will, of course, not be so spectacular as would have been the case had the western crop been of normal size, but nevertheless many companies should experience a pick-up in business.

The Honourable Colonel Henry Cockshutt, Chairman of the Board of the Cockshutt Plow Company Limited, advises Financial Service that sales show a increase of 48 per cent. so far in the company's fiscal year over a like period in 1936. This is progress, but it should be borne in mind that all the implement companies sell their goods on time and it is very doubtful whether the farmer will be able to meet his obligations next spring in view of crop conditions in Western Canada. Another factor to consider is the Massey-Harris and Cockshutt Plow sell a good portion of their output outside of this country.

HIT-RUN ACCIDENT AT WALLACEBURG

Wallaceburg, Ont., July 19 (CP) — Ornie Sherman, Detroit, was rushed to Chatham over the week-end when injuries suffered as result of his car being struck by a car which did not stop on Skinner Road, North Kent.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE Close

Toronto, July 19 (CP)—Traders reached for low ground today and issues were raised volume picked up, giving the Toronto market a bullish note. After selling steady through several sessions in the process of consolidating the gains of early July, the market appeared ready to press forward again. The action bulked in the mines, with International Nickel taking a lead and in the industrials Fanny Farmer, Massey Harris, Brazilian and some of the big oils changed hands in substantial volume.

International Nickel closed around 61¾, up more than a point. Noranda firmed two. The close was up moderately for Fanny Farmer, Canadbury Besin, Sherritt and Aldermac. Silver stocks held aloof. Chromium was higher through the early part but weakened under late profit-taking.

Junior golds, including Paymaster, McVittie, Wayhoo, Bonetal, and Lebel Ore, all traded at gains of 2 to 4 cents each. Among the secondary issues the close was firm in Buscadena, Little Long Lac, Sladac, Canadian Malartic, Siscoe, Chibougamau, Lava Cap, Kerr-Addison, McLeod Cockshutt, Bidgood, Falconbridge and Tobum. McIntyre improved a point to 37 and Dome added about a half point.

Fanny Farmer came out in volume and showed a fractional gain. Higher prices were posted in the Utilities group for Bell Telephone, Brazilian, International Utilities B, and United Fuels pfd. The Steel of Canada stocks advanced. Sherritt pfd. advanced 3 and the common closed a half point higher. Specialized Paper added a fraction. Five hundred Brazilian traded in one sale at 26, up ¼.

Gains showed finally for Foundations, Home, Homestead, Oxalis and United Oils.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, July 19—(CP)—Stocks pushed into a new recovery move today, old-line leaders pointed the way.

With activity at the rate of about 1,000,000 shares, gains of a dozen were lifted fractions to 2 or more points. Thirty issues sold at full-selling near the final hour, but gains generally were well maintained.

Livestock

Montreal, July 19—(CP)—Steady to easier prices prevailed at Canada's leading cattle and lamb divisions of Montreal livestock exchange today on a fairly slightly stronger.

Receipts: Cattle 933; calves 1184; hogs 1407; sheep and lambs 2066.

Weighty steers made $9.75, goods $8 to $8.75, and medium steers $7 to $8.50. Butcher cows traded at $2.75 to $5.25 and bulls at steady prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.25.

Choice calves were sold at $7.50, fairs to medimums $5.50 to $6.25, medium goods $6.50. Drinkers ranged from $4.50 to $5.50 and culls down from $2 to $4.

Good lambs brought $2.50 with culls out at $8. Sheep made $2.50 for commons to $4.50 for odd yearlings.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, made $10.35 with the usual commission for selects. Butchers and heavies brought $9.75 to $10.25, lights $9.25 with lights from $9.25 to $9.75. Sows traded from $7.50 to $8.

Toronto, July 19 (CP)—Cattle prices held around previous levels on the Toronto Livestock Exchange today with most activity confined to steers and heifers. Calves showed stronger prices while lambs dropped 50 cents. Hogs were steady while nd definite top price was established by early afternoon. Cattle holdover receipts Thursday was 500 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 6,440; calves 1,850; hogs 2,080; sheep and lambs 1,200.

Cattle receipts include 4,000 from the West. A few choice weighty steers brought $8.75 to $9.50. Good butcher steers and heifers sold at $7.50 with tops up to $8. Good light heifers were $7 to $7.25.

Common butcher cattle ranged down to 4.75. Cows traded at $3.26 to $5 with canners and cutters from $2 to $3, and bops bringing $5. Fed calves were firm at $10 to $10.50 for choice, medium going as low as $8.50.

Good Western stockers moved actively at $5.25 to $5.85 while common stockers were $4 to $5.

The calf run included 900 Western stockers. Choice vealers

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Cheese receipts for the week at Montreal were slightly higher, according to reports released by the Montreal Board of Trade, totalling 4,000 boxes as compared with 61-200 boxes the week previous. There were 775 cases of eggs exported and 1,000 packages of cheese, latter representing a very sharp drop from the previous week's figure.

Comparative figures of receipts for last week are as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	6,766	27,435	61,922
Week ago	7,377	31,908	43,200
Year ago	4,996	29,713	21,537

There were two lots of 200 boxes of Quebec fresh new-made butter sold on the Commodity Exchange on Saturday at 25 3-4c; offerings were 25 3-4c to 25 7-8c for Quebec fresh 92 score butter.

The cheese market was firm throughout the past week, with a price ranging of 24 3-4c to 24 7-8c for western white and colored; 24 3-4c to 24 7-8c for Quebec white and colored.

The egg market was steady and firm, with a scarcity of grade A-medium eggs. Graded shipments are selling spot in free case returns as follows: A-large, 25c to 25 1-2c, A-medium 24c to 24 1-2c, No. 2's 22c to 21 1-2c; C, 18 1-2c. DiMaggio Clouts Long Homer And Double to Score All Runs Secured by New York Yankees

Bob Feller Was Victim of Mammoth Clout in Cleveland

CUBS RETAIN LEAD

Both Chicago And Giants Score Double Wins on Sunday

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Old Slubber Malone's somewhat sore in certain portions of his anatomy today—but he figures it was worth it.

Just to keep the records straight, it must be explained Old Slubber is a portly pitcher for the New York Yankees. Those who aren't his pals say his waistline, if stretched end to end, would make a good start on a cross-country highway.

That being the case, violent exercise cannot be Old Slubber's forte.

But when he looked in from the bullpen at Cleveland yesterday and saw that home run shot of Joltin' Joe DiMaggio's go into the far away left field stands, bringing in the four runs, that sent blasting Bobby Feller down to a 6-3 defeat, Old Slubber just had to up and turn handsprings.

Yesterday, while most of the Yanks were fanning at thin air barring Joe's all-out wallop, it took a triple and a double as well as his homer, drove in all five of the Yankee runs as they trimmed out the needle in Feller's third straight futile "comeback" effort.

Gehas Hits Two Homers

With Augie Galan hitting two homers, the Cubs clouted Brooklyn twice, 9-6 and 8-4, to retain their margin of three percentage points in the senior circuit chase. The Giants stayed right in the running by finding the Cardinals a double-header pusher, 4-3 and 11-6, with King Carl Hubbell and Prince Hall Schumacher doing the pitching honors, that dropped the gas house gang into fourth place.

Peaches Davis pitched a five-hitter and Lefty Grissom produced a two-hit shutout as the Reds whipped the Boston Bees 4-1 and 1-0. The Pirates managed only an even break with the Phillies, winning the nightcap 8-5 in 11 innings, after dropping the opener, 7-3 when Passeau's pitching.

Although held to two hits by Monte Weaver and Ed Linke, the Tigers topped the Senators 4-0 on walks and steals. Chicago's climbing White Sox socked the Boston Red Sox 8-4 and 7-0, thanks to Monte Weaver's three-hit pitching. The Browns beat the Athletics 10-8 in their opener, and then lost the nightcap, 7-6.

Syracuse Chiefs Win Three Games Over Weekend From Toronto

(By The Associated Press)

Johnny Vandermeer, the husky southpaw of Syracuse Chiefs is the latest "pay off guy" in the chief's liaison with the Cincinnati Reds. Johnny, after beginning to bear out last year, couldn't make the grade with the Reds this season, but his last ball is beginning to bear dividends in the International League.

He tossed a five-hitter yesterday and the Chiefs topped Toronto Maple Leafs 7 to 3 to sweep a three game series.

Buffalo Bisons finally found Newark's rampant Bears can be beaten. The Bisons had dropped 11 straight, including a 12-4 pasting to the pacemakers, but they whacked Newark 6-3 in the second game of a double header.

Baltimore Orioles continued to play fine ball by trimming Montreal Royals in both ends of a double bill, 6-4, 6-2. Les Powers topped the Orioles attack with four for four in tile opener. But three unearned runs did most of the damage.

A five-run rally in the last of the seventh inning gave the Jersey Giants a double win over the Rochester Red Wings, with the wins spulled the nightcap out of the fire, 8-7 after losing to Ben Cantwell in the opener, 5-0.

JOHNNY MANN ON TWO WINNERS

(By The Canadian Press)

Jockey Johnny Mann coupled his fourth race victory with a win in the featured fifth, the W. J. Connors Memorial, to take premier honors in Saturday's racing cards, which features more out of Fort Erie after today's races, last of a 14-day meeting.

P. Mecklenberg's Lisson Lad provided Mann's home in the Memorial holding a small lead all the way around. Night Cap, the wire, a length behind for nearly the whole mile and a quarter, Bobs Lisson Lad and Noble Spirit, Mann's first winner paid off in double figures.

Silvirix, in the third, and Zangwill in the final race, were the long shots of the day. Johnstone brought Silvirix in a half length in front of Scotch Reading's Easter Lister, the favorite. Zangwill was a 10-to-one shot and beat Dainty Rose and Chal Eagle to the wire.

JOKA WINS RACE IN LAST ROUND

"After You" Had Her Sailing Weather But Could Not Win

Trailing for the first two laps Duke Smith's Joka pulled into the lead to win yesterday's "A" class sailing races, sponsored by the Belleville Yacht Club off Victoria Park, to win from Maurice Callaghan's After You 3rd by a scant 40 seconds, Harry Semark's Alaska pulling up a third position.

With an off-land breeze out of the northwest that proved none too brisk at times, six sailing craft crossed the starting line, three in the "A" and three in the "B" Class, the latter class being won by Rushlow's Dorothy. Some fine manoeuvring was seen during the short-leg tacks, that were needed on the incoming lap to the starting buoy in the harbor. At the start Semark's Alaska came about into the wind and crossed the starting line ahead of the gun and was forced to retrace her route and start over again permitting the Joka and After You to gain considerable distance in the lead which Semark could not close up.

Skipper Callaghan's After You, sailing in a favorable wind took the lead on the first lap holding his advantage well at the completion of the second lap. On the last leg Duke Smith's Joka, former Smith's Joka, with Skipper Harry Whalen at the helm, closed the gap take the lead as the two boats raced and took the After You's wing to headed into the final leg at the harbor. The Joka and After You could keep even with the proverbial blanket until the final tack, when the After You lost ground as she fell in behind the Joka. Just even on to the line the winner's time was slightly slow being one hour 53 minutes and 16 seconds.

Yesterday's Belleville Yacht Club races were the first of the club's proposed Sunday races, instead of the conventional Wednesday as in former years The Sunday racing proved popular to a large gallery of spectators and over an increased number of boats racing and doubtless will be continued, Alderman Ernie Baldree, sailing chairman of the club, announced after the races.

In the "B" class Rushlow's Dorothy won with Mel Kirsh's Albatross second while Kellar's Scrapper was a close third from competition.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
by
Ken J. Colling

On Civic Holiday the local softball moguls are staging an all-star benefit softball game for Jimmie Hartage, who sustained a fractured jaw after being struck in the face by a ball recently. Not only is the game to be for such a worthy cause, but the sport fans of Belleville are to be the privileges of selecting the proposed all-star team. First and foremost it was decided to have the Curtin Legion team play a team from the remaining four clubs in the league, namely—Point Anne, Belleville-Sargents, Trenton Sloans and the Salmon Junior. The sport fans who are interested in picking all-star teams are to send in their selections naming each individual player in every one of the nine positions including the name of the club with each player and the specific position. These selections are to be mailed and left with Frederick William Todd, Percival Shores, Belleville, not later than Wednesday, July 28th. From these selections for the all-star team is closest to being correct with the majority of votes receiving will receive a cash consideration for their efforts. Remember, pick your team from the four clubs other than the Curtin Locks and the teams the respective positions of the players selected.

One of Belleville's outstanding yearchief golfers, Norm Carruthers, is aspiring to take a shot at the Canadian amateur golf championship, to be held in Ottawa next month. Tommy is considered one of the best golfers at the Belleville Golf Club and the pledge from his average play record proves some encouragement from his fellow-golfers. In order to qualify for the Canadian amateur title a golfer must have a provincial handicap of ten or under and Tommy qualifies under this rule. The par for the Belleville Golf course is 34 and Tommy has repeatedly shot the course well under par on numerous occasions. The lad may not win the Canadian amateur title but he deserves an opportunity is at least try. It is players of Tommy Carruthers' type who make our greatest golfers. The lad is a reserved young man, far from an egotistic nature, but has aspirations to go places in the golf world. He deserves the support of the community.

It's softball at Coleman Flats and baseball at the Pair Grounds on the local sports menu tonight with the Belleville Rovers playing lacrosse at Cobourg. At the Exhibition Park the Riverside Juniors hope to advance to a play-off berth in the S. H. L. with a win over the Parkdale Juniors. Bobb Lisson Lad and Noble Spirit, Mann's first winner paid off in double figures.

We are sorry to report that Eric and Ernie McNeeley, twin brothers of Mr. R. C. H. Flynn, champion hockey club, were suddenly called to Ottawa over the week-end where their mother is reported to be seriously ill at the family residence in the Capital city.

Stan Burgoyne, former Belleville hockey player and hockey coach, was in the city renewing old sporting acquaintances over the week-end. Stan looks as robust as ever and is umpiring baseball games during his present residence in Toronto, he says.

The Oshawa, G. M.-mey advanced into the leading position in C.O.B.L. as they downed Kingston, Peaches by the score of 7 to 2 in the latter city Saturday. At the same time the Napanee Gliders had a tough and struggle to the Peies in the Littlock City, the score being 6-5 in favor of Napanee. A report by George "Tidy" Blanchett is having more than his share of trouble with the Ball Bards. Alex Weir informs us that Blanchett is pitching good ball, but is not getting the hitting behind him. Even when he does Dame Fortune seems to frowns on George, who is surely running in bad luck.

Although there could have been more boats out in competition, the season's initial Sunday sailing races, sponsored by the Belleville Yacht Club, saw an increased number of contestants and more especially a deciding increase in the gallery. Those in witness the day's racing yesterday saw some really good manoeuvering as Duke Smith's Joka came from behind, to nose out Maurice Callaghan's "After You" after Callaghan's boat had led the parade for two laps. The light breeze that blew off land was right down the After You's alley, but Skippers Whalan and Smith out-manoeuvered the After You's crew during the last leg home to the harbour. The Dorothy, with Skipper Rushlow at the helm, trounced Bill Hunt and his Atlanta in the "B" Class.

Glad to see Jimmie Bartlett, Oshawa marathon runner, made such a splendid showing in the Trans Centennial marathon where he placed fifth against the best lumbers on the continent yesterday.

See where one of the Runion boys is playing centre field for the Port Colborne "Sailors" in the Inter-City League. Don't know for sure whether it's Doug. or Eddie, but inclined to favour the former.

The Ontario Athletic Commission means alternative refunds in which professional boxing is to be judged in the future. First by the referee only, and secondly by the referee and two judges, all to be named at ringside and their individual verdicts made public when it is rendered at the conclusion of a bout.

MONTREAL SAILORS WIN

Montreal, July 19.—(CP)—Eighty sailors from the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club at Dorval, Que., defeated Toronto and Kingston yachtsmen on Lake St. Louis yesterday in their annual interclub competition.

Victory of the Dorval dinghymen gave them the Currie Cup, held by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto, which trailed 45oyal St. Lawrence and Kingston Yacht Club today. The final point standing gave Dorval 36, Kingston, 21 and Toronto 17.

BOWLING TOURNEY A REAL SUCCESS

Warkworth Rink Wins First Prize at Stirling

Stirling, July 19 (Special)—Twenty rinks representing many bowling clubs of the surrounding communities took part in the annual Mixed Rinks Tournament held on the local greens under the auspices of the Stirling Bowling Club. A warkworth rink with C. Churchley as skip carried off first honours in the day's winnings with the highest score for three wins. The twenty rinks taking part in the play, which was especially close in many cases included the following: two from Norwood; two from Warkworth; four from Kingsley; two from Campbellford; two from Madoc; one from Havelock; one from Brighton; two from Belleville and four from Stirling.

With splendid weather provided for the event, which is one of the highlights of the local bowling season, play was started early noon and continued until nearly midnight with three twelve end games being played. Interested spectators made the playing of extra ends necessary in many cases. The visitors were welcomed by Mr. K. A. Patterson and Mr. Jack Ross, who drew for rinks of the draw. The Warkworth rink composed of Mrs. Churchley, Chapman and Mrs Churchley and Mr. Churchley as skip, defeated in the ours with the highest score for three wins, the ladies were awarded first prize, a beautiful silver vase each a shirt. The second prize for the ladies' event, a silver rose bowl and the gentlemen's prize a shirt.

Prize winners with two wins were:

A Campbellford rink composed of Mrs. Kinney, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Locke and F. W. Locke (skip) gained first honours in the class with the ladies receiving linen pillow covers awarded to the ladies and the gents a shirt to the gentlemen. A Norwood rink including Miss Carleton, Miss Ross, Miss Carleton and L. C. Gunstone the skip received linen pillow covers and the gentlemen fine shirts. A Warkworth team composed of Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Hamnell, Mrs. Hamnell and M. E. Smith (skip) received the linen pillow covers with a shirt each. The ladies receiving cocktail sets and the gentlemen fine shirts.

Keen competition was the order of the day with several extra ends being necessary to decide the winners, all present greatly enjoyed the event and the splendid weather. At the conclusion of play the ladies of the Stirling club served dainty luncheon in the club house, following which the winners were announced and the prizes distributed. The members and the executive of the Stirling club are very much pleased with the success of the event, which is an annual highlight in club tournaments.

Belleville-Trenton Rivalry Renewed

Belleville-Trenton

Earl Poe, well known throughout Stirling for his ability to lead a lodge in many fields of sport in-cluding bowling, baseball and lacrosse has been secured by the Belleville Lodge of the Benevolent Trenton Combines as a defence player in the Central Ontario Lacrosse League. The genial knowledges of lacrosse, when he plays on the Belleville Campbellford team for several seasons and his services will add strength to the team for which he played his first game of lacrosse here. He plays the goal tender of the Stirling Red and White hockey team.

New York, July 19.—(AP)—Boston rejoices with John Montague, the country man (how in the world do you how) once the property of the Bees and showed real promise, and Collins of the Cubs disagrees with Bill Terry's opinion that Ducky Wucky Merkle would hit 300 if he didn't get to bed balls.....'He'll hit .300," contends Jigg, "for most of his hits come on bad balls.....The Yankees have a pitcher or rather a slump coming if you can't take him apart," remark old Rogers Hornsby of the Browns.....'In all my years of baseball I've never seen such a club go through a full season without experiencing at least one slump," he said.....'I don't care how powerful they are."

REFEREE GIVEN GREATER POWERS

Orillia, Ont., July 19.—(CP)—Ontario Athletic Commission has decided to put the referee in professional boxing on a plane of greater importance than he has hitherto occupied.

From now on decisions in professional bouts will be given by the referee alone or by the referee and two judges.

The changeover from the three-judge system, with the referee having no say in picking a winner on points, was decided on by the Commission here Saturday.

The change was regarded as a direct outcome of the Frankie Genovese-Gordon Wallace welterweight championship bout in Toronto July 5 when a decision of the judges awarding the bout to Genovese on points was roundly jeered by the crowd. Wallace lost his title by the decision.

The Commission has compiled a list of eligible judges and referees, subject to additions, and officials will be selected only from it. Announcements concerning such selections will be made only on the nights of bouts.

The commission ordered Genovese to meet Wallace in a title bout within 45 days of July 5, meanwhile Genovese must not engage in any bout in defence of his title.

OSHAWA RUNNER FINISHES FIFTH

Dallas, Tex., July 19.—(AP)—Tireless Pat Dengis of Baltimore, runner-up for the United Marathon title, celebrated his 37th birthday last night by winning the 26-mile marathon event of the Pan-American games in 2:42.42.

John Barkell of Oshawa, Ontario, gave the crowd a big thrill, when he sprinted around the last lap to finish in fifth place at two hours, 57 minutes and six seconds.

They cheered loudly for the Canuck as he raced over the line. The only other Canadian entry, Walter Young of Verdun, Que., who earlier this year won the 20-mile Boston Marathon, dropped out at the end of eight miles because a leg infection was bothering him.

TENNIS

Murray Mitchell's last-minute triumph over Art Rutter of Peterboro gave him the Quinte Canoe Tennis Club the odd point needed to win the annual tournament with seven points to six over the Peterborough Tennis Club in a friendly match contested over the courts played on the Bay of Quinte Country Club course yesterday afternoon.

The majority of the matches saw keen competition, and in every case extra play needed to determine the winners in practically every event. Mitchell's victory was the deciding one in seven of the 12 matches played, with the remainder split evenly between doubles and singles in competition.

The results of Sat'dy's play were:

Mens Doubles—Bud Odell and Art Cole, Belleville, defeated Jack Hamnell and Ernie Marshall, Peterboro, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4. D. Maclean and Harry Cassidy defeated Harry Marsh and A. Rutter, Peterboro, 7-5, 12-10, H. McDonald and Jack Cole defeated Ernie Kerr and G. Scott, Belleville, 8-7, 6-4, 6-4. Jack Cole and E. Harwood Peterboro, defeated S. Zvaza and Cole on the fairway, 11-9, 6-4, 6-4.

Men's Singles—Max Cotton, Peterboro, defeated Art Cole, Belleville, 6-4, 6-4. Don Odell, Belleville, defeated D. McPherson, Peterboro, 6-3, 6-4. Bert MacPherson, Peterboro, defeated D. Maclan, Belleville, 6-3, 6-4. H. Marsh, Peterboro, defeated H. Hammell, Peterboro, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5. M. Mitchell, Belleville, defeated A. Rutter, Peterboro 8-10 6-0 10-8.

Ladies Doubles—Betty Cole and Pat McClellan, Peterboro, defeated Marion Maclean and Evelyn Cole, Belleville, 6-3, 7-5. Peterboro Catcher and Kay Henley, Belleville, defeated Jean Catcher and Gwen Glover, Peterboro, 6-4, 6-0.

Ladies Singles—Pat McClellan, Peterboro, defeated Marian Maclean, Belleville, 7-5, 6-0. Jean Catcher, Peterboro, defeated Anne McKenzie, Peterboro, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Yesterday's Stars

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees—Hit home run with bases full in 3rd inning, hit another double and drove in all Yankee runs in 5-1 win over Indians.

Ken O'Dea and Rip Collins, Cubs —Former hit homer and single and latter two runs to beat Dodgers 7-6 in opener; Collins drove four runs with triple and single in 9-4 nightcap win.

Rudy York, Tigers — Pitched hitless ball in 2 2-3 inning relief trick to save 3-1 win over Senators.

Harry Danning and Ken Chase, Giants—Lefty batted in two runs with two-run double in opener victory over Cardinals; Schumacher shut out Cards in nine hits in nightcap; and had four hits, himself, one a homer.

Rip Radcliff and Monte Stratton, White Sox—Former's two singles helped drove runs in 4-3 opener triumph over Red Sox; Stratton limited six and allowed three hits for take second game 4-0.

FARMER WANTS BE IDE WITH $37,000

Well, girls, here's your chance, Gordon Shaw, 28-year-old farmer, who lives near Pontypool, Ont., is in search of a wife, but not any wife will do. Gordon offers prospective brides a healthy life on a comfortable farm plus the love of an ambitious young Canadian, who by his standards are quite high. The would-be Mrs. Sharpe must have at least $2,000 in cash, be a good housekeeper and healthy; she can be a writer or single, and anywhere from 18 to 35 years of age. In return Mr. Sharp states he has 100 acres of land to share with his bride, a cow, a horse chickens and other stock and a harmful of hay. The lady's $2,000 is needed for the farm. For the benefit of interested ladies, Gordon submits this picture of himself and his faithful horse.

A Boston Station

"Try to get Boston," she said. He glanced at the chart over the cabinet and turned the disk slowly. A humming, then a whirring, then a buzz sounded, then scratchily and dimly at first, some vagrant strains of music worked their way through the ether. He moved the polished disk more slowly, refining their setting. When that was finished the big volume of an orchestral programme blared in the room.

The girl nodded. "Good," she said. "Now don't touch it. I'll just right."

He took his place by her side. The strong hands, idle once more, clasped and hung limply between his knees. Bending forward, he stared at the eerie instrument as if he were visualizing in the polished mirror surface the phantom artists whose splendid melody filled the room. His face fell naturally into the lines of moody abstraction she had learned to look for, as if at times a gray cloud should fall lightly shading the young man's mask of sadness.

The music, too, was a haunting Spanish thing, written in a minor key.

"Dan!" she whispered.

He looked at her wretchedly, saying nothing. Yes, the face turned toward him was worthy of happier attention. The features were most definitely spoiled, but the face was not weak, and the coloring was as exquisite as the tints in the under petals of a rose.

"I'm sorry, Mary," the man confessed. "I'm wretched company, to-night"

Then they both started a little and turned in an instant of sudden alarm to the radio. A man's voice, ringing and, with an unbelievable clarity, spoke in the room.

"You have been listening to an orchestral programme by the Olden Times orchestra, broadcasting through Station WOOF, the Smith-Harley Home, Boston. Stand by, please, for special announcements."

They looked at each other and smiled a little. A kind of fascination then held them to listen. The great voice had an engaging, friendly quality which made one willing to be silent. So they listened, half amused, half-interested, while he told them that an Airedale dog, answers to the name of Peter, had chided his mistress somewhere between King's Chapel and Bolyston street that afternoon; that a lady's platinum diamond ring had been lost in the train shed of the South station on the day before, "reward, no questions asked"; that a millennial billfold had been found in Upham's Corner, Dorchester, "can be had by furnishing description," and others — a whole brief cross-section of human carelessness and human misery in any large city.

The man lapsed forward, listening with an increasing hungry intentness, and the girl watched him, dismayed. All this recital of the names of his home city had called into waking the sleeping longing in the boy's heart for the sight and sound of his own city. The girl shrewdly herself for what might but she did not dare to turn off the radio.

"Does anybody know," the friendly voice inquired, "the whereabouts of Daniel W. Caldwell, spelled C A L D W E L L, formerly of Woodlawn Street, Dorchester? The distraught frame of the boy ever tautened if a galvanic current had touched him, and he turned a white face to the announcer. "If they do," the voice continued, "will they tell him that his mother is dangerously sick and begs him to come home."

The boy leaped to his feet and looked down at her with his eyes blazing. "Mary, I'm sorry," he said tensely "that my mother was dead. Why?"

Now that the game was played out and lost the look without mercy showed in the girl's eyes.

"Tell me," she said with deadly calm. "If you had not stopped off here on your way back from that job you had in Toledo, if you had gone home first and found your mother there sick and lonely, what would have done?"

"What would I have done?" the man echoed. "What would there have been to do? Stay with her, of course, as long as she wanted me."

The girl nodded. "I thought so," and in spite of the fact that I've walled two years for you to marry me. It was my one chance to end an old dispute between us, the only one we ever had, Dan. She lost your address and wrote to me. I thought if we were married this week I could manage so that you'd never have known—or, if you did know, you'd have had to go thru', anyway."

The man looked at her incredulously. "And you knew all the time!"

Her voice softened to a tone of most urgent pleading. "Dan I fought for my chance at happiness and I ought to have won. Give it to me!"

"But you had," said the boy slowly, "and the one you fought was my mother!"

He picked up his hat and cost from the place where he had flung them. He closed a door behind him and she heard the sound of him going down the stairs and leaving her—forever.

TROTSKYITE PURGE FALLS ON MANY

Twelve Editors, Polish Jews, Arrested or Dismissed

Paris, July 17.—(CP-Havas)—A Moscow dispatch to the newspaper Petit Parisien today said Public Health Commissar G. N. Kaminski and former Foreign Trade Commissar A. P. Rosengolz were believed to have fallen under the shadow of the "Trotskyite purge."

The paper's correspondent, Georges Leclair, further said Daniel Sgrovitch Sulimov, president of the Council of People's Commissars of the Russian Federative Republic, was regarded by well informed Moscow circles as having fallen in disgrace.

Twelve editors of Izvestia, almost all of them Polish Jews and friends of Karl Radek, former editor who was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment early this year, have been arrested or dismissed, he reported.

COMBER HARD HIT CREEKS SWOLLEN

Residents Wear Rubber Boots Most of Time, Streets Flooded

Windsor, Ont., July 17 (CP) — Slowly receding flood waters that have piled up on all low-lying areas in Essex County during the past week have converted small creeks into muddy, swirling freshets and residents of several small centres, as well as farms, have had their cellars flooded up to ground level.

One of the worst hit spots is Comber, where the main street is still flooded up over the curbs. Residents have found it necessary to wear rubber boots most of the time because of the flooded streets and the fact that a large number of houses are surrounded with water.

Water Starts to Recede

The water reached its height yesterday and began to run away today. A storm last night did not add materially to the flood waters because there had been some recession before the thunder storm broke.

But with drains already overloaded and plugged with silt, residents expected it would be at least two days before they will be able to get into their basements again and clean up the damage done by the water.

Four Inches of Rain

With nearly four inches of rain this week and more than six inches so far this month, farmers say they have never experienced such wet weather at this time of year. Today many farmers were breaking up stocks of wheat and spreading the sheaves in the soil to dry them out and prevent sprouting.

Most farmers have been idle the great part of the past week because the excessive moisture has kept them off the land. While the fields are now drying out ditches and irrigation branches are filled to the top with muddy water.

The Belle River is ten times its normal size at South Woodslee, overflowing into adjacent fields and barely running under bridges. As at Comber, many basements are flooded, but no great damage is reported.

PROVINCE HAS RIGHT TO COLLECT $250,000

Halifax, July 17 (CP)—Right of the Province of Nova Scotia to collect $250,000 in succession duties upon gifts made by the late Hon. J. Robson Douglas, former Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, to his four daughters was upheld today in a decision handed down by the full bench of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

The amounts collectable under this decision are $63,256 from Mrs. Martian V. Davis of Boston, Mass., $62,685 from Grace B. Thatcher, $62,070 from Eloise Arnold, and $60,261 from Marjorie I. Douglas. In place the total in excess of $250,000. Interest on these amounts would place the total in excess of $250,000.

The decision given by Chief Justice Sir Joseph Chisholm, Mr. Justice W. L. Hall, Mr. Justice H. Ross and Mr. Justice R. H. Graham, dismissed the appeal of the daughters against payment of duties.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Gladstone, N.C., July 17 (AP)—Lether Lucas reported lightning struck a chain which hung about the neck of one of his cows.

The chain, he said, was broken into three pieces, but the cow was not hurt.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 17 (CP)—Youngsters have Ma. Marie's most popular swimming hole the "Scramble." They claim the name is derived from the town "scram" which describes their actions when they're caught swimming unhampered by swimming suits."

Brantford, Ont., July 17 (CP) —Five brewing youngsters, aged as the lawyer K. E. MacBride at his home to protest against a police order closing the refreshing hole near the old red bridge here. The Mayor said he may order the hole filled in as modern swimming pools built in Brantford.

Gaitneau Point, Que., July 16—(CP)—Spiderlore holds that a frantic mother yesterday in marvellous instinct for the baby of her two-year-old child, drowned in the Ottawa River.

Mrs. Oscar Lachapelle, spectators said watched the three herself into the water to find her baby, Alexandre, who drowned in the swift current when he fell off a raft on which he and other children were playing.

Los Angeles, July 17 (AP)— Jimmy Mattern said today he expects to start his nonstop flight from San Diego to Hawaii early in August. Returning from Washington, the veteran flier said the United States navy is "especially keen what happens to magnetism in the scientific ventures to instruments in the highly magnetized polar regions." He said he will test newly-improved radios for the army.

Windsor, Ont., July 17 (CP)— While two fields of Marijuana weed a narcotic usually smoked in cigarettes, were discovering this week on Detroit record test, it is believed the only time the weed was grown in Windsor was last year in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police office. Seeds were planted and the plant cultivated. R.C.M.P. officers would be able to recognize the weed in its natural state.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Through the dark, mysterious jungle of Africa, a lone safari wound its way like a great, sluggish serpent. The travellers believed they were far from the eyes and haunts of men; but through the trees above them glided a silent human figure, watching alertly.

"How in country of Tarzan of the Apes," the native guide declared proudly. "Huh! Looking for Tarzan in this endless wilderness is worse than hunting for a needle in a haystack!" Stanley Wood remarked wearily to his side while companion. Robert van Eyk.

Suddenly, as if there some magic in his words to conjure up the object of his search, the figure of a bronzed white man flashed before his eyes, plunging from the trees directly into the trail. "I am Tarzan," the figure announced: "what do you want?"

The black carriers stood gazing with awe at the Jungle Lord, who was the subject of a thousand heroic tales.

Even Stanley Wood was too startled to make an immediately reply. "What do you want of me?" Tarzan repeated. "Perhaps your life!" Wood answered slowly.

HER NAME IN LIGHTS

DAPHNE BRETT

"Certainly," he said, "but I'm twenty-eight years old and up to now you've been a child. I've got to make up for those years."

There was wonder in Daphne's eyes that looked back into his—and into the years behind.

This has never happened to me before," she thought. "I must be careful because anything that can open such doors to my heart—this new feeling of coming home—can hurt me.

The years ahead unfolded before her and tempted her to gaze on what they could mean to her. But the early Daphne laughing years, but those good, quiet years rolling on and weaving a healing tapestry of the lives of a man and a woman and their children.

It frightened her that she dared to think of these. That she had been trained to be unemotionally, to clear, conservative thinking, to guarding herself against the danger of her own future, should sudden-ly admit their presence.

That this was her first time alone with Larry Hamilton that she could not, without reaching into such conjecture, was a little frightening.

Later she would establish it out with herself. Now, she could slip her drink and give herself to the moment.

Wednesday, it is," she said. She thought of Jennifer's method of "keeping 'em dangling."

Jennifer!

Daphne looked at the watch on Larry's wrist. It was a minute past two.

"Larry, I must call Jennifer. I told her I'd be home by midnight and she might worry about me. Do you mind? It's only a moment."

The telephone booth was out be-yond the lounge at the entrance. Through a maze of tables and tables that crowded the edge of the dance floor, Daphne was contrite because she had neglected to use the phone Jennifer. Because she was herself so happy she overlooked her severity toward Jennifer. She might have had more than a moment to go to the party with Tuck if she had promised to return early.

X

At first when her number didn't answer Daphne thought that Jennifer was sleeping but when the operator had rung fifteen times and she knew that Jennifer had deliberately disobeyed her orders. Why hadn't she gone to the party and said she was going anyway? Daphne would have preferred that to Jennifer's doing it under cover. The thought that she was wrong she came out of the booth. The lights were dimmed now for the floor show and the dance chorus, with white light three greenish shad-ows on them as the girls entered them, yet at once Daphne saw Tuck Tinsley.

She withdrew into the shadows behind the lights and Tuck walked to see who was with him.

Help to see Jennifer yet not to be seen by anyone with the power to spoil Jennifer's night.

But Tuck was not with Tuck. It was obvious that he was one of a party of four which did not include Jennifer.

She quickened her footsteps and returned to the table where Larry sat down.

"Larry, I've got to go now. Our telephone doesn't answer and I'm worried about Jennifer."

He agreed that they should leave at once.

Words haggled at the back of her mind, the lush delight of her happiness was gone. The last-ride to her apartment was a silent one.

"Thank you, Larry, for a grand evening." She put him on a taxi and but her eyes were still clouded.

"I'll call you in the morning," he said.

Then he was gone. Hours later, as the light deepened and the night became morning, Daphne paced the floor to the tempo of her rising fears, thought desperately, I need him. His strength, his calm.

Four o'clock. Five o'clock. Five-thirty. Jennifer was home from evening wrap and the white satin frock were gone.

But where? With whom? Daphne asked herself over and over again, and, at last, fell asleep.

At 7 that, when she heard the insistent knocking at her door, she couldn't remember what it was.

X

CHAPTER XI

Daphne stared at the door for a full minute, her feet refusing to obey the command of her brain. She was afraid to open that door. The pounding in the silence of the early morning shook blows of apprehension into her.

At last she reached the door and jerked it open.

"Hi, there! You've a sound sleep-er." It was Jennifer, a little less lovely in the gray light. The hem of her white satin gown was soiled. Her hands were blue where they clinched her evening wrap and her shivering shoulders. Her hair was in disarray but her manner was jaunty enough.

Daphne was unable to speak. Her fears turned to swift anger that bubbled up in her throat. Without speaking she turned and went into the bath, started the hot water in the tub. Then she stepped back to the living room and lighted the hearth fire.

"Sit here," she said shortly and drew a chair up before the fire.

Jennifer sank into it and waved her chiffon handkerchief airily above her head.

"Thaas what I call service. You're a good sport."

Daphne had knelt down to take off Jennifer's slippers.

"Jennifer," she asked gently, "have you been drinking?"

Jennifer looked at her slippers and sat up a bit straighter. Her head moved in a slow nod. Daphne knew that it hurt but her voice was not as brave as she meant it to be. What if it hurt? It was time it did and she'd know what I'm doing. Jennifer, don't you dare—"

"That's what I'm going to do. I don't know what you're talking about now. Your tub is ready. Well dis-cuss this tomorrow."

The mantle clock struck six.

"You've hours later it was strik-ing when Daphne let herself into her living room. This was the hour she had crowded all day, a day that Jennifer had stolen from her. This should have been a memorable day in her life. A day to carve her new found happiness.

X

Instead it had been a day filled with loneliness and frustration. With the weight of her responsibility and the knowledge that it was unfair that she, who loved her sister girl herself, should have to meet the problems that she could not cope with herself. Oh, let me be wise and understanding, she had prayed. Don't let me alienate Jennifer. Then she had seen the need for a father and mother to her, show me the way to treat her.

Now she would be grateful for small mercies, with defiance. Per-haps Jennifer would not be there at all.

"Jennifer!"

"Hello, darling, welcome home. You're a treat for you tonight. You look like a million dollars. Now for Jen-nifer." Jennifer was in the kitch-en. Daphne heard the breath in her sheer surprise while she took in the transformation. A fresh frock, the bowl on her desk, the small table smartly set for two.

She had a firm hold of herself. She was not to be wooed this way. She could not be wooed this way. Her soul shrank from the pretense. Jen-nifer had responded brightly to Jen-nifer's greeting, had even put on a bit of gayety and called across the kitchen, "Sit there, Daphne. Because she was herself so busy with preparations for severity toward Jennifer. She might have had more than a moment to go to the party with Tuck if she had promised to return early.

X

At first when her number didn't answer Daphne thought that Jennifer was sleeping but when the operator had rung fifteen times and she knew that Jennifer had deliberately disobeyed her orders. Why hadn't she gone to the party and said she was going anyway? Daphne would have preferred that to Jennifer's doing it under cover. The thought that she was wrong she came out of the booth. The lights were dimmed now for the floor show and the dance chorus, with white light three greenish shad-ows on them as the girls entered them, yet at once Daphne saw Tuck Tinsley.

She withdrew into the shadows behind the lights and Tuck walked to see who was with him.

Help to see Jennifer yet not to be seen by anyone with the power to spoil Jennifer's night.

But Tuck was not with Tuck. It was obvious that he was one of a party of four which did not in-clude Jennifer.

She quickened her footsteps and returned to the table where Larry sat down.

"Larry, I've got to go now. Our telephone doesn't answer and I'm worried about Jennifer."

He agreed that they should leave at once.

Words haggled at the back of her mind, the lush delight of her happiness was gone. The last-ride to her apartment was a silent one.

"Thank you, Larry, for a grand eve-ning." She put him on a taxi and but her eyes were still clouded.

"I'll call you in the morning," he said.

Then he was gone. Hours later, as the light deepened and the night became morning, Daphne paced the floor to the tempo of her rising fears, thought desperately, I need him. His strength, his calm.

Four o'clock. Five o'clock. Five-thirty. Jennifer was home from evening wrap and the white satin frock were gone.

But where? With whom? Daphne asked herself over and over again, and, at last, fell asleep.

At 7 that, when she heard the in-sistent knocking at her door, she couldn't remember what it was.

CHAPTER XI

Daphne stared at the door for a full minute, her feet refusing to obey the command of her brain. She was afraid to open that door. The pounding in the silence of the early morning shook blows of ap-prehension into her.

At last she reached the door and jerked it open.

"Hi, there! You've a sound sleep-er." It was Jennifer, a little less lovely in the gray light. The hem of her white satin gown was soiled. Her hands were blue where they clinched her evening wrap and her shivering shoulders. Her hair was in disarray but her manner was jaunty enough.

PRIME MINISTER CONFIDENT OF UNITY IN CANADA

Direct Unrest of Times In Constructive Channels States Mackenzie King

Likely to be Business of Statesmanship For Some Time

NOT SAFE FROM WAR

Must Practice Attitude of Goodwill to All Nations

Ottawa, July 20 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King is confident public men of today can and will maintain unity within the Dominion and overcome "the many strains and cleavages which are imperilling unity," even as they were conquered in the days of Macdonald, Laurier and Borden.

In a broadcast address last night the Prime Minister declared that not to have a realization of these threats "is to shut one's eyes to the problem of Government in Canada today."

It was not possible for Canada to escape the unrest of the times, the Prime Minister said. "Nor, when viewed in reasonable perspective need for more in the way of uncertainty and security for individual human lives is it well, we should, escape it," he added. "It can be directed, however, into constructive and away from destructive channels, as it is the duty, primarily to be the business of statesmanship in our country for some time."

Discussed Coronation

Mr. Mackenzie King discussed the Coronation, described its significance and expressed warm confidence in the continuation in the new King and Queen. His reviewed efforts of the Imperial Conference which, he said, left Canada free to decide her own course in matters of foreign policy, defence and trade.

His visits to France, Germany and Belgium had brought him confidences with the leading heads of

ADMITS LIQUOR SUPPLIED MINORS

Owner of Cottage at Erbsville is Remanded

Kitchener, Ont., July 20.—(CP)—Oscar Koebel, owner of an Erbsville cottage, pleaded guilty in police court today to supplying liquors to minors. Case arose out of the inquiry into the death of Mary Hichens, 18, of Kitchener, catapulted from the pillion seat of a motorcycle driven by George Schnurr of Kitchener, near Waterloo, July 11. Evidence at the inquest yesterday showed a number of young folks were at the Koebel cottage Saturday night July 10, and were served beer.

Crown Attorney W. F. Clement drew attention to the fact that several similar parties had been held at the cottage, but he suggested that the information fine be not imposed to which the Magistrate, Dr. C. H. Bagnall, agreed. He was going to impose a fine of $50 on Koebel but when he learned that Koebel hadn't the money he remanded Koebel until Friday.

ONE KILLED IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Six Others Injured, One Seriously Near Kincardine

Kincardine, Ont., July 20—(CP)—One man was dead and six others persons were in hospital, one with serious injuries, today following a head-on crash of two automobiles on a hill top near this Lake Huron town yesterday. The dead man, with a honeymooning couple in it, collided on the Bliss Waley Highway near Underwood, 12 miles north of here.

C/ Reginald Bear, 41, London (301 Huron Street), died some hours after the crash in Kincardine hospital here. Reported in a serious condition with head and internal injuries, a fractured arm and a fractured leg, was Mrs. W. J. Connolly, 54, Watford, Ont.

Also in hospital were Mr. Connolly, T. A. Muir, 41, London, (218 Brereton Avenue); Miss Grace Day, 21, London (2 Thornton Avenue); John Young, 21, Hamilton, (117 Grosvenor North). Muir and Connolly were the drivers of the cars.

The honeymooners, Mr. and Mrs. Connolly, and the other injured were travelling in a light coach and passage over roads under construction to the hospital by motor vehicle. Some were taken by ambulances from Tiverton and Port Elgin. One was brought in by a farmer truck, owned by W. Lott, Cahawa, Ont.; others in a laundry truck, driven by Gerald Cole, Underwood, standing on the back bumper to hold the body of the dead man in the injured wagon till out.

Passing motorists rendered assistance before doctors arrived.

CHALLENGE CUP TO AUSTRALIA

Canada Placed Second With Good Score at 900 Yard Range

Bisley Camp, England, July 20—(CP)—Canada placed second in her fifth victory since 1907 in the empire match for military marksmen today over teams from Canada, United States and India.

The Australians aggregated 2,329 points out of a possible 2,400 in the two days, first yesterday and to-day. Canada was second with 2,306 and Britain, with the same score, with third, "with India fourth at 2,301. Canada placed second by virtue of a better score at the 900 yards range today.

Australia took the challenge cup first competed for in 1907, Great Britain, with four victories, is the only other winner of this trophy which is held by whichever team is fired only in intermittent years and will next be competed for in Australia.

Today's last stage was at ten long ranges, 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, counting for the team competition that started with the Coronation match on Monday more than two days. The first stage yesterday was fired at 300, 500 and 600 yards. Eight men were on each team.

ETHER CONQUEROR MARQUIS MARCONI DIES SUDDENLY

Insisted on Working on Invention Although Not Feeling Well

HEART PARALYSIS

Pope Pius Sends Special Blessing to The Inventor

(By Andros S. Berting)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, July 20—(AP)—The Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, who invented wireless telegraphy when he was only 21 years old, died suddenly today at his ancient palace overlooking down Rome where he lived and worked.

The 63-year-old conqueror of the ether died quietly of heart paralysis. His widow, the Countess Cristina Bezzinela, was at his bedside when he died. She called back from the seaside resort of Viareggio when he began to feel ill yesterday.

Their daughter, Elettra Elena, whose god-mother is Queen Elena of Italy, remained at the resort and will not return to Rome until time for the State funeral. Today is her eighth birthday.

Duce Sends Regrets

Premier Mussolini, whose ardent supporter Marconi had been, published a telegram of condolence. Later he went to Marconi's home to the Via Cardinal and paid his respects beside the body.

Lightning and mistakes!

In folk lore the mistletoe—that shaggy parasitic growth on oak trees—is popular at Christmas — is supposed to possess powers to avert fightning, and to kind of charm harm bot fire in particular. The plant is called "thunderbesom" in parts of Germany and Switzerland. Why was this mistletoe was thought to be a predmet of lightning. Therefore, it would be a protection against lightning, and in reality act as a lightning conductor. To obtain security against thunderbolts, it was the practice to hang up thunderstorm mistletoe, or thunderbesom in the fire.

Patrol is Ordered to Check Up Slow, Fast Driving, Cutting In Newspapers of Province Asked to Assist Department

CAMPAIGN OPENS

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—In conjunction with Ontario's government's campaign for safety, the provincial police highway patrol officers have been instructed to "tighten up" enforcement of the Highways Act, Premier Hepburn said today.

Mr. Hepburn said the co-operation of all the daily and weekly newspapers of the province has been invited to assist the campaign which the department is inaugurating. At the same time provincial officers have been instructed to impose more stringent regulation of traffic. Excessive speeding, "cutting in" and abnormally slow driving are the offences to which the attention of the officers is particularly directed.

BICYLIST KILLED ON HIGHWAY

Richmond Hill, Ont., July 20.—(CP)—Knocked from his bicycle by an automobile travelling in the same direction, George Spears, 40, Elgin Mills, was killed north of here last night.

Spears died in York district hospital of skull injuries. The alleged driver of the automobile from which Spears was charged with manslaughter. An inquest was ordered.

SLIGHT CONCUSSION

Brockville, Ont., July 20—(CP)—Ernest Ashton, Toronto, an employee of the Queen City Amusement Co., was admitted to hospital early today suffering from a slight concussion result of a blow on the head the origin of which is unknown at the hospital. Ashton was brought here from Cardinal.

Primate Will Celebrate Communion for All Faiths

Will Indicate Inter-Denominational Character of World Conference on Church State And Community

Oxford, July 20 (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, it was learned today, will shatter precedent of the Church of England when for the first time in history the Primate of the Church will celebrate Holy Communion according to the Christian Churches.

The Communion service will be at St. Mary's Church as part of the World Conference on Church, Community and State.

Baptists, Methodists and others represented at the conference may receive the sacrament. Church spokesmen said the Archbishop's action will demonstrate the cooperative inter-denominational and international nature of the conference.

Operations Give Eyelid, Socket To Girl Lacking Them at Birth

Series of Operations Give Child Almost Normal Look

New York, July 20 (AP)—A threeweek-old girl, lacking one eyelid eye socket and lid at birth, was recovering today from the third of a series of operations medical authorities said probably would give her an almost normal appearance within a year.

Two prior operations had provided the child with normal upper and lower eyelids and a socket for an artificial eye. Fresh tissue grafts were slit and a glass globe the size of her one lacking eye was inserted in the "pocket".

Within a few months, a medical spokesman said, another operation will be performed and a glass shell will be fitted over the sphere. These shells will be changed as her growth requires.

The name of the child, member of a well-to-do family, and the name of the surgeon in charge were withheld.

The little girl's "sealed eyelid" was broken eighteen months ago when a year ago a flap of mucous membrane from her lower eyelid was transplanted to the unlined socket. This formed the pocket and created normal lids for the artificial eye.

N. Y. GOVERNOR CRITICIZES BILL

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, July 20 (CP)—The Hyde Report greeted Governor Herbert Lehman's criticism of President Roosevelt's bill to revamp the United States Supreme Court even as Administration leaders passed the word around they would make no attempt to delay a "showdown" on this issue on the controversial bill.

From Little Rock, Ark., where he attended the funeral rites for the late Senator Joseph Robinson, majority leader and author of the bill's right-hand men, 62 Congressmen reached Washington apparently still undecided on the measures which have threatened to split the Democratic Party square the Court bill and the choice of Robinson's successor.

JAPANESE SEIZE ALL WATERFRONT

Action at Tientsin Port Preparatory to Arrival of Troops

Tientsin, July 20 (AP)—The Japanese army seized control today of the entire waterfront at Tangku, including wharves, Chinese customs offices and foreign shipping companies, in preparation for the expected arrival of 25,000 troops from Japan.

Tangku is the port for Tientsin. Connected by rail and water with this city in the centre of the north China coalfields.

Reports of the imminent arrival of Japanese re-inforcements incidental to their troop transport were expected Thursday.

The Kailan wharf was not immediately affected and the British patrol aloop Grimsby, which arrived this afternoon, moored opposite it.

Heavily loaded trains were expected at Tientsin after midnight, further increasing Japanese concentrations here. Extensive new Japanese movements by railroad were reported.

Raymond Erickson streamed from Tientsin into the foreign concessions with the first reports of today's new fighting near Peiping.

POLICE INTERVIEW ROEDIGER'S SON

Toronto, July 20 (CP)— George Roediger, son of George Fritz Roediger, convicted Spanish Ehd thief, was reported today to have been located and interviewed by the provincial police. Authorities, however, refused to confirm or deny the report.

The son of the much-married Roediger has been the object of a continuous search by Canadian and United States police who sought him for questioning in connection with the disappearance from the life his father's wives.

The missing wife is Mrs. Christina Mackenzie from whom Roediger married in Allandale, Ont., in 1935.

Seen in Sports Goods Store

The son, known as George Roediger, has worked from July until December, 1935, as a handyman in a sports goods store here. Police said he was said to have gone to the United States early in 1936.

Last night police announced that Roediger had tried to obtain a marriage license for a young woman in his last search for information on his son's place of employment at the time he married the former Mrs. Mackenzie.

Roediger reported interview with the son, it was said that he was unable to give police much assistance in their search for information concerning his father's activities.

Meanwhile police were investigating the Vaughan Road address where Roediger's first wife, Christina, once lived. Walls and cellars were gone over thoroughly but they refused to divulge their findings.

WEST CANADA TO COPE WITH DROUGHT MENACE

Ottawa, July 20 (CP)—The Dominion has given its assent to a permanent long range policy to cope with the drought menace in the Prairie Provinces. Details of that policy include setting aside of great tracts of land in each of the provinces for pasture, the use of prairie grass against such an emergency as exists this year when many districts there is not enough forage to maintain livestock herds.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, gave a hint of government policy in the House today when he said his colleagues had accepted plans he brought back from the west recently. He will return to the west this week-end to supervise arrangements for carrying out the policy adopted to handle the situation and lay the foundation for carrying out a permanent policy. The Dominion is co-operating with the provinces in the undertaking.

Three types of land in the drought stricken areas are marked out by Dominion and Provincial governments. A definite policy, it is learned, has been decided in regard to each.

ARSENAL BURNS UNDER JAPANESE ARTILLERY FIRE

City of Wangpingsien Shelled by Japanese For Two Hours

CHINESE CHOOSE FENG

"Christian General" Named to Resist Japan in North

Shanghai, July 20 (AP)—The Chinese arsenal and barracks at Wangpingshien burst into flames, the Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported tonight, under punitive shelling by Japanese artillery.

Fighting broke out at Wangpingshien and other positions just before midnight (10 a.m. E.D.T. p.m. Tuesday hours after an ultimatum demanding Chinese evacuation of the area had expired.

Fire still raged in the Chinese barracks at 6 p.m. tonight (6 a.m. E.D.T.).

A thousand Japanese troops participated in the attack against Wangpingshien, and the city was shelled for more than two hours.

Two Japanese planes were shot down in the fighting and declining much of the inter-zone finals between the United States and Germany. Budge's victory sent the United States into the challenge round against Great Britain.

Budge, heavily favored over van Cramm when he beat in straight sets in the all-Russian finals recently, found the tilted Teuton at the height of his game and had to play the finest tennis of his life to emerge with the victor.

Victorious over the German, three matches to two, the American team will face Great Britain in the challenge round starting Saturday. "The Americans will be favored to win but British will be without the services of Fred Perry, now a professional, and George Patrick Hughes, who is ill.

Have Great Chance.

The American duos are confronted with their best chance in years of regaining the international championship lost to the French at Germantown, Pa., in 1927.

Budge's triumph over the graceful, handsome von Cramm came after Henrich Henkel, second ranking German Singles player had crushed Byron Bekk Grant, Davis Cup veteran, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, in the first of the closing day's ties. Grant was brought Germany up on even terms with the Americans at two victories each.

It was Grant's second setback of the day for he bowed to Gene Mako Cramm in Saturday's opening match 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Budge won both his singles starts, beating Henkel on Saturday, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5, and teaming up with Gene Mako of Los Angeles to annex the vital doubles point Monday with a 4-6, 7-5, 8-6, 6-4 victory yesterday.

Two Empires, One Race

Vancouver, July 20 (CP)—A new stanza was added to national anthems of two nations when delegates to the Pan Pacific Women's Conference gathered yesterday, under the Peach Arch at Blaine, Wash. erected on the undefended international boundary line between Canada and the United States.

After singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," an anthem of the United States, and "God Save the King," they joined in singing to the same tune:

"Two empires by the sea,
Two nations great and free,
One anthem raise.
One race of ancient fame,
One people, one the claim
One God, whose glorious name
We love and praise."

Italian Proposal Runs Counter to British Plan

EDEN'S WARNING

Ambassador Grandi Makes Italian Viewpoint Clear

London, July 20 (C.P.-Havas)—Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi today demanded recognition of the belligerency of both sides in the Spanish civil war before withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

His demand was voiced at today's session of the non-intervention sub-committee which met to consider amendments to the British proposal for ending the "hands-off-Spain" deadlock from the Anglo-French and Italo-German positions.

Opposed to Anglo-French Stand

The Italian move was in direct opposition to the Anglo-French stand that withdrawal of foreign volunteers must be underway before belligerency rights are accorded.

Foreign Secretary Eden warned in the House of Commons yesterday that the plan "stands or falls on withdrawal" and that any attempt to modify it except in points of detail will upset the balance and destroy its usefulness.

39 CHARGES SEND MAN TO PRISON

David Arthur Aldrich Given Five Years in Penitentiary

Guelph, Ont., July 20.—(CP) Pleading guilty to 39 charges, 27 of breaking and entering and theft, and one of false pretences, David Arthur Aldrich, was sentenced here today to five years in Kingston Penitentiary on each of the burglary counts, and three years on each of the false pretences charges. All the sentences run concurrently. The charges came from all parts of Wellington.

"I don't think there is any chance of reforming you," said Magistrate Watt in delivering sentence. "You have enough to appreciate what you have done. You have been living by means of seeing what you can get and how you can get it. I shall send you to a place where you will be punished for your offences, but if you have any mental or physical disabilities they will be attended too."

Guelph, Ont., July 20.—(CP) Pleading guilty to 39 charges, 27 of breaking and entering and theft, and one of false pretences, David Arthur Aldrich, was sentenced here today to five years in Kingston Penitentiary on each of the burglary counts, and three years on each of the false pretences charges. All the sentences run concurrently. The charges came from all parts of Wellington.

"I don't think there is any chance of reforming you," said Magistrate Watt in delivering sentence. "You have enough to appreciate what you have done. You have been living by means of seeing what you can get and how you can get it. I shall send you to a place where you will be punished for your offences, but if you have any mental or physical disabilities they will be attended too."

City and District News

POLICE WISH OWNERS TO CLAIM BICYCLES

Local police announced today that they were in possession of the parts of four bicycles, recently recovered in the Toronto area, which they would like to have claimed by the owners. Parts of bicycles stolen in Belleville and city recently identified include frames, wheels, etc. The bikes which, measured 36 inches in length by 16 of ball-black shade, striped in blending effect with yellow or red and black, and with chain guard. The body is dotted with small silvery spots. Common garter snakes have been found in numerous on the park this season.

STARLINGS FEEDING NOW IN MARSHES

Along with the crow, who is reported to have dwindled in numbers noticeably during the past year or so in the north district, the starling is also declared less of a nuisance and pest to fruit growers of the district at present. The ever-tempting cherry trees are reportedly bulging with fruit, and the birds, and owners have in many instances not been able to cover the trees with cloth as in past years. The birds are finding the thick marshes of the bay better feeding grounds, it is stated.

PRESERVING TIME NOW ON IN CITY

Its preserving time in the city and district and shipments of fruit into the local port by water have become increasingly heavy during the past few weeks. Though some of the stock has been depleted this week by the holiday, at present some 100 cars of bagged sugar is piled in long lines at the permanent dock warehouse. More long strings of cars awaiting entry has been ordered. Cheese in outgoing shipments and sugar arrivals have established a fairly high average, driving in the local port this season.

SAILING CRAFT ON WAY TO REGATTA

About one dozen sailing craft of various classes, including a number of power boats were being given a fine send-off by local yachtsmen and by hundreds of interested youthful crews in the harbor this morning, by the Belleville Yacht Club for the fleet of Quinte Yacht Club regatta, which will be held in Trenton tomorrow. Most of the local craft and boats will leave Belleville early this morning in charge of the commodore, by an inland formation to Trenton, where they will anchor overnight.

The remains of the children was wholly unplanned.

RED RASPBERRIES AT YORK SHILLING

Montmorency Cherries Are Fairly Plentiful on Market

A variable display of farm and dairy produce greeted Tuesday morning shoppers at the city market today with only a few varieties dominating a fruit exhibit that found favor in the eyes of early morning buyers. The red fruit sold mainly at the basis of twenty-five cents with some vendors offering their stock at ten cents and case lots at eleven cents.

Montmorency cherries were fairly plentiful today, and sold at ten cents per berry box and eleven cents per basket, heaped full.

White and yellow corn showed a slight decline over weekend prices being offered in a briskly buying market at thirty-five cents the dozen. Bery potatoes were plentiful selling at twenty-five and thirty cents per peck or basket prices were quoted. New cauliflower was in brisk demand selling easily at from five to ten cents per head. Cabbage sold at from five to ten cents.

Field grown tomatoes put in their initial appearance today and were quoted at $1.50 for an eleven quart basket, with berry box lots quoted at ten cents.

The usual display of new vegetables consisting of beets, onions, carrots were offered in bunch lots at five cents. No fish was offered today.

Two Fire Calls Summon Firemen

Recessing alarmed when a stove filled with paper became ignited and filled the house with smoke residents of a house on Upper Church Street turned in an alarm to the City Fire Department. No damage was done, the slight blaze being confined to the stove, a rival of the fire squads.

The second alarm of origin partially destroyed a board fence on George Street yesterday afternoon. City firemen were called to the scene but the blaze with little resulting damage. Fire at 4 Avenue was the cause for another alarm yesterday for flames were enveloping the flames with little or no damage.

$20,000 HOLDUP STAGED AT HULL

Hull, Que., July 20 (CP)—Three bandits escaped with $20,000 and many thousand dollars after holding up the Champlain Street branch of the Banque Provinciale today.

They were disguised with dark glasses and handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces. Two of them covered two bank employees in the rear compartment while the third leaped over the counter and shouted at Roland Gauthier, 21, "Where is the cash? Make it snappy. I'm in a hurry. Fill this bag."

The employees and customers were herded into the vault while the gunmen escaped with the money in the vault and the teller's cage.

Backing out of the building they leaped into an automobile and sped away.

PEACE AT CITY HALL AS SOLENODONS ARRIVE

New York, July 20 (CP)—Everybody at city hall, from messenger boys to Mayor La Guardia himself, knows now what a solenodon paradoxus is and, with the accomplication of this knowledge, the centre of Manhattan's civic activity became a much more liveable place today.

For some time everybody has been puzzled over the solenodon's antidotes. In fact they've been worried ever since Dr. Lawrence Riker of Paterson Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic was sending solenodons to the mayor as a gift.

As a whole city hall was touched, they wanted to return the gift in the proper manner but nobody knew what it was. Then the animals arrived and by the time they arrived this morning.

There were three of them, limbreamed, three-toed animals. They were about the size of a rabbit and a baby alligator. They looked like a cross between that of Cyrano de Bergerac technically speaking, or the plain ordinary anodonta, like an elephant's trunk hammered down to a mere inch.

The largest one appeared to be home too pleased with his surroundings. He turned his nub business up in disdain. Sometimes he moved from left to right. Sometimes he just grouped.

But it didn't matter much because city hall knows now but what a solenodon is and everybody is happy.

Blind Piano Tuner Pays Third Annual Tour Visit

J. W. Osterman Brings His Family and "Seeing Eye" Alsatian Dog

HIS PHILOSOPHY

For the third successive year J. W. Osterman, blind piano tuner of Lynn, Massachusetts, travelling with his family of four, passed through Belleville, yesterday afternoon on route east after a brief rest at the city tourist camp for lunch.

"Lady", beautiful alsate-german collie dog-companion, a graduate of the Seeing Eye Institute, New York, City, is constantly at his side accompanying him.

What, can a blind man see on a holiday vacation tour?

"Just as much as a sighted person," Mr. Osterman replied, with greater perception and keener enjoyment; their senses and faculties are more alert because they use them more. Don't pity anyone who is blind. They don't need it. Sympathy is entirely unlooked for, and wanted in such cases. We even resent such attempted help we are often unconsciously given", declared Mr. Osterman in the briefest of stop-over interviews.

To End Tour at Coast

Taking almost the same route that has been covered two years in succession, Mr. Osterman and family will end their Canadian trip at the Atlantic coast in a few weeks. By Atlantic coast route they will retrace their journey back into their own State. During their tour they rely upon tourists' homes for overnight accommodation.

"We have yet to be refused on account of "Lady", the dog companion and a true lady" reflected the proud owner. Answering the dog's tail on the car seat when she sat, temporarily relieved of the harness which with the guides enables her through the heaviest traffic on busy streets to direct the progress of her charges. By this pronouncement, "Lady" we never had any difficulty ever taking her into any restaurant with us for meals." It was added.

What The Blind "See"

"But to get back to the subject. Perhaps we miss the glare of the road, the shine of the sun and the bright light of the red and green lights at the intersections, but we have the smell of the grass and the flowers and hay. We can hear the birds and respect a bird's call from impressions during a trip that I've taken. Various sections of this and other Canadian provinces have come to be recognized well known to me, especially since I was stated by the traveller. The Bay of Quinte district we declared one year ago to possess a peculiarly fresh and lovely smell. Even the various sporting things is also blended characteristically, with the whole and scent was again recognized and commented upon by Mr. Osterman.

Country Beautiful

"Farther west the country seems to change and almost overnight. We say and have had very little rain in the Windsor district this year, but the growing things existed just as fresh and green as ever some distance east of there. When we get to Kingston district there seems to be another dry belt, but east of that again the valley of small is the most pronounced. When we get closer to the Maritimes there is a peculiar freshness all its own, but then our own State, the smell of salt and water."

Blind as the result of a heavy fall several years ago in which he inflicted partial paralysis, Mr. Osterman recovered from his paralytic condition after many months' duration in a wheel chair. He recovered to accept the pronouncement of medical experts that sight would probably never be restored, even with the aid of costly operations, with a philosophical calm that has enabled him since to smile at adversity in any form.

Blind Never Worry

"Why shouldn't we be philosophical? We, the blind, never worry at first. In fact we're generally quite a cheerful lot. The one task is that people accept us as they would any normally gifted person. We don't want much mistaken help; in fact we are often in a position to help others if they only knew it."

Marquez, 17-year-old daughter, a gifted musician in her own right, Ella, 15-years and Albert, 13 soon to graduate as a mechanical engineer, and chauffeur during the trip, with Mrs. Osterman are accompanying the father on his regular vacation outing. Members of the family on route point out the interesting aspects of the country through which they travel, furnishing the father with inspiration for his short stories and poems regularly accepted by national magazine papers and periodicals. These he taps out on a well worn typewriter with his facility and ease with which he carries on his regular vocation.

APHRODITE WINS FIRST DAY'S RACE

Canadian Boat Holds Good Lead Over U. S. Defender Today

Oscoti, N.Y., July 20—(AP)—The Royal Canadian Yacht Club's challenger "Aphrodite" held a first second lead over American defender "Yankee" today as it turned into the second lap of the second George Cup race for 6 metre sloops off Oscoti Yacht Club in Lake Ontario today.

Aphrodite, owned by Robert Starr, won the first race of the series Monday by a margin of 1 minute 30 seconds.

The Canadian boat took a 10-second handicap over Raymond Lee's American defender on the first three-mile leg of the triangular course, a reach, after they were even across the starting line in the 8-mile race.

Aphrodite maintained the lead through most of the second leg, a beat.

A moderately stiff east wind puffed along from the north, but was just slightly rough.

The Canadian boat will take the cup if she wins today's race.

She covered a 16-mile route yesterday over the identical course ahead of the Mist to win the first.

SEARCH STARTED FOR TWO OTHERS

Believe Three Were Drowned When Body of One Girl is Found

Windsor, Ont., July 20—(CP)—Intensive search services were being held here today for Antoinette Langlois, 22-year-old drowning victim, and for the two others drowned, or believed drowned over Lake St. Clair.

Identification of a body found in Lake St. Clair Sunday as being that of Margaret Mahon, 18, of Detroit, Mich., was made by her father and her brothers, James and Mary Rose Johnston, 16, of the party of the trio went to the lake Friday for the bathing are that they were all drowned, when they failed to a rowboat. Sellridge Field fliers and Provincial Police in a search.

Miss Langlois' body was identified by her brother, Eugene Langlois, whose home city was given. The body had been recovered from the water by Provincial police and Sellridge fliers.

Margaret and James Mahon, are daughter and son of Ray E. Mahon, common pleas court clerk, at Detroit.

On Friday Miss Mahon, accompanied by Miss Johnston, Miss Johnston, went to the cottage of Miss Mahon at Anchor Bay for the week-end. Hickey is an uncle of the Mahons.

The cottage is five miles north of Mt. Clemens on Anchor Bay Road. That they left Friday morning was revealed by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Hickey, parents of Miss Mary Rose, who went to the cottage to learn why their daughter had missed a scheduled radio appearance.

Boss 'Sits Down' For Second Time

Detroit, July 20 (AP)—Walter L. Fry, president of Kelsey-Hayes Co., who became the first "boss sit-down victim" last February, was on strike again today.

He told his 250 employees at a meeting that he would quit unless work rather than deal with the United Automobile Workers Union, the C.I.O. The employees voted to stand by the union and Fry today closed the plant which makes automobile seat covers.

Winners from the Start

Remember the day your crew won the senior eight? Even now you can't see the sun shining on a glassy stretch of water without recalling the thrills of that great day . . . the clean, strong sweep of the sculls . . . the fast stroke—42 to the minute . . . the lead you took and held from start to finish! Then you relaxed, to stretch out on the turf afterwards, and enjoy a cool, fragrant pipeful of Old Chum!

How refreshing that Old Chum was—and still is, every day; any time! Truly; "There is no other tobacco just like Old Chum". Of course for the pipe, cut fine for rolling your own.

Business as Usual and Unusual in England

Belleville Business Man Notes National Feeling of Optimism in Old Land, Accompanied by a Mounting Wave of Prosperity — Not Afraid of War — Strengthening Defences —Courtesy of the Road

Monday was Scotch Day at Belleville Rotary Club, regular meeting in Hotel Quinte. President Fred Douglass in the chair, Past President Bert Bongard, sergeant-at-arms, Past President Jamieson Bone at the speaker of the day, his topic of being England and France with a wee drop of Scotch added for spice. Guests were in evidence with past presidents and other officers attired in all the colors of the rainbow, ancient Scottish clans and enrolled as emergency Deacons.

Visitors present were Rotarian H. Mack Gordon, and Gordon Marshall, of Peterboro; W. E. Hagarty, of Belleville.

A welcome was extended to Rotarian Alf Baird who returned recently from a tour of Europe in the interests of the Bureau of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture. While in Europe Rotarian Baird represented Belleville Rotary Club at the International Convention at Nice.

President Douglass expressed the regret of the club at the death of one of its most valued members, Fred S. Smith, of Madoc, in which thought, word and deed, an earnest and effective worker in humanity, a kind neighbor and a true friend were existing evidences. The sympathy of the club was extended to the bereaved relatives.

Rotarian Steve Pinnior outlined the fishing party scheduled for Wednesday, July 28, with members of the Oshawa club, which is expected to be a notable occasion and will include the annual competition for the silver cup now in its year for Belleville by Slicks Tres.

Full Speed Ahead

England has weathered the financial storm, or calm, or whatever it was that shrouded in the wheels of industry all over the world, and is now going full speed ahead on a remarkable wave of prosperity which is astounding visitors favorably and has even moved businessmen from the land of Uncle Sammy to exclaim that London and all England have everything the States have and then some. Thus did Past President Jamieson Bone sketch his address on conditions abroad as he observed them on his recent trip overseas. Everywhere in England he found a spirit of optimism, cheerfulness and kindliness, business was brisk in all lines and there was a great home building move on, providing model homes for thousands on monthly payments not exceeding good rentals. Motoring through England the speaker observed many amazing incidents and customs, and noted a great change in the past fifteen years, a definite forward movement animated by optimism, and British bulldog courage, reflected everywhere in better business, better conditions generally, and a determination to keep Britain to the fore among the nations of the earth.

Know How to Plan

Canadians, proud of their own country, and apt to boast overmuch of its resources, could visit England where much can be learned to benefit. English people know how to enjoy life and every possible means of entertainment and recreation is provided for the people, citing one municipal ball for dancing and recreation purposes which must have cost $30000. Sports of all sorts are eagerly taken part in and encouraged and the English are a great outdoor people even when it rains as it frequently does but without dampening the ardor of those in the sports.

Not Fired at Forty

Talks on American neighbors we are a little too hard boiled, and it certainly does not pay," said the speaker. "The Englishman does not fire his employees at forty. He is looked upon as valuable and the country has thousands of men on pension, and respected pensioners at that. They have money to spend and it finds its way to everybody, including the shops and industries. Government employees are not fired when a government changes, there are civil servants and can vote and talk politics all they like without fear or favor. As a result the best men in the country go in for civil service and for politics."

Britain Pays the Shot

"The Britisher is not afraid of war. He feels that in this crooked world there is only one thing for him to do, and do it strong. And that is to have such an efficient army, navy and air force that no one dare attack. We are so selfish here that we won't spend anything worth mentioning on armaments. As a result our young men have got to go to Britain to find jobs and Britain pays the whole shot of keeping the army, navy and air force up to the minute. We of course cannot be tipped off in the very latest developments free of charge.

"Great progress has been made in naval defense and indications are that submarines in the next war will have a difficult time dodging detection because of the anti-submarine devices which have been perfected."

The prosperity in Britain is not due to the rearmament program alone, but principally to the abandonment of the vicious principle of more for the business and by the thousand.

Dream of Beauty

Motoring in England and Scotland is a dream of beauty, according to the speaker, and country is a fine art, where the man about bus or truck driver, gives you the signal to come on when the road is clear ahead and you wish to pass. Everywhere the rule of the road is courtesy and kindly helpfulness, treatment which surprised and gratified Mr. Bone very much. Harvest, whether reaping done through vistas of surpassing beauty and all in all this is the life of a Britisher providing a pleasant interlude in life which will never be forgotten and is worth while making great sacrifices to achieve.

Past President Bone was introduced by Past President G. T. Baker, while Rotarian Roderick Spalding and President Fred Douglass expressed the appreciation of the club in brief words.

DIRECT UNREST

those countries and fresh views on the grave situation in Europe, but a new confidence that co-operation among the nations may discover new and directed toward the maintenance of peace.

"The countless attractions and limitless possibilities of Canada," Mr. Mackenzie King said, were known to "the overpopulated countries and under-nourished peoples" of other continents. "Never imagine," he added, "that in the world holocaust our country would escape 'the terror by night nor the arrow that flieth by day.' What evil in Canada as elsewhere throughout the world, is the price of our security."

Deepened Convictions

His visits to other countries, the Prime Minister said, had immeasurably deepened as a consequence of all I have seen and heard," two convictions of his public life. These were "how terrible a thing the hate and bitterness bred by the curse of all our ills is an attitude of good-will."

The Prime Minister voiced a plea for tolerance and understanding between "all the peoples of the world but among the people, and among the peoples of the British Dominion in Canada. He made no direct reference to any particular circumstance in his address, tending to reveal political cleavage or disunity of Confederation.

The Prime Minister had a word to say against hasty utterances by those in authority. "Words too hastily and too loudly expressed," he said, "may lead to grave reflections or unpremeditated act, the consequences of which none can foresee."

Obtained Full Information

His visit to the three continental capitals, the Prime Minister said, was prompted by a desire to obtain "very full information" concerning conditions in Europe, it self," he said, "it would be helpful in meeting responsibilities of Government in Canada were I, before returning, pay a brief visit to the continent to supplement the knowledge gained (at the Conference and Commonwealth) by observation and personal interviews with those in authority."

Of the Conference, the Prime Minister, after summarizing the official reports already published, said the conclusions there reached would be of the greatest value in the more effective furtherance of aims and ideals shared in common. Above everything else the Conference revealed how sure are the foundations upon which to built the free association of British Peoples and how strong and abiding are the bonds which united them one to another."

ETHER CONQUEROR

Pope Pius, with whom the inventor had been in touch during the Vatican, was notified by telephone at his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. He sent a special blessing to the inventor.

Marconi had been closely associated with the Pontiff. The first radio station at the Vatican was installed by Marconi when it was inaugurated in 1931. It was Marconi who introduced Pope Pius to the Pope ever to speak over the radio.

Worked on Yacht

Despite his feeling of ill health yesterday afternoon Marconi carried on working on his latest microwave experiments. The Marquis Luigi Solari head of the Italian Marconi Company the inventor's biographer and life-long friend, said that yesterday Marconi put into his office "to talk about his microwave experiments."

The Marconi Company offices at the inventor's home and today the employees learned of his death as they arrived for work.

Marconi told he he planned to spend the whole summer aboard his yacht, Elettra, conducting experiments," Solari said. "He idea was to adapt the microwave to long range transmission."

Hospital of Science

"Marconi was very hopeful of the success of these experiments and they are in such progress and have reached such a point we can go ahead with his work."

Marconi's body will be removed to historic Farnesina Palace headquarters of the Royal Italian Academy of which he was president, on the 3rd of the "Ether" to lie in state in the room of an Academician.

Following a preliminary funeral service in Rome, the body will be taken by special to Bologna where he conducted his first experiments in a barn on his father's country estate.

His death, occurred in his downtown residence at 6:45 o'clock. Hours part of the beautiful and ancient palace was occupied as rooms by the Italian Marconi Company.

First Invention at 21

Marconi was only 21 years old when in the Spring of 1895 he first tapped the three dots of the letter "S" in the Morse Code on a wireless transmitter in his laboratory in a barn.

Laconically he announced his invention.

"I have discovered how to telegraph without wires."

Italy was skeptical, however, of the usefulness of the young inventor's discovery and it was not born mother took Marconi in England. There, with the aid of her relatives he was granted the first patent for a practical system of wireless telegraphy in 1896.

Much of Marconi's work had been devoted to military purposes In the last few years and he had been reportedly reported at work on a "death ray." This, however, was denied as frequently as it was reported.

Youth is Killed In Boiler Blast

North Bay, Ont., July 19—(CP)—Roy Cooper, 17, of Redridge was killed today in a boiler explosion in his father's portable lumber mill.

Cooper was working near the boiler at the time of the explosion, which ripped a hole in the roof of the shelter covering the machinery. No other person was hurt.

The mill is half a mile east of Redridge, 12 miles north of here.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Tweed High School Board has engaged the services of Miss Kathleen Jordan, B.A., of Toronto, to succeed Miss Elizabeth Stuart, B.A., whose resignation at the end of June left a vacancy on the local staff. Miss Jordan is a recent graduate of The University of Toronto and the Ontario College of Education, a part-time teacher will also be engaged to relieve the three-hanged teachers made it possible to give more individual attention to the needs of the students.

The funeral of the late Mary Elizabeth Tufts took place on last Friday, from her late home to St. Andrew's United Church. Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne conducted the services.

The late Miss Tufts was but twenty-three years of age. She was born in Hungerford Township, the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Tufts and the late Mr. Tufts.

Some months ago Miss Tufts became ill. She was taken to Hamilton and later to Hospital in Toronto, where she died on Wednesday. For twenty years Miss Tufts had been employed in the office of Miss A. M. Raybourn. Active in young people's work in the United Church, she will be missed by her associates with whom she was deservedly popular.

Mourning her loss are her mother; five brothers: Stanley and Clayton at home; Harry of Madoc; Arthur of Belleville, H. J., Wilbert of San Diego, Cal., and two sisters; Mrs. Arnold Montgomery of Hungerford Township and Madeline of Toronto.

The funeral of the late Peter La Sage of Otter Creek was held on Thursday last from St. Paul's R.C. Edmund's D.C. Church, Stoco. The services were conducted by Rev. Canon Moss Rev. Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston. Assisting priests were Rev. Fr. Clayton Gallivan of Smith's Falls; Rev. Fr. Simon Lesage, Kingston; Rev. Fr. Thompson, Hayes, Tyendo; and the parish priest, Rev. Fr. J. V. Meagher. Interment was in St. Edmund's Cemetery, Stoco.

The late Peter LaSage was born at Sagart seventy years ago, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LaSage and had resided in the district during his entire life. He was one of the most successful farmers in the section in which he lived. Throughout his whole life he had been a faithful member of St. Edmund's Church; he was a member of the Holy Name Society and a Liberal in politics.

Surviving to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father are his widow, formerly Regina Hayes, and the following sons and daughters—Joseph at home; Leo of Chicago; Leonard and Stafford of Rochester; Rev. Fr. Clayton LaSage of Smith's Falls; Agnes, Mrs. Chandler; Mrs. Herman Gehring of Rochester; Mrs. Dewey Mallon, Mrs. John Grace of Long Island and Raymond of Regina.

Mitchell Hall of Tweed and John LaSage of Bay City, are brothers. Mrs. Alex. J. Cassidy, Ewa in Tweed.

Pallbearers were Ray Quinn, Felix LaSage and Rev. Dean Culligane attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Catherine Mary Quinn, wife of Calman B.A., of the local High School staff. The funeral took place at Vernonville on Monday, July 19th. Interment was at Grafton. Death followed an illness of seven weeks' duration.

Master Jack Beatty, young son of Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Beatty, is a proud boy these days. On Friday last he landed a four-pound small mouthed black bass at the eastern outlet of Stoco Lake. On Friday the beauty measured 17 1-2 inches in length and is the largest caught so far this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goanes of Kingston, were recent visitors at the home of Mr and Mrs. C. R. Brown. Mr. Goanes was a former manager of the local Bell Telephone branch.

Rev. Sister Mary Sheila and Rev. Sister Lucille of Clarendon are visiting at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. James Quinn.

Miss Ena Shewring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shewring was successfully operated on for removal of appendix at Belleville General Hospital on Saturday.

Ensign Wood of the Salvation Army, Toronto, was a visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Miss Wright. She was formerly in charge of the local Salvation Army Corps.

Sergt. and Mrs. John McDonald and family of Regina, spent a few days at the home of Mrs. R. J. Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Houston, Deeland and Margaret of Belleville, spent the past week at their cottage, "Pine Bower" on Stoco Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Church, and son of Ottawa, former residents of Tweed, are spending a few days in Tweed with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Houston.

Miss Leo Phillips entertained a number of friends at bridge at the Log Cabin, Actinolite, last week. Miss Elizabeth Ketcheson and Mrs. T. N. Beatty were the prize winners.

Mrs. H. P. Purdy and family of Kingston, are spending a few days with friends in town.

The following district teachers are attending the School for Agriculture at Kemptville, this week: Miss Dorothy Moore, Margaret Collins, Helena Merwe, and Elaine Mouldliter.

The funeral of the late Leonard Lewis, eighteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lewck of Tweed was held on Friday from his late home to St. Carlorath's Church. Rev. Dean Cullinane had charge of the services. The young man had been ill for about two months. He is survived by his parents and several brothers and sisters.

The largest bunge to be caught in Stoco Lake this season was captured by Messrs. Russell White and H. J. Marvell of Akron, Ohio. It tipped the scales at 24 pounds. Their catch also included a muskellunge weighing seven pounds. The successful anglers were accompanied by Mr. Jos. Emerson of Tweed. They made their catch in the eastern end of the lake near Kanata Beach.

General regret is felt by the townsfolk at the departure of Mr. Peter D. Ross of Peterboro, son of Mr. and Mrs Myrtle Dark will not leave for some time.

Mr. Ross came to Tweed in January 1936 and entered the employ of Mr. Wyndham Ketcheson, and furnishes them with an opportunity for developing talent musical and vocal.

In view of this it is to be hoped that the Band may not become disorganized but that the officers may continue to hold it together until a new leader may be secured. It might not be amiss in this connection for the local Council to make an appropriation of a few hundred dollars part of which might well be used as an honorarium or salary to the Band Leader.

in the district including a series of band concerts at Jubilee Park. The most recent appearance was at the Musical Festival in connection with the Picton Centennial.

On Sunday night a large crowd gathered at Tweed Memorial Park, for the closing Band Concert under Mr. Dark's leadership. A special programme of popular band selections and familiar hymns was presented to an appreciative audience which was not slow to voice its appreciation of the contribution which the band and the bandmaster had made to the life of the community. Mr. Dark left on Monday for Peterboro, where he entered the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company in a position of responsibility.

To the earnest hope of everyone that a successor to Mr. Dark may be soon found to carry on the progress of the Band may not be interrupted. The value of an asset such a band can hardly be over-estimated in the life of a community. The musical atmosphere usually receive magic, favourable publicity through the medium, and the general public enjoyable entertainment; but it provides the young people of the village with an excellent way in which to profitably spend their leisure hours, and furnishes them with an opportunity for developing talent musical and vocal.

In view of this it is to be hoped that the Band may not become disorganized but that the officers may continue to hold it together until a new leader may be secured. It might not be amiss in this connection for the local Council to make an appropriation of a few hundred dollars part of which might well be used as an honorarium or salary to the Band Leader.

NEW HOMES AND DESIGNS

It is to be noted that in no whouses under construction in Belleville are evidences that the new type of home is meeting with favor. Belleville like other older places has a large proportion of the type of homes which have been popular for many decades and will continue to be, but for the sake of variety joined with high beauty of design new homes might also take on new ideas in designing, particularly where the ground lends itself to the incorporation of a unity of design in setting and residence. There are many new types of homes, modern to the last minute, but not extravagant nor fantastic, yet still with those differences which are necessary for the general effect. Some of the newer houses in Belleville show this tendency to modified colonial and cottage and other designs.

RESULTS ANNOUNCED

Examinations are mostly forgotten by this time, except perhaps by some of those who did not do well enough to justify their promotion. To these latter there has no doubt come disappointment but for those who learn to try and try again as a result of a failure, then good must result.

Not even the teachers agree or say that the last word in education has been reached, but most just let it go with the scheme as it is do what the most conscientious teachers can do to help and encourage them. There are scholars who fail and yet live to pass another day. Some do not appreciate their educational advantages until years pass and do not appear to develop until they reach greater age. Of these many have made remarkable careers. If some fail it can also be said that many who succeed have fallen short of their opportunities and that if they had been more diligent they might have had more marked success.

All children are not made the same. Each one is an individualist and education can go quite far towards developing that sense of individuality within the bounds of society and in treating peculiar cases. Some teachers have had remarkable success in this line and have devoted themselves and their time as living sacrifice for the good of children, for a devoted teacher sacrifices until it hurts—this is no mere job but an inspiration to life.

Of no class can it be said that there is a greater opportunity for good than of the teachers. Many of the finest citizens are of this profession. Those teachers who leave impressions on their scholars of noble characters are blessed in the knowledge that they have done their work and that the scholars love them for themselves.

BANDING OF BIRDS IN CANADA

Many birds are now migrating northward for the summer months, and finders of banded birds can assist in the conservation of a natural resource worth millions of dollars annually by reporting the number of the band, the date, manner and locality in which the bird was taken. The beneficial role of wild birds in the controlling insect pests and in destroying noxious weeds seeds to the direct benefit of the farmer cannot be over-estimated. Wild game birds are of value also, not only as a natural food supply, but as an object of sport.

Bird banding is playing an important part in the conservation of bird resources. Because birds are international bird banding must be international in scope, and it is being conducted by the National Parks Bureau Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa, and the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, D.C. Over two million wild birds have been banded in North America since 1920. Further success in this important work depends very largely on the voluntary cooperation of private citizens in reporting any banded birds which come to their attention to the central bureaus in Canada or the United States.

Bird banding was originally started by private individuals and was later taken up by interested ornithological societies. It became a government activity in the United States in 1920 and in Canada in 1923. Most of the banding in Canada is done by some two hundred voluntary workers who operate under authority of "bird banding permits" under the Migratory Birds Convention Act. Approximately 250,000 birds have been banded in the Dominion and over 20,000 useful "recovery" records respecting the migration, range, breeding and wintering grounds and longevity of native wild birds, have been obtained.

Official bands are of aluminum or copper and are inscribed with a series designation and a serial number. Once a bird is banded it assumes an individuality, which makes it possible to trace accurately the life history of that particular bird.

Result a number of lawsuits in which the company always emerged victorious. Milwaukee was smacked with an adverse verdict of $4,977,000, profits and damages for the company, equal to a $6 tax increase on every $1,000 of real and personal property on the assessment rolls. Chicago lost an appeal against judgment for even a larger sum than that which made Milwaukee glum. Suits are pending against New York city and many other communities.

JOHN L. LEWIS' ONE BIG UNION OR WHAT HAVE YOU has cast envious eyes upon the possibilities of the United States Government service. With nearly two million government officeholders it is easy to figure what a two-dollar entrance fee would mean to the Lewis organization as the price of pinning a Lewis badge on. Franklin Roosevelt has been very friendly with the Lewis set-up but when it comes to organizing or disorganizing the civil and uncivil service the President does not need a favorable decision from the Supreme Court—he just says NO—notwithstanding the fact that the Lewis organization contributed half a million dollars to the democratic campaign fund last election and has since loaned the party organization fifty thousand dollars to cover up some deficits. Looks like John L. Lewis is in a fair way to make an ass out of the democratic donkey.

WRITING

A surprising number of people are interested in earning a living by writing. Perhaps the number is not surprising. One might say that almost everyone, sometime contemplates making a living by writing.

Writing, after you have learned how, is a pleasant form of livelihood. When you have thought of something to say, you just sit down and write it, and you hand it to a publisher who pays you from two to 10 cents a word for it.

The catch comes in thinking of something to say. Not only must you think of something to say, but you must present your idea in a form that will be interesting and understandable.

Just as soon as you have polished off one idea, you must find another. This goes on for days and weeks and years. Meanwhile and always you are in competition with everybody else who is writing.

The strain is severe and the consequence is that nobody continues to be a writer unless the pressure to express himself in words is so persistent and powerful that he can't resist it.

There are no mute Miltons. The Miltons write because they have to get ideas off their chest. Thos who can keep ideas to themselves are neither Miltons nor columnists.—Bagology.

The sailing yacht Norah arrived home last night after a two weeks' cruise on Lake Ontario. Mr. John Bell Q.C., and family and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bell were on board. The yacht has been found to be greatly improved both in speed and stability by the recent alterations to her. Coming down the lake she logged off as high as 13 knots per hour under lower canvas.

The sailing yacht White Wings left for Toronto today to take part in the Association races. She is owned by Mr. P. J. Cooley of Trenton and will be sailed by her builder, Capt. Dunbert. She belongs to the first class and will likely be heard from.

STEAMER SINKS TWO ARE DROWNED

Supply Boat Disappears in Three Minutes After Sudden Pitch

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 20 (CP)—Ten crew searched through the sunken supply boat, Frontier, for the body of a seaman today as an inquiry opened into the sinking of the vessel in the American channel of the St. Mary's River. Two men were drowned and a dozen others escaped a similar fate in the mishap.

United States Coast Guardsmen recovered the body of Seaman Joe Manning of Detroit, found after and within 50 feet of where the Frontier sank yesterday. Body of Wheler Cram, another crew member, still was in the hulk. Of the twelve others, including four passengers, who escaped injury, several jumped overboard and were picked up by the tug Iowa.

Sent Sinks Fast

The Frontier, owned by the Pittsburgh Steamship Company of Cleveland and manned by a Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., crew, sank three minutes after it suddenly pitched bow first under the water as it lay alongside the steamship Alcoa Supplies were being transferred from the Frontier to the Alcoa.

Craven was trapped in the starboard bow where he was repairing a hole which Capt. William Collins said was caused by the vessel hitting a dock a few days ago. Her plates were knocked out or loosened by the impact. Manning, among those who jumped overboard, was drowned when he died a life belt blown down in the tow as the tug picked up the survivors.

Three women, including Capt. Collins' wife, were among the rescued. The other women, whose names were not available, were from O., besides Capt. Collins, the others rescued were Robert McArthur, engineer; Russell Hope; Adolphe Wandler, Jr.; Adolph Wandler, Jr.; Joe Quigley; Jim McKitrick and Bradey Whitaker.

POINT ANNE

Point Anne—Mr. and Mrs. Earle Lockwood and Lois, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ross and daughter and Mrs. R. Badgley, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Burshaw.

CHAPTER XV.

Their taxi slid around a corner on two wheels. Daphne, sitting forward on the seat as though to urge it on to greater speed, fell back in a heap.

"Darling, keep your head. We'll stop in Larry promised.

"Oh, but if he isn't at his apartment, Larry?"

"We'll meet that when we come to it. We do know that Jennifer is at the theatre with the Bakers. And it is only 11 now. Isn't it likely that she would come from the theatre to meet him at his apartment, or at your own? I thought the fashionable hour to stops was midnight."

"But if he isn't here?"

He was. Tuck answered the doorbell ring himself.

"Hello, Larry. Surprised to see me?" Daphne, outwardly cool, smiling and beautiful in her white evening clothes, greeted him.

"Rather," he said, "and honored, of course. What's you come in?"

"Certainly," she said, and moved leisurely into the living room. There was an open suitcase on the lounge.

"Going some place?" She sat down and reached for the cigarette box.

"Yes," he said, "I was——er——."

"Going to be married," she said. "I know. I know all about it." She kept her light and pleasant but she couldn't find the cigarette because her hand shook.

X X X

He fighted it for her and she blew smoke toward the ceiling. Still following its course with her eyes, she said, "Tuck, you let me down. You said you'd wait for me, you tremendously because you always stayed as late."

He didn't say anything. He poured himself a high ball and took much of it with a gulp. Clearly the right amount of soda. "Have one?"

"No, thank you," she answered, and thought: I must be careful to say the right things.

"We all slip on those things sometimes," she pursued, "but there is something else. I used to be a little sorry that I wasn't the right complement for you."

"What do you mean?" he asked and put down his glass.

"Oh, Tuck, you're—— such a worldly person, so balanced, so—— oh, you've the best qualities to make one." Words, she thought. "You're the kind of a man a girl thinks she should marry a girl who would be glamorous. A woman of the world. A woman who has had her romance and, well, grown-up."

She glanced toward the table. "I think I will have a high ball."

He poured it for her.

"You know, of course, that I don't want to stand in your way if you want to marry Jennifer. And she wants to marry you, but Tuck!" She managed that look of perplexity—a flattering perplexity—perfectly. "It isn't like you to rush into anything this."

X X X

"I know that Jennifer is pretty keen about you. She must have been because she's been sounding me out about how much money you have." She stopped off talking and sipped her drink while he got up to mark sank in. Then she went on:

"You might make a good husband for Jennifer at that. She's frightfully extravagant, loves expensive places and servants just as much as you do." Daphne knew that sacrifice was not in Tucker's line. He loved his fine clothes, his expensive little restaurants and Daphne knew that it took all his income to keep them up. She watched the struggle that gathered on his forehead.

"You'll be true to you, Tuck. She's that kind because she is jealous. She knows what she wants and what she can't, she gets! But once she has got it, it belongs to her. I admire her possessiveness and her go-getterness, too."

Tuck grew in his height. Daphne half-expected him to whistle. Instead he took a long swallow.

"As a matter of fact I wouldn't be a bit surprised if this sloping line was settled—I mean——"

"It was," he said unexpectedly and Daphne hated him for it.

Daphne laughed. "And you, Tucker Ainsley, to be taken in by such schoolgirl tactics! Well, that's up to you. Frankly, I think it might be a good idea. You're a bit older than Jennifer and you'd have a steadying influence but I would suggest that instead of running away, you let me announce your engagement and give the child a chance to get ready for a real wedding, to get an apartment for the two of you. You'll need a much larger one than this, of course."

X X X

Tuck got up and picked up the suitcase. He took it into the bedroom. Daphne gave herself the luxury of a great sigh of relief and stifled her smile of triumph as he came back.

"Larry Smith is downstairs. Hurry up and get into your dinner jacket and we'll have a party. We'll go on with you wherever you are picking Jennifer up. Is it a go?"

Daphne didn't think that Tuck could look sheepish. He did now.

"Look," he said. "You do understand, don't you? Jen is a lovely little thing and we—— well, it seemed like a good idea."

"Of course it was," she said slowly. "But I'm sure that you weren't getting the right break. You'd prefer that we announce the engagement, wouldn't you?"

He caught his under lip and avoided her eyes. "You've given me something to think about. I mean that sure enough. You're always right, Daphne. Jennifer is only 18 and I'm 30. Let's talk it over some other time."

"All right," she said cheerfully. "You talk it over with Jennifer. Now, hurry."

While she waited and powdered her nose, she thought: Daphne, for a quiet, conservative girl you do rather manage to pack the exciting things into your life. Well, a little more lipstick might help me to meet the fireworks. Because, my dear, there will be fireworks when sister gets this news.

"Where is she?" she asked Tuck.

Tuck, arranging a dark red carnation in his lapel, wore the expression of a man who has been snatched from the edge of a burning pit.

"She's with the Bakers. They were going to El Matador. I'm picking her up there."

"Splendid, Larry and I had planned to go there."

"Darling, we'll be able to go to El Matador, after all," she said to Larry, and gave him a warning squeeze of the wrist for silence. Then they were three in the taxi.

Jennifer saw them before they saw her. She was seated at a table hidden by palms while they stood at the plush rope. And she knew as surely as though it had been told her, that somehow Daphne had learned about her plans and had spoiled them.

But how much she knew, how much Tuck told her when they were dancing, or how much he told her the truth, was something that Daphne never knew.

For the next two hours while they danced at El Matador and later at the 21 Club where they went to hear the songs of the latest French disease, Jennifer was gay. And so was Daphne. But when Daphne spoke to Jennifer, Jennifer did not answer.

At last, they were alone in their apartment.

Jennifer undressed silently, bathed and got into her bed. Before she turned out the light, she said, "Daphne, I warned you that if I ever fell in love and you interfered, you'd be sorry. You will be!"

CHAPTER XVI.

"The pattern calls for 4 blue band but I think I'd like it all white." Daphne held up an adorable hatbrush and she was knitting. "Would you mind it being all white?"

Jennifer didn't look up from her book. "It makes any difference what I think?"

"I should think it would since making it for you. Or didn't you remember that June 30 is your birthday and June 30 is next week?"

"I'm surprised you didn't make a pinafore," Mater retorted but in the same cold tone that she had given Daphne these last three months.

Daphne put her knitting away. "Perhaps there is something else you'd prefer?" she smiled.

Jennifer smiled sweetly. "Why don't you forget it, Daphne? Why don't you leave me alone? You've gotten your way now. I've settled down to modeling at Tay-Jarrett—Tay-Jarrett was a smart 57th Street shop—"I go to bed early and watch my diet. I don't go out with any wild people and I don't interfere in your life. Will that be enough?"

"No." Daphne answered, "it will not be. Darling, we can't live this way. For three months you've treated me as though you thoroughly disliked me. Surely you are intelligent enough to know that I would never hurt on, that I want to help you. I think you're taking a ridiculous attitude. After all, what a mistake it would have been if you'd married Tuck. You couldn't have been very much in love with him to be over it so soon."

X X X

Jennifer threw down her book and walked the length of the room two or three times. "Whether I happen to be in love or not in love with Tuck is no concern of yours. At least, he hasn't troubled you."

Or you either, Daphne might have said, since Tuck had taken himself off to California for "a few weeks" three months ago and had not returned.

"Aren't you seeing a lot of Roy Trowbridge? I think he's very attractive."

"I'm not boy crazy," Jennifer said with dignity. "But you wouldn't understand that."

Patiently, Daphne tried another tack. "What would you like to do during your two weeks of next month?"

Jennifer said, "Why, I'd like to run over to Paris. What would you suggest?"

Unruffled, Daphne answered, "I was going to suggest that you accept Miriam Oakly's invitation to join her family on the Cape."

Miriam had been a classmate at Miss Maidstone's.

"Certainly, I'll accept. And wear what? I haven't had a decent rag in a year and I'd need loads of sports clothes."

Daphne might have said that Jennifer had spent every cent of her generous salary on clothes. Instead she said, "I've a little money in the bank I could let you have. You ought to be able to do very well on $200. Summer sports clothes don't cost very much. Suppose I keep the clothing suit and give you the $200?"

X X X

Before Jennifer had a chance to answer, their doorbell sounded.

"That's Larry and he's early. The Stadium concerts start tonight and we want to get there early." Jennifer went to answer the bell.

Jennifer sighed and walked toward the bedroom. "Please don't go, Jennifer. It isn't necessary for you to run away when Larry comes."

"Who's running away?" Larry demanded.

"I was," Jennifer said. "Hello, Larry."

"Darling, will you find yourself a cigarette and amuse Jennifer for a few minutes? I've got to be domestic. Our maid didn't come today and the laundry is spread out all over my bed. I've got to put it away."

Larry gave a playful tug to Jennifer's golden hair. "Be a good little sister and give your big sister a break. Jennifer will do it, won't you?"

Jennifer's eyes called on Heaven to witness her plight. "Really," she said and picked up her book. "Would you like me to get out a broom, too?"

Larry didn't answer her. He read his newspaper until Daphne, fresh and smart in a sheer tailored suit and sweater, came into the room.

"Going out, Jennifer?"

"I may." Still she didn't look up. "I've misplaced my door key. Do you think you'll be here when I get back?"

"I haven't any idea."

Daphne turned away ashamed of her sister's rudeness, conscious of her own humiliation.

X X X

Later, when it was intermission and she and Larry sat on the stone steps high in the Stadium, Larry pulled on his pipe and was silent. Daphne had learned to know those silences when, always, he had on something he didn't want to say.

"Darling, would you mind very much if I were to turn Jennifer over knee and give her a good spanking?" he said at last.

"Yes, I would," she said. "It doesn't do any good to try and keep from you that Jennifer is being difficult. But children usually are and she's a child. I know her well. If this attack happens to last a little longer than usual, she'll sit get over it. She needs understanding and I wish you'd make an effort to give it to her. Jennifer is generous, warm-hearted and penitent when she gets over things and, she has a great deal of charm. I want you to promise me that you'll make an effort to get to know her. You could bring out the best in her if you'd try. Will you?"

"I'll take her to the zoo on Friday and buy her the biggest doll I can find."

"I'm serious, Larry."

"And I'm serious too, honey. I'll do anything that would make you happy. By the way, I haven't asked you to marry me since last Sunday. What about it?"

"Only this," she said, and kissed him on his nose.

She was glad of the silence between them when the music began. Glad she wouldn't have to try to be gay. That would have been hard. She'd only been able to save $200 and now she was going to give it to Jennifer for a holiday. She had that to think about. She would never have enough money for the next egg she needed before she could marry Larry!

But if the holiday would help, would lift that unhappy veil that was between she and Jennifer, she offered it willingly.

Jennifer stirred Daphne to meet her train at the end of the holiday. That small gesture was enough to send Daphne's hopes up.

Before she went to the train she ordered a supper of Jennifer's favorite foods.

The minute she saw Jennifer's face—so lovely, so sweet, so radiant—among the passengers alighting from the train, she knew that Jennifer's black mood was dispelled.

"I can't wait to tell you the news," Jennifer said. "You won't like it but you'll have to. Who do you think I met at Dennis? Gordon Hersberg, the great theatrical producer, and he's offered me a small part in a new production."

She paused and again that hard expression appeared at the corners of her mouth. "What are you going to do about it?"

"Do about it?" Daphne said, hugging her. "Darling, I'm going to coach you as soon as you get your lines. I'm thrilled to death. Have you forgotten that the theatre was my first love?"

CHAPTER XVII.

"Let me go and tell him. He's waiting in the boat house. Oh, this news will mean more to him than anything else I could possibly tell him."

Jennifer stopped and glanced hastily at the blue-covered papers in her hand.

Daphne, sitting cross-legged on the floor, said, "No! A thousand times No! Look, Jennifer, you're only going to tell him that the boat has changed his mind about flying him. He isn't your lover! You aren't going to tell him he's been left a fortune and the word Oh is not in the script. Take that transcendent light out of your eyes. Now come back to the right entrance and do it again.'

Jennifer looked dubious for a minute and then did as she was told.

"Much better," Daphne pronounced. "And you've letter perfect in your lines. There's only one other little thing: when you get to the door, open it with your left hand. Don't make a complete turn with your back to the audience when you open the door."

One Law for the Rich . . .

THERE are perfectly sincere reformers who agree with the majority of level headed people in opposing prohibition, with its attendant evils; but who are inclined to prefer a system whereby brewed malt beverages could only be obtained in sealed cartons after the purchase of a permit.

These people, we are sure, all have comfortable homes where they can entertain their friends. For them, also, the price of a permit means as little as the price of a glass.

But are they not forgetting the less fortunate members of the community? There is abundant medical evidence that those engaged in hard manual labour obtain real benefit from a glass of beer after the day's work. Yet it is just these people who were debarred from the opportunity of obtaining legally a single glass of beer by the former restrictions.

After all, abuse is considerably less probable in a public place, under government control.

Public opinion is a strong weapon and one which inevitably will make for moderation if it is given a chance.

That after all is the British way! Just as it would be against the British tradition to withhold from the poor, privileges that are accorded to the rich!

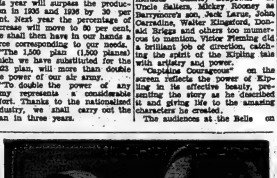
FRENCH AIR FORCE DOUBLED BY '39



Nationalized Industry is Given Credit For Accomplishment

Nantes, France, July 20 (CP-Havas)—France's air force will be doubled by the spring of 1939, Air Minister Pierre Cot declared today at Bougenais, near here, inaugurating the first nationalized aeroplane factory.

"In one year," he said, "the number of modern airplanes in service in the units of the air force has increased 50 per cent and possibilities of bombardment have grown 500 per cent.

"Production of military airplanes this year will surpass the production in 1936 and 1936 by 30 per cent. Next year the percentage of increase will move to 90 per cent. We shall then have in our hands a force corresponding to our needs. The 1,500 plan (1,500 planes) which we have substituted for the 1,000 plan, will more than double the power of our air army.

"To double the power of any army represents a considerable effort. Thanks to the nationalized industry, we shall carry out the plan in three years.

Francine Larrimore, famous actress of the legitimate stage, makes her film debut opposite Edward Arnold in "John Meade's Woman," at the Capitol starting Wednesday.

Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, Spencer Tracy, featured in Rudyard Kipling's stirring and human story "Captain's Courageous" now in it's 3rd sensational day at the Belle.

At the Movies

AT THE BELLE

"Captains Courageous"

Presented by an impressive cast, headed by Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen version of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous", is now in its third record day at the Belle Theatre, where it ends its engagement tomorrow (Wednesday) evening.

Coming from the studio that has given to the world such a powerful epic of the sea as "Mutiny on the Bounty," this Kipling masterpiece stands even greater heights in its visual and audible treatment.

M.G.M. acquired a story Gloucester schooner off the Grand Banks, with her weather-beaten master and crew, and let them down through the Panama Canal to the Pacific and there made the battered vessel a movie star. But first they shot tremendous impressive sequences on the Atlantic from Newfoundland down to the West Indies.

Freddie Bartholomew crowns his brilliant young career in the role of the rich American boy who is swept from the deck of a liner in a gale off the Grand Banks, rescued by a fishing crew, and trained into the life of the hardy men of the sea. Spencer Tracy, as the Portuguese fisherman, is magnificent and Lionel Barrymore gives an extraordinary performance as Captain Disko, skipper of the schooner "We're Here."

Melvyn Douglas offers a sympathetic study of Freddie Bartholomew's father and a uniformly excellent supporting cast of players includes Charley Grapewin as Uncle Salters, Mickey Rooney as Barrymore's son, Jack Leruc, John Carradine, Walter Kingsford, Donald Briggs and others too numerous to mention. Victor Fleming did a brilliant job of direction, catching the spirit of the Kipling tale with artistry and power.

"Captains Courageous" on the screen reflects the power of Kipling in its effective beauty, presenting the story as he described it and giving life to the amazing characters he created.

AT THE CAPITOL

Edward Arnold in "John Meade's Woman"

The conflict of human hearts and the wrath of outraged Nature supply the romance and drama of "John Meade's Woman," a gripping love story of a man who thought he could treat women as recklessly as timberlands, railroads and wheat crops in the high-game of finance, starring Edward Arnold and Francine Larrimore, which begins on Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre, as bill No. 1.

The story deals with John Meade, industrialist, who has reached the highest rung or industrial success by ruthless dealings. Despite the advice of his lieutenant, played by George Bancroft, that he restore the timberlands he had denuded in his march to power, he leaves them bare. He is to marry Gail Patrick, a society beauty, and discovers she is unfaithful to him. For revenge he marries Miss Larrimore, a poor girl, and, once he is through with her, offers to pay her off for the part she played.

But Miss Larrimore loves him. When she discovers why he married her, she flees, spurning his offers, or love turns to intense hate. Soon after later the first of the fires, the vengeance of Nature which he has disregarded, conspire to put his life in peril. It is then that he discovers that neither in love nor in business can he choose without paying the piper. He also learns that love is a thing unlike any with which one cannot toy. And the girl discovers that love, once born, can never be killed nor hidden behind a veil of hatred.

"John Meade's Woman" is the first motion picture in which Miss Larrimore appears after her brilliant Broadway stage career. She is blonde and petite and is the possessor of amazing charm. Donna Trent, Sidney Blackmer, Jonathan Hale and others are in the cast.

"California Straight Ahead"

A race for one million dollars! This interest of the entire country is focused on the outcome of a desperate transcontinental struggle between a caravan of trucks and an express train, racing against each other for million dollar contracts, while a girl rides, in constant danger, to witness the outcome of the race and to claim the victorious leader for her own. Everyone thinks she hates is with the trucks, and the other is the gulding genius behind the railroad.

That is the thrill-laden theme of "California Straight Ahead," which opens at the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday, as bill No. 2.

The picture presents the dramatic struggle of two rugged men who have fought their way up from the bottom to positions of eminence in their respective fields. Both love the same girl and meet at last as opposing leaders.

Ends Today

Shown for the last times today two great features brought out by popular request. Jean Harlow with Spencer Tracy in "Riff Raff" and as bill No. 2 Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," with Fredric March and Charles Laughton. Last complete show at 5.30.

Saturday and Monday were obviously impressed and it was definitely indicated that here is another picture from M.G.M. which will merit and win the descriptive adjective, "great."

The popular Metrotone news reel with its up-to-the-minute events will precede the feature attraction tonight, and Wednesday, for your perfect enjoyment, "Captains Courageous" from the beginning at 2.40, 7.10 and 9.25 p.m.

"To-Get-Her" Funny

The screen's new romantic team George Brent and lovely Ann Sothern and Louise are co-starred in the surprise comedy of the year "To-Get-Her," Peter B. Kyne's uproarious comedy featuring Charles Winninger of radio's "Show Boat" fame announced for presentation at the Belle Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

Gov't Lists $750 Reward for Slayers

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—To the $250 reward offered today by Sudbury Council for capture of the slayers of Sergt. Fred Davidson, the Ontario Government today added $750. As soon as Premier Hepburn heard of the police sergeant's death as a result of bullet wounds, he conferred with Attorney General Paul Leduc and a few minutes later the additional reward was announced.

2 YOUNG NEGROES ARE LYNCHED

Blamed For Stabbing of Tallahassee Police Constable

Tallahassee, Fla., July 20 (AP)—Assistant Chief of Police W. L. Frazier said two young negroes charged with the stabbing of a Tallahassee policeman were lynched by unidentified persons early today.

The two negroes were arrested Sunday in a charge of stabbing Policeman V. F. Kelly when he attempted to question them about breaking into a restaurant. Kelly, stabbed seven times, is in a serious condition in a hospital here.

The bodies were found in a ditch about 2½ miles from the State capitol.

Eugene Ward, a city policeman, said he heard the negroes were shot to death. The victims were listed at police headquarters as Richard Gewkins and Ernest Ponder, each about 18 years old.

GRAY HAS A LONG CRIMINAL RECORD

Wanted For Murder Has Spent 25 Years Out of 27 in Prison

Ottawa, July 20—(CP)—Vic Gray, who is wanted by the police for the shooting of Sergt. Davidson, of the Sudbury police, has a criminal record in Canada going back to 1910. Altogether Gray has served about 26 years of the past 27 in Kingston and St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiaries.

"MISS TORONTO"

Chosen from a group of 66 finalists in the Toronto police press beauty contest, Miss Billie Mallam, (above) 17-year-old Toronto softball player, was awarded the title of "Miss Toronto", a $200 cash prize and trips to Detroit, Hamilton and Atlantic City. Miss Mallam, who is said to resemble Myrna Loy, Hollywood motion picture actress, is shown above after she had received a bouquet of flowers and the ribbon of honor.

Under the name of Victor Saymonski he was sentenced to 10 years at Kingston, for robbery with violence, in 1910. He escaped from the penitentiary in August 1914, but was recaptured in October and two months later was sentenced to 10 more years for escape and for having committed grievous bodily harm. The sentence ran as an addition to the term he was then serving.

In 1926 he was released, but as North East in 1934 he was again in trouble and was given three years in Kingston for conspiracy.

He was taken from prison in 1930 at completion of his term, and time having been allowed off, to Campbell's Bay, Que., to stand a charge of arson. This time his sentence was another 10 years, in St. Vincent De Paul.

Gray was released on March 8 this year.

MURDER THEORY IS INVESTIGATED

Young Couple Found Dead in Their Home in New York

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Police pursuing a murder theory, awaited an autopsy today on the bodies of a young couple found dead in their home last night under strange circumstances.

The couple, George Chinery, 28, and his wife, Ida, 26, apparently had been dead for several days.

Chinery lay in a pool of blood in the bathroom. The body of his wife clad only in underwear, was in an adjoining bedroom. Her body said Police Captain James Smith, was covered "from head to foot" with bruises.

Police, mystified by the exact cause of death, investigated the possibility the couple had been poisoned.

$2.75 A DAY RATE SET

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 20 (CP)—Work at the mill of the McFadden Lumber Company will be resumed today when 280 men return to their jobs after striking for higher wages. Both sides of the dispute gave credit to Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests for mediation of the dispute.

The men asked for a $3 a day minimum wage but refused the company's proposal of a 50 cent increase, bringing the daily wage to $2.75.

A rake, a shovel, a baseball, a golf club — Montague has no preference when it comes to making the little white ball obey. Following the match Montague was arrested for New York police on a seven-year-old charge of participating in a road-house robbery.

TO INCREASE RELIEF

Ottawa, July 20 (CP)—Manitoba Government will increase its direct relief grant to Winnipeg as a temporary expedient, Premier John Bracken announced in a statement today. It will be continued until the Legislature meets when Winnipeg will be given "such powers as are necessary to enable it to meet its own share of relief in such manner as it chooses."

LORD TWEEDSMUIR READY FOR ARCTIC

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, July 20 (CP)—Lord Tweedsmuir and his party left here today for the start of his adventure into the Arctic, a journey on which he will make the longest flight ever made by the King's personal representative in Canada.

Eight members of the vice-regal party were aboard their private train as it started for Waterways, Alta., end of steel and head of the giant Waterway that will carry Lord Tweedsmuir and three of his staff to Aklavik, near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, to Herschel Island in the Beaufort Sea and across the Yukon Boundary.

Glad to leave behind the last vestige of formality and eager to see the Empire's northern outposts, the Governor General prepared to live his next three weeks in flannels and moccasins. His train will arrive at Waterways Wednesday and he and his companions will embark there aboard the S. B. Athabaska River, stern wheeler of the Hudson's Bay Company, the historic trading firm with which his eldest son and namesake, John Buchan, is employed at Dundee, Scotland.

At Waterways, the vice-regal party will be divided. Lord Tweedsmuir, A. S. Redfern, his secretary, Miss Redfern and Lieut. A. C. Rivers-Smith, his aide de camp, will embark aboard the Athabaska River. Lady Tweedsmuir, Hon. Alastair Buchan, her youngest son, Mrs. George Page, her living-waiting, and Capt. G. F. Campbell-Preston, aide de camp, will go by Victoria to stay at Government House.

From Waterways, Lord Tweedsmuir and his group will sail to Fort Fitzgerald, cross a portage to Fort Smith and descend the Mackenzie to Aklavik.

DOME PRODUCTION UP FOR 6 MONTHS

Net Profit is Estimated at $2.15 a Share For Half Year

Toronto, July 20.—(CP)—Dome Mines Limited reports bullion production of $3,700,385 in the six months ended June 30, compared with $3,386,110 in the corresponding half year of 1936. The plant milled 267,000 tons of ore in the period against 278,800 in the corresponding six months.
Development, operating and general costs totalled $1,432,066 and $356,000 was deducted for taxes. These items with a small deduction for exploration write off left an estimated operating profit of $1,909,784 compared with $1,788,473 in the corresponding six months of last year. An estimated net profit, after adding non-operating income, reached $1,913,776, equivalent to $2.15 a share on the issued capital. This compares with $2.08 for the same period of 1936.

Market Comment

Prosperity Ahead for the News-print Industry

The Canadian newsprint industry, largest manufacturing and export industry in the country, faces estimated producer of about 40 per-cent of the world's newsprint paper in the current year, stands poised for the greatest increase in revenues for 1936 when a contract price of $60 per ton will prevail for the first time, at least compared with $42.50 this year, $41 in 1936, and $40 in 1935 of the three preceding years. Steadily growing volume of output and demand since the low point in those factors was reached in 1932, has led to allocations among producers, Dec. Canadian mills in recent months. Figures released by the News-Print Service Bureau for June show a total of 1,000,000 tons, an all-time monthly record, exceeding the previous record established in the preceding month by 12,000 tons. The previous top was recorded in March when Canadian production totalling 301,110 tons.
There is also definite assurance that Canada's newsprint manufacturers will produce another new record this year, that is in excess of the 2,102,000 ton record established in 1929 by reason of the fact that the total for the first six months of the current year was 1,048,263 tons, against 1,049,263 tons in the corresponding period of 1929, an increase of approximately 19 percent. Greater significance is given to this forecast by the statistical evidence which reveals that in the years between 1933 and the present the Canadian industry produced 44.51 to 48.51 of total world output, while in the first half of the year compared with 51.44 to 55.69 per-cent in the latter six months of the calendar period.

From the manner in which the local list is acting it would not be out of order for a forward movement of good proportions developing. For just a few weeks the advances have been of a sporadic character, but in good sections, the recovery has been of appreciable proportions.

One thing that should be remembered in connection with the wheat crop (one of the smallest indicated yields in the history of the Dominion) is that the higher prices prevailing for the commodity may make up in large measure for the size, although an added stress will be placed on the Government's relief efforts.

WALL ST.

New York, July 20—(CP)—Rallying leadership rotated in today's stock market as new, notwithstanding profit-selling flurries, favored issues displayed as much 4a three or more points.
Motors and Utilities set the momentum, both issues came to "life" here and numerous specialties developed independently. At the same time steels and some other recent sprinters took a rest.
Activity was pronounced in the first hour, with blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changing hands. Momentum slackened later and extreme gains were reduced in many instances near the final lap. Transfers were at the rate of around 1,100,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Prices were unchanging higher on the Toronto Market in the fourth hour trading but in the final stage the prices eased off and a few industries were offered down and the close was heavy. Base metals were held to the upside and western oils were steady to slightly lower. Fanny Farmer featured the industrials, trading around 8,000 shares as a report that earnings were above factory and the close around 24 3-4 against a bid around 24.
Two utilities, Beauharnois and Montreal Power changed hands in considerable volume and they closed unchanged to slightly higher. Brazilian, Steel and Whitehall Electric B improved.
Western Canada Flour Mills closed higher while Dominion Tar and Chemicals products were generally fractions. Great Lakes Paper Pfd. added a point and Goodyear Common and Pfd. A showed firmness among the gallery.
Early losses were in the senior oils were replaced by minor gains by the finish. Imperial, International Petroleum, McColl and Pantepec. Calmont, Foothills, Home, Homestead, Supertest and West Dome recorded minor recessions.
Canadian Breweries added 5 cents.
Profit-taking in Leva Cap trimmed the price about 20 cents.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Bacon hog prices were unchanged at reporting markets today except London where declines of 25 and 35 cents were posted.
Liveweights—Brantford $8.75, Hull $8.75, Peterborough $8.90, Stratford $8.50, London $9.50.
Dressed weights—Barrie $13.15, Brantford $13.65, Hull $13.25, Stratford $13.70, Peterborough $13.10, London $13.55.

Silas Johnson, a Life Saver, Holding Cardinals Up in Race By Winning Four in 3 Days

by Defeating Dodgers as by Defeating Dodgers as Giants Lose

YANKEES WINGING

Gomez Turns in Fifth Straight With Henrich as Batting Star

By BILL BONI

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It must be cheering news to Manager Frankie Frisch that Jersey City (the) Dean is hastening to Boston to rejoin his fellow St. Louis Cardinals and help put them back on the right or pennant-winning track.

For the Dizzy one, if he sticks to his principles and precedents in doing the completely unexpected, wouldn't surprise anyone by using his sore leg to as the springboard to a new start in life.

Dean hasn't pitched a National League game since July 4 and hasn't pitched at all since the All-Star game in Washington. That was where he stuck his foot in the way of a line-drive and wound up limping to the clubhouse.

Pick Pitch pressed for pitching talent, has passed the Dean right arm on end. But, if he hasn't missed it much more, it's due to a recent discovery by the whip-cracker of the gashouse gang.

Johnson Saved Help

The discovery goes by the name of Silas Simmons Johnson, the Cards' current road trip, that discovery won four games, all in relief, in a 3-2 defeat of the Giants yesterday, while the Red Birds have lost three.

Johnson, who up to then had appeared in sixteen games for a record of one won and three lost, went in against the Pirates in the seventh inning and Monday and came out a winner. He started against the Pirds in the opener of a double-header Friday, went the route to win again, and came back for the finale of the night-cap to win his third in a row.

Yesterday he upped it all off by turning back the Giants on six hits, to win the Cards from the Giants in the four-game series short-cut in the Terrymen's 4-3 game behind the Cubs, who blasted Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-0.

Yesterday's Lineups

With Tex Carleton turning in a six-hit effort against the Dodgers and to keep the Cubs out front, and the Pirates seeing out the Phils, 8-5, with a run in the ninth, the Cards at least managed to keep up with the Cubs by winning their turn to action.

Meanwhile, the Yanks carried on their American League slaughter where Sophomore Joe Di Maggio was the batting star with a double. Freshman Tom Henrich took up the burden during the Yankee's 11-hit, four double and single furnished four runs in the Yankee 4-2 umph. Gehrig got by for Lefty Gomez.

The White Sox kept their place, six games behind the Yanks, by edging out the Red Sox, 6-5, and ridging out the Senators for an 8-4 triumph.

The Reds and Bees in the National and Athletics and Browns in the American League had open dates.

BELL-SARGENTS TAKE AAJMAAS

Eddie Schreiber Hurls Smart Game to Win 4 to 2

With the opposing pitchers in full command of the game and given stellar support by the leaders of respective outfielders, the Belleville-Sargents hung up their sixth victory, in as many starts, here last night when they downed the Aajmaas juniors 4 to 2 in a schedule City baseball tussle at Coleman Flats last night.

The fifteen hits garnered were split rather evenly with the "locals" not collecting the odd hit for eight safeties. Eddie Schreiber, who has been pitching some classy ball for Manager Chuck Barnett's squad, again was the winning pitcher, keeping young Bill Carson in a fine display of moundsmanship throughout the entire route. The game was featured by many sensational running catches by the respective corps of fielders of both teams however.

Schreiber got out five with Bill Carson was whiffing four. Schreiber materially assisted his own cause by driving in two of the markers in the fourth in the lead, which was never relinquished. Ken Wilkins at 2b was the only player on either team to collect a trio of safeties, his hits being spread well by the opposing batsmen.

NO CONTEST IN JUNIOR GAME

Kiwanis And Foxboro Unable to Complete Five Innings

It was "no contest" in the South Hastings League game at the Fair Grounds last evening at the Kiwanis-Foxboro battle Dr. Harry Blakely's Foxboro nine in a scoreless tie darkness intervening and ultimately saving the Kiwanis kids from defeat as the visitors scored an unearned run in the fifth inning, but darkness crept over the field as the Juniors came to bat for their half and the game was abruptly halted, all score reverting back to the four full innings at 0-0.

Keith Dyer Weeks, with, his portside slants, hooked up in a scoreless pitchers' duel with the veteran "Bud" Wilkins with the honors being about even. In four innings each pitcher struck out seven and walked two. The Junior kids out-hit the Foxboro rural smiths two hits to one, however.

Weeks gave a sterling display of hurling in the initial frame as the visitors filled the bases but, with the sticks, were promptly slated to bear down and struck out three to make the third an easy fly to field out. Wilkins complained of a lame arm and was in trouble in the third and fourth, but weathered the storm to strike out a third batter in each inning, finishing with a fine winning run perched on third base, the opposing fielders allowable at that bat in the quiches.

McQuade and Ronsky collected the two Kiwanis hits, while Guay visiting shortstop got the lone Foxboro hit as Weeks birled one full ball for the four innings played. The game was marked by no errors.

Rovers Down Cobourg Squad To Move into Second Place Tie

Score is 9 to 6 With Locals Coming Fast in Third Period

DIT CLAPPER REFEREE

Returning to their winning ways in the Central Ontario Lacrosse League the Belleville Flying-Rovers moved into a virtual tie for second place in the loop by downing the Cobourg "Orchards" 9 to 6 on the Summer Town last evening. Skipper Harry Moore introduced a pair of new faces to the lineup in Fox, slitting goalie, and Vail, recent addition from the R.C.A.F. and a reported tower of strength on the defence for the Trenton-Belleville district.

Battling at practically even terms the two periods, the Flying-Rovers unleashed a torrid third period attack, the netted them four goals, during which their offensive tactics proved sufficient defence to keep the homesters from the score sheet in that quarter. Lalonde, Rover centreman, and Rusnak, his defensive teammate, led the Rovers in scoring with three goals each. Dit Clapper refereed the game for the first counter on a pass from Hap Day and scored for the Rovers on Day getting goal number nine. Henderson, Cobourg centre was the big scoring threat for the homesters with three goals to his credit, followed Hagerman and Stewart being the single marksmen for the homesters to bring their count up to six.

Kicked Into Own Net

The initial counter of the game came early in the first period as Hagerman and Crawley combined nicely to have Brown Cobourg goalie make a sensational save, but Hagerman in clearing, kicked the ball into his own net to give Brownlow a scoring point. The initial period was marked with close checking and the Rovers had a 2-1 two-all tie. Play opened with torrid attacks being launched by both goals in the second period and many free throws were awarded with the referee busy counting goals, while the home team was credited with scoreless ice periods. In this period Brown's Cobourg goalie was banished for entering into the melee and getting his stick in the home team gave a perfect display of the proper method of stopping the play during a major penalty with the result that Cobourg could not gain possession for a score. An accident occurred early in the last frame as a terrific shot from Tompkins' stick lowered Jerry Ward, Rover defenceman, but goals being knocked here do cease by the bow, but after receiving first aid he returned to his duties. Despite the fact the "Orchardists" outscored the Rovers two to one in the last period, the onslaught launched by the Rovers in the former period proved sufficient to win. Some splendid stick-handling was displayed by the Rovers in their systematic attack in the third period.

The outstanding players for the Belleville squad were Rusnak and Vail on the defence; Fox in the nets; Tompkins and Day while for the homesters Hagerman, Stewart, Conville, and Brown looked the best. The next game scheduled for the Flying-Rovers is at Peterboro on Friday night, Dit Clapper, of National Hockey League fame, was one of the referees of the game.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Fox; defence, Rusnak and Vail; rover, Pringle; centre, Lalonde; wings, Day and Tompkins; subs, Clay, Tache, Anderson and Robinson.

Cobourg—Goal, Brown; defence, H. Morford, F. Morford; centre, Henderson; homes, Taylor and Conatilis; rover, Hagerman; subs, Boyce, Stewart, Crawley, Young and Johnson.

DELORO LEADS SOCCER GROUP

Defeat C.C.F. of Peterboro 3 to 2 to Clinch Group Leadership

Marmora, July 20—The lead secured by Deloro in the Peterborough and District Football League was preserved by the Smeltery on Saturday afternoon as they comfortably beat the C.C.F. by 3-2. The homesters facing a weakened Peterborough team were more superior in play than the score indicates and fully justified their win. The smeltery became aggressive at the start and were favoured in playing with the wind. Bradley, Deloro's Hart in turn tried to open the score for Deloro but were unsuccessful. A little too good, Bradley, however, baffled the goalie in heading in at the ball travelled across the goal mouth from the rest of J. Hart who received Brown's centre kick. This brought retaliatory movements from the Politicians and Smelt carried the ball down to the goal mouth of Townson to clear. W. Hart obtaining possession, shot, but Smelt, who had the misfortune of witnessing a good shot caroom off a defender's foot to the left of goal by a few inches. The latter was shortly afterwards to score the further lead luck, as in connecting with a pass from his brother, Smelt shot from out in trick outside of the bar post, when the visiting goalie was not in position to field the ball and when he then took up the offensive for the Politicians.

The latter passed to Dyer who unsuccessfully tested O'Neil. Deloro then started play for the second and Brown directed a hot shot at Turnbull, who was not overworked by in saving. Following an consing scrimmage, Brooks gained possession and centred to J. Hart who passed to Bradley for that player's score with a low shot. Until Mr. Turkington no chance, C.C.F. who were playing with the pluck that has characterized their displays throughout the season, returned to the attack to meet with success. Castle sent in a stiff shot from the 18 yard line, O'Neil threw himself at the ball and in clearing gave Smelt possession. The C.C.F. forward did the trick for with a low drive. Half-time arrived with Deloro leading by two goals to one. Not in expectation of play the visitors tried hard for the equalizing goal but Townson and Turkington, however, covered up nicely. Dyer and Thorne, playing good combination, tried the ball towards the Deloro net but Smelt, in placing himself out-side, nullified the effort. The equalizing goal was not long delayed, Castle picked up a pass from the Deloro bar, As the ball bounced to W. Hart, that player transferred to centre where Bradley tossed the wheel to J. Hart. What would have been a score was averted by Townson who injure the ball over the cross bar. C.C.F. then resorted to long range shooting to find O'Neil equal to the task. Next ball, W. Hart beat Mayette and sent over a high shot which Townson cleared. Smith sent in a shot which Mayette failed to locate. The C.C.F. side, left got in a good drive which Turkington failed to fist out. This was the last effort of the visitors though both teams tried hard to find the net and to their credit. Final score was Deloro 3: C.C.F. 2.

C.C.F. team: Goal, Turkington; backs, Castle, Mayette; halves, Lawrence, Mayette; centre, Castle; forwards, Dyer, Brooks, Thorne, Smelt; subs, Clapham.

Deloro team: Goal, C. O'Neil; defence, W. Townson, D. Cornish; half backs, P. Gray, S. Smith, J. Townson; forwards, W. Hart, Bradley, J. Hart, W. Brown, J. Brooks.

Referee: W. Jones, Peterborough.

Letter to hand from George Pepper, who had gone up to London Town and if we were passing out information from the bureau, we'd advise Mr. Pepper's return to Prospect to stay right in old Marzie Rowland. George is visiting with Eric Cuttiy, former Napanee ace rider, who is classed as one of the best dirt track riders in the Old Country. Cuttiy rides in competition for about eight months in the year, but during the winter months stays with one of the better orchestras in greater London. According to George there are six big dirt tracks in London proper, with racing at one of the tracks every night in the week. Crowds of 25 to 40 thousand take in those races.

At the time of writing George had been approached by some of the officials and was negotiating with them relative to a racing contract. Although definite figures were not available, we understand he has an offer to return to England and race next summer as a professional with a promise of $2,000 a week and all the minimum wage he'll receive. If he has many potatoes George should never consider racing on dirt tracks in Canada, but with Canadian championship motorcycle events being held, we are planning to hold the race outside of Belleville.

With the noted Dit Clapper at Boston and N.H.L. fame as the chief whistle-blower, the Belleville Rovers returned to their winning ways to down the Cobourg "Orchards" by 9 to 6 last evening in the Summer Town popular, and the Rovers are becoming a big time hockey realm, that their services are being sought after by the Cobourg district town's forthcoming centennial and old boys' red onion carnival next summer next week. Skipper Harry Moore introduced a couple of new players last night in Fox, fitting goalie, and Vail a newcomer to the ranks of the Flying-Rovers from Trenton and Belleville district. He is a virtual tie with Oshawa for the second spot in the league ladder, the "Labours" having a meeting of 4-4, while the Rovers have won 3 and lost four.

The next encounter of Oshawa-Napanee in the Coronation Bisley shoot in England this year was Lieut. C. B. Mitchell, Hamilton, Ont., Canada, who took three of the major prizes in the event. Incidentally Lieut. Mitchell was a school chum of S. J. "Jerry" Blain, former manager of the Capitol theatre during their little red school house days in the Ambitious City of Hamilton.

One of the fastest played softball games of the current season resulted when Eddie Schrieder bested Bill Carson in a pitching duel and the Belleville-Sargents won over the Aajmaa Juniors 4-3 last evening. It was the sixth victory, in seven games, for the "locomen," who are the most feared team in local softball circles these days, our operator No. 23 informs us. Taking time for three catches made by the outfielders featured Bell-Sargent's game. Two games are on the slate for Wednesday night, one at Coleman Flats and the other at Point Anne.

The Girl Who Was Afraid

By Edith Leskett Hosmer
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service

Drusilla Reilly was afraid of life, though she never admitted it even to herself except in moments of deep reflection. She feared that her lack of courage would cause her to fail miserably in a critical moment. You see, one of her great-granduncles had been a deserter in the Civil war, and though the letters had done such noble deeds that that dishonor had been lived down and almost forgotten, Drusilla herself never quite forgot the wretched story.

Now, everyone agreed that Drusilla was a lovely girl, and most of all John Hallon. That was what worried Drusilla—having John, a returned war hero, think her so wonderful when she herself was so afraid to be a silly coward.

"You don't know the real me," she had parried when he had asked her to marry him. But that had made him smile fondly at her and urge her the more. She was thinking of all these things now as she entered the old farmhouse which was her home.

"Here she is to speak for herself, Mrs. Hunt," her mother said.

"Well, it's a lot to ask you, Drusilla," began Mrs. Hunt, the neighbor. "But, you see, my husband's father is very ill and we cannot get a nurse if we want to see him. Of course, it's impossible to take the children, and never the only one I'd feel safe to leave them with—" begged the woman.

It was not until the children had quieted down for the night that she noticed how still the house was, how ghastly the shadows seemed, and how comforting the lights. She did little needless tasks to occupy her mind, then she slipped upstairs to look at the children. Jim wanted her to tell about James wanted a drink, and the baby wailed to be taken up. Irresistibly drawn to the cuddly little babe, she gathered him up in her arms and, humming softly, went down the stairs.

As she reached the bottom step and turned to go into the living room, she became aware of a presence, a feeling that she was not alone. Her heart pounded violently, her scrotum her. And then she saw seated at the table a strange figure. Though the object wore the clothes of a man, it did not appear to be quite human. Yes, it looked almost as if it were part man and part beast. Its head and face were covered with a growth of unkempt hair and its eyes moved wildly about. Drusilla wanted to scream, but her throat was paralyzed with fright.

"Come in, girl," the thing commanded.

She wanted to run, to drop the baby, her thought but for herself, but she felt a tiny hand tighten its grasp on her finger, and suddenly she, herself, seemed no longer important.

"What can I do for you?" she asked in a voice remarkably natural.

"I can get me supper and clothes," barked the stranger.

"Why, of course," she responded, "but let me first put the baby to bed."

"No," bellowed the caller, with evident suspicion. "Put the brat on the sofa there."

Without protesting further, she did as he commanded, then hurried to the pantry. He dogged her steps, and with eyes followed her every movement until at last she placed the food before him. She quivered to watch him eat, and trembled every time he reached for the bluntbladed knife she had given him.

Suddenly he arose, and going over to the sofa, bent over the baby and put his gnarled hands about its tiny throat.

Drusilla rushed to him. She would have fought, though against his brute strength it would have been a futile battle. It was brain, not brawn, that much with she realized.

"Don't waken the baby," was all she said to "Let's go upstairs for clothes for you."

It seemed black hours before he released his hold on the infant, who only smiled in his sleep. Then the girl and her visitor went up the stairs.

"If you'll step into that closet and pick out what you want," invited the girl. Her love, so natural, took the man off his guard, so that in his hasty eagerness the cunning one forgot his suspicions.

Drusilla's mind had planned every afterward, and with a bang the closet door closed, and she turned the key in the lock. There was not a moment to lose, for the door was already quivering against the rage of the madman, and she rushed to the telephone to summon help.

It was not until the wanderer had been escorted back to the hospital and John had come that Drusilla found time to give way to tears.

"I was so afraid at first. Why, it was only when I forgot myself that I seemed to get the courage to go on," she explained, half to herself.

"Brave little one", murmured John fondly, "that's all the courage is—forgetting one's self."

The baby in Drusilla's arms clung tightly to her clothes, a symbol of all the trusts that might come to her. But Drusilla only smiled and opened her eyes very wide, as if she wanted to meet its face to face. She was no longer afraid of anything!

SERGT. DAVIDSON SUDBURY, DIES

Fired on Nine Days Ago by Gunmen Now Wanted For Murder

Sudbury, Ont., July 20 (CP)—Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury police force, fired on nine days ago by a gunman, died today in hospital.

Warrants for the arrests of the men wanted in connection with the shooting will be withdrawn and murder warrants will be issued, police said.

Davidson was shot when he came upon two men, apparently changing license plates on their automobile. Later he identified a photograph of Victor Gray as one of the pair and district residents said they had seen a man identified as Tom Ponamarenko with Gray before and after the shooting.

An intensive manhunt, directed by provincial officers and joined in by city police, business and special constables, was organized after word of the shooting reached here. No sign of Ponamarenko or Gray has been seen in a week and police believe they are in hiding in the district.

Officials believe there is a possibility the same two may have been the gunmen who held up Ernest Dotson refreshment booth proprietor, near Powassan Sunday. Dotson received a superficial flesh wound when he resisted the men.

Davidson's body was riddled by nine shots and his condition gradually has grown worse. When his condition began to drop rapidly yesterday little hope was held for his recovery.

Blood Transfusion.

Six fellow officers were at Davidson's bedside when he died. Last night Reno Maestro of the city fire department gave him a blood transfusion and others volunteered during the night to donate blood.

City council posted a $250 reward for information leading to the apprehension of Gray and Ponamarenko last night and it is believed other sources will add to the amount.

Born in Wales, Davidson was a soccer player before coming to this country and an enthusiastic supporter of the game here. He was an accomplished pianist and vocalist.

When he arrived in Canada, Davidson joined the Canadian Pacific Railway staff at the Quebec wharf, then resigned to join the Sudbury police department.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Brandenton Fla., July 20 (AP)—H. E. Mower, Brandenton grocer objects to the persistent coming of the snake as the villain in fiction and says his 12-foot boa constrictor was the hero of a real life crime story.

Mower said thieves pried open a rear window of his store last night and entered the building. They left in a hurry without loot and even forgot the crowbar they used to open the window.

Mower says he is convinced the baleful glance of the serpent's eyes in a flashlight beam—with perhaps a hiss thrown in—caused the flight.

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Agriculture Department women-folks said today a sharp increase in sales of "honey blend" the first part of this year indicating the United States public had more money to spend. They reported sales of furs, mechanical refrigerators, figures, bridal preparations, cameras and lenses, and theatre admissions in the first five months of 1937 ranged from 10 to 75 per cent ahead of the same 1936 period.

Los Angeles, July 20 (CP)—Asked if he could positively identify Harry Gear, in court on a forgery charge, as the culprit, witness Harry Greenberg replied: "I can't tell definitely unless he opens his shirt at the neck. The man who forged the cheque had lots of hair on his chest.

Gear opened his shirt, bared his chest. It was as smooth as an onion.

"Case dismissed," said the court.

Kitchener, Ont., July 20 (CP)—Not many years now young men were trekking west in droves on "harvest excursions" today there seems to be a different trend and Western Canada farm youths are leaving home to find work. Recently two Saskatchewan men, wrote to Kitchener for farm jobs and it is likely they will be accommodated somewhere in the district.

Saskatoon, July 20 (CP)—Damage by in the wake today of a storm of cyclonic proportions that hit that Saskatoon district late yesterday and brought duet, hail and rain.

Damage estimated at $500 was caused to the roof and one side of the hangar at the Saskatoon airport. Air farm buildings except the house and main barn were destroyed on the farm of Tom Lavell, 13 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

DEFENDING PEIPING AGAINST INVASION OF JAPANESE ARMIES

Ready to hold ancient Peiping against the menace of advancing Japanese hordes, this machine-gun squad of China's northern army, is typical of the experienced forces which have been fighting intermittently with Jap patrols for some weeks, precipitating the threatening invasion of Hopei province by a full-fledged army, under the banner of the Rising Sun. And don't forget that though most people view the Chinese forces as experts with little else than their double-edged swords, gunpowder was a common-place in China before most of the world was born. And these warriors seem to know how to use it in their modern weapon.

ACCEPTS RESPONSIBILITY FOR FIRING SHOT

Fires to Protect Mother From Father's Violence Student Tells the Police

Says He Warned Parent Not to Hurt His Mother Again

NO CHARGE LAID

Slain Man is Pensioned Boer And Great War Veteran

Fort Coquitlam, B.C., July 21.—(CP)—British Columbia police today probed the shooting here of 66-year-old Samuel Lamont Metcalf while the son who, officers said, accepted responsibility for firing the fatal bullet was held at Vancouver Juvenile Detention home.

Constable R. T. Davies, officer commanding Fort Coquitlam detachment of the Provincial Police force, said the lad, a 16-year-old high-school student, told him yesterday he loaded a .32 calibre rifle and fired to protect his mother from his father's violence.

Davies said no charge had been laid against the lad who was being held for the Juvenile Court, pending instructions from the British Columbia Attorney-General's Department.

As Provincial Police yesterday investigated the shooting, the boy, cheeped was a few feet from the body of his grey-haired father.

Cut Some Wood

"I'll cut some stove-wood for my mother," Davies said the lad told him. "I'll look like I wouldn't be here for a couple of days."

That was scarcely an hour, police said, after he had quietly loaded the rifle, pointed it at his father, and warned the pensioned Boer War and Great War veteran:

"If you hurt my mother again, I'll shoot you."

Police said they had been told by both the boy and his mother that Metcalf grabbed his wife by the throat a moment later.

The boy fired but a single shot.

Meantime, Constable Davies was on his way to the small "stump-ranch" home where the shooting in the family home. He had been summoned by SIGNAL, the boy's fifteen-year-old daughter.

He said he arrived to find the gray-haired veteran, former Ontario resident (town unknown) lying by doorway to the shack, his wife and children cowering inside, not knowing whether their husband and father was dead or alive.

Harvests are Calling But Shelters Filled

Simcoe, Ont., July 7.—(CP)—Back in town again last night after he had been found guilty of a vagrancy charge last Saturday and ordered to get out of town and stay out, Tony Chiegira, Hamilton, reappeared in court today and was sentenced to ten days in jail.

Nine vagrants rounded up by the town police in four cars, cars which vacant for last night were given suspended sentence and told to leave town.

While farmers and tobacconists are unable to get sufficient men to harvest their crops there are still plenty of homeless men living put up in the Simcoe police lockup each night. Last night there were 14. The lodging house can only hold more than 6,000 men within the next few weeks and will pay $3 a day and board.

LOTTERY OPPOSED TO MASON'S IDEAL

Masons Advised to Avoid Gambling And Lotteries

Ottawa, July 21.—(CP)—Opposition to Masons participating in lotteries, particularly those operated allegedly for Masonic purposes, was voiced today by Grand Master Alexander J. Anderson, Toronto, of the Grand Lodge A.F. and A.M., of Canada in the Province of Ontario at the opening of the 62nd annual communication.

Requests had reached him for permission to operate lotteries for Masonic purposes, he said, but he had always refused.

"Gambling and lotteries are contrary to our law," he said. "As Masons, it is our duty to show by our lives a respect for and upholding the law of our own country and that of the country which affords us protection whatever we may be.

Subject to Masonic Laws

"All Masons, whether only craft Masons or members of orders affiliated with our Grand Lodge are subject to our constitution and laws.

"I trust that this reference in my address to you may be heeded by those who have participated or are engaged in lotteries, drawings and games of chance, especially those operating allegedly for Masonic purposes, and that they will in future refrain from such participation for the good name of Freemasonry.

"If however, it is found that such practices continue," Mr. Anderson added, "I feel that Grand Lodge in its own interests, for the protection of its principles, should legislate by making the participation in these practices Masonic offences and prescribing the penalties for the infraction thereof."

No Bogus Currency Is Complained of By City Merchants

Brampton, Ont., July 21 (CP)—Counterfeiting of United States currency by Brampton businessmen when they are received from tourists was denied today by a number of local heads of businesses here. The merchants believed the tourists were victims of counterfeiters and not the passers, when

"I have not heard of a single case of counterfeit American money being passed in Brampton," Police Chief Andrew Herbes said. "If there is any bogus money being passed here, it has not been reported to me."

When interviewed by The Ontario intelligencer today, Mr. J. Hennessy, president of the Belleville Board of Merchants' Association, stated he had received no complaints from local merchants regarding the appearance of counterfeit or bogus American currency in Belleville of late.

"For the greater part the American currency we have received have been bills of the one dollar denomination," he said. "We have not been confronted with many large American denomination bills thus far this season," added Mr. Hennessy.

"We have not received any complaints from local merchants regarding counterfeit American currency of any description," was the reply given to a similar question by Chief Chief Ketch, Belleville Police Department, today.

German U-Boat Not Halted by British Ship

British Destroyer Dropped Charge to Signal British Submarine

STATEMENT GIVEN

German Boat Continued Without Incident Says Report

London, July 21 (AP)—The admiralty announced today that a practice charge dropped by the destroyer Wolfhound to signal a British submarine off Portland, while a German U-boat passed nearby, was to warn the German boat had been halted.

The admiralty statement, based on information received from the commander of the Wolfhound, declared her to the surface, identified the commander and then permitted her to proceed.

Version Given.

The admiralty denied this and gave this version of the incident:

The Wolfhound was engaged in exercises off the naval base. She dropped a practice charge to signal a British submarine to come to the surface. The German U-27 at the time was proceeding on a passage past Portland. She continued without incidence or in any way becoming involved with the British manoeuvres.

The Press Association withdrew its version in view of the admiralty announcement.

Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, answered the first incident in the House of Commons this afternoon.

"The German submarine was on the surface, outside territorial waters in the vicinity of Portland, when she had a perfect right to be. The depth charge which was fired in connection with the British submarine had no connection whatever with the German submarine."

DICTATORSHIPS FROWNED UPON BY FREEMASONS

Orderly Processes Not Dictatorship The Way of Correction

HOPE IN FUTURE

Grand Master Anderson Points to State of Italy, Russia and Germany

Ottawa, July 21 (CP)—Abuses of civilization should be corrected by orderly processes, not by the institution of autocracies, Grand Master A. J. Anderson, Toronto, of the Grand Lodge A.F. and A.M. of Canada in the Province of Ontario said today in addressing the meeting of the Grand Lodge here.

"Dictatorship or any system that has as its tendency or its purpose the restriction of the individual is not the means of correction," he said.

"Activities subversive of freedom and democracy, such as Communism, Fascism, Nazism do not accord with the ideas of liberty and equality. A large part of the world is now ruled by dictators under one form or another of autocracy.

Masonry and Civilization.

"On every side, even in democratic countries, it looks as if Masonry and civilization itself were being challenged by these issues and are facing a crisis.

"The present seems to be the winter time of liberty of the individual and constitutional liberty, shorn of power autocratically in the state are in their place.

"We only need look at what has taken place in Russia, Germany and Italy and what is taking place in Spain. Masonry, which is my immediate concern to discuss, has been prohibited or banned as Masonry in all these countries where freedom or liberty as you and I know and enjoy it is being denied to the individual citizen.

Masonry Suffered.

Mr. Anderson traced the history of the past few years in Germany, Italy and Russia, and the deliberate development of autocracy had been associated with the suppression of Masonry.

The Spanish government is hostile to Masonry, he said, because the latter owing allegiance to the Vatican is also very anti-Masonic. "So-called fight for liberty in Spain means nothing as far as Freemasonry was concerned.

"If the Loyalists win," he said, "Masonry will be suppressed. If Franco and Nazism are fevers and evil pus germs, Liberty and Democracy will bloom again and those new and subversive thoughts and activities shall be forgotten."

AIR SERVICE PILOT HURT

FAREWELLS TAKE TIME

London, July 21.—(AP) — The British Women's Hockey Club Tennis team, consisting of Kay Stammers, Mary Hardwick, Freda James, Joan Ingram, Evelyn Dearman and Margot Lumb, sailed for Calais and the United States today aboard the Queen Mary.

Their farewells at Waterloo station took so long that pretty Miss Stammers, 19, was lifted onto the last train at the last moment.

Deep-Seated Differences Cause of Spanish Deadlock

Princess Margaret Rose's Charms Set to Music for Strings and Harp

London, July 21 (CP)—Charms of Princess Margaret Rose have been set to music in a suite for strings and harp composed by Dennis Stoll, son of Sir Oswald Stoll, motion picture theatre owner.

"I have been working at the compilation for months," said Stoll, "and when it was finished I wrote asking for the privilege of dedicating it to the youngest princess.

"Although there is a rule against such dedications, the queen gave me permission and consented to accept a bound copy for her."

The suite in five movements: "To her hands in prayer", "To her feet in the dance", "To her heart in beauty" and "To her infinite variety."

DETROIT WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH

Mrs. Marie Lacasse Victim When Cars Collide on Curve

Kirkland Lake, Ont., July 21 (CP) —Mrs. Marie Lacasse of Detroit was killed and Mrs. Eva Martin of North Bay and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McDowell of Timmins injured in an auto accident ten miles north of Swastika on the Ferguson highway about 9 o'clock last evening.

Nap Lacasse, (9 Mount Joy street) Timmins, father-in-law of Mrs. Lacasse, was driver of one of the cars in the accident.

Lacasse was driving north towards Timmins when the accident occurred, colliding with a car driven by a Mr. (initial unavailable) McDowell, Timmins, on a slight curve in the main highway.

A third car, driven by P. C. Hanna of Otawa, driving south behind the McDowell car, crashed into the wreckage and was also in the crash. He was blinded by a cloud of dust that arose as the McDowell and Lacasse cars hit. Hanna saw the collision in the wreckage and then the dust cloud and applied his brakes and his car merely slid into the wrecked cars.

STATE FUNERAL HONORS MARCONI

Italy's Leading Men Pay Tribute to Great Inventor Genius

Rome, July 21 (AP)—Italy paid tribute to Guglielmo Marconi today in a state funeral which would have made him proud.

Leading men of the nation walked through black-draped streets behind the flag-laden coffin in which reposed the body of the genius who invented wireless telegraphy.

Crowds lined the streets along the route from the Royal Palace to the Royal Academy, where the inventor's body lay in state, to services in the Church of the Holy Angels.

Premier Mussolini awaited the procession at the church with the grief-stricken Marchesa, who earlier had received Archbishop Cicognani, the heir of her world-famous husband.

A white-surpliced priest, Father Paolo Rappi, who yesterday administered the last Sacrament to the dying inventor, followed the procession's initial military escort.

Behind him came the carved hearse, drawn by six black horses. On either side marched 36 attendants of the Royal Academy.

AGENT FOR PREMIER

Edmonton, July 21.—(CP)—Acting as agent for Premier Mackenzie Hepburn of Ontario, S. G. Carlyle, Dominion Fuel Controller, commissioner who was supernaumarized May 7, was en route today to South Cheverie, Hants County, Nova Scotia, Districts to purchase cattle for the Premier's farm, it was learned here. Carlyle left on the buying trip at the request of Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture who formerly held a similar post in Alberta. Three carloads of dairy cattle and two carloads of beef cattle will be purchased.

YOUTH IS MISSING

Brantford, Ont., July 21.—(CP) —Missing from home since Monday, Ralph Greentree, 19, is being sought by police. He said he was going fishing but took no fishing tackle with him, a police report said. Police questioned the person with whom he said he was going fishing and were told Greentree had not been seen.

GOLFERS UPHOLD SPORTSMANSHIP OF BRITISH RACE

U. S. Ryder Cup Team's Charges Rouse Sharp Retort

SPECTATOR ACCUSED

British Players Crack Hard at Visiting Critics

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The United States Ryder Cup golf team has returned from their conquest of the British Isles with their challenge for the British open title were on record today as decidedly at odds with their vanquished hosts and weather.

Ralph Guldahl, the American open champion, was the most outspoken. Most bitingly in the "tight little Isle" when the team returned yesterday.

"As far as I'm concerned I wouldn't swap a Texas cactus plant for the whole of England," the burly Norwegian bawled. "I think all the British golfers had traps in the centre of the fairway 220 yards out that would catch a perfect shot. We had to shoot to the right of them."

The thoroughly riled Ralph said he didn't care for the British sportsmanship he witnessed in the Ryder Cup matches.

Several other members of the team claimed gallerytes at those matches attempted to kick shots of the Britons closer to the pin, while, conversely, trying to make Americans' lies more difficult.

London, July 21 (AP)—British golfing honored his condition on a day after reading reports of the United States Ryder Cup team who had accused gallerytes of unsportsmanlike behavior at Carnoustie and Southport.

Henry Cotton, who whipped the American hope for the British Open title, said he was "astounded."

"I'm disgusting," said Alf Padgham.

Middlesex 18 was Al Perry over Ed Dudley's allegation that a spectator kicked Al's ball closer to a hole.

"It's a definite lie" he exploded. "That ball is a ripe 'back of the green and bounced back."

J. Lacey who was beaten by Henry Cotton in the British Open singles cracked hard at Ralph Guldahl, American open champion who was the bitterest of the American critics. Lacey was called "poor British sportsmanship".

"Perhaps it would be a good idea if I left golf," the stricken Lacey remarked. "I thought I had overcome my difficulties especially when things were going well."

WOMAN LEASES SECOND PAPER

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—The Washington Herald said that Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, editor and publisher, has leased the Washington Times from William Randolph Hearst for five years.

Mrs. Patterson leased the Herald last April. It is a morning paper and the Times is published in the afternoon.

8TH ARMY WITHDRAWS

Tientsin, July 21 (AP)— North China, 1937, is now the scene of the majority of its troops from the Manchukuo zone, 10 miles west of Peiping, under the official guard of Japanese infantry. The withdrawal was evacuation in accordance with a new agreement to which Japan and China have dedicated upon withdrawal of Japanese troops from China.

The 14,000 Japanese troops in the area, however, held to their positions.

Rogers Hornsby Browns' Manager Relieved of Duty

St. Louis, July 21 (AP)—Donald T. Barnes, president of the St. Louis Browns, today announced that Manager Rogers Hornsby had been relieved of his duties, effective today.

Barnes said the action was "taken in the good of the Browns".

The president of the American League Baseball Club said Hornsby's contract, which ran through the 1938 season, was so written it could be "broken at the discretion of the club".

Jim Bottomley, coach and veteran first baseman, was named acting manager.

Hornsby could not be immediately reached for comment.

The former National League second baseman, who led the circuit in hitting for seven consecutive seasons, became manager of the Browns in 1933, succeeding Wade Killifer. He has had only mediocre success with the team.

High Hopes Held.

High hopes had been held for this year's squad, under the imperious if new owners, and by Barnes, but the team has played poorly all season. It is in seventh place, having won 25 games and lost 53 for an average of .321.

Called the "greatest right-handed hitter of modern times", Hornsby as a player set a National League batting mark of .4235 in 1924, was named most valuable player in the National League record for home runs in 1922 and 1925.

Hornsby first broke into organized baseball with Dallas of the Texas League in 1914. That year he was sold to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League for the reported sum of $500.

Made Managed Cards.

Eleven years later, after he had established a permanent place in baseball's Hall of Fame by his brilliant accomplishments, Hornsby was appointed manager of the Cardinals. The next year, 1926, he brought St. Louis its first championship.

The Cardinal dynasty was started after that season when the "Rajah" was traded to New York Giants of baseball, the Times said: "This dispute on a point of procedure was clearly suggestive of deeper differences."

The representatives tended to adopt extreme attitudes which precluded the possibility of a compromise," the Conservative Morning Post said.

Question of Recognition

"Thus Maisky (Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky) as one moment declared Russia would only consent to the question of belligerents rights when the last foreign combatant had been withdrawn from Spain.

"Italy and Germany, on the other hand, made it clear that the withdrawal of volunteers was a matter to which they attached much less importance than the complete control along the Pyrenees frontier and the restoration of a state of belligerency."

"Germany and Italy deaf to appeal for cooperation," said the Liberal Daily Chronicle's headline over an article by its expert foreign affairs, Vernon Bartlett.

"Britain has stood apart from time waiting, is pretty clear," said the Daily Herald, Labor organ. "He wanted to discuss recognition before withdrawal."

Thunderstorms, why several? These occur rather rarely in this country consideres as a whole. They average only about 22 per year for a locality, but in the south Atlantic states are more frequent than in others. Likewise, where the whole world is considered there are about 15,000,000 per year or 44,000 per day. It is interesting to consider what this means in terms of lightning flashes. It has been calculated that there are about 100 lightning flashes over the whole earth every second. All flashes, however, do not reach the ground; many exchange themselves mid cloud and earth.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, July 21—(CP)—Fresher is high over the lower Mackenzie Valley and the region of the Great Lakes eastward across the Maritime provinces to Newfoundland and relatively low pressure over the south Atlantic states. A trough of low pressure extends from Hudson Bay southwestward across James Bay to northwestern Ontario. Light showers have occurred in the Lake Superior region and northern Alberta and in the extreme east of the Dominion the weather has been fair. It has been warm to hot generally throughout the country.

Lake Superior — Moderate variable winds mostly fair and warm today and Thursday probably light scattered showers.

Manitoba—Fair and warm. Thursday partly cloudy and warm with local showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta — Partly cloudy today and Thursday and continued warm.

Gas Shortage Drives Down Akron C. Plane on Reservation

AIRMEN UNHURT

Shannonville, July 21 (Special)—The forced landing of an American small all-weather plane No. MC15733 was made on the Mohawk Reservation today at noon by Bob Newman and Chief Dixon of Akron, Ohio. The pilot escaped a large boulder by six feet to make a safe landing, enforced by gas shortage. The flight had come from Huntsville, Ontario.

FIRE RAGES OFF SUIT

LONDON, Ont., July 21.—(CP)— A fire which swept eight acres of wheat in Lobo Township a year ago was the basis of a small filed today in Supreme Court offices against Canadian National Railway.

Lee Middaugh, formerly of Lobo and now of London, claims the fire on his farm was started by sparks from a C.N.R. locomotive. He said not only was $400 of wheat lost, but fences and other crops had come from Huntsville, Ontario.

PLAN OF BRITAIN STANDS OR FALLS AS WHOLE—EDEN

British Vessel Molton Still Held By Rebels

SYSTEMATIC OBJECTION

Chance of Compromise Prejudiced by Extreme Attitudes

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 21.—(CP) Cable-weary Secretary Eden submitted to the cabinet this morning the new deadline set over Great Britain's plan for Spain.

The position of the British government is that the plan stands or falls as a whole. Amendments in detail there may be. But anything which destroys its balanced compromise cannot be accepted.

Ship is Still Held

General Franco, the Spanish insurgent leader, has not yet replied to the British demand for release of the British ship Molton. British vice-consul at Corunna, who has visited the insurgent-held port of Ferrol, reports that the master and crew of the Candleston Castle, also held there, are well and are receiving Franco's cruisers, were receiving Franco's cruisers.

The deadlock was created by Italian resistance to withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain before belligerency rights are granted both sides in the civil war.

Newspapers Gloomy

Liberal and Labor newspapers declared that systematic objection by powers would frustrate the plan—which they accepted in principle last week. Others remind of yesterday's session of the 27-nation "hands off Spain" committee. The press generally was gloomy. Referring to Italian ambassador Dino Grandi's statement that the withdrawal of volunteers, the Times said: "This dispute on a point of procedure was clearly suggestive of deeper differences."

The representatives tended to adopt extreme attitudes which precluded the possibility of a compromise," the Conservative Morning Post said.

Question of Recognition

"Thus Maisky (Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky) as one moment declared Russia would only consent to the question of belligerents rights when the last foreign combatant had been withdrawn from Spain.

"Italy and Germany, on the other hand, made it clear that the withdrawal of volunteers was a matter to which they attached much less importance than the complete control along the Pyrenees frontier and the restoration of a state of belligerency."

"Germany and Italy deaf to appeal for cooperation," said the Liberal Daily Chronicle's headline over an article by its expert foreign affairs, Vernon Bartlett.

"Britain has stood apart from time waiting, is pretty clear," said the Daily Herald, Labor organ. "He wanted to discuss recognition before withdrawal."

FARMER DIES FROM WOUND

Wife Tells Police She Heard Shot When Husband Entered Field

Quebec, July 21 (CP)—Napoleon Roy died from a bullet wound today at St. Jean Chrysostome, Levis county village opposite Quebec on the south side of the St. Lawrence River and his brother-in-law was under arrest as provincial Police here. He is being held for questioning.

Police interrogated the shooting occurring when Napoleon went into the field where his brother-in-law wandered into his brother's fields. Accompanied by his wife, Napoleon had left his field by the roadside. Napoleon had walked on his brother's property.

Mrs. Cote said her husband had just entered the field when she heard the sound of a shot. Running to the scene she found her husband shot.

No Danger of European War Thinks the Hon. R. B. Bennett Opposition Leader, Arriving in Canada, Silent on Plans

IN GOOD SPIRIT

Aboard S.S. Montcalm, July 21 (CP)—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, returning to Canada from an European tour, met with silence today all questions from reporters concerning his personal plans. The Canadian Conservative leader, instead, chose to talk of Europe where he suggested there was no danger of an European war.

Mr. Bennett, accompanied on his trip by his sister, Mrs. W. D. Herridge, was greeted by reporters who boarded the vessel off Father Point, 180 miles below Quebec City on the St. Lawrence.

A firm reticence met every question concerning his future plans. He looked in good health and appeared in good spirits. He refused to comment on complaints aired concerning leadership of the Conservative party. Nor would he comment on the condition of his health.

The trip to Europe, he said at Quebec late this afternoon.

Suggestion by Mr. Bennett of the absence of danger of a European war coincided with the belief of Prime Minister Mackenzie King who said on his return from a European trip that there was no reason to be alarmed over the threat of warsaid was.

DE VALERA AGAIN FREE STATE HEAD

Cosgrave Opposes Election And Re-elects State Constitution

Dublin, July 21 (AP)—Eamon De Valera was re-elected president of the Irish Free State today by the new Dail (Parliament) by a vote of 82 to 71. It will be his third term.

William T. Cosgrave, opposition leader, opposed the election, contending that the majority voted also in the recent general election were against De Valera's policies.

Cosgrave also condemned the new constitution which further separates the Free State and Great Britain and changes the country's name to Eire pronounced "Ayre".

The country approved the constitution in a referendum July this month. De Valera's party won 69 places in the Dail Eireann, Lower House, the same number being taken by all the other parties together.

RAY WOODS SENT BACK TO BOWMANVILLE

Ray Woods of this city, who escaped from the Bowmanville School of Industry about 10 days ago, was apprehended by Detective Fred Izard in Belleville, yesterday afternoon. He was taken at the police station until last evening, when he was turned over to the Bowmanville institution authorities and returned to that school.

DAMAGE SETTLED BETWEEN PARTIES

When a large transport, driven by Donald Mathews, 18 Charlotte St., was backing out on East Bridge St. this morning the rear of the truck struck the front of Dr. F. L. Flynn's parked automobile. The radiator, headlight and fenders of Dr. Flynn's recently-purchased car were badly crumpled. The matter of the settlement of damages entailed was left in the hands of the parties concerned, when police investigated. Mathews' truck was parted out somewhat from the curb, while Dr. Flynn's motor car was parked parallel with the sidewalk.

20 POUND 'LUNGE HOOKED IN BAY

Shannonville, July 21 (Special)—Battling for more than half hour to land their prize on a light line, Hans Fisher and Kenneth Greatrix, two popular Shannonville youths yesterday managed to land one of the largest lake trout caught from the Bay of Quinte this season out of Shannonville portals. The fish which measured slightly over four feet in length weighed a fraction over twenty pounds.

CITY LANDMARK BEING DEMOLISHED

One of the oldest landmarks in the downtown section, the frame property at the corner of Front and Bell at 149 Front Street, and lately occupied as a rooming house previous to its partial demolishment by fire was disappearing gradually under the hands of workmen who commenced clearing the site this morning. Many bricks and joist so common in older structures were being salvaged from the interior of the building.

HICKORY, BUTTERNUTS PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR

Hickory and butternuts will be plentiful and cheap this year, it is reported by rural residents who declare the trees well loaded and giving promise of excellent maturity. The weather has been declared "just right" this season for the crop.

DESICCATED SKUNK TRAVELS AS PET

The family dog and even the cat has become a common sight in the care of boys and girls of this city, but the city this summer, but attendants at a Dundas Street garage and service station drew back to a respectful distance one evening when a small skunk was liberated from the interior of an Ohio car for a brief power shower job. The little animal was completely deodorized and purring contentedly when returned to the attendants who even summoned up enough courage to pet the little fellow. The skunk's pet name was described as a "perfect pet" and has been reported baptized only as a kitten two years ago by the owner.

FEMININE TOURISTS ENJOYING WEATHER

Local residents may complain about the heat now being felt in this district, but to three youthful feminine tourists from Alabama, who sought out the Chamber of Commerce this morning for data and information regarding the route ahead, the weather for the past week or so has been "just glorious."

We almost froze to death when we started out," said the four car tour, "but ever since we struck Ontario it has been ideal," they commented.

W. J. HUME AND PARTY ON PLEASURE CRUISE

W. J. Hume, and party of Detroit in his palatial cruiser, Barbara Ann which was anchored at the local government dock for some time last week, are now on a pleasure cruise through the Bay of Quinte district. The boat tied up at Brockville yesterday for a brief stop over.

MATCHED RACE IS ON AT PORT HOPE

L. O. Bennett, well known ocicipenarian race horse driver, familiar figure at Bowmanville and Orono, and well known to horsemen of this district, will drive "Allan Dale" in a match race at Port Hope on Friday afternoon against "Peter Range", three-year-old colt owned by Geo. E. Caldwell, also of Port Hope. The race is the result of considerable discussion as to the respective horses, and is exciting keen interest.

MAN IS ADVISED TO SEE DOCTOR

"You'd better have that arm looked after. It looks pretty bad to me," declared Mr. Bert Adams, local shoe repairman to the North Hastings stranger who entered his shop last evening for a quick job.

The arm in question, bared of sleeve to the elbow, was badly swollen and pained, the result, it was stated, of infection which followed a black snake bite in the north country a day or so ago.

Finally convinced of the danger of infection, the unnamed visitor declared his intention of seeking the services of a local medical man.

PICTON BOATS STOP ON WAY TO REGATTA

A number of Picton power craft called at the local port today for a brief stop over en route to Trenton regatta, this morning. Several took the occasion to inspect the newly renovated South End Athletic and Yachting Clubhouse. Hardly a boat remained in the harbor long.

CANNIFTON YOUTH IS NEARLY DROWNED

Trying for an underwater swimming mark while bathing with friends at Lester's Landing, Cannifton, 9-year-old Burton Fuller, Cannifton, was rendered partially unconscious and narrowly escaped drowning when he struck the concrete abutment of the dock with his head. Comrades who became anxious over the length of time the boy was engaged in dive and being the floundering youth to the surface where resuscitation methods were employed.

NOT GAS BUT VAPOR THAT DOES DAMAGE

"You needn't be afraid of the full gasoline can, it's the empty, or the almost empty one which causes the damage," declares Jack Robbin, well known waterfront resident and boatman, whose experience with boats and engines has extended over a lifetime.

Comment was made upon the number of disastrous cruiser fires which have destroyed expensive craft lately in many sections of the Province.

"It's not the gas, but the vapor from it which generally arises from the bilge, especially after dropping down from a leaking line or carburetor. This vapor is converted into a sort of a bomb, when the proper type and not sufficiently ventilating craft is succeeded is a spark to set off that explosive which is found when the cabin is fired.

"Keep the bilge dry and the connections tight, and carry a fire extinguisher as well,"- warns the veteran.

MANY OPENINGS FOR SKILLED WORKMEN

There is a scarcity of experienced tool and die makers in Canada at present, according to a communication received today by the Local Employment Bureau. There are plenty of jobs available in manufacturing concerns in the Province, with the wages of 60 and 75 cents per hour being offered for these skilled workers. Any tool and diemaker desiring to secure a position is asked to get in touch with the local employment office.

PUBLIC WARNED TO EXERCISE CARE

"With the fire hazard, of grass and bush becoming more dangerous daily, the public should exercise care when throwing away burning cigarettes and cigars". Fire Chief Arthur Lynch reminded today. "While the recent rains have relieved the danger somewhat, there is still sufficient drying to the ground and bush to cause serious fires if sufficient care is not taken," he added.

MACHINE MOTOR TO FIREFL NEW BOAT

Deciding he needed a boat with which to enjoy the lighter hours of each year, William Andrews, well known local resident, set about to get about the task of building one. Consulting with about for some means of propulsion other than the use of oars. He found it in a motor from a discarded washing machine, a thy power unit which he built into the boat, given him plenty of miles to the gallon. Driven by a large, powerful two-blade propeller, the boat makes a fair speed of about seven miles per hour, and can be throttled down for ideal trolling speeds.

FARM MACHINERY LOST IN BLAZE

Thurlow Township Barn Owned by Conley Bros. Destroyed

Lurid flames leaping high in the air totally destroyed the barn situated on the property of Ross and Oran Conley, 5th concession, Thurlow township shortly after ten o'clock last night. While there was only one load of hay in the building practically all of the Conley farm machinery was destroyed, together with cattle in the pasture. There was no loss of live stock.

The Conley brothers, owners of the barn, were absent from the premises at the time and had not returned at a late hour. The blaze, of mysterious origin, was discovered shortly after ten o'clock. Smoke issuing through the dry timber-like building and by the time neighbors arrived at the scene it had made much headway that salvage of implements and loose hay in the barn was impossible.

The flames creating a lurid glow in the sky, attracted a large crowd of neighbors. Walter Trevertom, a neighbor of the Conley brothers stated that he noticed the flames shortly after ten o'clock, rushing out an alarm to neighbors he rushed to the scene of the burning building. "It was a blazing mass when I got there, he said, "and saving of anything was out of the question."

The loss not ascertained whether the loss was covered by insurance.

PRE-PAYMENT OF MEDICAL SERVICE OUTLINED TO CLUB

Dr. J. J. Robertson Chief Coroner is Speaker at Kiwanis Luncheon

INTERESTING TALK

Fee Set at $6.50 Per Month For Family of Four

In a carefully prepared address Dr. J. J. Robertson, chief coroner for Hastings County, told the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Queens Hotel the advantages to be derived from joining a group, which monthly paid into a fund a certain amount and from those payments would receive for himself and family a yearly medical service by those physicians which also belonged to the organization. The principle is something like Medical Service but different to the extent, that subscribers are sought and only doctors belonging to the organization can give the medical service. The address was both instructive and most entertaining. The speaker was introduced by the President, Bert Logan and the thanks of the club were expressed by George A. Lee. There was little business to transact, although a report of a director's meeting was given regarding an interview with a firm with the prospects of raising money for projects in the interests of the club and a full statement as to project will be given at a later date. As many of the members are away on holidays, the attendance at the luncheon was not large, but can be travelled for ideal trolling speeds.

Medical Economics

Medical economics from earliest history has presented us with many unique features. Cartoonists have depicted doctors in ridiculous and pathetic in various stages of illness, which have been good advertising.

While some modern ideas have associated the physician with evil spirits to such an extent that various schemes are being put forward to free the body politic of its influence, the fact of the matter is that it is not the physician, as it is the devil but his lack of economic judgment.

In face of competition from luries and instalment buying of manifora which are a menace to the cure, that their relative importance has become distorted, there is no doubt, that the medical profession will be faced with the necessity of playing a part in the present day instalment.

British Columbia may be taken as a criterion. Daily papers are claiming for a suggestion about State medicine, but before we can offer or alternative methods for the solution of the problem it must be clearly defined.

Let us try and define the problem in terms of social and human requirement, and we may then be better prepared to decide upon how we should approach it.

First, what are the requirements, from a medical standpoint, from social economics? The Medical Profession is now well advanced in scientific knowledge but on account of the economic situation unfortunately we are unable to supply them as we would desire to do.

Secondly, Unpaid

There are well recognized facts. The business men of today, have so developed their sales methods, that it would appear essential to have securities more than to preach the necessities of life. Many of these luxuries can be bought for very little money.

It is not surprising, that a physicians services are not paid for a considerable period and in many cases are not paid at all. The uneven distribution of costs of a serious illness, both to the time and to the method of distribution and that is the problem, that the Medical Profession must face, whether they like it or not.

We have gained little knowledge from State medicine as has been appling in European countries and the net proved unsatisfactory both to the medical profession and to the patient. But we stood aside and did nothing but pity the lot of the medical profession. It is plainly evident that it is up to the medical profession to bring before the public some plan, which would be satisfactory both to the profession and the patient.

Working in conjunction with the laity and the profession there has been formed a plan for pre-payment of medical services, which has incorporated in three issues under the name of Associated Medical Services incorporated. This has its headquarters in Toronto and branches may be established in any centre where there is a group of the County Medical Society.

The cost of the estimated costs are very variable, depending upon the country and upon its locality and the type of service rendered. It does appear logical to assume that in a large centre the medical fee will be followed by the medical. Home calls one person per year at $3.00 ..... $3.00
Office calls 1.5 person per year at $2.00 ..... 3.00
Surgical operations 4.00
sons per year at $60 .....
Hospital care 5 days per year at $13.50 per day 4.35
Drugs ..... .20
X-Ray ..... .20
Administration 2.00

Total for medical care 13.05
Dental 4.00
Nursing, 2 per person per year at $5.00 per day 2.50

Total 34.55

It thus appears that for twenty dollars a year the average individual can have complete medical attention. There is, however, some allowance to be made for the lowering of costs by the illness of larger families. That is a family of four does not require twice as much attention, as a family of two, and so it is possible to drop the rate of $20.00 for the first dependent, $1.75 for the first dependent, $1.50 for the second dependent and $1.25 for the third and each subsequent dependent. For the average family of four the cost is $60.00 per year or $15.00 per year per individual in such a family. This amount would pay for complete for a comprehensive service.

Benefits to be Rendered

The service of participating physicians in home, office or hospital, including consultations.

Surgical procedures within the scope of a competent surgeon.

Semi-private available accommodation at a rate not to exceed $2.50 per day towards the cost of hospitalization in an approved hospital.

All necessary nursing.

Child birth, where the subscriber has paid dues for ten consecutive months previous to confinement.

There will be a two months' waiting or probationary period and the subscriber must pay three months' subscription before becoming entitled to benefits.

Exceptions

The following conditions in institutionalized are not included—Mental illness of any type, epilepsy, chronic alcoholism, or any condition which, is the responsibility of any other body by law.

The Corporation reserves the right to cancel any contracts for the abuse of privileges.

For $6.50 per month the average family of four can have built up the total cost of illness. That is less than is spent by an average family for smokes, candies or confectionery. It is estimated that under the present plan, one serious illness can wipe out the life's savings of such an average family. The advantages for such a plan for all concerned are obvious. The plan is possible only when the risk is spread over a large group for a long period of time.

Obituary

MISS BEATRICE GUFFIN (Sidney)

After a brief illness, Miss Beatrice Guffin passed away at her late residence in the 8th Concession of Sidney, Township on Tuesday, July 20th.

The late Miss Guffin was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Guffin, who lived on the 8th Concession of Sidney where she resided all her life. She was born in 1883. In religion she was a member of the Baptist faith and up until a short time ago she took an active interest in the work of the church although of late years she was unable to be present.

Surviving her are one brother, Mr. Arthur Guffin with whom she resided, and one sister, Mrs. F. W. Wims, of Trenton.

The funeral will take place on Thursday, July 22nd.

LATE EMMA A. DUNLAP

The funeral of Emma Adeline Dunlap, aged 61 years, late of Thurlow Township, which took place from Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Belleville, yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. Canon Greene officiated. Interment was in the Belleville Cemetery.

LATE ARCHIE RUPERT

The communities of Havelock, Cordova and Rawdon were shocked to hear of the tragic death of Archie Rupert, 24, who was drowned by falling rock at the Hargrave Mine, on Stoney Lake, on Thursday morning, July 15th. With his fellow workmen he went to work at 4 p.m. and the accident happened about 6.30 o'clock. His partner saw the rock fall, and gave him a call, but failed to clear the danger point in time to escape.

The late Archie Rupert was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rupert of Havelock. He was born at Cordova 22 years ago and his boyhood days were spent there. He was deeply mourned by a host of relatives and friends. He moved to Rawdon ago he was united in marriage to Miss Mabelle Bateman of Rawdon Township who survives with a young son. He had resided around Havelock and Cordova. He was a member of these communities and was a friend of young and old.

The body arrived at Havelock on Friday and on July 19th the funeral was held on Friday at two o'clock in the afternoon from the home of his parents conducted by the United Church where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Kemp. Interment was made in Maple Grove Cemetery, Havelock. The bearers were friends of the deceased from Havelock and Rawdon. The floral tributes were beautiful and many in number and were from friends in near and distant parts.

Relatives present at the funeral from a distance were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Rupert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wyshalade, Bastwis, N.Y.; Mr. John Rupert, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Pitts and sons; Mr. F. Pitts and sons, Mr. J. Pitts, Miss E. Wilkinson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kelly and son, Montreal; Mr. Don Rupert, Perth; Mrs. Geo. Rupert, Perth; Mrs. George McGinnis, of Kingston.

The sympathy of the community goes out to his widow, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rupert and Charlie, his sister Retta, and his aged grandmother, Mrs. J. Rupert.

JAMES F. WIMS

James F. Wims, well known farmer of Corbyville, died at the Kingston General Hospital this morning after a short illness. The late Mr. Wims was born in Ameliasburg, the eldest son of Mrs. John Wims of Harriet Street, this city and the late John Wims of Tyendinaga. He was a member of St. Michaels' Church of this city. Surviving besides his widow to mourn his loss are Mrs. Mosher and the brothers, Joseph and Frank of this city.

The body is now resting at his home in Corbyville. Funeral notice will appear later.

OTTAWA YOUTHS ON CANOE TRIP

Paddling From Ottawa to Upper End of Georgian Bay

The upper half of their canoe bobbed lazily on the surface of the water, while the sun and wind stove they commenced their trip some weeks ago, two Ottawa youths, Phil Hooper and Johnny Simpson, the latter barefooted and tanned, paddled along the Lake Ontario shore early last evening and struck their camp well out on Victoria Park where they rested overnight.

The boys are less than half way on their waterway trip which will end at Georgian Bay some time next month. So far they have covered just 200 miles from their home port at Ottawa. About 300 miles of water lies before them. From Georgian Bay, the end of the trail, they will ship their canoe and start back to Ottawa and return by train in time for the Rideau River boats held next month.

Describing their trip so far as without incident, and "a beautiful journey," the youths, or school age, are learning their Canadian geography as they travel in leisurely stages. Included among their many effects is a Department of Marine canal pass which grants them the privilege of all locks and canals met in their trip.

They will attend the Trenton regatta today and continue their journey from there.

It will be the first time we have had our names in the paper since we left home," they told the reporter who sought them out.

88TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Rev. A. L. Geen's Anniversary Observed on Eve of Birthday

On the eve of His 88th birthday anniversary the immediate family of Rev. A. L. Geen will quietly celebrate the coming birthday of their father at the family residence on Bell Bridge St. this evening. Hale and hearty Rev. Geen daily attends to his business in this city, while the arrival of Sunday sees him as interested and active in his religious duties.

Owing to a previous engagement the family reunion planned for Rev. Geen's 88th birthday will be held this evening when Mrs. S. C. Steele, a daughter, Mr. F. W. Geen and Col. E. A. Geen and their respective families, including a number of grand-children, will be among the many to congratulate one of Belleville's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens.

Rev. Geen now, as has been his custom for many years, Rev. Geen will spend his birthday more than his accustomed period of rest, for his daily usual duties about the store he has been so long associated with.

The Swan River Valley in North Western Manitoba, has been very fortunate, as it seemed to be protected by the mountains. Many fires have lived on the prairie have never seen the like of this phenomenon.

The storm struck about 5.30 p.m. writes Mr. Harvey. We were looking at the sky and everything stood still. 102 in the shade so when branches from the wind-break started striking the house we thought it was hail. After the storm the temperature went down to 60 degrees in the yard. Every little way along the road one could see trees down or a barn.

It was thought about a dozen in that locality had been killed and a barn was burned owned by Mr. Arthur Shaw, son of Robert Shaw. It is a sad sight to see the fine trees down. The law also lost his barn and a number of his outbuildings were stored in the cemetery.

Mr. Harvey reports that it has been very dry and warm in the Valley this summer. Rye is starting to ripen and he thought the crop would be ready to cut the last of July.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

That your stomach must be full of bile to digest food and make you feel right is a fallacy of the past, says a well-known druggist. It just ceases to do harm. One bottle of Adlerika will prove it. Adlerika relieves you the first day, and you feel great, full of pep, in a few days.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel. It relieves GAS pressure at the source. You need something that will move the BILE and FOOD. Adlerika does it. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills to get them too if you need a laxative. Sold by all druggists. Thousands have written us how they relieved stomach trouble with Adlerika. Try it. Sold by druggists everywhere. Ad-lerika

THE UP-TO-DATE

The man who is essentially religious and highminded is the one who is up-to-date, not the one who is pursuing every passing fad and fashion, said the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside Church New York. "Really being up-to-date is something very different from the moral sag and let-down with which today it is so often identified. If we call the roll of those minds and spirits who generation after generation have seen a little further than the rest into the truth to which the future belongs, we see what intellectual dignity and moral superiority have been theirs. Such people as Copernicus, Beethoven, Gutenberg Francis Bacon, Florence Nightingale Roger Williams, have been really up-to-date.

"There is nothing new in sin. In drunkenness, in unbridled sexuality, in selfishness there is nothing new. It is sin that is old-fashioned, hoary with age, and long since incapable of developing anything essentially fresh. Once in a while however, a soul does visit the world who, brushing aside ideas and customs whose day is past, cries to his generation "It was said to them of old time... but I say unto you.' Lo! a new day does break upon mankind, when such souls come, and always, mark you these souls, even though up-to-date, are moving in the great realms of intellect and character, in science, in music, in art, in letters, in morals, in religion. There and there alone is it really possible to be up-to-date, and in such realms to be abreast of the times takes all the best there is in a man.

"How many know, for example, that the latest thing in family life is monogamy? We would think that the most common talk that promiscuity, practical polygamy, trial marriage, tandem marriages, and extra-martial liaisons were something new. They are as old as history. Everyone of them is covered with moss. All of them have been experimented with for centuries. Out of this welter, however, one new thing has arisen-its first beginnings far back, to be sure, but fighting its way with difficulty, an idea of the family so high so demanding, so new, that it was hardly believed to be possible—one man and one woman, namely, loving each other so much that they do not wish to love any one else in the same way at all, and building around their children the solid securities of a dependable home. Looked at from the standpoint of history as a whole, that's the latest thing in family life."

SHOOTING WITH AN ARROW

There was once a man, named William Tell, who shot an apple off his son's head with an arrow—a warning of what might happen enemies of Switzerland. Many a variation of that story has been enacted, many a circus and vaudeville artist has "pulled" that one, and many accidents and some fatalities have resulted in amateur performances.

The latest story comes with the arrest of Steven Debreczeni, a Hungarian village William Tell who was so sure of his marksman that he wounded his friend in the forehead with a bulle t at a rifle club meeting.

Debreczeni had to be modern so he did not use an arrow as Tell did in the legend when Gessler, the tyranical Austrian bailiff, was supposed to have placed an apple on the head of Tell's son and ordered the father to shoot it off with an arrow from a crossbow.

During the recent visit of a circus here, there were a number of acts which in other days would have stirred boys to imitation. There were the Indian shooting with an arrow at a mark and lassooing. Lassooing has caught on here but the shooting with the arrow has not. The only reason why this has not taken root here, would appear to be that in the movie pictures of Indians the rifle is used and not the bow and arrow.

Yet it is strange because there is a real revival of archery in many parts of this continent and the Old Country, among adults and young one of the most healthful of sports which takes one to the places with a touch of the country in them and trains the eye and gives a sense of health and good sportsmanship with the flavor of romance and the spirit of Robin Hood thrown in. What boy and what adult have not had dreams and visions of the gay Robin Hood and his followers in the merry Sherwood Forest of England in the olden days!

SUMMER THEATRES HAVE DRAWN THE HAMS OFF BROADWAY, also some of the brightest stars like Margaret Anglin for New England is dotted with stock companies playing in remodelled barns, old churches, campuses amusement parks, etc. Plays are being presented which exact small royalty payments rather than later stage successes which call for large royalties. Many ambitious youngsters are getting tryouts in summer stock and from them may come the future stars. Barn dramas are very popular in the United States where wild and weird old melodramas like Ten Night in a Bar-room and sich like are given with permission given the audience to express their approval or otherwise in words as the play progresses. Those entertainments pack 'em in for the privilege to heckle is something which most folks dearly love. Maine has summer stock theatres such as Garrick Players (Kennebunkport), Ogunquit Playhouse, Boothbay Playhouse, Peterborough Players, Green Mountain Playhouse, and others.

SEA LIONS ARE SAID TO BE SO NUMEROUS ON THE PACIFIC COAST as to endanger the salmon fisheries. Accordingly orders have been issued to declare war on the sea lions. Hence the Canadian coast patrol boat Givenchy recently reported having killed with rifles 2,200 sea lions in a three-weeks cruise. Trained seals in circuses are said to be a species of sea lion, as distinguished from the elephants which the Ringling-Barnum circus popularized as menagerie stars. California Fish and Game Commission does not agree with wholesale killing of sea lions. Admitting that they eat a few salmon and damage a few nets the Commission claims the "sea lions do much more good than harm in that they eat valueless and destructive fish such as morays, squid, octopi, dogfish deep water crabs. The Commission also believes that there are enough natural checks to keep them from increasing too fast. It takes six weeks for the pups to learn to swim, and many are drowned before they learn. Others are trampled to death by careless parents. Killer whales and sharks eat sea lions, young and old. One big killer whale's stomach when opened was found to contain the remains of eight sea lions."

BURIAL AT SEA IS ANOTHER ANCIENT CUSTOM going by the board in this age of swift transportation. Every major liner, it is said carries a couple of coffins and it's ship doctor is a qualified embalmer. While ship captains by immemorial law have a right to order burial of bodies at sea, such is a non-sailor's horror of this type of burial that the bodies of passengers aboard ship today are usually embalmed and turned over to authorities at the decedent's home port—according to Time magazine, which cites a case of enforced burial at sea and its consequences. Says Time: "Two years ago returning on the Ile de France, Miss Elizabeth Ann Ahearn, 68, a devout school principal of Danvers Massachusetts, who had been six times received by the Pope, died of a stroke while in her bathtub. She had been sleeping daily until noon because of poor health, and her death was not discovered for some 14 hours. Ship's doctors found it inadvisable to embalm the body and the captain called upon Catholic priests on board to officiate at a sea burial. Subsequently four cousins sued the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique for $100,000 for their mental anguish resulting from Miss Ahearn's body not having been committed to hallowed ground in a Catholic cemetery. A jury in federal court in Manhattan to which the French line had had the case transferred from a State court refused any damages to the cousins after Catholic canonical experts testified that necessitous burial in unconsecrated ground is "not disgraceful. A leiter from the officiating priest aboard the Ile d eFrance was introduced in evidence stating that though Miss Ahearn's body was in the sea, he knew her soul was with God."

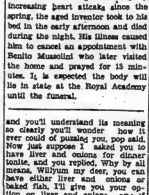
INVENTOR DEAD

Famed as the inventor and developer of wireless, Cugtiamo Marconi, (above), 63-year-old Italian, died of heart attack at his home in Rome. Suffering from rapidly increasing heart attack since the spring, the aged inventor took to his bed in the early afternoon and died during the night. His illness caused him to cancel an appointment with Benito Mussolini who later visited the home and prayed for 15 minutes. It is expected the body will lie in state at the Royal Academy until the funeral.



and you'll understand its meaning so clearly you'll wonder how it ever got started in the first place. Now just suppose I asked you to have liver and onions for dinner tonite, and you replied, Why by all means, Willyum my deer, you can have either liver and onions or baked fish, I'll give you your option on liver and onions and if you dont care to take up your option on fish, have baked fish, pop said, and me said, Now Willyum, you had liver and onions yesterday, and there's no use complicating the issue by trying to drag it in again today. You certainly have a single track appetite, she said.

I'll give you another homely example, pop said. I believe we have a sort of an understanding that I build a bridge over the Hewsus this evening, he said, and ma said, We have a long and fast fridge engagement with them and you know it.

Well for the sake of the definition let's say I have an option on the particular bridge game, and if I didn't choose to exercise my option we could just invent some excuse to call off the date, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum, you have an option to play and thats the sole and only option you have, but I think that makes it clear, Willyum. I know what an option is.

It's a womans world, pop said. And he took his paper away from me and left for his office.

GUEST OF SONGBIRD

Geraldine Farrar, whose golden voice was known and loved throughout the world more than a decade ago, is pictured here as she attended the Bastille Day dinner given by Lily Pons, opera diva, in her home at Ridgefield, Conn., on the great French anniversary.

"MOTHER BLOOR"

Pictured above, still hale and hearty at 70 is Mrs. Reeve Bloor, more commonly known as "Mother Bloor." Communist celebrations in honor of "Mother Bloor" have always been the party's method of letting off steam. But the grand old lady of the revolutionary cause had a party all her own on Staten Island, N.Y., recently to mark her 75th birthday.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfast and me was in hurry up looking at the paper before pop had time to take it downtown with him, saying, Now here's one word I'm sure I've been in doubt about, Willyum, it's this word option. Somebody in the paper is always giving somebody else an option on something or wanting an option from somebody. Now just what is an option in as many simple words, Willyum? she said.

I'll give you a homely example

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Moscow, July 21 (AP)—Clyde Pangborn, American aviator, planned to fly here today from Vellikeluki airport where he had been held by Soviet authorities for two days. Pangborn entered Russia without a visa and was placed in detention at the airport near the Latvian frontier. His companion, Comrade Hugh William Shevrich of New York, went on to Moscow and obtained from consulary visa from the Foreign office.

Oregon City, Ore., July 21 (AP) —William Teague's "pocket-in-one" golf shot sat a queer for the rule book.

Teague's drive off the 16th tee spilt the fairway but neither he nor other members of the foursome could find the ball.

About the time George Swafford, back to the fairway, he had sliced onto the 14th fairway, felt a jar in his pocket and found Teague's ball had landed there.

This solved the question of how Teague play his second shot by dropping the pellet to the fairway.

Hamilton, Ont., July 21 (CP)—Being unable to decide when to come to Hamilton. The city has an East Avenue, half of which runs south and the other half north; a West Avenue, half of which runs north and the other half north; a South Street that runs east and west, and a north Oval that runs northeast and southwest.

Stratford, Ont., July 21 (CP)—A Perth county farmer claims he was bitten by an intoxicated pig. According to the story, three young pigs got into a barrel of cider and he chased them around the place all morning. The ringleader, he claims, bore signs of acquired medical aid.

Kinston, N.C., July 21 (AP)—Sheriff Dan Russell said a mule on a farm near here ate 30 to 35 pounds of green leaf a day while pulling a plow in the tobacco fields.

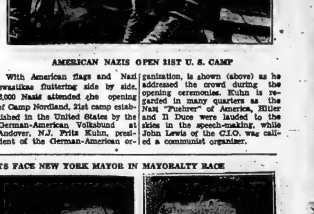
Gatesboro, N.C., July 21 (AP)—The Rev. Walter C. Ball, Methodist minister, has found a novel way to sleep through hot waves.

He cools his bed sheets in his refrigerator for several hours before bedtime.

QUENTS STILL ATTRACTION

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 21.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets still have as much attraction as ever for tourists.

Customs inspectors at the Falls View bridge here said today one-quarta of more than 50 per cent. of the American automobiles which crossed the bridge yesterday said they were on their way to Callander, Ont., to see the five famous sisters.



AMERICAN NAZIS OPEN 21ST U. S. CAMP

With American flags and Nazi swastikas fluttering side by side, 2,000 Nazis attended abe opening of Camp Nordland, Nzi camp established in the United States by the German-American Volksbund at Andover, N.J. Fritz Kuhn, president of the German-American organization, is shown (above) as he addresses the crowd during the opening ceremonies. Kuhn is regarded in many quarters as the Nazi "Fuehrer" of America. Hitler and Il Duce were lauded to the skies in the speech-making, while John Lewis of the CIO. was called a communist organizer.

STRONG OPPONENTS FACE NEW YORK MAYOR IN MAYORALTY RACE

Senator Royal S. Copeland — Mayor Fiorello La Guardia — Grover A. Whalen

Possibility of a determined fight for the mayor of New York's office is visioned with the nomination of the three men shown above. At the Left, is Senator Royal S. Copeland, senior senator of New York state and an anti-Roosevelitan who has been named as candidate for the democratic nomination by Tammany Hall. At the right, is Grover A. Whalen, leading Democrat and former New York police commissioner, who will fight it out with Senator Copeland in the Democratic primaries for the nomination for mayor of the city. In the centre is Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, staunch adherent of the new deal, who is running on a fusion label. Senator Copeland is at present fighting President Roosevelt's proposed supreme court reform while Grover Whalen is the candidate of four New Deal political representatives in New York.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

HER NAME IN LIGHTS

DAPHNE BRETT

by MARIE BLIZARD.

Jennifer blew out her breath and stopped off her daughter, "Daphne, you're wonderful. Making Daddy let you be the director of Apple Blossoms, the Shrewsberry comedy." Asked me where I'd picked up that piece of business with the teacup reference?

"It's fun, isn't it?" Daphne said wistfully.

X X X

"Grand fun. You know, I guess the reason I never made a success of anything else was because I always wanted to be on the theatre only I didn't know it. Up at Denville we'd all been in the theatre one night and after we came home I was doing a scene from the show and I didn't even know that Mr. Hershberg was the great producer."

"It's being work, Jennifer, but if you really love it, I think you've a future and your part, while it is small, will show what you can do. Remember that sleep is an important part of your job. So, how about getting to bed, Mr. Hutchinson wants to see me at 8 tomorrow morning and I want to look fresh."

"Maybe if you don't give your a raise." Jennifer offered.

"That will be nice. It's done. I hope it doesn't mean trouble."

"Speaking of trouble," Jennifer said behind a yawn, while her alert eyes measured her sister, "back to bed. I'm sending him the worst attacks tomorrow."

Daphne left as though she had stepped through a hole in the sea.

"I thought I laid down the law about sleeping."

"And about Tuck, too, didn't you?" Jennifer said with an unpleasant smile.

"Sometimes I think I'll give up but listen, Jennifer, I've more influence with Tuck than you have and I'm going to tell him that I don't want him seeing you."

"It wouldn't surprise me a bit if you did," her sister answered. "But if I were you I wouldn't try."

Daphne set her mouth in a line as straight as Jennifer's.

"Let's both go to bed. We're tired and this heat is getting on our nerves, you're going to Philadelphia next Monday, don't you?"

X X X

Daphne stood into the hot silence of the night, long after Jennifer had gone to sleep, until she convinced herself that Jennifer had only meant to tease her and that she did taunted her about Tuck. But since she couldn't be sure that Jennifer hadn't had poison over Tuck, she was determined to appeal to Tuck once more not to see Jennifer. She'd do it even if she had to pretend that she hers self was interested in him.

"I made a note to telephone him and set him to take her for cocktails the following afternoon.

It slipped her mind that next day. Too many other things happened.

X X X

"Sit down, Miss Brett." Mr. Johnstone, president of the Johnstone Advertising Agency, waved her into a chair that was much too big for her.

He leaned across the big desk and regarded her thoughtfully. Daphne made herself sit still and wondered if her lipstick was a little too red.

"Nice work you've done on the Georgian Cream."

The Georgian line was the merchandise of cosmetic house, one of the accounts that Daphne had developed. "Oh, thank you, Mr. Johnstone."

"Hammer and I have been talking over your proposed campaign in department stores and the tour you planned in the presentation. We think it an excellent idea."

Daphne's face lighted up with pleasure. It was afraid the whole idea was too radical, but I am confident it would go over. Are they going all the way? I mean, will they show the moving pictures of the manufacture of cream, of fashion show and demonstration in connection with it?"

"Every bit just the way you laid it out. With one exception: the complete tour will not start the show on tour and manage it."

"But I can't. I have my work here and....."

"Won't know your work here when you come back, Miss Brett. Your account seems a great deal to us. The company has doubled its appropriation in the last year. If this trip is the success we anticipate, it will be more than doubled next year. Also, in addition to your salary, you are to receive a bonus which will mount considerably since you are to receive a percentage of the sales, Mr. Hammer mentioned $2,000 as a bonus....."

"Two thousand dollars!

"Oh, Mr. Johnstone!" Daphne had risen to her feet and bent over the desk toward him. "Of course, I'll do it! When do we start?"

"The last week in July. It's done. I hope it doesn't mean trouble."

"Speaking of trouble," Jennifer said behind a yawn, while her alert eyes measured her sister, "back to bed. I'm sending him the worst attacks tomorrow."

Daphne left as though she had stepped through a hole in the sea.

"I thought I laid down the law about sleeping."

"And about Tuck, too, didn't you?" Jennifer said with an unpleasant smile.

"Sometimes I think I'll give up but listen, Jennifer, I've more influence with Tuck than you have and I'm going to tell him that I don't want him seeing you."

"It wouldn't surprise me a bit if you did," her sister answered. "But if I were you I wouldn't try."

KELLY FAMILY HOLD REUNION

Crescent Beach Oak Lake, Scene of Enjoyable Fete

On Friday, July 16th the annual Kelly family reunion was held at Crescent Beach, Oak Lake, with over one hundred in attendance.

The day was all that could be desired and by noon a long table had been gathered. The ladies spread the tables with good things to eat and all did ample justice to same, after which the registration took place.

The President, Mr. Wm. Kelly called the gathering to order. In a few well chosen words he thanked all those who had helped to make the picnic a success. The Secretary, Mrs. A. Lowry, then gave the report which showed one death, Mrs. Wright, Toronto; one marriage, Florence Tufts-James W. Kokesh, Belleville; three births, James E. Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid, Madoc, Mavis E. Coombes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Coombes, River Valley, Harold R. Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Morgan, of Halloway. Two minutes silent prayer for the departed and offered by Rev. Mr. Beaver. An address was given by Mr. Beaver and short speeches by Mrs. Beaver, the Past President, Mr. C. Wilson and Mr. S. J. Elliott.

It was decided to hold the picnic at the same place on Thursday before the 12th of July next year. The officers were elected last year to hold office for two years. This ending the business, the sports then took place after which some enjoyed the water while the older ones visited.

About the oclock some had supper while others started for home, voting it a day well spent. Results all would be spared to return next year. The prize winners for the sports are:

CHINESE COLONY NOT EXCITED

No Exodus From City if War Declared

Members of the local Chinese colony have refused to become excited over the situation created with the Sino-Japanese conflict and understand war now being carried on in the Peiping area, it was intimated by one resident better versed in politics of his country. Funds have been raised from time to time among Chinese or canada to which local members of the city have subscribed fairly heavily. But local Chinese, the majority, are from the Kwantung Province, in the Canton district, separated over one thousand miles from present theatre of conflict. With war as yet undeclared against their hereditary foe no undue excitement has been caused. Nor has it been intimated that, in the event of the open declaration of war will there be any exodus of Chinese from here to fight in the Imperial army.

"Canada suits us very well" declared the Chinese informant.

Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew featured with Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas in Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous" now in the 4th and final day at the Belle.

At the Movies

AT THE BELLE

Peter B. Kyne's "Go-Getter" Year's Surprise Comedy

Among the never-forgotten characters of present-day magazine fiction is that picturesque old chap called Cappy Ricks, who owns steamships and operates them out of San Francisco to all parts of the world. He was created by the popular novelist, Peter B. Kyne, and has been kept alive for a good many years.

In more intimate fashion old Cappy now comes before the public again.....almost in real life. He's in a movie.....the Cosmopolitan production entitled "The Go-Getters" now recognized as the year's surprise comedy, which will open at the Bells Theatre tomorrow (Thursday) for two days, matinee daily.

Cappy is portrayed by Charles Winninger, whom you'll remember as Capn Andy in the stage play when the movie, called "Show Boat."

Tex Winninger isn't the go-getter. George Brent, handsome 6-foot Irish actor has that role and is co-starred with the slender, picturesque, wraith - like beauty, Jean Muir.

George loves Anita, in the Kyne story, and Cappy Ricks likes his daughter, and before Cappy will let George have her, George must go through a few Rube Goldberg devices. He succeeds in going through them.

The opening scene of "The Go-Getter" is one of the most dramatic ever shown on the screen. This is the fatal plunge of the U. S. dirigible Macon into the Pacific Ocean a few years ago. Brent is one of the crew. He survives, but loses a leg and Cappy, who has a heart, finds a civilian job somewhere. That's how Brent met Cappy and Cappy's daughter.

Buzby Berkely — hitherto best known as a director of dazzling chorus numbers in musical shows—guided Brent in "Pig Skin Parade," a mammoth revue to be presented on the same program with an interesting Sports Actual. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10, and 9.10. The feature also starts "The Go-Getter," begins daily at 3.00, 7.40 and 9.46 p.m. . . .

4th Day for Bill

Presented by an impressive cast, headed by Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen version of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous" one of the greatest of all pictures, now in its 4th and final sensational day at the Belle.

Just as Kipling knew and respected the sea, so has the picture caught and reflected its majestic moods and the beauty and calm of storm, sunlight and fog. The players individually and collectively, have grasped their respective parts with a remarkable depth of understanding.

A very interesting up-to-the minute newsreel precedes the feature attraction. Two complete performances will be presented tonight at 7.00 and 9.10. The feature attraction begins at 7.10 and 9.25.

AT THE CAPITOL

"John Meade's Woman"

A gripping story of a love that turned to hate and then to love again brings Edward Arnold to the screen again in the role of an industrial tycoon who learns he could buy a woman's heart with gold, in "John Meade's Woman," playing the Capitol as his No. 1 with 2nd feature "California Straight Ahead." Starring opposite him is the intriguing Francine Larrimore, noted stage star, who makes her initial motion picture appearance in this drama.

Arnold, rich and ruthless industrialist, is engaged to Gail Patrick, a society beauty who intends to marry him for his money. But really in love with Sidney Blackmer, who is of her own class. Arnold accidentally meets Miss Larrimore, a country girl living to make a go of it in the big city, and becomes interested in her. When he discovers the affair between Miss Patrick and Blackmer, he marries Miss Larrimore, conceived by a humble the high-born beauty. Miss Larrimore really loves Arnold, and when the time comes when he tells her why he married her and offers to buy her freedom, she refuses. She returns to the land from Arnold's gifts and proffers of aid. The two have long turns to a fierce and burning hatred.

Later, when she saves his life from an infuriated bull which he had fancented against him, she wins his love and his heart again. He realizes there are women in the world to whom money and power means nothing. He begs forgiveness of the poor farm girl.

Others in the Capitol cast are George Bancroft, as Arnold's hard-boiled lieutenant; Samuel Arnold, Jonathan Hale, Stanley Andrews and a host of others.

"California Straight Ahead"

A stirring drama of an industrial conflict between railroad and trucking lines, "California Straight Ahead" now playing the Capitol as his No. 3, Louise Latimer plays the leading feminine role opposite John Wayne.

Thrilling scenes of giant trucks moving through treacherous mountain passes accentuate the drama of Harvey Haines' fight against storms and blizzards high in the California mountains, the trucks and men move on, setting the scene for the love story.

"California Straight Ahead" is the tale of a man who pits his strength against a fellow human, seeking to prevent him from reaching his goal. The struggle culminates in a thrilling cross-country race for a million dollar contract and a beautiful girl at stake.

Auction Nite

At the Capitol on the stage Friday nite is Auction Night. We buy, any article asked for by phone. Phone Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen version of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous" one of the greatest of all pictures, now in its 4th and final sensational day at the Belle.

Ontario Signal System Thought Best for U. S.

'Try Courtesy' Method of Making Arm And Hand Signals May Become Standard Across the Border

Toronto, July 21.—A recent national safety survey made in the United States to determine the best method for motorists to give hand and arm signals reveals that the method recommended in the Ontario department of highways is considered the most satisfactory.

In an attempt to establish uniformity in signalling, W. Laurence Dickey, editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, recently instituted a nation-wide safety campaign in which officials in 48 states were urged to adopt as standard the code of arm and hand signals now used in Ontario. This method, his survey showed, was the simplest and most logical, and the co-operation offered by many state governors and traffic experts indicates that Ontario's system will soon be adopted as standard throughout the United States.

The Highway Traffic act of Ontario specifies as obligatory only the "left turn" signal. Signals to indicate "stop", "slow", and "right turn" come under the heading of "courtesy", and are left to being strongly recommended by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, in connection with his despatch extensive "Try Courtesy" campaign.

A recent publication of the highways department, in disclosing recommended methods of giving hand and arm signals, explains: "The man behind can't read your mind—SIGNAL!"

Wherever the signal is given by means of the hand and arm, the bulletin states, the driver should indicate his intention to stop or change direction by extending his left arm clear from and beyond the left side of the vehicle.

In making a left turn, the driver should signal his intention to turn by extending his left arm straight out, then draw as close to the centre line of the street or highway as possible, and turn to the left in the centre of the road which he is using.

The right turn is properly made by signalling intention to turn and keeping close to the right hand curb line while going so. Two methods may be used to give this signal—either by extending the left arm upward or by raising the left hand in a clockwise motion, which simultaneously indicates a turn to the right, and signals the driver behind that it is safe to pass on the left side.

"Stop" or "slow" is indicated by extending the left arm downwards, and care should be taken, when approaching an intersection, to slow down several yards, rather than a few feet, from the crossing.

EXECUTIVE WELL KNOWN
Windsor, Ont., July 21 (CP)—for Ernest Chester Kerrigan, 64, Funeral services will be held today for well-known as an executive and engineer in Windsor business circles, who died Monday at his home here. Born in Toronto, Mr. Kerrigan received his early education in Hamilton. Later in London, Mr. Lawrence Bridge Company was formed in 1910 for construction of the Detroit-Windsor tunnel and the Canadian Bridge Company.

HEBREW-GENTILE GOODWILL AIM OF JOINT TOUR

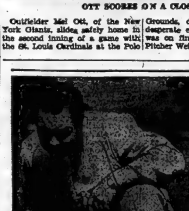
Rabbi Eisendrath And Rev. E. Crossley Hunter to Tour Ontario

Toronto, July 21.—Promoting goodwill and better understanding between Jews and Gentiles, Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath of Holy Blossom Synagogue, Toronto, and Reverend Dr. E. Crossley Hunter of First United Church, Hamilton, will, early in the autumn, embark on a speaking tour of cities in Eastern Ontario, it was announced today.

Speaking from the same platform they will discuss the theme "It can happen here—An adventure in Understanding." The two men will question each other on the fundamentals of their faith and will try to reveal the cause of the social antagonism between Jew and Gentile. The tour is being made following successful appearances made in Hamilton, London and Windsor early in the spring, after which requests came from all over Canada to have the unique venture repeated.

Rabbi Eisendrath and Dr. Hunter were among the party which included an industrialist, an unemployed man, a Communist leader, a Rabbi, a missionary, a labour leader, a minister and a member of parliament who spent one week on Fox Island this summer. The venture was inspired by Dr. Hunter. During their tour they will repeat what happened during this experiment in friendship and understanding.

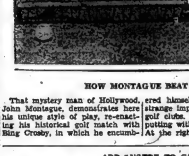
A note of non-sectarianism will be struck during their tour of Eastern Ontario. In cities where they will appear a committee comprised of a Rabbi, a minister, a priest and a layman will be created to look after the local arrangements. Service Club members, Orangemen, Knights of Columbus, church members and others will be invited to share in the ventures. In addition to their evening meetings Rabbi Eisendrath and Dr. Hunter plan to address Service Clubs and meetings of ministers and teachers in many of the cities to be visited.



"It is hoped that committees to foster goodwill and understanding between men and women of different races and creeds will be organized in each of the cities to be visited by Rabbi Eisendrath and Dr. Hunter," said Frank Chamberlain who is making arrangements for the tour.

Both Rabbi Eisendrath and Dr. Hunter are prominent figures in the religious world. Rabbi Eisendrath is known throughout Canada for his forums of the air. He is a brilliant orator and one of the leaders in religious thought in Canada. Reverend Dr. Hunter is a son of the distinguished evangelist the late Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter. He is one of the progressive pioneer men of the United Church of Canada. He was formerly minister of Carlton United Church, Toronto, and is now minister at First United Church, Hamilton. .

OTT SCORES ON A CLOSE PLAY AS GIANTS WHIP CARDS 6-5



Outfielder Mel Ott, of the New York Giants, slides safely home in the second inning of a game with the St. Louis Cardinals at the Polo Grounds, despite Catcher Owens' efforts to stop him. Ott was on first. Winning pitcher was Pitcher Welland of the Cards, fielded the bunt, threw wildly past first baseman Mize. The Giants won in ten innings. 6-5.

ADD LUSTRE TO CANADIAN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS

THE PLAYERS' PICTURES
Marcel Rainville, Left
Kay Stammers, Lower Centre
Laird Watt, Circle
Ross Wilson, Right

Starting July 26 on the courts of the Toronto Cricket Club, Toronto, play for the Canadian tennis championship gets under way. An impressive entry list brings together most of Canada's best-known racquet wielders with a sprinkling of international names that may include Britain's Wightman Cup team in the women's brackets, led by Kay Stammers, beautiful southpaw ace. Natives seeking the honors in men's singles, or doubles, will include the players shown here. Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, veteran Davis Cup star; Laird Watt, of Montreal, and the redoubtable Ross Wilson of Toronto, among the top-ranking home-bred players.

Catching Galloping Yankees Seems Like Hopeless Task But Tigers and White Sox Try Yanks Win Double With Other Two Winning Single Games

GIANTS CLIMB

Only Half Game Behind Cubs, Who Were Rained

By BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Catching the galloping Yankees in this American baseball League pennant chase seems like a hopeless task but you can't rule the White Sox and the Tigers off the track for trying, both of them are.

The Sox have won six in a row neck-up to the champions now 6½ to maintain that streak and eight games in front after drubbing the Browns in both ends of a doubleheader yesterday. The Tigers have won five straight since beating the Yanks in the first start-back of their current road trip.

Both have been playing fairly easy pickings the last few days. The Sox caught first the Red Sox and now the Senators in the throes of a lasting streak, making it 10 defeats in a row for the Nats yesterday with a 4-3 triumph in 10 innings. Thornton Lee, southpaw, gave up 10 hits but fanned eight in hanging up his fifth triumph.

The Red Sox aren't proving too tough "for" anybody this year. The club crew was up in second place last week, but has hit the skids again, that 10-inning, 10-9 licking by Detroit being their fifth in a row.

Hurled Only One Game

Even the Yankees' mighty Ford chimed in with two homers, his 19th and 20th, and that Colonial Mills and Eric McNair came up with one each, couldn't save the Sox. Al Thomas, working only one inning as a relief pitcher for the second straight day, lost his second straight decision, while Rexie Lawson, who hurled only one heat for the Bengals, gained credit for his twelfth victory of the year.

The extra-inning virus even affected the Yanks, who won the opener from the Browns in the 10th, 5-4, then belted four St. Louis flingers for 11 hits to win the nightcap, 8-6. Joe Dimaggio's 18th homer, with two on, was the big blow in the first game, but shared importance with Tom Henrich's peg from right field that completed a double play after the Browns got three men on with only one out in the 10th.

The other American League game saw George Caster go the route while his fellow stabbists banged 15 hits off four Cleveland pitchers to win, 7-5.

Giants Gain Half Game

The Giants, climbing back to within half a game of the rained-out Cubs, and the Dodgers, recovering from four-straight trimmings by Chicago, also needed 10 innings to win. Cliff Melton held the Reds to five hits as the Terrymen won, 3-2, for their 18th victory by a one-run margin, against nine defeats, and Max Butcher tamed the Pirates with eight safeties to give Brooklyn a 3-1 decision.

The Cardinals' striking veteran Guy Bush on one of his better afternoons, threw in a few pinch plays of his own and bowed to the Bees, 5-3.

JERSEY GIANTS TURN ON BISONS

Like Parent Club But Don't Win as Many Games

(By The Associated Press)

If any of the current crop of hurlers on the Jersey City farm of New York Giants make the jump upward to the parent club, they'll find themselves on familiar territory—on the bottom of a batting order without any punch.

The "papa Giants" are known as a team that makes few runs and fights every inch of the way to gain victories, but the Giants know no indication of deviating from the path laid by the parent organization, except that they don't win as often.

Glen Gabler, brother of the "great Gabbo" who used to pitch for the Giants and now is with Boston Bees, knows what it is to pitch the "hard way". In almost every game he's taken part in, Gabler knows he has had to bear down every bit or more.

He pitched four-hit ball to down Buffalo Bisons, 1-0 last night and the lone run was the result of a Bison error and not the Jersey offensive.

Pete Sivess, another fine flinger doing yeoman service with a second division club, pitched a five-hitter against Rochester Red Wings to give Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory. Pete was given some tough opposition by young Howie Krist, who allowed the Orioles only seven blows.

Newark Bears pushed their league lead to 12 full games when they bombarded three Toronto pitchers with 15 hits and scored a 10-4 victory. Bob Seeds and Babe Dahlgren collected five of those between them and drove home a total of six runs.

Syracuse Chiefs turned the tables on the Montreal Royals, smashing out 27 hits to take a doubleheader by 13-9 and 7-4.

JOHNNY LOARING SCORES DOUBLE IN TRACK MEET

Oxford-Cambridge Team Defeat Hamilton, Nine Wins to Four

RECORD BROKEN

C. A. J. Emery Lowers Canadian Mark For Two Mile Run to 9:20.6

Hamilton, Ont., July 21.—(CP)—A victory over Hamilton Olympic Club's augmented track team tucked away in their bags the fleet-footed Oxford-Cambridge trackmen moved on to Toronto today for another meet in their North American Goodwill tour.

Aside from the Britishers' smashing triumph by nine first place to four for the home club, the double victory of blonde Johnny Loaring of Windsor, was last night's standout attraction.

Loaring, student at University of Western Ontario, strode to a photo-finish victory over Arthur Godfrey K. Bennett, British captain. It was Brown's first defeat in his 440-yard specialty in the current tour.

Loaring beat Brown by inches in 48.3. His time was two-tenths of a second behind the Canadian record set by W. O. Robbins of New York in 1934.

Finishing five yards ahead of D. A. J. C. Nelson of Oxford-Cambridge, Loaring had previously won the 220 yards low hurdles in 24.8. His double triumph was challenged for the spotlight by the great duel in the two-mile between C. A. J. Emery of the visitors and the Veteran Bob Tisdale, Preston, Ont.

Canadian Record

Pressed by Rankine, Emery flashed to a Canadian record of nine minutes, 20.6 seconds, eclipsing the former 9:34 mark set in 1933 by C. J. Mabey, running for Oxford-Cambridge at that time. Rankine ran doggedly beside the Englishman until the last lap, when Emery shot to the lead, which he increased to 10 yards at the finish. Rankine was also within the old mark with 9:22.3.

Allan Pennington, No. 1 Sprinter, turned in an easy victory in the 220 yards over Hamilton's Jim Hoover. He and Godfrey Brown, star of the English team, competed in only one event each.

Max Lemoyer, school boy star from Chatham, Ont., was easily five yards in the rear when C. T. Hall-Patch captured the 880, from which Brown had withdrawn to save himself for the battle with Loaring. The Chatham lad was ten yards ahead of M. A. Meifort of Oxford-Cambridge and MacNair was clocked at 1:57.1.

FANS REQUESTED TO SELECT TEAM TO BEAT CORBINS

Did you ever entertain a secret desire to see a team selected by yourself in action on the playing field?

This golden opportunity is being afforded the softball fans of Belleville on Civic holiday, when an all-star team will be selected by popular vote to meet the Corbin Locks of that league, being selected by popular vote of the softball fans of Belleville.

The game is being played as a benefit for Jimmie Barrigage, popular second baseman of the Belleville Sergeant team of the local softball league, who sustained a fractured jaw during a game recently and other injured players. The selection of the proposed all-star team is being placed in the hands of the softball fans of the city and their selection will be pitted against the Corbin Locks in this holiday softball performance.

The fans are requested to select their personal choices of individual players, for the respective nine positions on a softball club, from the remaining four clubs in the league, namely—Point Anne, Bellville-Sergeants, Percival Shops and the Asjmas juniors. All selections should be mailed or delivered to the Belleville Percival Stores, 302 Front Street, in care of Wm. Todd, who is president of the Belleville Softball Association, not later than Wednesday, July 28th.

Carefully Tabulated

All slips carried, when the selection of the all-star team in question is announced to the public the fans invariably prove interesting. The submitted files will be carefully tabulated and the persons selecting the all-star team in their individual personal choices, for the most number of votes recorded will receive a suitable cash reward for their efforts. The name of the player, for each individual position on a softball club and the name of the team for which he plays regularly in the league, must be included in the list submitted by the fans. As an example—for pitcher, the selector may choose Gus Green, of the Whols team and so on down the line.

Besides being of interest and fun the game in question is for a worthy cause as the recipient of the net funds, Jimmie Barrigage, was badly injured accidentally and the services of-fees resulting are hoped to be the best care of through the generosity of a popular all-star benefit game with the fans making the selection the progressive factor in the event.

The success of the game and the day's fun lies in the hands of the softball fans of this city. As a last warning, the players of the Corbin Lock team are exempt from the choice for the proposed all-star team, only players from the Point Anne, Belleville-Sargent, Percival Shops and Asjmas juniors are eligible for the all-star team. Get into the fun, pick what you think to be best all-star team to beat the Corbins.

New York, July 21.—(AP)—When John A. Heydler, former President of the National League, goes to a ball game these days he sits in the bleachers to get the sun.....He doesn't know it yet, but Al Schacht, the baseball clown, is going to get a fat offer.....Some folks think his jokes would get stale after a while.....Young Don Budge played himself a game of tennis, didn't he?.....Looks like Johnny Broaca is all washed up with the Yanks.....Joe McCarthy says Johnny Murphy (named the team) will never throw another ball for the Yankees.

Giant flag chances have been hard hit with scrappy Dick Bartell, Gus Mancuso and Harry Danning all on the shelf at the same time and Leo Dube one day after tomorrow.....Is Bartell's still weak left with a bad ankle, however.....If little Henry Armstrong keeps on belting 'em out, who'll be left for him to fight?

You can look for Tommy Farr to furnish a lot of good newspaper copy before he leaves these shores, either under his own power or on a stretcher.....That guy's a card.....Means business, too.....When the scribes asked him what his weight was, Tommy replied: "18 stone, 12 pents (208 pounds to you lugs) and wot of it?"

TOMMY FARR IS MARKED INVADER

Heavyweight to Fight Louis Says He is All Irish and Welsh

New York, July 21 (CP)—Less than 24 hours after Tommy Farr reached this country for his world heavyweight title tilt with Joe Louis, the promotional angles began to spring up around the British Empire heavyweight champion like mushrooms on a dewy morning.

Tommy has been generally regarded as a Welsh, walloper from the coal country about Tonypandy. But the promotional boys have scarcely got their hands on him aboard the Berengaria yesterday when it became known, on Tommy's say-so ,that his father was "100 per cent Irish."

There were those who intimated the preponderance of Irish flight fans in Brooklyn had something to do with it but the former truck fighter, miner, and rugby player added his mother first saw the light of day in the south of Wales. In spite of the fact her own father was a "bare-knuckler from Cork," the Welsh angle was kept in to go with the other before Tommy and his entourage head for Long Branch, N.J., and start training for the Louis fight Aug. 30.

Farr and manager Ben Foord, in the pits of Wales, Tommy appeared the most marked invader New York's cauliflower ears have seen, has blamed his battered left ear on a rough-and-tumble street match.

"Louis has no footwork and no sense of anticipation," the Welshman told reporters. "I'm dead sound I'll be able to way him. It'll be a hell of a fight, I do say. You can rely on me for that."

Leading the parade of boxing managers, promoters and newspapermen who boarded the Berengaria as she approached New York was Uncle Mike Jacobs who, it has been said, put up $15,000, sight unseen, for Farr to sign for the bout.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
Lou J. Colling

Earl "Sorry" Gray, former Belleville ball hawk now residing in Sudbury, paid a hurried visit to his home town over the week end. Sorry has gained 12 pounds since his migration to the Northland, but isn't getting in the amount of baseball he expected. "Up there its all work, sport is a second consideration," quoth Sorry, who is employed in a sawmill.

"The reason you see so many different line-ups in the Intermediate lineups of the ball clubs representing the town, is the fact at times is permitted off for sport. If you are employed on a shift that operates during playing hours well some person else plays, that's all there is to it," added Sorry as he headed his new surroundings. Mighty, Joe's a busy man these days, some disillusioning when the mercury drops to about 56 below next winter).

From what we could gather regarding baseball in and around Sudbury, the opposition intend to send out an all-star team into the O.B.A.A. playoffs. If this be true the provincial body should investigate, as such proceedings are violations of rules laid down by the provincial ball moguls.

Reg Dorey, Gananoque pitcher and Napanee outfielder Eddie Deluze sustained a spike injury during his initial game, Thursday this year and since being sidelined has only collected five hits in 36 times at bat, but is still ordinarily a .350 class hitter and his slump should be short lived. Gananoque invades the Timmins diamond maids.

The Lifflick City scribe says: "Frenz Harry Moore of the Trenton Courier-Advocate figures the Ashburns have a chance to win the crown on their offensive and defensive merits. Figuring out goals scored for and against, Moore figures an overall edge over Creighton for allowing an average of but 4 1-3 goals against him this season in a high scoring league. Meanitime, the Ashburns have tallied an average of 12 4-7 against other teams in games played up till the last one in June. "I'll admit we see that the Ashburns are justly entitled to their lead in every department."

For the first time in 23 years a Canadian boat lifted the George Cup, Robert McNair six-metre sloop "Aphrodite," representing the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, was declared yesterday best the Olcott Yacht Club's "Mist" for the second time during the current Lake Ontario Racing Association's meet of Rochester and Hamilton George Marshall trophy. We hope this is a good sign in favor of R. C. Hepworth's Endeavour 2nd in his quest for the America Cup the latter end of this month.

Apparently the Belleville Yacht Club punsters want a special invitation to compete in the annual Trenton regatta, according to humorous floating about. Thanks Smith says his 'doks will compete at Trenton regardless. Hepworth's club can expect to widen its ideas and aspirations by confining its activities within itself. It's going through our association with oblong that we grow.

Negotiations were opened today with the Brockville Pirates regarding that club playing one of its scheduled games in the Inter-American League, in Belleville next Wednesday.

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown—after settling the pace in the C.O.B.J.L. for the first half, the Kingston Ponies are coming in for more than their share of ribbing at the hands of the fans because the men-of-Daley have slipped a cog or two in second place as they face the Petes today. "Sport fans are the most fickle folks on earth, being loud supporters in success, but the reverse in the face of adversity," so says Bill Walshe, Kingston sports editor.

The Limestone City scribe thinks it unfair to have the general run of the Kingston baseball realm hop aboard the Ponies and commence knocking, last Sunday's game going it over rough waters these days. "It was ever thus, my friend."

He even goes so far as to make mention of the fact that every player on the Kingston roster was born and brought up within the sight of the Limestone City, with the exception of one. For a contending senior club that is a remarkably unpromising feature, he humbly sumbit.

Without much ado a new world's champion wrestler was crowned in Minneapolis, Wis., recently when one Bronko Nagurski (sounds like a Canadian cowboy ad) defeated Dean Detton.

The New York Giants moved a step closer to the Chicago Cubs by virtue of a win over Cincinnati Reds.

CRACK FIELD ROUNDS FIRST TURN IN RUNNING OF TUXEDO PURSE AT GOSHEN

Thudding hoofs, the creak of leather and the flash of glistening sweat-stained horses through a cloud of dust—this is what makes harness racing the supreme thrill to thousands of addicts. And here is a fine view of the opulent sport taken where the very aristocrats of the trotting breed gather for the world's highest stakes. It's a top-notch field rounding the first turn in the Tuxedo Purse at Goshen, N.Y., and "Freckles" is in the lead by a scant length. He couldn't hold the pace and "Mr. Wait" came on to win. Following over the line a winner "Freckles" took second spot and "Gunnar" the show position.

Tommy Farr, British heavyweight boxing contender ,arrived in New York yesterday. "He looks like one tough hombre," quoth Madchmaker Willie Jacobs, who in truth knows the Britisher has got to be tougher than tough to stand in with Louis for any encounter in a slugfest.

Mr. Green Asserts Himself

By RAY HAPERSTEEN
McClure Syndicate Feature Syndicate
WNU Service

Mr. Green was an old-fashioned man, and he disapproved strongly of bobbed hair. In the course of his long life he had learned to accept many feminine innovations, but the "it" in which women of a dozen brasses roamed as much of the savage in him as a mid-mannered man was capable of. He was willing to concede anything to his wife that would prevent her from giving in to the prevailing mode.

Mrs. Green allowed him to concede a good deal. As the oil-painting hood became his better half insisted that women were no longer household slaves; or else he fried his own bacon and eggs and ate in solitude. If his wife was late at a meeting held in the name of charity he left the hall light burning and went to bed unconcernedly to bed. And he tried to forget that he was a lonely man, with only a vanished charm for company.

Some people's idea of heaven is the possession of unlimited wealth. For others, power is the essential requirement; for still others, fine clothes and admiration of the handsomer. Mr. Green harbored no such peculiar ambitions. He merely wished to spend what remained of his life on the farm where he had been born and reared, to raise a few vegetables, and keep a cow. He had spoken of this to his wife only once, a couple of years after their marriage, and she had wasted mighty little sympathy on the project.

"A farm, where I can't take part in any social affairs—where I will have no poor to look after—Hiram, are you crazy?"

"Ain't it nice," he had urged, "to look out o' na pleasant little world of your own, where no one is poor or in misery——"

"And I'll look after the cow, I suppose. No, thank you. Women don't do that any more."

"Symbol, selfish, lazy women don't," he thought. But he said he sorry and his wife thought her victory complete.

Unfortunately, like others to whom the fruits of conquests come too easily, it turned her head a little. She began to regard her husband as a man of inferior intellect, while considering a wife like herself, with brains, ability and good looks. He noticed it, but bore it meekly enough, and things would have gone on that way for the rest of their days lived in Green Acres if he hadn't decided quite unexpectedly to go to the barber's and bob her hair.

"To the barber's—a woman—of your age——"

"Don't be an idiot, Herbert. All the women are doing it." She returned, and left him staring stupidly after her.

For a long time he regarded the room's four walls with dazed eyes. Then his face grew thoughtful, and he, too, put on his hat and coat and departed. When he returned home he brought with him a suitcase, into which he packed his belongings.

Mrs. Green came back three hours later, laden with parcels from the establishment, she didn't notice her mate's grimly determined expression, being occupied with pleasant reflections of her own.

"We had an election of officers this afternoon," she informed him, with a triumphant smile, "and I'm the new president."

She waited for congratulations, but, as none came, went on, quite happily: "We've voted for a beautiful concert. I'm going to go to the orphan asylum——"

A certain lack of warmth persisted in her companion's face then and she paused to look at him more closely.

Mr. Green took advantage of the pause to say, "I want to tell you, if you can find time to listen, that I'm going home—to the farm. I want to stay there for a couple of days to help you pack the furniture, if you will be careful to let his bulging suitcase—"I'm ready to leave tonight, and expect to be able to earn your own living. Only please remember, if you decide to come, that there will be no bobbed hair and canned goods are barred from my table. Good-bye, Hiram, and though you've never associated the woman with moment, that charity begins at home, and cooking a meal for one's husband occasionally is as good a form of service as charity as another".

Mrs. Green stared, dumfounded. "Do you mean," she asked, trembling with rage, "do you mean——"

"You heard me," replied Mr. Green, with cool emphasis: "I meant every word of it."

So this was the result of her glaring sod—Mr. Green brought herself up short. Had she really starved? Hadn't she, by taking advantage of her husband's good nature to neglect him and their home? And what would her friends say? She knew how women talked. As soon as her back was turned they would whisper among themselves that they didn't blame her husband for deserting her. And in any case how could she get along alone—without an income?

"I'll—I'll go with you," she said, pacin-stricken.

Herbert Green kissed her. "I won't be so bad—when you used to it," he said, encouragingly.

MADOC

Madoc, July 21.—The Madoc Women's Institute met on Friday, July 16, at Sagonaska Cottage, Moira Lake, the home of Mrs. Hugh Davies. Owing to the change in the date of meeting, ranging from the fourth Friday to the third Friday the attendance was not as large as usual. After disposal of the minutes and regular business, Mrs. R. Bristol gave the current events. A paper prepared by Mrs. Carl McCoy and read by Mrs. C. C. Moon on Canadian trustworthy, of national life, was very instructive, bringing back to listeners the history of the land they enjoy and reminding them of the national privileges during this time of worldly crisis. Another paper on the Canadian settler was read by Mrs. Davies outlining national origin and stressing beautiful heritage Canadians are privileged to enjoy. The meeting closed by the president welcoming the visitors and new members joining the Institute and the National Anthem after which a very generous lunch was served.

On Tuesday evening about twenty members of St. Peter's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society visited Mrs. A. C. Anderson at her home. During the evening the president, Mrs. J. MacCaffrey in an impromptu speech, spoke of the regret of the members of Mrs. Anderson's removal from Madoc. During her stay here she has been a worker in all organizations of the church, particularly the W.M.S., and asked her to accept a gift as a token of their appreciation for all she had done. Mrs. M. Mackinnon presented Mrs. Anderson with an inscribed cut work linen scarf and centrepiece.

Personals.

Mrs. Charles Wales, a one-time resident of Madoc and now residing in Boston, has received old friends for a few days last week.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 21—Further advances countered yesterday on local butter and cheese markets. Cheese potatoes and poultry were unchanged. The weekly local auction of cheese will be held today at 1:30 p.m. as the Board of Trade. Receipts were posted as 824 cases of eggs, 335 boxes of butter and 1,810 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Trading in butter was active at the Canadian Commodity Exchange, six lots of 200 boxes each being sold at 36 1-4c. Spot butter was quoted at the same as 36 1-4c to 36 3-8c for Quebec fresh 92 score; 35 1-8c to 35 3-4c for Quebec second 90 score; and 35 1-2c to 35 3-4c for Quebec June butter.

The cheese market was 14 1-2c for westerns and 14 1-4 for easterns.

On the egg market top grades continued scarce, particularly A-medium, and graded shipments were selling on spot in free cases at 26 1-2c to 27c for A-large, 24 1-2c to 25c for A-medium, 21—21 1-2c for B and 18c for C. Offerings at the Commodity Exchange were at 26 1-2c, 24 1-2c, 22c and 18 1-2c respectively.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 21.—(AP)— An attempted rally in the stock market today in rails and specialties failed to develop staying power and shares slipped 2 and more to two or more points.

Issues under mild pressure were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, New York Central, Great Northern Pfd. Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Anaconda, American Smelting and Sloss Sheffield. Many dropped more than two following the late company will offer shareholders additional stock.

Resistant shares were Eaton Mfg., Motor Products, Consolidated Edison, E. G. Budd and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Du Pont was up about two at one time.

Transactions were about 1,100,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE (Close)

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Interest in the western oils revived in today's session on the Toronto Exchange and higher prices were posted on substantial volume while base metals ruled higher and the industrials were irregularly higher at the finish. Narrow loses predominated in the gold group. Pamour Porcupine held down a third under profit-taking on the recent advance, showing heavy turnover.

Also active was Mc Colli Consmon the Senior Oil group recorded losses of two points, including British American, Imperial and Royalite, which closed fractionally advanced about two points and gain of 9 to 10 cents were showing at the close for Dalhousie, Model Home, Dalhousie, Calmont and Calgary-Edmonton and smaller gains were posted for United, Mercury, Rae Crest, Highwood, Monarch and Peralta. The main news was the proving of a new well for Monarch.

The lone of the base metals continued strong. Smelters added a point, Ventures 20 cents and Aldermac, Base Metals Corporation and Nolmetals. Nickel dropped about a point. The silvers were slow and unchanged.

Power, food and miscellaneous industrials boarded more gains than loses, Montreal Power, Shawinigan, United Peat Pfd. and Winnipeg Electric A added 1-2 to 3-4 and minor fractions were added by Abitibi Common, Great Lakes Paper Pfd., Ford A, International Metals, Cockshutt Plow, Standard Paving and Oppen.

Livestock

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Trading was dull on the plain quality supply on the Toronto Livestock Market today, prices were steady to a shade easier. Calves, sheep and lambs continued to produce trivial indications were one hog division would show any change. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 1,200 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 600; calves 500; hogs 900; sheep and lambs 430.

PICKLE CROW UP IN 2ND QUARTER

Output First Half of Year Close to Million-Dollar Mark

Production at Pickle Crow Gold Mines in the month of June set a new mark, reflecting the increased mill capacity, at $210,562, raising the total for the quarter to June 30 to $564,006, as against $408,947 in the first quarter of this year. Production for the six-month period to June 30 amounts to $972,-952.

Development ore now being put through the mill has resulted in heavy stamp recovery which is now approximately $20.35 in June, averaging over the quarter to be reported at $21.29 per ton.

President J. B. Hammell, following an inspection of the mine, reports that the lower levels at 750 feet and 1,200 feet are looking very encouraging. On the 750 foot level an exploration shaft is now sunk some distance west of the shaft and is opening up well. Between 600 and 700 feet from the shaft the drift will meet interesting diamond drill intersections, which will be thoroughly explored. The mill is running satisfactorily and is being stepped up gradually. Average tonnages per day in June was 341 as against 328 in May.

Production figures for the year follow:

1937	Tons	Recov.	Prod.
	Milled	Per Ton	Value
1st quarter	14,000	$29.15	$408,947
2nd quarter	26,480	21.29	564,006
Total	41,488	24.31	972,952

SETTLEMENT ANNOUNCED

Thorold, Ont., July 21—(CP)—Satisfactory settlement of negotiations between longshoremen employed at the Ontario Paper Company and officials of the newsprint firm which followed the slight day strike staged by the stevedores last week was announced today.

Market Comment

The market is beginning to show signs of breaking away from its recent narrow range and some of the base metal stocks have advanced appreciably from their recent lows. Noranda, particularly, having gained more than 10 points. Sooner or later the better tone prevailing in New York is bound to find reflection locally.

Drilling for oil is the most active industry in Alberta. General trade and industrial conditions are maintaining a fair level. Influx of tourists to the mountain and lake resorts promises a good season. Construction work is better than last year. Lumber fisheries promise a normal season. Mining operations in the north continue. Business conditions in Manitoba are maintaining a good level.

It is estimated that the unit volume of business of the end of Canada this year may approximate 175,000 automobiles and trucks in 1936. Costs have advanced somewhat, but the prospective increase in the year's volume is sufficient to indicate that despite this adverse influence, earnings will show improvement over the 1936 total of $2.62 a share. It is quite possible that automobile prices in general will be advanced in the fall of the year and, if so, Ford of Canada will probably join in the movement. But the prospective rise will certainly have an unfavorable reaction on the volume of business next year but it is difficult to see seriously this year's dollar sales total as a result. Dividend rate is likely to be supplemented by an extra payment before the end of the current levels, close to the 1937 high. Gypsum Lime & Alabastine has been a favorite with Canada Steamship investors for years.

Royalite Wells are Nearing Interesting Stage

Royalite Oil common, No. 5 and Richland No. 2 are both expected shortly to depth in the lime, with the former about 1,000 feet from the productive formation and the latter about 1,500 feet. Both companies are at present finding the lime harder than in the Monarch.

The Royalite Oil Company is a subsidiary of Imperial and the management is largely supervised by it. Richland is operated by Canol. Both companies will be completed with cable tools, reaming out the hole of any flow struck in the lime, but the completion will have to be handled carefully to guard against the control when the extreme point of porosity is struck.

Barometer

Little fellows in the stock market, particularly those who have bought for investment, have shown little enthusiasm lately, commission houses advise. Financial service, Odlum Brothers commenced about six months ago, is of experience and taught the Street that such reports are dependable gauges of the best stock market barometers there is.

On The Street

Influential Europeans have been studying the possibilities of Noranda Mines Limited and other Canadian Corporations. They have visited the properties of Noranda.... Gross back greatly improved.... Statement of earnings of International Nickel for the first half of 1937 will make splendid reading for the shareholders....Sales of National Breweries have shown an impressive advance during the last month.... The company has recently entered into New York City with their products. Good reception noted.... The directors of several other corporations will be under fire during the next few months just like the Gypsum holders have been..... The shareholders are keeping a close eye on their Presidents these days. A full day's work is demanded.

CAPT. HATFIELD SENT FOR TRIAL

Charged With Obtaining Money From Gov't. by False Pretence

Ottawa, July 21 (CP)—Captain Freeman Hatfield today was committed by Magistrate Glenn Strike of Hull to stand his next court of competent jurisdiction" on a charge of obtaining money from the government of Canada by false pretence.

Hatfield was brought here from Manchester, N.H., May 30 after a long and unsuccessful fight against extradition. He is charged by the Crown of having received more than $71,000 from the government on the pretence that ships the Empress Queen was torpedoed by a German submarine in 1915. The Crown contended the Empress Queen was sunk by a storm and that Hatfield knew that he was therefore not entitled to the reparation payment.

Trenton and District

Trenton, July 21 (Special)—Official Textile factory while carrying a cials of the Downs Coulter and Co. Ltd., of Canada, announced that the addition to the factory costing $50,000 would be completed by August 22nd. The new building is 150 long, 75 feet wide and two storeys high. It will be used as a sanding and storage room. Extra hands will be employed as soon as the annex is completed and machinery installed.

Mayor Dick Pabst Crowded General Hospital and according to the latest reports his condition is resting fairly well. Mayor Pabst is a member of the Capitol Theatre Board who also the Empress Queen will be lost to this team for the remainder of the season it was announced.

Highway Accident

Last night Constable S. M. Baird of 2 Crescent Road, Galt, was taken to Belleville General Hospital suffering a broken arm and severe facial and scalp lacerations following a car accident about two miles west of here on No. 2 Highway. The injured man was riding in a auto that was alleged to have collided with a car sideswiped by a machine operated by Mrs. Ethel Brooker, of Murphy Street, Trenton. The latter vehicle turned upside down in the north ditch at the side of the road and the occupant was pinned under it. P. C. John Whitby charged the Trenton driver with reckless driving after the smash.

Rotary Speaker

"Our Changing Times" was the subject of an interesting discourse given by J. Owen Herity of Belleville, to the members of the local Rotary Club on Monday evening in the Gilbert Hotel. Rotarian Herity introduced the speaker and hearty votes of thanks were tendered by Rotarian R. P. McInnes and R. Joyce, Rotarian of the Club. Mr. Herity explained the progress civilization has made during the last century, comparing present time machines with the implements used by our forefathers and pointing out the remarkable improvements in the method of transportation, farming and clothing manufacturing equipment. A new religion will be evolved out of the turmoil of the churches, he generally. The many lakes make this region very attractive to fishermen. The map is on a scale of four miles to one inch and is one of the latest additions to the more than 1,000 maps of areas throughout Canada distributed from the Hydrographic and Map Service of the Department of Mines and Resources. A charge of 36 cents is made for the map, but one copy will be sent free for the use of any school within the area upon application of the principal or board of trustees. All applications should be sent to the Surveyor General, Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa.

New Belleville-Kingston Map Issued in Topographical Series

Contains Vast Amount of Data on Eight Counties

R.C.A.F. COOPERATION

The new Belleville-Kingston sheet of the National Topographic series of maps, just issued by the Geographical Section of the Department of National Defence, contains a vast amount of detailed information on the physical geography of all or portions of Northumberland, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox, and Addington, Frontenac, Leeds, and Lanark counties. The completeness of the information furnished may be ascribed to the fact that much of the data on the network of rivers streams, and lakes, was secured from air photographs taken by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

100 Miles by 32 Miles

The territory mapped is 100 miles from east to west and 32 miles from north to south, and includes such popular recreational areas as the Rideau lakes, the Bay of Quinte, Stoco, Charleston Lake, and the western portion of the Thousand Islands. The chief cities, towns, and villages shown, besides Belleville and Kingston, Smith's Falls, Perth, Picton, Perry, Westport, Portland, Newboro, Gananoque, Harrowsmith, Yarker Sharbot Lake, Sydenham, Glenvale, Deseronto, Picton, Tweed, Madoc Stirling, Trenton, Brighton, Colborne, Campbellford, Marmora, and Havelock.

Highways, roads, trails, railways, ferries, and lighthouses are shown, this making the map of great value to motorists, canoeists, and tourists alike.

FUGITIVE SHOT BY POLICE, COMPANION TAKEN

Buttressed Behind Rocks Fugitives Shoot It Out In Running Gun Battle

Victor Szymonski, Alias Victor Gray Killed by Police Bullets

TOM SHOKE DYING

Both Men Wanted For Murder of Police Sergeant at Sudbury

Sudbury, Ont., July 22.—(CP)—Victor Szymonski, wanted for the slaying of Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury police force, was shot and killed early today by the police in a running gun battle that ended in a Canadian Pacific Railway cut three miles west of Nahm Centre. Tom Shoke, also sought in connection with Davidson's murder, was taken into custody after being wounded.

Fugitives Open Fire

Challenged by police as they headed into the foggy mouth of the rock cut just as dawn broke, the fugitives opened fire with shotguns. Buttressed behind jutting rocks, the officers shot the 34-year-old gunman, who stirked as he dropped.

Shoke, pulling an automatic revolver from his pocket, stood on the railway tracks and attempted to put up a battle. Suddenly turning, he fired over his shoulder as he ran.

A heavy haversack protected Shoke's head and bullets that went through it failed to bring him down. Finally he fell from a shot between the shoulder blades.

Shoke Reported Dying

Rushed to Espanola, Shoke was believed dying as doctors arrogged to save his life. It is expected he will face a murder charge, sworn out Tuesday, after Davidson, 41, who was dead near him. The wife and three children of Szymonski, at home with a garden they moved to a few before days were prohibited.

Verdict was "Gangster took his life," while the police of his mind was disturbed."

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Dublin, July 22 (CP)—Story of how a citizen evaded payment of nuisance duties of a cabin tax and from Belfast and then wished he hadn't is told by Quidnuncs in the Irish Times.

The Publisher hid his purchase in the cushions of his automobile and successfully passed the customs.

But before reaching Dublin he was hailed by a strict guard, who asked for a list. The hasty guard set down on the cushions concealing the china.

By the time he got out the damage was irreparable.

Stockwell, England, July 22 (CP)—Fifty years ago Bill Parkhouse pulled his bicycle to Liverpool and boarded a ship.

Second ship. At 80 he has returned to his home town with the same bicycle strapped to his baggage.

His brother Fred, 74, met the man and recognized the Canadian farmer by the bike. He refused to mount the e bike to ride it home.

"Of course I'm going to ride it," he said, "why, dang me, I paid £3 duty on the old bike."

Hackney, England, July 22 (CP) —A man's disappointment because he could not have his dog in his new flat was described at a Hackney Borough court. Walter Hooper, 62, costermonger.

His wife found him dead with his head in a gas oven. The dog was dead near him. The wife said Hooper was "fond of animals" and a home with a garden they moved to for their dogs were prohibited.

NATIONS CHECK MYSTERY PLANE

No Knowledge at U.S. And Canadian Airports of Craft

New York, July 22 (AP)—Authorities of Canada and United States stood by today for further word of the mysterious airplane reported flying eastward over the Atlantic, presumably European-bound.

A check of leading Canadian and American airports failed to disclose any definite information about such a flight, reported in a radio message from the British ship Cameronia off Bermuda.

The message, picked up by the Radio Marine Corporation's station at Chatham, Mass., said a plane was seen and heard flying eastward exactly 560 miles off Cape Race, Nfld., at 8:04 (E.S.T.) last night.

The crew heard the roar of the motors, looked up and saw the plane's running lights, said the message. Further details of the craft were not obtained.

City and District News

CHILDISH EXUBERANCE NEARLY BRINGS GRIEF

Childish exuberance and delight at playing in the warm waters of Oak Lake yesterday afternoon proved too much for little Stanley Hale, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hale of this city. While playing near the edge of the water at Hiney's beach Stanley slipped and fell and was unable to regain his feet. A resting standing nearby jumped into the water Jiffy Gall and rescued Stanley from his predicament. He was returned to his mother a little frightened but none the worse for his immersion.

POTATO CROP IS ... HEAVIEST IN YEARS

"We have had more than our share of rain" a farmer residing at Anderson's Church, four and one half miles south of Napanee, and who had a fine quality of new potatoes for sale at the city market today, stated. "Our potato crop will far exceed our expectations" he added. "Yesterday I dug a few rows in a two acre patch and came out with sixteen bushels. There will be no shortage of this vegetable, in our part of the country, anyway."

TOURIST OFFERED 75c DOZ. FOR CORN

"Give the tourist what he wants and he will pay for it" three farmers quoted this morning in their conversation. A passing reporter paused sufficiently to gather an interesting story. A dog's portion of a fence revealed the fact that the owner had corn for sale. For a dozen Seventy-five cents per dozen was offered by the first party halting for a supply of this succulent vegetable. By the next night seventy five dozen ears had been sold and disposed of to passing travellers. All this happened in the northern part of the county.

PILE OF SHAVINGS ON DUMP FIRED

Flames from a pile of shavings at the city dump, situated between George and John streets on the beach, lighted up the sky over the city during the early part of last night. City fire squads rushed to the scene and reduced the blaze after a strenuous battle. The fire which was of undetermined origin attracted a large crowd of spectators.

FRONT ST. LIGHTS NOW BEING CLEANED

Electric lights along Front Street were under welter treatment this evening. Today a regular washing and cleaning of the insect filled scilled globes by employees of Ontario Electric department was started.

FALLING FROM LOAD BREAKS HIS HIP

Samuel Sidey of Frank Street, Campbellford, broke his hip in the fall he sustained when he fell from a load of hay, a distance of fifteen feet to the ground. At present confined in hospital following an X-ray of the injury.

TESTING DAYS FOR NEW PLANES

Reason for what appears to be extraordinary activity and flying on the part of airplanes attached to the Royal Canadian Air Force camp, Trenton, is explained by officers of the camp who describe the present period as testing days for motors of the new Blackburn-Shark planes received there some time ago. The planes are taken up for six hours at a stretch and are immediately dismantled after thorough examination, following the flights. The planes are semi-stated at a cost of $38,000 each.

TRUCK ROLLS DOWN INTO RIVER

Leaving the Apsley Road near Bridleigh, Falls this week, a heavy truck owned by David Moore of Coe Hill, continued down the embankment of the River and settled completely out of sight into the deep water between Hungry and Lovesick Lake. The driver escaped from the machine with minor scratches. Dragging attempts are now being carried on to locate the truck.

V.O.N. OFFICIALS RECEIVED BY QUEEN

Miss Elizabeth Smellie, Chief Superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, and a frequent visitor to this city and this local head of the Order in Montreal, were included among seven Canadian women who were graciously received by Her Majesty Queen Mother Mary, in London, England, yesterday. The occasion was the international convention of nurses being held in England.

DR. GERALD A. MORTON LANDS 16 LB. BEAUTY

A splendid specimen of brown trout was caught Wednesday by Dr. Gerald A. Morton who while fishing near his cottage at Sulphon Lake. The fiiny beauty which weighed in the neighborhood of eight pounds and was twenty six inches in length and one of the largest specimens of this particular variety ever caught in the waters of Salmon Lake.

The catch brought up a somewhat dull day of fishing as Dr. Morton and Sheriff John O'Flynn, his companion, had decided to call off the day's operations. Taking a final turn around the lake in front of Dr. Farley's cottage, a spot so far unproductive of many catches of trout, the fishermen were hauling in their lines preparatory to coming ashore when the brown beauty struck.

CANOEIST HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Seized With Cramp While Taking Swim Near Trenton

Philip Hooper, Ottawa, who with his youthful companion, Johnny Simpson, of the same city, had completed 300 miles of a canoe trip to Georgian Bay, this week, yesterday morning, experienced his narrowest escape from drowning in the Bay of Quinte off Trenton, during the course of the regatta at Trenton yesterday afternoon.

Anchored at a buoy in the bay, Hooper left his dinner in the canoe for a brief swim. Cramps seized him after he had covered a distance of about one hundred yards and he sank from sight, shortly to reappear again. Sensing the danger the youth was in, Harry Bennett of this city, one of the contestants in a motor boat with the Jipsy punt, veered from the course and the race to aid. He reached the swimmer just as he was about to disappear again. Hauling to the boat by Bennett and David Blackburn, local member of the crew, resuscitation methods were necessary to revive him.

Deserted Fawn Is Given Home

A deserted fawn recently picked up by a farmer residing near Stewart, in North Hastings, has been given a home at the Peterborough Humane Society where a small menagerie of wild and tame animals is now quartered.

The usual fine display of bunch vegetables such as onions, beets, carrots, lettuce found a place in the kit at five cents.

Quantitemuscary cherries were offered in box and basket lots, with one vendor offering cherries grown in Bloomfield at fifty-five cents per six quart basket. Other prices ranged from fifteen cents to the high as seventy cents. Yellow transparent apples were shown in evidence and sold fairly well at twenty cents per half gallon.

Green beans were marketed at twenty-five cents the dozen for "A" grade, although they were available at twenty-four in some quarters.

Whitlefish was offered at twenty cents per pound.

FINE DISPLAY ON LOCAL MART

White And Bantam Corn Eagerly Sought by Shoppers

Presenting one of the finest mid-week displays of fruit, vegetables and general farm and dairy produce of the current season, a large number of vendors graced Thursday morning shoppers at the city market and showed a slight increase over last week both in the number of the week-end. While the popular prices quoted for the blue berries was ten cents the box and in some cases nine cents for case lots, various qualities were offered at varying prices. The red variety was generally quoted at twelve cents per box and eleven cents by the quantity.

New vegetables were offered in good variety with yellow and white corn on the cob, holding the attention of the early morning shoppers. Yellow Bantam was quoted at prices ranging from twenty to thirty cents the dozen with the white variety generally offered at from twenty cents up. New potatoes were plentiful and dropped to a new low, the general quotations being twenty-five cents per peck. Home grown tomatoes were scarce and demanded the high price of twenty cents per berry box. A splendid quality of cauliflower and cabbage brought prices from five cents to as high as twenty-five cents per head. Yellow and green string beans also made their appearance with some vendors offering a good quality at two boxes for five cents. Cucumbers were popular and sold fairly well at from five cents upwards.

The following officials were officially represented, Messrs. W. N. Ferguson, Trenton, Deputy Grand Steine, Jno. A. Weese, Jas. S. Barber, J. C. Andrews, J. F. Walker, R. D. Ponton, W. D. Embury, H. E. Redner, C. H. McDonald.

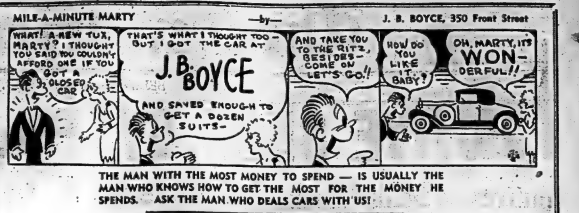
JAMES HAGGERTY HOOKS FINE TROUT

Brook Species Measures Sixteen Inches And Weighs 1 1-2 Pounds

The fish nearly got away. At least that is the story told by County Treasurer James Haggerty, who understandably is somewhat elated with a written proof of the weight, length and general dimensions of one of the largest speckled trout caught in the waters of the north country. It measured sixteen inches in length and weighed one and one half pounds exactly, according to the statement signed by Mr. Rollins of Coe Hill.

Fishing in a small creek in the vicinity of the village and using a hook and worm, Mr. Haggerty dropped his line in a quiet pool. A big splash and a rapid run and the fish struck. But a second later the line came up empty. Dropping his bait again it was only a few seconds before the finny beauty struck again. And this time he was hooked. Playing his catch for a period of time, Mr. Haggerty gradually drew him to the bank of the creek. Then a sudden flip, and the line and fish leaped clear of the water.

But all this point Mr. Haggerty overtook the doughty fisherman. As the line leaped clear he snapped at the fish, admiring the hook. The trout flopped away and lay threshing on the bank of the creek on the opposite side a scant few inches from the water. Mr. Haggerty didn't hesitate. Leaping into the water fully clothed he took the way to the catch and threw it to safety high on the bank.



The news soon spread. Taking his fish to Rollins' store he had it officially weighed and measured. The next day, Mr. Haggerty said the local fishermen flocked to the creek with tackle, but as far his record is still intact.

Election Not Expected This Year by Liberals

Liberal officers of local ridings today scouted reports that a "snap" election was in the offing, and that the Premier of the province in the near future, would call the people from their harvest time, as intimated by Conservative organizers yesterday. They point to the fact that as yet no convention date has been announced or candidate named to represent the riding of West Hastings in this section of the province to support their belief.

"Premier Hepburn is the one who will announce the election date and you may be sure he's going to give the various ridings plenty of time for organization before any election is held. We don't look for an election until next year at least" said a prominent officer.

Trenton Waterfront Alive With Activity as Regatta Produces Thrilling Finishes

Harry Semark of Belleville Gave up Winning Chance to Save Youth

Trenton, July 22 (Special)— For the first time in many years the waterfront was alive with activity when the initial annual Bay of Quinte Yacht Club regatta took place here yesterday. It was estimated that 3,000 people from the surrounding district and this place viewed the events. Prince Edward Yacht Club power boats drew much attention and the spectacular wheeling of "Buff" Cooper in the Dona Marie was a crowd pleaser. Bill Cooper ten-year-old son of Buff Cooper this country's youngest driver held the spotlight during the Hacker sea pup class outdriving the veteran Arnold Platt of Picton, Canada's oldest driver behind the wheel of the Bar Belt.

Dave Large Platt sent his smart hull across the line ahead of Star Four also of Picton to take the opening event and he gave a good account of himself in all other classes. Prettiest piece of driving was given by the intrepid Mr. Cooper, who pulled the Dona Marie out of a spin on the south end of the course in the free-for-all contest. The Dona Marie was caught in the back wash of the Grace M. of Picton as the two boats were rounding the buoy. Leaping high into the air the Dona Marie turned completely around and was facing in the opposite direction, when she landed.

Quickly Starts Engine

Cooper quickly started the engine, which had stalled and carried on to finish a tight second to the Grace M. piloted by Lawrence Robbin of Picton. Later it was feared, that a plank was split in the bottom of the Dona Marie. A Trenton driver Howard Johnson, took the free-for-all outboard race and Harold Craig of Trenton was the winner of the 3-to-5 horsepower event. Sergt. Symms of the R.C.A.F. also was victorious in an outboard event.

Bill "Foster Hewitt" McLean was at the microphone at the officials' stand on the government dock and his fine comments on the power division made the speed races more interesting. Trenton police patrolled the courses in Commodore F. L. Ward's launch with the P.E.Y.C. Commodore at the controls. At the conclusion of the afternoon Commodore Ward commended the Trenton Yacht Club officials on the manner they sponsored the meet. Mayor H. R. Grey made a few encouraging remarks and all the prizes were presented by Vice-Commander A. E. Godfrey of the R.C.A.F.

Steady Breeze Helps

A steady west breeze coming up around noon provided a perfect setting for the sailing events. The Belleville Yacht Club's strong turn out was heartily appreciated and each craft and crew turned in worthwhile exhibitions. A youthful skipper from Picton, Lloyd Vandusen with Allan Nourse at the ballards of the Coronation wrested the W. A. Fraser trophy for 14-foot dinghy competition on the Bay of Quinte. The R.C.A.F., Marconi rigged sloop Astra came home ahead of William Ickes White Wings to win the main class event. Scallywag of Belleville with Bill Bazinghen at the rudder gained a victory in the open dinghy class and the B. class punt race was taken by Arnold Rushlow's Dorothy of Belleville. Prests, of Belleville skipped by Glen Salisbury of Belleville set up the fastest time during the afternoon rounding the three lap course in one hour and 24 minutes to garner the "A" class punt and bilged board scow event. Douglas Hay of Trenton was triumphant in the C class punt race and Ambrose Smith of Trenton headed the field over the finish line in the snipe class event with Trudie.

Last Race to Save Youth

During the A class punt race Harry Semark of Belleville turned his famous Alaska off the course and saved a small boy from drowning. The Semark ship was in a winning position when its skipper went to the aid of the exhausted swimmer. Results: Power Boat Division: 151-cubic inch piston displacement: Bar Belt, Arnold Platt, Picton driver. Time 4.33. Hacker Sea pups inboard: Buff Cooper, Picton 4.25

210 cubic inch displacement: Dona Marie, Buff Cooper, Picton, 4.02.

Free-for-all outboard CT-12-powered Johnston, Trenton, 7.30.

Free-for-all inboard: L. Roblin, Picton, 7.45.

MARCONI

When Marconi passed away suddenly on Tuesday morning, the world lost a man the like of whom had never before appeared in history. There have been great inventors and discoverers but none have so turned the course of history as did Marconi. Had he not discovered wireless when he did, no doubt some one would have ultimately discovered it, but then it was so unusual, so strange a development that he must be given credit for being one of the greatest pioneers of progress in human history. In his own sphere he was undoubtedly the greatest living human being for he has blessed humanity in a way which has led to the rapid development of wireless and radio so that the whole has been changed. In the course of time, even deep-rooted customs must change as a result of this great discovery. Many have already been changed as have human lives. Already the course of events have been directed into new channels, lives have been saved from shipwreck, saving agencies have been given one of the greatest fillips of all time for radio and wireless enter the realm of great discoveries like pasteurization, antiseptic surgery and so on. Radio directs education, knowledge, entertainment and it is a modern school of everything.

Irishmen and Irish women take joy in the fact that the mother of Marconi came of the race which inhabits Erin. Like how many mothers of the geniuses who lead humanity, Marconi's mother did understand and prepared the way for him. His own native Italy did not appreciate his statement that "I have discovered how to telegraph without wires." He was only 21 years of age the time in 1895 and next year Britain gave him a patent for wireless telegraphy.

Many inventions have been not only a blessing but also have been used for destructive purposes. No doubt radio will be used in warfare to a large extent as it was in the last war, but besides this the discovery has meant untold blessings to the human race. It was Marconi's pleasure that his work should be a blessing to all mankind. He was a true Christian gentleman. In 1900 signals were transmitted across the English Channel. In 1901 with improvements in his discovery he established communications between Newfoundland and Cornwall. Wirelessing to ships at sea came and improvement followed improvement.

Canadians take pleasure that Canada always lent cooperation to the inventor. During the Great War Marconi was in charge of wireless operations for Italy, his own country. Later he discovered directional fireless methods. He became President of the Council of National Research and President of the Royal Society of Italy. He worked on the installation of the radio station at Vatican City and introduced His Holiness the Pope at the inauguration of the Vatican City station service.

Honors were showered upon him but he did not change. He was the simple tireless pioneer, inventor and discoverer, and he gave himself freely to every agency for world betterment. He sat at the Peace Conference in 1919.

It is a privilege to have lived in an age which produced a man of this supreme genius who more than an Alexander the Great has moulded the course of history in a few years. He has placed the stamp of greatness and supremacy upon scientific invention, putting it among the high services which wait upon mankind.

RANK AMONG WHITE WINGS

There is a spirit of rank in the air among the "white wings" of New York. Though they have a sombre olive drab garb, they are going to use titles to their better, the ranks of "captain" or "lieutenant" are to be spoken of.

There has been a smouldering desire to use policeman's or fireman's titles. The rank and file will go as "private" though some of the broom pushers desired to be known as "G-men".

Commissioner Powell sees a decided improvement in morale as the likely consequence of the innovation.

No higher titles than captain have been suggested. Captains have two gold shoulder bars, the lieutenants one.

So wags on the world with its cares and its ambitions.

The meaning of song goes deep. Who is there, that in logical words can express the effect music has on us? A kind of inarticulate, unfathomable speech, which leads us to the edge of the infinite and lets us for moments gaze into that!—Thomas Carlyle.

SUMMER SIESTA

Dripping I flung myself upon the float,
And let the sun take me in his stride;
Far off I heard the creaking of a boat
And the splash of oars forcing the river tide.

And all the long hot afternoon I lay
With drowsy eyes beneath a tent of blue;
Dreamily I felt the pulsing day
Lull the distant landscape to my view.

Suddenly a bronze girl moved and came alive
Like some sleek bird sweeping into space,
She cut the water with a knifelike dive,
And breathless came up laughing in my face.

MOTORISTS COMPLAIN THAT CITY HYDRANTS on Front Street have become a menace under parallel parking, several cars having been injured by contact with hydrants in pulling out from the curb. Seems like the hydrants will have to be moved or hydrant safety zones enlarged.

PEOPLE SEEM TO HAVE LOST THE ART OF LIVING NATURALLY, observed a well known citizen. Life now seems to partake largely of the artificial. The art of walking has almost been forgotten and the art of enjoying life as expressed in whistling. How many men or boys do you hear whistling merrily these days? Nary a peep. Whistling used to be a fine art and it certainly was developed into a first class attraction when boy whistlers stanging high on entertainment programs. Singing also seems to be passing out as a popular pastime, never heard on the streets and seldom in the homes. This is an age of speed and to a great extent artificiality as the citizen quoted above observed. Look at the amount of money spent in cosmetics yearly in the United States as one example —many million dollars.

THE BEAR THAT WALKS LIKE A MAN seems to be a very sick bear or man, from the reports coming from that distressed country of men, prominent in public and official life, being stood up against walls and shot down like dogs. Russia officialdom has a wholesome regard for the opinion of neighbors hence has an organization called Intourist charged with the duty of seeing that all visitors from other countries see good things and see all the good points of that country. Harold Denny, of the New York Times, is sending out apparently uncensored cablegrams concerning present conditions in Soviet land, indicating a change of policy for the noose is tightening. Denny recently called that (quote) "Nearly every mind that might have disputed with Stalin for leadership has been destroyed by execution, exile or imprisonment. If Lenin were to return to life in this Red State he'd be founded he would see few familiar faces. The hapless people here now are those in middling jobs. It is only obscure people who feel safe. That is true in every field including the Communist party ranks. This city's aspect is not different from ordinary times and no more troops than usual are in evidence." (end quote). Unhappy Russia, well called Red—red with blood of those who dared to interfere in any way by thought, word or deed, with the ambition of others more powerful than themselves.

ROMANCE

The boy and the girl sat on the park bench. The girl's head rested on her lover's shoulder. The boy whispered sweet nothings into her lovely ear. Above in the heavens, a million stars winked.

Suddenly a bright fell out of heaven — and the boy bent closer.

"A star just fell, my loved one," he breathed. "Make a wish."

The lass smiled sweetly.

"I wish" she wished. "that the boy I love would give me a nice roadster for a present—also a pretty wrist watch, and a big diamond ring."

The boy squirmed uncomfortably. Just then another star dropped from the heavens. The girl's eyes grew very bright.

"Look, Jimmy," she chirped excitedly Another star just fell, I wish—"

The boy swallowed hard.

"There there, honey," he interrupted hastily. "It's probably just your imagination!"

Mr. and Mrs. F. Emerson, Mohra, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Ruth Marguerite to Stanley Philip Tufts, youngest son of Mrr. A. Tufts, and the late Mr. Tufts, of Tweed, Ont. The marriage will take place quietly in August. 222-14

The Misses Edith Abraham, Dorothy Green, Daisy Bell and Edith Burnham have returned to have returned home after spending two weeks at Oak Lake.

Mrs. Ivan Hopkins and daughter, Loraine, who have been visiting Mrs. Hopkins' mother, Mrs. Florence Cunningham, John Street, have returned to their home in Thresher.

Mr. Clare Countryman of Toronto, returned to that city, Thursday, after a brief visit with his mother, Mrs. Florence Countryman, John Street.

Mr. F. A. Henibourn, Corbyville, left Wednesday for Belleville, where he has accepted a position with Walker Distillery. Mrs. Heinbourn and family will follow later.

Mrs. N. Frosts, Stratford, is spending a few days with friends in the city.

Dr. G. S. Cronk has left to spend a vacation with his family at Buck Lake.

Mrs. H. C. McIntosh and daughter, Vivian, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Nesbitt Campbellford.

Mrs. F. Corrigan and Miss Joan Fisher, Peterboro, spent Thursday afternoon with friends at the summer cottage of Mrs. Bert Mitchell, Bay View. The afternoon was spent in games and swimming and a delicious chicken picnic lunch was served. The presentation of a silver water pitcher to Miss Edith Burnham, R.N., was made on behalf of the circle by Lou Dougherty who expressed the good wishes of the members. Miss Bird charmingly thanked her friends for their thoughtfulness. With the conclusion of the very pleasant afternoon votes of thanks were extended Mrs. Miles for her hospitality.

Lieut. Fred Johnson, Bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal Band, is leaving today for the Bandmasters' Convention of Ontario and Quebec at Owen Sound. Mr. Johnson will deliver two papers at this Convention, one on "The Ontario Band Tax Law" and the other on "The Band in the Small Community".

Mrs. Grace Edison and Mrs. May Lapsley left today for Kirkland Lake and other northern parts.

Last evening the staff of the Hotel Quinte held a very enjoyable winner roast at Mohawk Beach, Shannonville. About one hundred members of the staff and their friends were present and spent a pleasant evening swimming, dancing and consuming appetizing wieners.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sprackett, Portin Street, will leave the city on Friday for a weeks trip to Toronto and Port Dalhousie.

BUTTRESSED BEHIND ROCKS down, then drilled bullets into him as he lay on the ground.

Imperial Secretariat Clue

An imprint of a rubber sole found at the scene of the shooting led to the capture. The tracks of the rubber shoes were found near Creighton Mine this week, heading in a westerly direction, and the following day ten miles away.

Inspector Knight posted men along the right-of-way near Naughton about 40 miles west of Sudbury, while others covered the bridge over the Spanish River on the Highway. Captured today, Shokie was wearing the rubber-soled shoes.

On guard in the rock cut, Sergeant Arthur Pace of the Provincial Police and Constables Stan Wilson and R. Turpin, Sudbury and J. Brown, Blind River, saw two men creep out of woods beside the track and start west. They were talking in Polish and one of the officers challenged.

"Stop—it's the police!" yelled one of the pair.

Officers Return Fire

Szymonski ran toward the rock cut, shooting as he ran. The officers returned fire and the gunman, mortally wounded, threw down his revolver and fired nine shots before he went down.

None of the officers were hit as they terminated the nine-day manhunt. They carried Shoke to an automobile and hurried him to Espanola, while Szymonski's body was brought to Sudbury.

Shoke had Davidson's revolver in his possession. The desperadoes had picked it up as Davidson lay wounded. In the back pockets of Szymonski, Sergeant and Shoke had supplies of food and ammunition.

Coroner Dr. E. P. Laflamme went to the scene with Crown Attorney D. D. Wilkins today. It was Wilkins who had prosecuted Szymonski for Davidson, Monday night, then laid before the Grand Jury charges of murder charge against the fugitive duo were laid.

Davidson and district residents pointed to photographs of Szymonski and Shoke as those they most sought. The two were seen together in the days before the brutal assassination of long criminal records, they were known by police of the northern part of the province.

Murder Warrants Issued

Murder warrants were issued immediately after the shooting which quickly spurred the most intensive manhunt Northern Ontario has known. Provincial and city officers, lumbmen and special constables poured into the bushlands and scoured communities in search of the middle-aged bespectacled Szymonski and his young companion.

The City of Sudbury posted a $250 reward for information leading to the apprehension of Szymonski and Shoke and Provincial Police announced the Provincial Government increased the price to $1,000.

Szymonski and Shoke were possessors of many records. Both had been sentenced to prison under several of them. When, or where they met is not known, but their criminal records indicate they had committed crimes, that including use of firearms was not unusual.

Captured Single-Handed

Szymonski had been sentenced to the penitentiary three times. A native of Poland, he was sentenced to 10-years' imprisonment with violence in 1910 but escaped the same year, to remain at liberty until 1914. Convicted of armed robbery in 1930 at Campbellford, Ont., he went to the penitentiary until this spring.

At the time of his death, Szymonski was wanted by Toronto police as Victor Gray on a charge alleging he shabbed a countryman.

Two Brushes With Gray

North Bay, Ont., Aug. 4 (CP) —Chief of Police William Clark of North Bay, who had a brush with Victor Szymonski and once captured him single-handed, and police were to be commended for slaying the gunman early today in ending the manhunt that had started with the killing of Sergeant Fred Dawson of Sudbury.

"My experiences with Victor Szymonski prompt me to say that he was dead when in a manner befitting his nature," said Chief Clark. He called Szymonski "a cold, ruthless criminal known to the police of Canada."

It was Clark, then an officer at Copper Cliff, who took Szymonski into custody four years after he escaped from Kingston Penitentiary, where he had been serving the first of three 10-year sentences.

"He would shoot at the slightest provocation and the lives of others meant nothing to him," said Chief Clark. "I had a tussle with him at Copper Cliff in which my life was in jeopardy until I had him behind the bars."

Clark said he was visiting a Copper Cliff establishment to look for illicit liquor. He found a group of about 15 men there, a table, one of them a "foreigner" with elbows on the table.

Get Fictitious Answer

Asking each his name, he got a fictitious answer from Szymonski and contradicted the "foreigner." Produced a letter, addressed from penitentiary for the man's arrest, he told Szymonski to get up and come to him with his arms raised.

Szymonski was defiant until the officer pulled a revolver. Then the fugitive whipped out a knife and a search revealed he carried a revolver, taken from the body of a prison guard he had disabled in escaping in 1916.

Szymonski refused to wear handcuffs, despite the officer's threats of shooting and by a masterful feint from the house with hands free. On the way to police headquarters Szymonski made an effort to overpower Clark in the moving car, but ended in a ditch with Clark astride the prisoner.

With the gun-barrel against his nose, Szymonski allowed himself to be handcuffed and taken to prison.

Clark's second experience with the Polish-born gunman was in August, 1926, when he was brought here to answer a charge of robbing the North Bay branch of the Royal Bank. This time Szymonski was carefully guarded until he was sent away for a three-year term.

Old Families of the County Gather at Oak Lake to Enjoy Fellowship Hour Together

Mortons, Batemans, McKeowns and Ashleys Hold Annual Picnics

COME FROM AFAR

Sport Programs And Other Entertainment Comprise Events

From the far-flung corners of the county they came, by motor, from cities to the east and to the west came members of three old families of Hastings County. Excited by the glitter and the glamour of the days of their pioneer forebears. Five generations represented they converged on beautiful Oak Lake yesterday afternoon and evening for some five hundred men, women and children to join together in the common blood bond characteristic of their pioneer forebears. Five hundred descendants of the Batemans, the McKeowns, the Batemans and the Ashleys scattered to the four corners of their native county and province had adde the cares of the day and once again held communion on the picnic grounds of this popular summer resort.

While the Morton and the McKeowns held their affairs a scenic Beach the Ashleys and the Batemans concoursed at Searles Beach and over all was plainly discernible that easy familiarity, that camaraderie and good fellowship, that hearty family reunions of this nature.

Seven Ages Represented

The seven ages of men were well represented. Silver-haired sires of sturdy stock fraternized with their grandchildren. Toddling babies the least of them enjoying their first picnic; babes in arms coming their debut; young people in the first exuberance of youth; middle aged ages in the prime of life, all thrilled at the meeting of the different branches of their respective families. It was a day of reminiscence for the older people. Incidents of years ago once again were recalled, the more interesting for the re-telling. Mellow stories of yesteryear were told to eager ears. Happenings of bygone days, mellow with the years were relived and re-enacted. It was a gala day for the older people. Everywhere the familiar handshakes were in evidence. Old nicknames were drawn from dusty storage. Old familiar scenes were brought to vivid verbal life in the language of these fine people.

There was diversity. The youth of the families were well content to let their sires sit in the quiet shade of the trees and reminisce. But youth must be served and the shades and dells, the strategic spots and athletic field rang with the joyous laughter of exuberant youth. And one of the most popular rendezvous for the various clans was the grassy picnic table. Heavy with sumptuous and delectable food practically every picnic table was crowded to capacity with hungry picnickers at both the mid-day and evening meals.

The Morton Family

Approximately one hundred and fifty of the descendants of the seven Morton brothers, who came to Canada from England and settled in the county of Hastings County gathered yesterday at Birch Beach. From all parts of the county of their origin they came, some from points outside the county.

Campbellford, Stirling, Belleville, Marmora, Morra, Thomasburg, Melrose, Rawdon and many other Hastings communities sent their quota. From early afternoon a steady stream of cars and other vehicles brought the Mortons, the Elliotts, the Frindles, the Haggertys, the Sayers, the Barnums, the Johnsons, the Demilles, the Ketcheson and many other names, that are familiar to members of this family. Shortly after one o'clock nearly one hundred and fifty members of the Morton family sat down to dinner. It was a festive scene as various friends long parted greeted each other across the dining tables. Then followed an hour of very agreeable social intercourse.

At mid afternoon under the direction of a sports committee consisting of Mrs. Burton Elliott, Mrs. Charles Ketcheson and Messrs. Charles Morton and Nell English, a varied sports program was run off. This was attended and greatly enjoyed by the majority of those present, especially the novel events of peanut and candy scrambles.

Family History Read

Following the sports events, the gathering listened to a brief address by Frederick Clarence Morton, of Toronto, on the origin of the family glories, a genealogical history of the Morton family was read in part by Mr. Elliott as was a detailed copy of the family tree. At the ensuing election of officers for the ensuing year, Mrs. Charles Morton of Stirling, was elected president with the 1937 secretary, Mrs. C. Bishop again assuming office. A sports committee was also elected. The question of holding another picnic next year was left in abeyance. Then followed an enjoyable period in which prizes were presented to the following:

Oldest lady present—Mrs. David Elliott, Thomasburg, 78 years; person coming the longest distance:—Miss Alma A. Morton, Toronto. Most recent bride.—Mrs. Taylor Franklin, Belleville; youngest baby present, Master Donald Cook, Belleville; largest family present, Mrs. Burton Elliott. During this part of the program mention was made of those members of the family who have passed on since the last picnic. These were, the late Ben Morton, Mark Sherry, Mark Morton, Mrs. Alex Morton, Silas Prindle and George Sherry.

Sport Results

Girls, 5 years, Joyce Morton, Barbara Bristol; Boys, 8 years, D. Elliott, Billy Angus; Boys, 9 years, Grant Elliott, Allan Elliott; Girls, 9 years, Dorothy Bishop; Boys, 10 years, Jimmie Bishop; Lady English; Boys, 12 years, M. Elliott, Billy Muldrew; Walking race, Beatie English, Eva Elliott; Ladies' race, Mrs. J. Cook, Mrs. C. Bishop; Free-for-All, Boys, Donald Sayers, Milton Elliott; Paper plate race, Mary Elliott, Donald Sayers, Mrs. Charles Ketcheson and R. Elliott; Conversation event, ladies, Luella Morton; gents, Rob. Morton.

The sports committee as elected at the meeting is as follows: Mrs. Lola Hopkins, Marmora; Mrs. Charles Ketcheson, Moira; Mrs. W. Hagerman, Belleville.

The McKeown Family

Under the able presidency of Mr. E. McKeown, over one hundred members of this fine old family sat down to a delightful dinner at the tables adjoining those of the Morton family. Following dinner the members came to enjoy the social intercourse which is next once again the friends they had not seen for some length of time. This family picnic held for the second time yesterday as tables hummed with activity. Again the second annual of the family in joyful reminiscence. While the majority of the members of the McKeown family live in Belleville, a great many journeyed from distant points to be present and renew relatives. There was no program but a program held by their family, but they were content to spend the day old-fashioned "visit" for the older people and the children to play. They enjoyed themselves either in the shade of the trees, around the picnic pits or in the shade of the trees.

A feature of the McKeown gathering was the presence of one of the oldest men on the grounds, John Allen, who, on Thursday, who recently celebrated his ninety-third birthday. Mr. Webb is hale and hearty and he takes himself immensely. He won the prize for coming the greatest distance present. Other prizes awarded by Secretary Mrs. Ernest of Brighton were: Person coming the longest distance, Mrs. Morris Bradley, Havana, Ont. Most recent bride, Margaret Bennett; Mrs. Andy Thompson, Bonarlaw, Youngest baby present, Marilyn Mature of this picnic was a graphic description and genealogical history of the McKeown family read in a splendid manner by Miss Rose McKeown, Belleville. This read was greatly enjoyed by those present. The next general meeting regarding plans for next year's picnic it was decided to hold it on Civic Holiday, August 2, 1937.

The Ashley Family

The annual reunion and picnic of the Ashley family, well-known residents of Rawdon Township, was held on Wednesday at Crescent Beach Park. Oak Lake. Many attended from the early hours of the morning at horseshoe pitching, swimming and renewing old acquaintances. At noon the tables were set for dinner, under the supervision of the ladies' staff of committee workers. Following the dinner the prizes donated previously were delivered by prominent guests and following reports presented by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Mitchell and the president was acted as chairman.

The afternoon entertainment was provided by a sports committee under the leadership of Mrs. Chester Sills. Races and prizes, shoe pitching contests had a prominent place in the programme.

Officers for 1938

The election of officers for 1938, which was conducted during the business part of the meeting resulted in the following officials and gentlemen being selected to direct the activities of the organization for the coming year. The fourth Wednesday in July was selected as the date for the picnic next year and the place, Crescent Beach Park.

President—Mr. Aaron Ashley, West Huntingdon.

Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. J. Lake, Foxboro.

Press Secretary—Miss Mildred Jones, Marysville.

The Bateman Family

Wednesday, July 21, marked the eighth anniversary of the Bateman picnic which was held at Searles Beach, Oak Lake. Among those about two hundred relations of the Bateman family who ate dinner, and in the afternoon more came bringing the total attendance up to around 250. Mrs. W. J. Tanner of Harold, opened the business meeting of the day and welcomed all the Bateman's and their descendants to the picnic. Mr. C. A. Bateman of Belleville, read the minutes of the last meeting which was held at Tweed one year ago and gave a short address on various items in regard to the picnic.

The meeting was addressed by several from a distance as well as by many of the local people, although all the remarks were short, they were very much appreciated by all.

Mrs. Newton White of Springbrook, gave a very interesting address on the happenings of the past year, mentioning in her address all those who had passed to the Great Beyond, since the last picnic.

Prizes Awarded

The prizes for the oldest people at this picnic were won by Mr. Sam Tanner, Mrs. Jas. Bateman and Mrs. Wm. Bateman.

$5,000 Fire Sweeps House and Barn

Peterboro, July 22—A nine-room, two-storey frame house and large frame barn on the Chemong Road, 2,000 yards north of the city limits were destroyed Thursday afternoon by a disastrous fire of undetermined origin and the loss is estimated at $5,000. Three calves were burned. The buildings were owned by Mrs. Clifford McKane who, with her husband and family occupied the ground floor; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burke, son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. McKane, occupied the second storey with their four children and Harold Eccles was also a tenant.

This is the second major misfortune to visit the McKane family in a year, as Billie McKane 11, and Francis Burke, 11, were killed by an auto last November as they walked along the highway toward their home being struck down by a car.

BROWNS LOSE AGAIN

Even With New Manager at Head, Team in Doldrums

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The wolves are different in St. Louis.

Anywhere else, when they start to howl, the dictates are they'd do some ball players. But when they open up on the Browns, they wind up with the manager's scalp—and don't ask why.

If anyone could have done a better job with the Brownies than Old Ralph Hornsby, he hasn't made his appearance in big-time ball up to now. Certainly no one can do any better than the last of the .300 hitters with a pitching staff that was virtually non-existent. Ralph was plenty lucky to finish in the same league with the rest of the American League barrygees. That he finished out of the cellar last year was a miracle.

But the new Hornsby bosses, who took over the Club before the season opened, have used little if any cash for pitching talent. Instead of giving Hornsby some chewing on who might help, they let him get off finishing what they started, the powers that be fired Hornsby. Figure that one out.

Could Tell The Tip

They might have taken a tip from the Boston Bees. Bob Quinn moved in there this year, had a clash right off with Casey Stengel, the manager, and when the both ends of a double-header broke up.

A homer by Ray Mueller with the bases loaded in the 11th inning won the first game for Pete. Then Lanning, matched against Dizzy Dean, tossed a two-hitter at the Gas House gang for the nightcap decision.

Two Full Games Ahead

Chicago Cubs, meantime, stretched their National League lead to two full games over the crippled Giants by whipping the Phillies in a twin bill. The most astonishing part about it was that Bill Lee and Larry French allowed only 14 hits and one run in the Phils' pint-sized ball orchard to win 4-1 and 6-0.

A five-run rally in the fifth gave Cincinnati Reds a 6-4 decision over the Giants. George Jeffcoat turned in a four-hitter to shade Carl Hubbell of the 6-0 Brooklyn win.

Although Sunny Jim Bottomley was the new manager for the Browns, it was the samir-old ball club. So the Tigers trimmed them, as usual, 6-3.

Jimmy Foxx knocked out two homers for the second straight day to lead the Red Sox in a 7-4 walloping of Detroit Tigers. Washington's Senators ended a 12-game "winless" streak by copping the White Sox 7-3. Cleveland Indians just managed to nose out the Athletics in both ends of a twin bill, 9-8 and 8-7.

TENNIS

Point Anne netsters took the odd point in five as they won on the home courts three games to two over their Trenton rivals in a scheduled Bay of Quinte League tennis match yesterday.

In the mixed doubles Miss Thelma Reeves and Johnson, Trenton, won over Art Greenaway and Pearl Tuik, Point Anne, 5-7; 6-3 and 6-1. Second men's doubles was won by the home team as J. Hart and L. Roseberry Point Anne, triumphed over J. McCarthy and Jack Taylor, Trenton, 8-3 and 6-1. Point Anne also won the ladies' doubles as Mrs. J. Murphy and Miss Hilda Callaghan won over Ileen Pillon and Margaret Brown, 6-3, 3-6 and 6-4. This was the only extra game match of the day and saw some keen competition.

In the first men's doubles R. D. MacDonald and Nolan Cook, Trenton, won over T. W. Bowler and Mac Carter, Point Anne, 6-2, 3-6 while in the mixed doubles Point Anne won the odd point that gave them the day's honors as Miss Dora Williams and W. Ward, Point Anne, won handily over Miss Ella Hyde and A. McKenzie, Trenton, 6-0 and 6-4.

TORONTO LEAFS TAKE BEARS FOR PAIR OF WINS

Become First Club to Nosey Hand Rookie First Defeat

ROYALS WIN 5-3

Rochester in Slugging Mood And Down Orioles 12-1

(By the Associated Press)

Are Newark Bears slipping? The rest of the International League players have their fingers crossed and hope it's so.

The Bears have dropped their last four out of five games and the other clubs hope it becomes a habit.

The league race has become a farce, with the Bears leading the second place Montreal Royals by 17 1-2 games, and if it wasn't for the playoffs, where the first four teams qualify for a shot at some extra dough, the last three clubs might just as well pack up and call it quits.

Toronto Leafs, fighting to stay in the first division, gained some sweet revenge last night when they took a double-header from the Bears 3-2 and 3-1.

The Leafs almost became the first club to hand Manager Oscar Bruin's sensational freshman hurler, his first defeat. But luck was with the Bears in the pinches. Lindell, who has won 14 games, was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the winning inning of the first game with Leafs leading 2-0. The Bears tied it up, and Joe Hutcheson, Leaf hurler, was scheduled for the winning run and charged with defeat.

Royals increase their margin over third place Syracuse to four games when they trounced the Orioles 5-3.

Buffalo Bisons remained within hailing distance of the first three clubs snapping out of a batting slump to defeat Jersey City Giants 9-4. Rochester Red Wings were also in a slugging mood and smashed out 12 hits to trounce Baltimore Orioles 12-1.

Larry O'Connor Sets New Records In Hurdle Races

Toronto, July 22—(CP)—A fleet footed youth from Queen's University and a slim Canadian lumber-jooper today added glory reflected from one of the finest track meets Toronto fans have seen in years.

Arthur Godfrey Brown, captain of the Queen's championship track force, unconquered in their North American team tour, and Larry O'Connor, Timmins, Ont., star of the Canadian harriers, were jointly acclaimed.

Brown scored his team to victory in last night's meet in a Dick Merriwell finish, clinching the sensational win against York Rugby Stir. Shaken up in a fall in the 440, Brown, Queen's crack relay 1st lap man in the relay, final event of the program, to snatch victory from defeat by a six-yard margin.

O'Connor Impressive

Less sensational, but no less impressive, O'Connor's performance included high scoring of two Canadian records and establishing himself unquestionably as among the world's foremost hurlers. He sped into the tape eight yards ahead of Bill Parcells of Ohio State in the Oxford-Cambridge in the short hurdles event, his time being 15 13 yards in front of Briton D.A.D.L. Evans in the 120-yard high.

His time in the 120-yard high hurdles, 14.4, was the fastest made in Canada this season. Then he bettered Earl Thomson of Winnipeg and Dartmouth who won the Olympic event in 1924. O'Connor, an Olympic point-winner, shaved centimilli of a second from the existing mark in the 220-yard low hurdles with a mark of 24.3.

Fell Rounding Turn

Brown suffered his tumble in the 440 as he was about to challenge West Indy's Ellis Peris. He fell as he rounded the turn at the end of the stretch and Pris, one of the world's best quarter-milers, had an easy victory. Meanford, Ont., was represented in the victory column by Ila famed twins, Harold and Wallace Brown, who placed first and second in the broad jump.

Alan Pennington, class of the Oxford-Cambridge units, also took a double winner along with O'Connor, striking home first in Jack Brown in both the Century and furlong dashes. Toronto's Brown recorded the circuit's 220 furlong, however. In the short dash Brown missed victory by the narrowest of margins.

The two mile run was another feature with Milton Wallace of Toronto breaking the recognized Canadian record, his two minutes 22.8 seconds was a shade slower, however, than the mark set up Tuesday night by C. A. J. Emery of Oxford-Cambridge at the Hamilton meet.

NO CHANGE IN SOFTBALL LOOP

Corbins And Point Anne Each Win Their Games

The Point Anne "cementmen" and the Corbin Locks continued setting the pace in the local Senior Softball loop as the "Cementmen" defeated the Bellville Sargents 6 to 3 at Point Anne in smilinus at tops in the league with the Corbin Locks taking a fall out of the Pershal Store by the same score 7 to 3 at Coleman Flats to remain one-half a game behind the league leaders.

Brown at Point Anne Stan Luffman, hurling for the home team, and Eddie Schreider on the mound for the "lockmen" hooked up in a sterling pitchers' battle. Luffman getting the decision. Although the best of their hits to pound out base runners, when the paths were populated, the "cementmen" ganged up on their visitors to score a brace of counters in the second and duplicated this feat in the third to take a commanding lead. The Bell-Sargent, scored, their runs in singles and were few and far between.

Cole and Meadows collected a brace of hits for the losers, while Murray was the only "cementmen" to collect more than one safely. The homeruns touched Sargent for the eight safe hits, while Luffman yielded only seven. The fast smart fielding of both clubs featured in the game.

Corbins Easily Best

Limiting the Percivals to six slim safeties, Bawden hurled to lead the Corbin Lock to a 10-3 triumph over the Percival Store at Coleman Flats. Philp and Clarke bit two singles each for the losers and were the only members of the Percival Store squad to give Bawden much trouble. Mann, Curtis and Harris each had a brace of safeties as their contribution to the Corbin collected at least one safe hit. The Corbins pounced on Sarriage, Percival starter, for three runs in the initial frame and added a trio more in the fifth to clinch the game in its victory. Bawden was in splendid form, striking out in the sixth, with two walks and three hits saw the Percivals score their three tallies.

Bawden helped his own cause with a home run into the fifth but the first pitch for the circuit with Tuttle clouting a four bagger in the fifth. Thrasher hit a home run in the ninth, with two aboard, to score two of the Percival runs. A sensational fine fielding was seen, with Smith making a sensational one-hand catch of Bawden's drive in the sixth, Bawden struck out an even dozen, retiring the side by that route in the third and ninth. The game was officiated by George Clapper and Harry Knott.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Lou Fette and Johnny Lanning, Bees—Held Cardinals to five hits and two hits, respectively, for 3-1 and 2-1 doubleheader win.

Tommy Punz, Reds—Hit two homers in 10-3 win over Tigers.

Bill Lee and Larry French, Cubs —Stopped Phillies 4-1 and 6-0, respectively in twin bill, allowing eight and six hits.

Kemp Wicker, Yankees—Held Browns to 10 hits and drove two runs in with single for 6-3 victory.

George Jeffcoat, Dodgers—Pancaked seven and handcuffed Pirates with four hits for 6-0 triumph.

Simmons, Senators—Hit homer and single, driving in three runs, for 7-3 win over White Sox.

Napanee Catcher Doubles in Ninth to Score Two Runs

(By The Canadian Press)

Midweek features of Ontario's three Senior Baseball leagues were the defeat of last year's Ontario champion Oshawa team by the lowly Napanee Gibbards, and the victory of Strathroy Royals, an intermediate outfit in 1936, over the Intermounty Leaders, Stratford Nationals. The Niagara District League Merritton continued its climb from the cellar post with its fifth straight victory, this time over Niagara Cataracts, to climb into a second place tie with Welland.

Catcher Kirk Jeffers faced the story-book situation when he went to bat in the ninth inning for Napanee with two out and two men on base. He responded brought in the tying and winning runs. Oshawa had overcome a nine-run deficit in the Eastern League by a final 11-10 but Jake Biddle, star hurler of the Champs, couldn't put the winning ball past Jeffers.

In the other C.O.B.L. game Kingston Frontenacs spoiled the farthing Peterborough outfit in a wild game at Kingston, Ont., by a 16-10 score. Trailing 14-10 but threw in six errors that cost them the game.

Authentic information leads us to believe there will be a meeting of the local Rugby Football Club called early next week with hopes of reorganizing the membership of the fall classic. It is also stated that if sufficient interest is not shown by the business men and other sportsmen of the community, the football club will be disbanded and the equipment sold. Those at the helm of rugby football should full well realize the folly of expecting enthusiastic support of the general public when the lack of ownership of any sporting event in Belleville.

For these many years back the local sport fans sit back and let the chosen few do all of the organizing and missionary work, then if the respective sport is a success they are all right there with banner and give their undivided support through the turnstiles, but if the team is not "tops", it's the same old story, empty stands and the players, Rugby football is advancing in public favour in Belleville, as increased attendance has proven of late years. If the rugby club can promote pre-season interest sufficient to stimulate the game all will be well, but the past history of previous experiences a few seasons back has undoubtedly been a burden. If they produce a playing combination, they need little support from the public in the second half of the season. Veteran baseball fans may well regret the passing from the picture of Rogers "Rajah" Hornsby, who was yesterday relieved of his duties as manager of the St. Louis Browns. Often called the "greatest righthand hitter of modern times" the "Rajah" was a hard taskmaster, being a fighting ball player himself. He was temporarily replaced by Jim Bottomley.

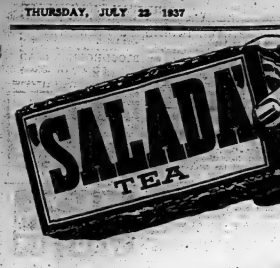
Joining the Cardinals in 1915 Hornsby led the National League in hitting for seven consecutive years and was voted the most valuable player in the league three times. He managed major league batting mark of .424 in 1924 when he helped the National League home run record of 42, established in 1922.

With Hornsby at the helm in Pittsburgh the Cardinals won their baseball championship, only to part with Percival Store outfit and meet the cellar team, Asimas. The result means much to the latter, as it tops the eliminists down. Incidentally while on the subject we have been informed by folks in Cobourg next week during their town's Centennial Celebrations. Other high-class sporting events have been included in a 6-mile long programme.

Down in Napanee, Tommy Webster "forged" into the limelight for seven frames until "Lefty" Biddle came to the fore in the eighth and then it was dog eat dog. The Gibbards were seven or eight runs to the good at the end of the eighth when Pointer hit the fields, only to have the runners come from behind in the ninth and win, after knocking "Dean Oyler" out of the box. Strong Walt Gerow came through with three timely hits, including a two-bagger that really counted and is flaying Napanee today in the top of the Toronto Baseball Club's baseball school at the Maple Leaf Stadium.



We firmly believe what Pointer needs to become a really top-notch hurler is more work in the box and at it. The manner in which he is knocked "off" in the early stages yesterday substantiates our belief.

Down in Kingston it was definitely a case of the home team's spheroid around for four consecutives canters in the initial frame and the Ponies pushed across four scores in the first stanza. Generally the Pries came from behind to score two in the second, three in the third and one in the fourth to shelf the veteran "Tammy". Jamieson from the mound. With a nice two run lead tacked under their belts, the Pries proceeded to kick the cover around (to say nothing of throwing the ball with utter abandon) until they actually threw the game away. Once again the Pies made arrival at Myrtle with only one pitcher. "Gunner" Whitehill hurled as good a hit ball as Kingston could be asked for but when the Pries commenced to throw the ball around like the proverbial school children and the relief hurler was needed, Bill Calladine was pressed into service and did very well under the circumstances that prevailed. We cannot give much consideration to the box tops in the C.O.B.L. today. It wasn't their playing that lost rather the poor attempt at defensive playing by the Pries and the belated rally of the Gibbards. "Thank Wall Gerow, Mr. Daley."

We had our first peek at Mr. Paul Beckett, the new Kingston hurler, yesterday. First and foremost he's no Clancy. True enough, he showed a lot of stuff but when he uncorks his "fast one", behind in the park seems to know exactly where its termination may be. Incidentally playing post rather the poor attempt at defensive playing by the Pries and the belated rally of the Gibbards. "Thank Wall Gerow, Mr. Daley."

Skipper Joe Daley gave the C. O. B. L. fans a real treat in Clancy, Ont., despite the fact that he was good moundsman in Frankowski he did still give his mid-day mail to have the Philadelphia "Bud Clancy" back again.

HER NAME IN LIGHTS

By ANNE BLAND

It should have made her happy to tabulate the morning's mail that meant more money for her. She should have been thrilled by the success of her drip, by the publicity which the product was getting. She should have been gratified by the letters that were sent to her from her home office.

But she wasn't. Because the place where those things are warm is in the heart and her heart was numb.

She had letters from Jennifer Brief, little notes. She had hoped before she left that Jennifer, in the excited happiness of her opening, would forgive that quarrel they had had two days before she left when Jennifer learned that Daphne had persuaded Tack not to see her. Apparently she hadn't. Her notes were curt and merely passed on news about Larry's accident, the mail and the show.

'Apple Blossoms' had opened in Philadelphia, and gone right into New York, rather disappointingly since the Philadelphia critics had been enthusiastic about it. The New York critics hadn't been bad but the house was well sold and they had been running six weeks. It looking as though it would carry through the season.

x x x

Daphne was glad for Jennifer. Glad that one of the critics had noted the performance of "a newcomer who appears to be adaptable" and has a fresh beauty not seen on the New York stage in recent seasons."

Daphne wrote an encouraging note to Jennifer and applied herself to the problem of collecting trunks accidentally left in Duluth, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City, Back to Chicago. Later to Cincinnati, still later, Oklahoma City, Salt Lake City. Finally, Seattle and San Francisco, and three months after she had left—it was now the end of November—the tour was over and Daphne was on her way home.

"Please meet me," she wrote Anne. "I feel horribly homesome suddenly. Trip has been a success I think, but now I'm itching to be home. Only I don't want to arrive all by myself. I've asked Jennifer but I'm afraid she has to act in Theatre."

Jennifer was not at the theatre because Daphne's train arrived at Grand Central in mid-morning. Jennifer was waiting for her. Jennifer in a green suit with a great collar and muff of coon fur.

"I had to do it, Daphne. If an actress doesn't dress, she gets nowhere. I suppose you know the show closed."

Until that Daphne asked as though Jennifer had said "the lights went out." Not at all important.

"I'm, but I'm not worried. Herzberg seems to be impressed by me. He keeps in touch with me and he has a story! I'm really intrigued with it wouldn't be a bit surprised if he offered me the lead."

"I hope he does. What else is new? Have you been having a good time? And do we get to have our kitchen jewel? And is there any mail for me? And was anyone asked for me?"

"I've been having a good time. I'll tell you about that later. We still have our kitchen jewel and a few people have telephoned, but I can't tell you who just now. I just told everyone you were away and you'd be back the end of the month."

x x x

"Did....." Daphne was about to say "Tack" but if Larry had telephoned but she thought better of it. She couldn't bear it if Jennifer was going to ask about Larry.

"And let me see, has there been anyone looking for you?"

Daphne pretended it really wasn't important to her.

"Not a soul that I can think of offhand." Jennifer said after a long, agonizing silence.

"It's gotten cold, hasn't it?" Daphne shivered in her tailored suit.

"Where'd you pick up that snappy model, Daph?"

Daphne realized with some disappointment that it couldn't keep chill in her brown tweeds. She hadn't had time for a finger wave in the last few days and was dry and gray and tired from travel. Jennifer's hair looked as though her own had got of it. She felt that there was more than six years between her and her sister.

She thought of all the money she had in the bank. The fourteen check had been sent to her at San Francisco. Her shares of the show would add another thousand to it. A dream realised. And life a dream it had been to impress her conscious mind. The money had been a symbol, but for months it had been more. Now it was the rock over which she had stumbled. She didn't think of what she could do for Jennifer.

"Have you got to go to the office?" Jennifer asked.

"Not today. I think I'll go home and remove a little of the far west, the middle-western states and the effete east from my person. Then—oh, where's Anne?"

"At the apartment by this time. She had to deliver some stuff in the neighborhood. She wants you to come to her house for dinner. She's having some people in."

"I think I'll call her and you and I will dine together. That is, unless you're busy."

"Well, I....., yes. I am, Daphne. I guess I might as well tell you before someone else does." She smoothed the finger of her diamond ring. Larry. We didn't know you were coming..... and, last Sunday, when I was with Brett Hall—he took me up for the day—we.....that is.....

"Oh, that's right. I really wanted to talk to Anne." Daphne said and pushed her bag for change for the taxi driver.

CHAPTER XX

Daphne said yes, she had certainly liked San Francisco and that she would like to have seen it when there was a Barbary coast. No, she said, she hadn't met anyone named Mickel when she was in Cleveland.

She told them the story about the midget who walked up and down all night in his berth. She admired the sketch someone showed her of the town hall at Marietta. She danced with three people. She told Mr. Todd that she liked Rockefeller Centre and that he was all wrong if he had gotten any other impression.

She did her very best to be the kind of a guest she should have been at Anne's annual party for her advertising agency friends but when 3 o'clock came, she picked herself up from her cushioned seat on the floor and slipped away to the bedroom to get her wrap.

Anne closed the door softly at her back and they were alone for the first time.

"Lovely party, Anne. Mr. Todd told me that he wanted you to do their spring book. You powdered her nose.

"Never all about that so let's skip it. What I want to know is what's happened to you?"

"We'll take about it some other time, darling. I hear your guests screaming for you. That's a sure sign of success."

"Let 'em scream. Oh, I wish I'd had a chance to talk to you but you know how it is."

Daphne was getting into her wrap. "Of course, I do. Give me a ring at the office tomorrow."

x x x

Anne stood at her back looking into the same mirror. "What's the matter, Daphne? You look as though the devil himself had chased you through the country!"

Daphne drew her head and hit her lip in an effort to keep back the tears.

Anne was stunned. Do I see tears? Have you had bad news?"

Daphne nodded her head.

"The job?"

"No," Daphne said. "It's just that I'm an unpleasant girl. I'm cracking up because my sister stole my beau."

"Jennifer and Larry? But that's ridiculous. Why I've seen them together three or four times in the last month but I..... She realized she had said too much. "Is there some trouble between you, Daph?"

"Yes." Daphne drew on her gloves, "it was all my fault and Jennifer is beautiful so I guess I'd better get a grip on myself. Why shouldn't he fall for her?"

Anne pulled Daphne down on the bed beside her. "I'll tell you why, you little fool; because Jennifer isn't worth your little finger and because she is a..... well, what kind of a girl is she who'd do a thing like this to her own sister? She knows that you were in love with Larry. You ought to teach her a lesson for her own good!"

x x x

Teach Jennifer a lesson for her own good!

x x x

For Jennifer's good. For Larry's good, Jennifer loved everyone. When she had no reason not to believe that she could always take what she wanted, have everything she desired no matter who it hurt. She was young, beautiful, ruthless. And some day it would hurt her. That some day was still Daphne's responsibility. That thought she kept in mind.

"Do you mind terribly about Larry?" Jennifer asked her.

"Why should I?" she responded, coolly.

"I've got to rush if I'm going to meet Larry"..... "You understand why I don't ask him here, don't you, darling? I don't want to embarrass either of you"..... Larry was showing up some time that week for the new building the Trepel school is putting up at Plantsport"..... Larry and Larry like that.

Not by one small sign did Daphne Brett betray that anything had happened to her when she heard the name of her sister's lover. She swift, hot pain that smote her and retreated slowly along an aching path of memory.

She picked up the threads where she had left them and was quite astonished to see how few they were. She hadn't realized how completely Larry had filled her life—how many pleasant companions she had let go entirely for the sake of Larry.

"So you're in circulating again," they said on the telephone after she had sent cards to say that she was home at last. The cards had been on Sunday for tea.

"Yes, I'm in circulating," and thought how artificial she was going to become.

"Do come on Sunday," she said. Oh, yes, please come on Sunday because on Sunday she could always say that she is going up to Brett Hall. "Larry came for me and drove me up last Sunday."

"Daph, I saw Gordon Hershey today. He's got a marvellous play show. He took me to lunch and told me about it. There's a part that calls for a girl who is more or less like you. I'm going to read it and I think he's interested. So, I didn't pay any attention to the call from the telephone girl, but rather stay with Gordon, if I can. Heavens is that late? I've got to fly. I've got a date, Jennifer first.

That hurt, too. That new habit of saying, "I've got a date." Not saying where or with whom, but saying her to guess that it would be with Larry.

x x x

One night Daphne allowed herself to get "weepy." She sat again the tender gestures that were part of Larry. Once, she had got excited when Jennifer and not herself. In the midst of her misery the telephone rang.

She reached for it and said, "Hello." In a strangled voice.

"Is Miss Brett in?" It was Larry.

"No," she said and put the receiver back.

Oh, Jennifer it isn't fair! You've always had everything. The best dolls when we were little and the toys when you yelled for them and even when you didn't. Money for school when I had to work for my livelihood. Money for good times while I tapped a typewriter all the time that I wanted to be an actress.

Be an actress. Be an Actress. Be an actress.

Daphne sat up straight and thought about the thing that the phrase had put in her mind. The thing that would teach Jennifer.

Resolutely she got up and started into her living room and sat down at her desk. Then she opened the telephone book and drew a pad and pencil toward her.

She wrote:

See: maitre.

Buy paper and envelopes at Tiffany.

Ask Anne for name of fur rental Flan flowers.

Arrange Tuesday off for experiment.

Larry?

Private dining room.

Which night club?

When she finished she studied the list of things to do and drew approval. "I'll start tomorrow," she said to herself. "With a good night's sleep I ought to be able to have a little fun. Not to mention fireworks."

When Jennifer came in, about midnight, with no explanations, Daphne said to her, "What's Gordon Hershey's home address, do you know?"

CHAPTER XXI.

She model in the froth of coral tulle parted the curtains and whirled through them with a dash of ecstacy.

The salesgirl turned to Daphne. "Vionnet's distinctive"..... "Flavelle, don't you think?"..... "Southern mood"..... "An ephemeral quality."

Daphne was trying to picture herself in a gown like this. Resolutely she turned about in her chair so that she could no longer see herself in the long mirror that faced her. Just as long as she was conscious of the reflection, Daphne saw her back a picture of herself in her tailored woolen coat, the sturdy little boots, her soft felt hat and her face that looked strangely wooden and dead these days, she couldn't somehow see any of those glamorous frocks on herself.

An she had to have one. Her party was only two days off. It was 1, be two days before Christmas.

After the coral tulle, there was a matter of black taffeta and tomatoe velvet. Then there was a gray flannel and silver lame. Daphne watched their entrance and exit with much interest but when it was over she was right back where she had begun.

x x x

"Look here," she said to the salesgirl. "You've got to help me. I simply can't make a selection. Besides you know more about these things than I do. What one do you think is best for me?"

The salesgirl studied Daphne closely. "You're a lovely figure and you could wear any one of these. May I ask, what is the occasion? What do you want? I mean what mood do you wish to express?"

Daphne was fascinated with this last question. What mood, indeed!

"The occasion is a party at the Plantsgo Club," she said. "And the mood Well, I should say I was striving for the Irresistible Woman effect."

The salesgirl studied Daphne closely. "You're a lovely figure and you could wear any one of these. May I ask, what is the occasion? What do you want? I mean what mood do you wish to express?"

Daphne was fascinated with this last question. What mood, indeed!

"The occasion is a party at the Plantsgo Club," she said. "And the mood Well, I should say I was striving for the Irresistible Woman effect."

She expected the salesgirl to show disgust.

"I see," the girl went on wisely, "and I have the dress! The price is $38. Would you care to go as high as that?"

"If I can get the effect," Daphne answered firmly.

"Claudette," the girl said to a model of the same size and coloring as Daphne, "show Miss Brett the ribbon gown."

Daphne forgot the girl in the mirror when the model came back. "Would I look like that?" she appealed.

"You certainly would! Suppose you try it on?"

Daphne tried it on and reached for her checkbook.

x x x

She hadn't a qualm when she wrote the newest figure in her balance. Writing out that check hadn't hurt her this week.

Agency had given her a short holiday after her return and respite from the amount of work Anne had heaped upon them their three weeks since her return from her honeymoon.

"Take a little holiday," Mr. Johnstone had said. "I'm afraid you've been over taxing your strength. You've got business for a week or two and you'll get a fresh start the first of the year. You're looking very tired and a good little will perk you up."

Daphne might have said that she wasn't tired, that there was nothing the matter with her but a pain in her heart. She might have added that the one thing she couldn't have was a good time.

But she said, "Thank you, Mr. Johnstone," and spent the first few days of that holiday getting a plan in motion.

Daphne Brett was giving a party in honor of Jennifer, and to Anne, she said, "I'd like to give a party for you and Tack but I haven't the room in place uselde down. I think I'll invite a few people to the Plantsgo Club."

TO BE CONTINUED.

Uncle Cy's Appetite

By Marion E. Leighton
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service

Uncle Cy, dressed for a tramp to the "sugar camp," stood with his hand on the doorknob and watched Mary as she rummaged in the cupboard.

"Where in the — world" — She pushed dishes aside and peered into the dark corners. "Where in the world! Cy Morrill, what have you done with that other mince pie?"

Cy grinned foolishly. "Now, Mary," he defended, "you know I was pritty hungry when I got home from th' Corners last night."

Mary placed hands on hips and gazed at him in exaggerated exasperation. "I declare! I never saw such an appetite as you've had since you've been trampin' over to that camp! You better stay home or I'll get a cook."

"Course you can feed me a spell longer, Ma," he grinned. "Be back in an hour or two. S'long."

On the morning following this incident the little village of Hill's Corners was awakened from its mid-winter repose by a startling story in the papers. The story was accompanied by an excellentlikeness of a young man in his late twenties who was known to the authorities as "Slim" Mariez, alias So-and-So, alias Something else, very recently wanted for robbery and attempted murder in a nearby city. Slim had successfully eluded the officers and was believed to be headed for some remote section of Maine to bury himself in a snowdrift until the luckiest was forgotten.

The Red Hot Stove club assembling at the general store and, barring a brief recess for dinner, remained in session the entire day. That picture on the front page was an excellent likeness of Liddy Baker's estranged son Sam, and Liddy was one of the most respected "widders" of the Hill's Corners community.

Everybody who had known Sam Baker before he quarreled with his mother two long years ago promptly used the likeness at a glance.

Everybody but Cy Morrill.

"Poor Liddy," mourned Mary. "She'll never forgive Sam now."

"Sam never done that robbery nor nuthin' like it," defended Cy. "Liddy didn't understand how to manage Sam. That boy would do anything for me—or anybody else that needed help. A feller like that ain't goin' to rob an' murder anybody."

"Still, there's his picture," observed Mary.

"Huh!" snorted Cy. "There's more'n one pea in a pod!"

It was snowing softly that evening when Cy hitched old Bess to the sleigh and departed for the Corners to get a Saturday supply of groceries. As he glimpsed the lights of the village a shrill whistle came to his ears.

"Train's late t'night," he muttered. "G'long, Bess!"

The locomotive came to a panting stop at the crossing just in time to hold them up.

Cy's keen eyes caught the movement of a dark figure as it crawled from the rods of the second car behind and limped painfully toward him out of the storm. The figure stopped with a startled exclamation as old Bess loomed directly in his path.

At that opportune moment the fireman on the locomotive opened the firebox door and the resultant glare plainly exposed the stranger's features to the searching gaze of Uncle Cy.

Both moved at the same instant. Uncle Cy, displaying remarkable agility for a man of sixty, was out of the sleigh and upon the other in two jumps.

The station agent held his lantern aloft and stared across the track as a shout for help came out of the storm. The half-dozen men who were heading for the postoffice heard it also. Investigation showed Uncle Cy seated astride the prostrate form of a struggling captive who was trying his level best to be gone. The victim was immediately turned over to the sheriff, and identified as Sam Baker.

One hour and thirty minutes later the crowd that was still milling about the sheriff's office to get a peep at the prisoner was effectively carried by the efficient citizens of Uncle Cy. In his wake came Mary and closely followed was the "Widder Baker," clinging to the arm of a slim young man, as if fearful of losing him in the crowd. That same crowd gasped as it recognized the "Widder's" escort as Sam Baker.

"I'm see, sheriff. It's like this," grinned Cy, when he had attained his objective. "I been feedin' Sam up in my camp for a week waitin' for th' proper time to take him home to his ma. Now, Liddy, but wimmen is obstinate! I had her almost ready to forgive him when this picture bobs up in th' paper and it's all off."

Sam here, an this feller 'Slim' is alike as two peas, but you study 'em close an' you can pick out Sam all right."

Sary poked him in the ribs. "Cy Morrill! That's where all my grub's been goin'—to feed Sam. I thought you had an awful appetite all of a sudden."

"He has," broke in Liddy, softly. "An awful appetite for helpin' his neighbors—bless him!"

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop lit a cigar and started to look comfortable, saying, No bridge and no movies, this is my idea of home sweet home and you may quote me if you like.

I wonder if Mrs. Martyrs will really come back? ma said, and pop said, Come back where, and who let Mrs. Martyrs out? The name has an oddly familiar sound, ai dat, he said.

It rahund, considering she was your old nurseryman you were a baby, ma said, At least she wasn't so old then I suppose, but she is now, with just a few lash frit and she aint of whiskics through them when she talks, wich is inconsistently. It seems she's in town for a day to visit a married dawter or something of that nature, so she stopped in here to see you. I suppose she thinks you're still a baby and would naturelly be home, ma said, and pop said, Well, the deer old nurse Markers.

She kept talking about a particular dish she claimed you used to have on your knee, and what fun she had staging it, said it seems she wants to kiss it just once more in her age, and after all, Willyum, it wouldn't hurt you to let her, ma said, and pop said, he gess what you say. Bill sails wail, she missed me, he said.

But if she comes again this evening she'll catch you, and she said she was going so by, ma said. Unless of course you go out, but you say you don't want to go to a movie or anything, she said, and pop said, I dont believe she's coming back at all, I believe you believe she is, but the suspents would be more than I could bare, so let's go.

Meaning to the movies.

Which they did.

ROLLER-COASTER TRAINS COLLIDE

24 Passengers Injured And Trains Badly Wrecked

Chicago, July 21 (AP)—A speeding roller-coaster train hurtled down a steep incline into the rear of an uncontrolled train at Riverview Amusement Park last night, injuring 24 of the terror stricken riders and causing a panic among onlookers.

Witnesses said a train of four cars was near the top of a "bunny" when it stalled and started backward. Passengers gasped, then they screamed as the train increased its speed and coursed part way up another incline.

A second train appeared at the crest as the three cars rocked back and forth at the bottom of the dip, ten feet from the ground. The oncoming train plunged into the cars with a sickening crash. The impact wrecked the rear car of the first train and the front car of the second.

Police investigated a report by passengers that a car wheel safety device failed to prevent cars from going backward failed to function.

CAMBRIA, SISTER SHIP OF CALEDONIA TO SAIL

Montreal, July 21.—(CP)—Sister Ship of the huge flyingboat Caledonia, Imperial Airways Cambria will take off from Foynes, Ireland, during the first week of August on a North Atlantic Crossing, trans-Canada air line officials announced here today.

CANADA'S POPULAR ANTACID DOWNEN POWDER

Gastronox FOR INDIGESTION

Relief in 2 Minutes

Sold at Doyle's and Coen's Drug Stores

Cable advices received here by the Company said the Cambria would follow the same trail-blazing course of the Caledonia, which completed its westward crossing in four legs. From Southampton the Cambria would go to Foynes, then to Botwood, Nfld. The next stop would be set to Montreal and from there to Fort Washington, N.Y.

The Pan American Clipper III which completed a two-way flight of the North Atlantic at the same time as the Caledonia but in reversed order, will make the crossing some time in August.

The Cambria, after completing the fourth leg of its journey may visit Windsor, Ont., Toronto, and Hamilton, Ont. If the Cambria is unable to do so, the Caledonia will visit the three Ontario cities when it makes the third Atlantic flight.

CRACKED WHEEL DERAILS 9 CARS

Paisley, Ont., July 21—(CP)—Canadian National Railways work-men cleared the track near here early today after an all night shipment resulting from derailment of a mixed train late yesterday.

Nine cars rolled into the ditch when the Palmerston-to-Southampton train went off the tracks, result of a cracked wheel on one car. The engine and tender also stayed on the track. No one was injured through several head of cattle were killed.

BLOODHOUNDS LEAD POSSE OF 250 MEN

Drumt, Okla., July 21 (AP) — Bloodhounds led a heavily armed posse of 250 Pottawa, State and County officers today in search of Pete Traxler, southwestern desperado, and his companion.

Traxler's companion, described by Mrs. Traxler as "Fred," is believed to be Fred Tisdol, who with Traxler killed seven officers' broke from the Huntsville, Tex., prison farm July 3.

BRINGING UP FATHER—

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan gazed out over the weird landscape. Straight ahead lay a plain, fringed by jungle. To the right, a river wound down from a distant mountain range. Somewhere, perhaps within the compass of his eye, lay the mysterious land for which they searched.

"There's no need for all of us to scout in the same direction," he said: "you follow the river; I'll go into the far jungle. In a few days I shall join you upstream. Then we can compare notes." Without awaiting approval or dissent, the ape-man was gone. Had he remained, Wood and Van Eyk might have escaped the terrors and perils which were soon to assail them, but how was Tarzan to know? Never had his experience or imagination extended to the incredible forces which had their residence in those far mountains.

The safari moved on peacefully. Next day it picked up two white hunters, called Spiks and Trell, who agreed to join the party. Three-hours later, things began to happen. The first warning was the sudden appearance of a horde of tribesmen racing toward them.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 22nd—Further advances were recorded in the local produce markets yesterday. Eggs were again the outstanding feature and prices were at the weekly auction. Butter had a firmer tone also. Potatoes and poultry showed little change. Receipts were 1,454 cases of eggs, 4 cases of butter and 1,611 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

In the weekly cheese auction 2,750 boxes of eastern were offered, mainly white, the No. 1 while selling at 19 1-2c, the No. 2 at 19 1-4c, bringing 14 7-8c. This was fully half a cent higher than the price dropped in late afternoon realizing. Sudbury Basin, Ventures and Normetal Consolidated reported.

Trade was lighter than usual in Montreal Curb Market stocks and there were no price changes greater than a point. International Petroleum was up 1-4.

Market Comment

Although the list here continues steady, little or no progress is being made on the upside by the main body of securities, although a few isolated issues have moved ahead nicely. Nevertheless, there are becoming noticeable that the list is endeavoring to break away from its recent narrow range and move forward.

Despite the apparent lack of interest in the mining market at the moment there are some quarters in the Street who are usually well informed that has a very optimistic opinion that the mining market will, before very long, come to life. Base metal issues, particularly such issues as Sherritt, Sylvanite, Read-Authier, Kirkland Lake, etc. have been in excellent demand and have scored good recoveries from their recent lows. On a yield basis as well as from an appreciation angle, the junior and senior golds offer interesting possibilities.

Shawkey Development Program Proceeding Rapidly

Shawkey Gold ore-searching campaign is rapidly nearing the consummation of its mine-makers plans. The new shaft has already reached the 725 foot horizon, and according to reports drifting and diamond drilling will be under way within a few days. This drive will be brief, as the ore is located a short distance from the station. In conjunction with similar operations crosscutting west from the fourth level station is proceeding. Drilling is also being done here, a visitor to the property cannot help but sense the feeling of cheerful anticipation as this major program is nearing the stage of fruition. Any distinct air of optimism permeates the scene. To add to the manager-ment's enjoyment, the long-awaited, ordered-away-back Diesel pump is in its appearance-warranty. It was overdue, and its non-arrival has impeded development somewhat considerably.

Although Shawkey's extensive development program, commenced some time ago, has not yet reached its various objectives, some highly spectacular ore made its appearance in the past month on the third and fourth levels. While the bonanza developments in this work have provided some excitement in the north, the presence of high-grade ore is no novelty at Shawkey, as periodically they run into large gobs of the yellow metal.

Imperial Oil

If the present indications are a criterion, it is just possible that Imperial Oil may get the good light in trading on the Canadian Stock Exchanges. Here is an issue with a rank, very high, temperament because of its wonderful achievement during the last thirty-three years and on account of its ability to pay the standard-bred, dirty dends right through the depression. This was made possible, of course, by the enhanced earning power of the subsidiary, the Int. Petroleum Co. Ltd., which has been extremely strong in cash reserves.

The management of Imperial installed some new equipment at their plants in Sarnia and Montreal, and the result production has been lower materially. The volume of sales for the quarter was also on a high point in 1937 besides prices were better. All of which make it appear as though Imperial and Int. Petroleum are enjoying an excellent year.

Feeling Towards Stock Market is Much Improved

This column notes that sentiment is much on the up-and-up. A great gain in prices in Wall Street has had a decisive effect on employment and in the securities markets. In good hopes a great deal. Orders to buy are coming in fast and many of the trading public is afraid of missing the forthcoming upward swing. From the lows established in June of the leading stocks have gained ten to twelve points on a very small turnover of shares. A number of floor traders and financial Service that he has seen the market for the last few days that he has for months.

Tremendous sums are seeking investment, we know of many millions that are desirous of employment in good securities. Investment-minded are finding it hard to buy says Mr. Dow of the Financial Service. We might mention the kind that that important European capital has been employing: International Nickel, International Petroleum, Montreal Power, Steel Company of Canada, Noranda, Cons. Mining and Smelting, National Steel, Consolidated Textiles and Abitibi, from the bond viewpoint.

There is again predominating Holidays might have to cut short.

RICH ORE STRUCK AT CAPPS MINE

A telegram from the mine at Charlotte, N. C., dated July 21st., to the directors of Capps Gold Mine furnishes the information that they last cache into ore on the foot wall side of the Jane vein, in the crosscut, on the 310 foot level of the No. 5 shaft. Grab samples give values of $22.00 to $58.00.

SALARIED MIDWIVES MINISTER SUGGESTS

Southampton, July 22—(CP)— A comprehensive service of salaried midwives as a first-line attack on the problem of maternal mortality is announced by Sir Kingsley Wood, Minister of Health.

The service, which will be launched August 1, is designed to secure for every mother, whatever her circumstances, the help of a qualified midwife at her confinement, improve the status and conditions of the midwifery profession.

Although these and other steps have been necessary in order that motherhood might reach a high level of safety, Sir Kingsley said the number of women who died in childbirth has been relatively stable.

He said the young married woman could be told with confidence, if she was a healthy normal woman and would take the ordinary reasonable precautions and be by her doctor or the ante-natal centre, there need be no anxiety.

SEARCH FOR GUMMEN GOES ON

North Bay, Ont., July 22—(CP)— Search for the two masked gunmen who killed one wounded Ernest Colson in his refreshment booth near Powassan Wednesday night continued today in the northeast section of Parry Sound district.

Provincial Constable Fred Simpson of Sorrin Falls investigated reports Lake Nosbonsing in the vicinity of Restoule but no trace of the bandits was found. The officer searched the shore of Restoule Lake but his search was unsuccessful. He is continuing the hunt.

BOYS DAMAGE TREES WHEN TAKING APPLES

The sight of luscious green apples has been proving the tempting bait to speed limits by the youths of Station St., residents of that district complain to the Intelligencer. "The fact the boys take the apples is of little importance," the ratepayers they go to our apple trees and garden vegetables, that makes the complainants objectionable. The irritated citizen protested to P. O. Box Inspector Wilson. Officials are receiving warnings, that such practices will not be tolerated in Belleville.

FORMER PREMIER TO MEET PARTY

Hon. R. B. Bennett Returns to Montreal After Extended Holiday

Ottawa, July 22 (CP)—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader was welcomed by friends and supporters at Montreal today on his return from his European vacation. He refused to throw any further light on the future of the leadership of the Conservative party than was given in a statement that parliamentary supporters had been called to meet here June 30.

At that meeting Mr. Bennett will tell his followers what he has done, what he has planned, consulted in Europe and discuss with them future policies. He is continuing at their head. This is in conformity with the announcement given when he left Canada early in May to attend the Coronation.

AUSTRALIAN BOWLER KILLED

London, Eng., July 22—(CP)— Cable)—E. A. McDonald, 45, Australian bowler who made cricket history in the test matches with England after the war, was killed in a motor accident here today.

McDonald's car had been in collision with another machine and he was standing in the roadway, giving information to the victims of the collision, when a third car ran into him. The driver was charged with manslaughter.

DAD KELLY HERE ON WAY WEST

Wandering is His Occupation, May Settle Down, He Says, Some Day

Tallered and frayed as a character from fiction, "Washboiler" Kelly, veteran, grinned bright in the road, whose years of wandering have only fostered the urge, luring him on to beckoning fields on Canada's highways, passed here yesterday. Grab samples give this colorful figure, headed west for Cobourg and points further beyond.

At Cobourg, the 64-year-old wanderer hopes to take his first swim in Lake Ontario. Then he will go to Kirkland Lake, where he has a brother who is employed in the hotel business. His handicap of Killarney. He has in turn been prospector on the holes of lake trade, common deck hand on cattle boats, bushwhacker in the forests of New Ontario, and a gang-foreman on railway section crews, pushing the steel ever further westward in the country. But, mostly the urge for the road has prohibited any determined effort to establish roots.

No stranger in Belleville, which he has visited frequently on his cross-country wanderings, he claims also intimate knowledge of most cities in the Dominion and nearly south of the border. A naturally colorful character, his tales are of important and less important events, familiar with Canadian and world history, aided by a memory, driven him by the late "Railroad Jack", nationally known walking encyclopaedia, answers to questioners with a completeness and immediate response which when added to a bright and active mind, gnarled fingers can no longer perform any but the simpler tricks.

Lives As He Goes

In this manner and with the aid of his soldering outfit and tinker's tools he journeys on, and makes his living as he goes. And through his knack of calling at farm houses seeking leaky washboilers and pots and pans to be repaired, he has earned nationally the sobriquet of "Washboiler" Kelly.

"Yes, I have a family somewhere," one who will not give me some-thing to do with anyone. I never go hungry because I surely meet the

SUMMER CAMP OF UNITED CHURCH OPENS AT LAKE

Wonderful Training Quarters For Young People of Church

81 REGISTER

Stirling, July 22 (Special)—With picturesque Oak Lake as a thing setting the key of Quinte Conference Summer Camp began its 1937 activities on Tuesday, July 21, situated on the United Church property known as Oak Lake Park on the north shore of the lake this camp set aside as a source of inspiration, Bible study, Missionary education and methods of Christian education for the young people of the Church is generally accepted as one of the best training quarters for young people's work in the entire United Church.

The young people are invited to come as delegates from Young People's organizations or on his or her own initiative. Under the careful supervision of a capable staff of instructors, young people are given the advantage of constructive study periods, interesting lectures by leading missionaries with first hand knowledge of activities in foreign fields. The art of wholesome recreation and physical training is also emphasized in the daily routine of camp life. A camp council for the government of the school was set up at the opening of the school on Tuesday.

Eighty-one Present.

Registration completed on Monday evening revealed eighty-one campers in attendance, representing pastoral charges in all parts of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Outstanding among the instructors and special speakers is Rev. Howard Veals of China who will conduct a special study in missions, and Miss Nellie Lewis who will conduct a miscellaneous course in young people's methods. Other study groups dealing with various phases of church life will be held under the supervision of Rev. D. M. Stinson, Rev. A. D. Cornell, Rev. M. C. Fisher, Rev. C. D. McLellan, Rev. W. J. H. Smyth and Rev. J. F. Lane.

The program each day includes physical training, recreation periods, study periods, and restful devotional fireside and vesper service, and a fellowship Christian friendship that is truly inspiring is portrayed on every hand, the membership at each special service is largely increased by the attendance of regular campers from all shores of the lake, who join in the vesper and campfire service with great interest. The work is being carried on under the following group of officers which make up the camp executive.

Honorary presidents, Rev. J. Maxwell Allen, Peterboro, Ont.; president, Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, Port Perry, Ont.; vice-president, Rev. J. G. McKee, Wellington, Ont.; secretary, Miss Florence Mothersill, Oshawa, Ont.; director of music, Rev. H. Rickard, Colborne, Ont.; business manager, Rev. E. A. Mellow, Clore's Landing, Ont.

Those along with Rev. R. T. Richards, Miss Alice Nicholson, Miss Iris Seymour, George Rowe, Miss William Weir, Stephen Saywell, Miss Reta Palliser and Miss Bessie Gordon form the executive committee directing all activities. The aims of the camp are to feature fine Christian fellowship, practical methods of service, the art of wholesome recreation, special devotional services, religious pageants, and amateur theatricals.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the cause or run the risk of an operation. Any itching soreness or painful passage of stool is a timely warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. Thousands are using Dr. Chase's Ointment for relief and banishment of Hemroid and use as directed. This ointment, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spot. Hemroid is a particularly prescription for piles and is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case or money back. It seems foolish indeed to risk the heavy cost of delay for anyone to risk an operation when a safe remedy which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

HEPBURN SILENT ON QUESTION OF ELECTION

'No Discussion of Date Of Election by Cabinet', Say Nixon and Heenan

Newspapers May Speculate All They Like, Declares Mr. Hepburn

ELECTION DATE GUESS

Toronto Newspaper Picks October 18 as General Election Date

St. Thomas, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Ontario, questioned today about newspaper reports of a Provincial election this fall, said: "The newspapers may speculate all they desire on an election this year but I have nothing to say for publication at the present time."

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, today said an election date was not discussed "in any shape or form at the cabinet meeting yesterday."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, also present at the cabinet meeting said the question of an election was not discussed. Both ministers were driven to reports Premier Hepburn would appeal to the people in October.

"It had never been discussed at any cabinet meeting when I've been there," said Mr. Heenan.

Premier Hepburn was enroute to his Eight County farm near St. Thomas where he is expected late this afternoon.

Toronto, July 23.—(CP)— The Globe said this today says Premier Hepburn and his Ontario Government will appeal to the people "within a few weeks." The Globe was reliably reported yesterday as Queen's Park hint.

"The campaign and the vote should be all over by the week ending October 9, although circumstances at present unforeseen may compel a postponement of the electors' decision until early in November," the Globe said.

There will be no special session of the legislature before the election campaign, the Globe and Mail continues, "and consequently the redistribution of the seats of the 90 seats, as at one time contemplated."

The Globe and Mail continues: "Cabinet reorganization and re-

HON. VINCENT MASSEY INAUGURATES CAMPAIGN

Hull, England, July 23.—(CP-Havas)—Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to London, today in a telephoned speech from London yesterday, inaugurated "Canada Calling Hull" Trade campaign here.

More than 300 guests representing the business and professional life of Hull heard Massey state the purpose of the Trade campaign was to make Dominions Food Products better known in this part of England.

Trade between the two countries, to be satisfactory, must be reciprocal, Massey said, citing Canada's industry's appreciation of recent trade agreements as evidence of the Dominion's desire for this.

organization of both the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Welland Canal Board, all of which have been mentioned, though will it is understood, be suspended until after the election.

"An early fall election has been freely predicted ever since the 1937 session, and particularly since Cabinet shakeup over the O.T.O. issue, when the former Attorney-General Roebuck and Minister Labor-Hon. Michael David A. Croll their portfolios.

Cabinet Approval

"Only within the past 24 hours, however, has Mr. Hepburn, it is reported, definitely decided to take the plunge. Cabinet Council of yesterday is said to have given formal approval to the plans he has in mind.

"The Prime Minister is away for the week-end and will not return to his Queen's Park office until next Tuesday. It's understood that his plans may be roughly sketched out a head through a series of informal conferences, which he may hold with premiers of his party men during his absence. He is still saying nothing about election date, except to admit now and then in Ferguson-like language that the going seems good, he will not discuss the question with the press", (Hon. G. Howard Ferguson was Premier of Conservative Premier of Ontario.)

The Hepburn administration was elected June 19, 1934, and this, the 1923 Legislature, is the maximum duration of five years. The last Legislature was elected May 14, 1934.

Seventy-one Liberals were elected in the last general election, but their number has been cut to 69 by the deaths of Dr. George H. Quibban of Wellington North and Thomas A. Sangster of Chippawa, leaving both these seats now vacant. Conservatives have 17 seats; Co-operative Commonwealth Federation one; and United Farmers of Ontario one.

Premier Hepburn asked for the resignations of all his cabinet members, Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General; David Croll, who held the portfolios of Labor, Municipal Affairs and Welfare, as the result of a difference of opinion regarding Mr. Hepburn's policy in the Oshawa, General Motors Automobile strike in April, this year.

BLOOD CLOT IS BELIEVED CAUSE OFFICER'S DEATH

Dr. E. R. Frankish Gives Opinion After an Examination

ENTRY STUDIED

Thomas Reinhart Complained of Feeling Unwell Before Being Found

Walkerton, Ont., July 23 (CP)—Thomas Reinhart, Walkerton night constable, died of cerebral hemorrhage, Coroner Dr. Thomas A. Sinclair said today. Direct contributing cause of his death will not be known until further examination of the deceased's brain tissue is completed, Dr. Sinclair added.

Walkerton, Ont., July 23 (CP)— Fellow-officers today investigated the baffling end of night constable Thomas Reinhart of this Bruce County town, found dying near two pools of blood early yesterday. Reinhart died in hospital here yesterday afternoon without regaining consciousness.

Clues to the mystery were brought to play on the mystery with Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Department of Health, Deputy-Chief Mitchell and Detective Sergeant called in. He attended a post mortem examination last night which indicated Reinhart died from a brain hemorrhage as there was blood in the spinal column.

A cut over the constable's left eye required three stitches and three teeth were missing. How he received these injuries puzzled police who were trying to determine whether he was the victim of foul play or had stricken them in a fall. He recently had complained of feeling unwell and the belief was he may have suffered a fainting spell.

Inquest Ordered.

Dr. Thomas A. Sinclair, coroner, ordered an inquest and a jury viewed the body before adjourning to a date to be set for the formal inquiry. Dr. E. R. Robertson and O'Toole performed the autopsy.

An entry in Reinhart's police diary, it was learned, showed he had obtained a police patrol car about at an alleged speed of 75 miles an hour on the main street. He had left Walkerton to produce a permit, but he failed to do so.

Police sought to link this incident with the finding of the night constable in front of a restaurant on West Durham street at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning. Wallace Riley, 19, Walkerton youth, notified police of Reinhart's condition.

Reinhart, a native of Hanover, was 49 and is survived by his wife and two daughters, Dorothy and Irene.

ASKED TO INVESTIGATE NAZI MILITARY CAMPS

Washington, July 23—(AP)—Representative Citron has asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to "investigate at once" the so-called "Nazi military training camps being established in Andover, N.J. and other places."

Camp Nordland at Andover has been set up by the German-American Bund.

In a letter to the Bureau, Citron said his information had complaints about 17 camps in the United States, "all of them seemingly under a single, planned organization, whose probable financial backing, direction and control is not only by aliens but probably by directly the present German government."

Senator William H. Smathers of New Jersey called reports an organized "Nazi army" existed in North Jersey.

Representative Dies has introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of "Communistic activities" in this country. He cited particularly in support of the resolution the camp of the Nazi Bund in North Jersey.

FINE EXCLUDES C. I. O. ORGANIZER

Settlement of Peterboro Strike May Be Effected

Peterborough, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Negotiations between Henry Barren, managing director of the Dominion Woollens and the bargaining Committee of 12, representing the workers at the Peterboro and Bonner Worth plants will be resumed Monday, Louis Fine, Ontario Department of Labor mediator announced last night.

Mr. Fine said he had conferred with both Barrett and the bargaining committee and that the disagreements a settlement could be reached.

Striking over wages and working demands, Mr. Fine said, referring to two interviews he had with the two companies' officials.

Sent here by the Ontario Department of Labor in response to a request for mediation by the strike leaders, Mr. Fine excluded Alex Welch, C.I.O. textile organizer, from meetings with the bargaining committee.

Welch said at a general meeting of strikers last night that some unrevealed purpose in excluding him and that he later had a secret conference with Miss Bonner, plant chairman.

J. L. Cohen, International Labor advisor, or C.I.O. fame, arrived late last night.

Conciliation Officer Fine denied he had excluded Welch on instructions from the Ontario Department of Labor.

He said that as mediator, he was concerned with obtaining an understanding of the strikers case and that he had confidence in the presence of Welch unnecessary.

He said he was not concerned with the fact that Welch was a C.I.O. organizer and added that C.I.O. participation in the strike was a bridge which could be crossed later.

CARS COLLIDE ON HIGHWAY TURN

Two Killed And Three Injured Near Montreal

St. Lambert, Que., July 23—(CP)—Two persons were killed and three injured, four seriously, in automobile collision on Taschereau Highway near this Montreal suburb early today.

Four cars of the two automobiles, William Carter Dickson, 43, head of the Textos Chemical Company of Montreal, and Miss Grace Cameron, 33, Beauharnois, died when the cars crashed on a highway turn.

William Beverley Hall, and J. B. Web and R. B. Bingham, all passengers in Cameron's automobile, were injured.

Hubert Phelan, fifth member of the party in the Cameron machine, escaped with slight burns.

LABOR DOES NOT OPPOSE FIGHTING SERVICE ESTIMATES

London, July 23.—(CP Cable)—Labor decided today not to vote against the fighting service estimates when they are before the House of Commons next week. A decision was reached after a two-hour private meeting of the parliamentary Labor Party.

'JOE' T. CLARK CHIEF EDITOR OF DAILY STAR, DIES

Editorial Writer of Toronto Paper For Forty Years

SEVENTY YEARS OLD

Tone of Editorials Quieted As Life Grew Older

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—J. T. Clark, editor-in-chief of the Toronto Daily Star, died suddenly at his summer residence at Go Home, Muskoka, Member of a family of distinguished newspaper writers, he was 70.

Mr. Clark was in newspaper work for a total of 73 years, editorial writer of the Star 40 years and the last of a generation of great Toronto editorial writers that included E. E. Sheppard, W. F. Maclean, Sir John Willison, J. S. Robertson, Senator John Lewis and Dr. J. A. Macdonald.

His son, Gregory Clark, is a Toronto Star feature writer. His sister, Mabel R. Scott, is one-time Ward 10 Citizen. Ont., after 30 years with the Toronto Star, is dead. His wife, an older brother, W. J. Clark, he lost only several years publisher of the Pickering News.

Mr. Clark became seriously ill a few days ago. He was at his desk as he played golf and was an active fisherman.

Never Signed Writings.

Mr. Clark seldom signed his writings but his anti-German editorials during the great war were famous and when he chose to put his name to his work it usually was when he resigned from the Star. One of his editorials quietened as he grew older.

It was during the days of Joe Clark's newspapermen came to Toronto after giving up his weekly at Pickering and joined the Star. Every workship paper known as the Tribune. reports of his job was articles in type without writing "copy".

"They were the best things that ever appeared in that little newspaper," said A. B. Rice, who employed him.

W. F. Maclean, M.P., took an interest in the young man, persuaded him to be joined Mr. Maclean's Toronto World, a morning daily. A year later he was back on Saturday Night. There he wrote Front Page, the editorial department it still continued to Saturday Night. But he liked the Daily Star and it in a few years, to remain there since.

Eulogy By McAree.

In the Mail and Empire last year, shortly before that paper was merged with the Globe to form the Globe and Mail, J. V. McAree wrote of Mr. Clark:

"He has been one of the chief reasons for the remarkable success of that newspaper (The Star). He has given it not only direction but character. He has made it the enemies for the paper, and has not to every enemy he has made a friend. Everybody likes him, for he is about the boonest companion we know . . . . He has never sought to be seen at once the envy and the admiration of his fellow men in his profession."

In November, 1931, Mr. Clark married Sara Louise Greig of Pickering, who died three years ago. His brother died in January, 1933. He is survived by his sons, Gregory Clark, Kenneth, Jr., Clark and Arthur Hugh Clark, and a daughter, Mrs. T. G. Drew-Brook.

EMPLOYMENT FIGURES HIGHEST SINCE 1929

Pay rolls and employment figures in factories and plants of the city have climbed to the highest point this year since the year 1929, it was stated this week by Immigration Commissioner J. O. Hertly of the city Employment Bureau. Industrial conditions made this week.

"Not since 1929 have conditions been as good as they are now. Most of the plants and factories which had closed down have reopened more than the average number of employees. Plant managers seem perfectly satisfied with conditions and apparently look for continued prosperity for the manufacturing fields," it was optimistically reported.

"A few of the plants have been held up by circumstances over which they had no control, namely strikes in other centrs; which has hampered their production, but the holdups are not expected to do lengthy or material damage.

"Conditions are decidedly better this year, and we hope they continue so."

EASTERN SYSTEM HYDRO SAVINGS TO BE $387,442

Ontario Hydro Power Commission Officials Announce This as Total

$130,000 REDUCTIONS

Rebates Given in Number of Municipalities, $107,928

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission officials today announced total savings in the eastern system through reduction in power charges will amount to approximately $387,442 in 1937. The Commission officially announced the reductions in charges and the rebate to municipalities.

Chief Engineer R. T. Jeffery said at the end of 1936 the Commission collected from Eastern Ontario municipalities $2,021,136 in monthly horsepower charges. This total cost, as calculated at the end of the year, was $1,890,708, and it was necessary to return a surplus of $167,356 to 49 municipalities.

Mr. Jeffery said this surplus was reached despite a reduction in rates for 1936 estimated to have taken $130,000. In no case, he added, was there necessity for additional costs from any municipality.

Horse Power Reduction.

"A general reduction of 83 per horsepower in Hydro rate for power to all municipalities of the system has accordingly been approved," the Commission official declared Mr. Jeffery.

The reduction means 46 of Eastern Ontario's 47 municipalities will be able to pass on to the consumers a 10 per cent reduction in rates, or approximately $253,000. The major municipality not sharing in the reduction is Cornwall which only pay $113,056 less than the new set-up, the chief engineer added.

In 1936 the municipalities derived a total revenue of $2,536,572. Total expenses were $2,108,175. The net surplus was therefore $418,236.

Refunds Ordered.

"In addition to these rate reductions, the Commission also recommended a refund to consumers in those municipalities for which has a considerable cash balance," Mr. Jeffery said. Those who are involved in this revision and $107,928 formerly paid to the municipality for power will be returned to them by deductions from the bill which they would otherwise pay.

Refunds of $36,417 are being made to municipal electric utilities themselves for payments on account of Toronto and York Power charges.

The increase in the eastern system Chesse Exhibition was noted by Mr. Jeffery since 1933. In 1934 revenue was $1,982,000 and 1935 revenue was $2,182,930 and 1936 revenue jumped to $2,363,926, a record figure. The Commission's capital investment in the eastern system was $19,-504,326 for the year 1936.

Municipalities Benefiting

Municipalities benefiting under the reductions and the amounts: Alexandria $1,627; Arnprior $1,627; Athens $272; Belleville $26,611; Brockville $7,197; Bowmanville $11,324; Brighton $1,552; Bridgeville $26,861; Cardinal $1,445; Cobourg $6,000; Cornwall $41,387; Deseronto $1,064; Pinch $516; Hastings $1,136; Hawkesbury $1,046; Iroquois $2,911; Kingston $87,236; Lakefield $1,222; Lancaster $1,362; Marysville $622; Madoc $1,138; Merrickville $1,353; Marmora $412; Maxville $717; Napanee $5,607; Oshawa $34,192; Omemee $547; Oshawa $34,192; Perth $10,000; Peterborough $44,910; Picton $7,540; Port Hope $17,-000; Prescott $2,568; Richmond $272; Russell $807; Smith's Falls $12,586; Stirling $1,416; Trenton $10,000; Tweed $1,000; Vankleek Hill $1,353; Whitby $10,720; Williamsburg $3,908; Wiarton $1,294.

THRESHING IS NOT GENERAL AS YET

Though harvesting has been carried on in the district for the past few days past, aided by favorable dry weather conditions, threshing has not become general in the district yet. It is reported from rural areas, by the Campbellford area, one of the first to thresh fall wheat, Edward Forrest reports a yield of 30 bushels to the acre. Farmers of this favored district, however, expect heavier yields, averail fromfifi -ooafco breshg f ields from 40 to 50 bushels of grain the acre when threshing does start.

Rev. Chas. Jaynes Jr. Just 7 Years Old

Peoria, Ill., July 23.—(AP)— Rev. Charles Jaynes, clergyman seven old—was an ordained minister today, described by the Rev. O. L. Drake as "the youngest in the world". He lives in Riverside Calif.

Some 1,500 persons attended the service last night in which Drake ordained the child, and the Board of Home minister preach on "hell of God's penitentiary".

Drake is pastor of the Trinity Tabernacle affiliated with the International Ministerial Federation.

Friends said the young minister son of revivalists can speak five languages. He is conducting church meetings on a tour accompanied by a nurse and tutor.

STRIKE PARLEY TO OPEN MONDAY

C.I.O. Organizer of Textile Workers Barred From Meeting

Montreal, July 23 (CP)—Representatives of the Dominion Oilcloths Limited, and the Company's 1,900 employees at Cornwall are scheduled for union recognition, higher wages and improved working conditions, will meet here Monday in an attempt for a settlement.

The conference to be held at Cornwall was announced last night by the city's mayor, Aaron Horwitz, who came to Montreal to discuss the walkout Tuesday and Wednesday of workers in Canada Cottons' three Cornwall mills.

Authorized by the Company to sell the striking workers of their demands, Mayor Horwitz announced the opening of negotiations at a meeting tomorrow here with Company officials and Fred Campbell, Chief conciliation officer of the Federal Department of Labor. Earlier President A. O. Dufresne, of Canada Cottons had declared the firm stood ready to meet employees' representatives.

However, the company asserted objection to the presence-on a negotiating committee—of Gerald Laverty, Cornwall president of the United Textile Workers and strike organizer.

DR. J. A. FAULKNER SECURES GRANT

$300 Given to Cheesemakers For Their Exhibition This Fall

A grant of $300 has been made members of the Central Ontario Cheese Exhibition Association by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in connection with the province wide cheese exhibition and competition to be held this year, who has placed his official stamp of approval on the project.

The Hon. Duncan Marshall and myself, wrote the Hon. Duncan Marshall "have discussed the exhibition and have been glad to arrange this grant which benefits the cheese manufacturers and cheese patrons in your district have been such active supporters of the Cheese Producers Association, and through them, through a substantial success.

There is no question about the fact that cheese not only has been but will be a very substantial part of the agricultural wealth that you people have earned this help from the province.

I am very glad to be able to say it is so earned grant because of your efforts in connection with the coming cheese exhibition", stated the letter.

BULLHEADS BITING NEAR BAY BRIDGE

Bullheads are biting hungrily at the Bay Bridge this week. Early morning and early evening fishers are being utilized by local known fishermen, who have been returning with heavy catches. The deep channels under the bridge have also become a favorite fishing ground, and creditable size fish are being caught. Frogs have become the present popular bait in the bay.

DIVORCE LAW OF ENGLAND FREER BY ENACTMENTS

Cruelty, Desertion, Insanity, Drunkenness Grounds For Divorce

SOME AMENDMENTS

No Petition Considered Until Couple Married Three Years

By GEORGE HAMILTON

London, July 23 (CP)—The House of Commons today accepted all House of Lords amendments to the Divorce Bill, which only awaits royal assent to become law.

In the long fight through both Houses of Parliament the Bill has changed its official title from Matrimonial Causes Bill to Annulments Causes Bill. Popularly, however, owing to its provisions in regard to divorce, it is known as the Divorce Bill.

Alterations it made in the existing law of divorce are numerous and far-spread. Hitherto the only ground for divorce has been adultery. The bill adds the following grounds:

1. Desertion without cause for at least four years.
2. Cruelty;
3. Incurable unsoundness of mind for three years.

On these grounds either party may petition. In addition a wife is given the right to divorce on the ground of rape, sodomy or bestiality by her husband.

Some Causes Rejected.

During passage of the bill through parliament attempts were made to add drunkenness, habitual cruelty and the wilful use of contraceptives to the grounds for divorce. But these were rejected.

The bill introduces to the divorce law an entirely new provision, namely that no divorce petition shall be presented during the first three years of the marriage. The bill, as it left the House of Commons, had made it two, but the Lords reduced the period to three.

Indeed, in a close division, the Upper House nearly rejected the entire clause. It was only when Unionist Lord Hailsham moved that the time limit be extended to three years that the motion to waive the three-year limit in cases of exceptional hardship suffered by the petitioner or exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent was carried.

For the first time the courts are given a guiding range to the question of whether there is a reasonable probability of reconciliation between the parties and to the interests of any children.

The bill amends the existing law in regard to connivance, condonation and collusion. It provides that there shall be no duty on the court is satisfied in cases of adultery that there was connivance condonation and collusion are not present.

Barbara Stanwyck At Her Own Preview Unrecognized by Cop

Hollywood, July 23 (AP)—Barbara Stanwyck, mistaken for an autograph hunter, got "the works" from a traffic policeman who was rescued by Robert Taylor's intervention in her newest film, "Stella Dallas," last night.

Miss Stanwyck pulled on her head and her coat collar flipped up. The actress was not recognized by the officer, forcibly putting her into reverse.

Once safely through the mob, Taylor found it was a strange young woman who had hold of his coat tail. He raised not again.

Miss Stanwyck sat weeping on the curb, rigorously guarded by the law.

"No, you don't," commanded the officer, forcibly putting her into reverse.

Once safely through the mob, Taylor found it was a strange young woman who had hold of his coat tail. He raised not again.

Miss Stanwyck sat weeping on the curb, rigorously guarded by the law.

"I'm going to sock you if you don't keep back," warned the officer.

By this time, the officer had discovered his mistake.

City and District News

GRASS, BRUSH FIRE EXTINGUISHED

Becoming ignited in some mysterious manner a large patch of dry grass and brush burned fiercely yesterday on the farm of Mr. Ray Lemaby of Shannonville, Township, Prince Edward County. It took the combined efforts of several neighbors to confine the flames to a certain area, and several hours elapsed before they were in before the blaze was got under control.

MADE DONATION TO AID PICNIC

The name of Paisley's dog store was inadvertently omitted from the list of donors of prizes for the Rural Workers' picnic held this week.

HEAVY FOG MAY INDICATE STORM

A heavy heat haze which hung over the city and district early this morning in a thick fog, slowed traffic for a time on roads and highways, and gave indication of a break in the past week's heat wave. Weather wise observers looked upon the fog as an indication of a storm to come.

YOUTH IN BOAT TRIES HARPOONING

A new departure in fishing was observed in the lower part of the Moira River last evening.

Instead of the conventional fish pole, the local youth standing in the punt while a companion rowed up the shallows held a regular bow at the ready, with a sharp-tipped arrow with line fastened in harpoon fashion, strung.

Fishing this novel method, however, was reported poor.

BROWN POMERANIAN HELD AT DOG POUND

A well bred Blibh, brown Pomeranian dog, picked up tagless on Cannifton Road on Wednesday, is being held at the College Street dog pound for identification and an owner.

SHOALS ARE COVERED BY HIGH WATER

As predicted earlier in the season high water levels in the bay this year, which have narrowed shoals and rocks to a misleading depth, have resulted in considerable difficulty on the part of waterway tourists entering port. So far this week vacationists have, in fact, found themselves grounded on concealed bars, managing to refloat after considerable work and exertion. Last evening the total was augmented to four when a small cruiser out of Oswego found itself in difficulty east of the government dock. Local sailors assisted in moving it to deep water undamaged.

CLEVELAND PARTY ENJOY FACILITIES

R. Brenner and party of seven of Cleveland, Ohio, travelling in one of the most expensive and modern cabin cruisers in active port in these time, the 65-foot, twin-screw Penelope of Lake Harbor, took time out from their waterways cruising to play a round of golf at the Country Club this morning.

The craft berthed overnight and today at the government dock was examined by a number of boat-loving residents.

Returned from a jaunt down the St. Lawrence, the cruiser Barnett, owned by Wm. Barnett, and party aboard entered port late last evening and were also at the golf links today.

Following repairs to a leaky gas buoy off Nigger Island yesterday, the Government vessel C.G.S. steamer Cruiville passed down the bay to its home port at Prescott early this morning.

TAX COLLECTIONS COMING IN FINE

"Collections have been coming in fine, so far on account of last year's and money seems fairly plentiful," it was reported by Mr. H. R. Stock, city treasurer this morning, as the first of the tax returns were being received at the office.

Of so many cheques are being received this year, the majority of property owners are heeding their desire to pay their debt to the city to the 15th of the realm, it was reported.

HUCKLEBERRIES REPORTED SCARCE

According to those who have visited Kaladar and Flinton, huckleberries are a scarcity this year. Forest fires last summer destroyed many bushes while the dearth of snow during the winter months left many bushes exposed to the elements killing them off. The poor yield this year is felt by the residents of the northern districts, many of whom depend annually on the crop for their winter's supply of canned fruit says a deputation in the Trent News.

RASPBERRY CROP BREAKS RECORD

Hot Weather is Rushing Operations in Factories

Breaking all previous records, nearly one hundred raspberry pickers yesterday harvested three hundred boxes of fruit from one half acre of choice field belonging to Messrs. Bailley and Munday, farmers residing near Wellington. With the present picking estimated at six thousand boxes, the previous estimate of twenty thousand boxes total crop will exceed that mark, it was stated by one of the proprietors yesterday.

Another bumper "first picking" was reported yesterday by Mr. Earl Tenier of the Bay Shore whose pickers harvested nearly two thousand boxes from his acreage.

Continued warm weather is rushing the ripening of the fruit, it is stated, and canning factories are rushing in every effort securing what will be one of the best raspberry crops in a decade.

MASONS HONOR REV. A. L. GEEN

Tribute Sent by Masons Meeting at Ottawa And by Eureka Lodge

Rev. A. L. Geen who this week celebrated the 38th anniversary of his field pastorate in Wellington, Ottawa the following tribute from Local Masons:

"The following members of the Masonic fraternity of Belleville, assembled at Ottawa for the 42nd annual convocation of Grand Lodge desire to tender you their kindest wishes and congratulations on your 38th birthday anniversary.

"Harry E. Redner, H. Asselstine, W. D. Embury, Geo. D. Wright, John S. Wright, Jas. Mitchell, S. M. Nicolson, L. E. Walmsley, James M. Barber, G. F. Walker, H. E. Macdonald, J. G. Herity, C. J. Symons, J. J. Andrews, W. N. Ponton, R. D. Adams."

Eureka Lodge No. 288 sent the Rev. Mr. Geen a floral basket of flowers in the occasion.

BICYCLE RIDERS MUST OBEY LAWS

Two on Bicycle And Riding on Sidewalk Not Allowed

"Not only is it against the law to ride bicycles on your sidewalks, but it is also unlawful to transport two persons on one bicycle and both of these misdemeanors are being practiced much too frequently in Belleville," stated Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court as a 15-year-old schoolboy appeared on a charge of riding his bicycle on Charles Street. The lad admitted his guilt and was permitted his liberty after receiving a stiff reprimand.

"I find the practice of transporting two persons on one bicycle even more dangerous than perhaps riding a bicycle on the sidewalk although both are unlawful and punishable by stiff fines. This court has received many complaints from motorists in Belleville regarding the careless manner in which many of our youths ride their bicycles and they can be charged in court with violation of the traffic rules in the same manner as a motorist. Carrying one or two persons on one bicycle is increasing with alarming rapidity and the court intends to assess the maximum penalty for future offenders," clearly warned His Worship as he dismissed the lone case in today's court. "Let this be a warning to you, young man, and inform your friends to stay off the sidewalks and also to observe other traffic laws pertaining to bicycles and their use," concluded His Worship.

DOUBLE PARKING IS NOT CONDONED

"We are not setting a precedent in this court by dismissing these cases of double parking with a warning for I intend to impose the full penalty of the law in future cases after this warning has been given the public," announced Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. during the progress of today's local court as eight local motorists appeared on traffic court to plead guilty to charges of parking their motor vehicles more than six inches from the curb on Front St. recently.

The astounding total count of the eight motorists culminated a period of time during the practice of double parking along Front, St. since the recent introduction of parallel parking in this city along the main thoroughfares. All admitted their guilt.

The first appearance in this court of persons charged with the violations of our new parking system. This practice of double parking in the downtown area is not only a very dangerous one, but hazardous to other motorists and pedestrians alike. I will suspend sentence at this time, but this practice must stop and the court's first and last warning is being issued in this court today.

Joe Clark, Editor, Signs 'Thirty'

Joseph T. Clark, editor-in-chief of the Toronto Star, has written his last editorial. Joe has placed his last taks of copy on the hook and accepted the final verdict: THIRTY, which means to newspapermen, the end, the last piece of copy, the end of the newspaper day, the end of the night, or the end of the last task. Joe Clark was a newspaperman with many friends. He did not seek to make friendships, being of a quiet retiring disposition, but even when he made a friend he kept him. His kindly charitable disposition, and outstanding ability as an expert on one of Canada's leading and most loved newspapermen. Like many another newspaperman who climbed to greatness in the profession Joe Clark came from a small town and a small newspaper. The old Toronto World, cradle of many newspaper reputations, and primary school for many aspiring newspaper recruits, formed the setting for the metropolitan debut of Joe Clark. Before long The Front Page or Saturday Night knew him and his trenchant comments were eagerly read all over Canada. From there he graduated to Toronto Star where he achieved the highest seat in the editorial room and won the respect love and admiration of his colleagues and the public. Death removes a notable figure in Canadian newspaper life in Joe Clark, whose public and private life was worthy of the best Canadian traditions, and who leaves a host of friends in and out of the profession who will treasure his memory as one of the best.

7,241 AT PLAYGROUNDS IN LAST TWO WEEKS

The Belleville Playgrounds are now in full swing with attendance and activities keeping pace with last year.

The Softball and Baseball league opened up this week with the East End Midgets beating the West End 13-10. It was a close game and these youngsters are showing a brand of ball for such young players.

The Junior boys from the West got revenge yesterday afternoon when they trimmed the East 3rd Jrs., by 8-3.

However, the East forged ahead again last night when the East Seniors beat the West by 8-5. It was a well played game and was ably handled by Joe Kelleher and Ed. Plummer of the local Junior O.A.S.A. team.

The girls from the west are still supreme in Softball. Her Junior girls beat the East 18-13 and the Senior girls beat the East 36-14.

The attendance for the first two weeks was 7,241 for both grounds.

The line-ups for the girls' game: West Sill—E. Reid, c; D. Arnott p; H. Thompson 1b; J. Morrison 2b; M. Adams ss; A. Ellis 3b; D. Ross; Blake and P. Bateman, rf; Gifford, East Hill— Lois Sanbier, c; Pat Alexandr p; N. Maher, 1b; B. Tapp ss, Tapp 3b, Mowbray and Meeks outfield.

In the boys' games the lineups were—East Hill—Pepper c; Carson ss; Clare 1b; Taylor p; Donovan 3b; Cook 2b; Sigh, Mills and Bridge, outfield. West Hill—Thompson, Austin, Nurse c; Hay, Palmer Orr, B. Hay and Hibbard.

LEGION OFFERS GRAND SHOW

Wellington Post Sponsors Civic Holiday Entertainment

With an internationally known troupe of vaudeville artists, a dance band famous across the continent for its exceptional melodies and a carnival and one other attraction, the Wellington Legion Post 180 are preparing for a gala day to be held in Wellington, Ontario, on Civic Holiday, August 2nd.

The committee who have already established an enviable reputation in arranging programs for community gatherings are leaving no stones unturned to make the 1937 version of their celebration one of the outstanding events in the history of the village. The grand evening performance which will be held in the Wellington Arena, will provide the main attraction, and seating arrangements for 10,000 people are being made.

The afternoon too, will provide plenty of fun for young and old for another exceptional vaudeville program has been planned and will be held among the shade trees of cool Memorial Park.

The highlight of the evening performance will be the presentation of the major prize, a 1937 Chevrolet standard sedan. This will be given to the holder of the lucky ticket. In addition to this there will be given away every five minutes during the evening, now a brand new five dollar bill. These, too, will be given to ticket-holders holding the stubs of ticket numbers from the large drum.

The Legion will be a red-letter day in the history of this village and a splendid day's program has been arranged. The cool shade trees and breezes from Lake Ontario make this a most desirable resort a rendezvous for heated city dwellers and the line of entertainment with a brand of entertainment that ranks with the best to be seen in these parts will make Wellington a crowded spot on the holiday. Everything is in hand and a large crowd is anticipated.

LARGE DEMAND IN BR. WEST INDIES

F. W. Fraser, Trade Commissioner Visits Local Chamber of Commerce

The present wave of industrial recovery and better times being experienced in Canada and observed at first hand during his business tour of the Dominion, is also felt to a marked degree in other parts of the British Empire, particularly in the British West Indies, it is reported by F. W. Fraser, Dominion Trade Commissioner, of Kingston, Jamaica, Haiti and the West Indies, during a brief visit to the local Chamber of Commerce.

While in Belleville Mr. Fraser conferred with a number of local manufacturers and industrialists, with respect to furtherance of the export trade to the British West Indies.

A large demand for Canadian products in the British West Indies during the past year, owing to good and builder's hardware from now on is forecasted by Mr. Fraser who pointed to increasing trade between this country and the West Indies over the past year or so. This increase in export will make itself felt in this district, a district where both canning operations and the manufacture of furniture are carried on.

During his visit to Belleville for three years, Mr. Fraser found a distinct optimism on the part of local manufacturers and a marked recovery in nearly all lines. He is at present in the Toronto district interviewing manufacturers and exporters of that district on his cross country tour.

FRED W. CANNIFF DIES IN TORONTO

Toronto Star Compositor Began Life's Work on Belleville Newspaper

A link with the early days of printing in this city was severed by the death in Toronto on Monday of Frederick W. Canniff, formerly of this city, having been employed with the Toronto Daily Star on its composing room staff.

Death followed a short illness and terminated some forty-five years after he was originally with that of typesetting and printing.

Born in Belleville forty years ago the late Mr. Canniff was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Canniff, whose home was at 202 Bridge St. and sturdy United Empire Loyalist stock. Following earlier schooling he entered the old Daily Intelligencer where he spent some ten years acquiring a complete knowledge of hand setting and mechanics of the trade.

Upon leaving the paper he secured as a full fledged printer he left for Toronto where he worked at the same occupation, for the past many years in the composing room of the Toronto Daily Star.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ernest Read, of Toronto, and Miss Florence Canniff also of that city, four brothers, L. W. Canniff, of Los Angeles, and one sister Mrs. C. N. Bovey, of Pasadena, California, also many friends. Mrs. Canniff, predeceased him some years ago.

Mrs. Phillip Canniff of this city is a sister-in-law of the deceased, and Miss Ella Bleecker and Miss J. Sherlock, are cousins.

POLICE COURT

"My client is ready to accept the responsibility if the fine is not too great," interrupted Charles A. Payne, K.C. on behalf of Domonic McMahon, Belleville youth who had previously pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle bodily harm to Bruce Hamilton, Marysville lad on the night of July 2nd last, when McMahon appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. in police court this morning.

In the absence of Crown Attorney J. O. Donnan, K.C. the prosecution in the case was conducted by Provincial Constable Smith. At the outset Mr. Payne addressed the court, "This is a charge of assault, Your Worship, and I submit that some drinking in the hotel at Marysville is the cause. It was the effect of the beer consumed, but at this late date I hold the other was the aggressor," explained Mr. Payne.

Bruce Hamilton, Marysville farmer and complainant in the case, stated that a friend went into the hotel at Marysville to have a drink and that he followed him over for over a half a glass before McMahon came over to my table, after I had a few words with a friend named Daley, and he struck me. I tried to protect myself as I was sitting outside where McMahon struck me. I received seven cuts on my head, while my lip is still sore, where it was badly cut," stated Hamilton.

Joseph Fields, Marysville, an eye witness to the fracas was the next witness and he stated he could not be sure, who struck first. "Your Worship, this man is an unwilling witness, he's not telling the same story he told me before and I move to have the case laid over until Monday, so Crown can conduct it with this witness," interrupted Provincial Constable Smith.

It was at this point Mr. Payne rose and intimated his client would accept the responsibility if the fine was not too severe. "He is not working steady" explained Mr. Payne. After reviewing the case, Magistrate Butler bound both parties concerned over to keep the peace for a period of one year, but intimated that the court of the court and also Hamilton's doctor bill, which amounted to slightly over $15.00 in all.

A brother of the above accused man, James McMahon, also of Lonsdale, appeared on a charge of striking John Roach with his foot, and thereby committed an assault. The accused man pleaded not guilty and when the informant's name, Roach was called in the court, he failed to answer to his name. "People can't come into this court and lay accusations and then walk out on them. This case will have to go on Monday, have the the complainant in the case here ready to proceed," instructed the Bench.

J. Vincent Maddock, Frankford farmer, appeared on a charge laid by his mother under the Parental Maintenance Act, but the matter was enlarged for one week as Maddock requested the services of a solicitor.

Minor charges laid under the L.C.A. and H.T.A. brought the minimum penalties in fines paid.

POPULAR RAWDON COUPLE HONORED

Mr. And Mrs. Burton Morton Showered by Friends in Community

Stirling—Nearly 300 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morton on the Stirling Chisholm Hall under the direction of Mr. Maurice Bell, conductor, for a surprise party given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton who have recently returned from a western trip. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton (nee Grace Dayman) were married quietly in Colborne United Church and in the future will make their home on the Morton farm on the 4th concession of Rawdon.

A long circle of friends from all parts of the district were present to express their good wishes for the honoured couple and many lovely and useful gifts were displayed. A lunch by the Stirling Ladies Aid and by Miss Martha Tyrverton of Latta and several short addresses by prominent citizens was climaxed when Mr. Chas. Ryde of Belleville, acting as chairman for the evening called the gathering to order and explained the purpose of the being. The presentation of the large array of gifts was then made and Miss Katha Hoover read the following address:

Dear Grace and Burton,—

We, your friends and neighbours have gathered here this evening to wish you bon voyage on your new sea of life and to spend a social time with you.

You, Burton have grown from childhood to manhood in our midst, you have been a faithful friend and neighbour and a real sport in the baseball scene of the word. While you, Grace, have endeared yourself to this community in the few years you have been with us, due to the fact that you have been an active worker in the social and church life, and ready to give of your talent at anytime.

And now as you both have felt it desirable to enter upon a new scene of life, we offer our congratulations and wish you much happiness and a generous share of the good things of this life.

When you take an inventory
Of your friends both new and old
When you're adding up the joys of life
Which can't be bought with gold;
When you feel the need of someone
Who will stand through thick and thin,
We shall count ourselves most happy
If

May your home be a truly happy one, one of those with the latch-string always on the outside and that radiates a wholesome influence in its community. For after all, friendship is the golden chain that makes the world so fair and twines it's golden links about our lives making our friends more dear as time goes on.

We trust that your future will always be bright.
Your path be joyous and troubles be light.
Now if shadows should come, just whistle and sing
It'll make the clouds vanish and much happiness bring.
Grace, be to your husband, a kind loving wife,
And he will find you the rest of your life.
Burton, be a good sport, don't get cranky or pout
Then your wife will be happy while you are about.
Now on this great occasion we have brought you tonight
A few little gifts which we hope you will like;
Please accept them gifts as a slight token we pray,
Of the love and esteem we have borne you alway.

Signed on behalf of the community: Mrs. Wesley Warren, Leatha Hoover, Mrs. Clifford Clancy, Mrs. John Heagle.

The Mountain View Softball team played a game at Crofton on Tuesday with the loop-leading team, Mount Pleasant. The game resulted in 7-7 tie. An ice-cream social followed the game in Crofton Hall where a good crowd were in attendance.

A gloom was cast over the vicinity on Tuesday when it was learned of the passing of Mrs. Emily Maude Sprague, wife of Mr. Jr. G. Sprague, who passed away in Kingston Hospital after an illness of over a year. The late Mrs. Sprague was born in Somerville, Prince Edward County, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Doney. She was a woman of sterling qualities, a true friend and neighbour, and her memory will ever linger in hearts of those who knew her. Funeral service was held at the late residence on Thursday afternoon at 2 P. M. Interment in Mountain View Cemetery.

Stirling and District

Stirling—About one hundred happy children and grown-ups thoroughly enjoyed the Annual Sunday School Picnic of Selby United Church, which took place on Thursday, July 22nd, at Crescent Beach Park. Oak Lake, Swimming, and horseshoe pitching contests together with the use of the playground equipment provided by the park owners formed a greater part of the entertainment. A sumptious picnic dinner was arranged at the tables by a group of the ladies and later in the day a sports programme directed by Rev. W. E. L. Smith, minister of the congregation and Mr. Percy Hudgins, Sunday School Superintendent, created a great deal of interest on behalf of the boys and girls present. Races of various types and contests and games were entered into with a spirit characteristic of the good old fashioned Sunday school picnic, and with the twilight hours happy tired young-sters made their way homeward, climaxing another very happy chapter in their childhood days.

At the Door you are Courteous—

WHEN YOU "answer the door" in your home to the baker, milkman, grocer or postman, you are courteous, you transact your business pleasantly and otherwise behave in a normal courteous manner. But what happens to this courtesy, that you feel and extend to your domestic companions, when you get behind the wheel of a motor vehicle and roll along the streets and highways?

Do you still treat your fellowman courteously? Do you give him his share of the road? Do you dip or dim your brilliant headlights at night so that he can see to pass you safely? Do you signal your here when you wish to overtake him and how do so at a safe distance? Do you give him "the breaks" in traffic or do you "scoot" into every opening yourself? Do you take extra precautions where there are children and cyclists?

If you can answer "yes" to such questions then, and only then, will you be doing your share to reduce our shocking traffic toll.

I earnestly request that you "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way.

AMELIA EARHART

The airplane flight of Amelia Earhart and her navigator Frederick J. Noonan in their attempt to open up new ways of air travel had a tragic close. While diverse views are held on the question of the practicability of such flights, it has remained for the New York Times to pay the finest tribute to the womanliness of Miss Earhart and her unflinching courage. The Times writer says:

"Let us begin by saying the worst that can be said about Amelia Earhart. She was no feminine Lindbergh, flying oceans with the precision of a transport pilot. She was no scientific flier, as those last pathetic messages picked up by the Itasca on July 2 showed: 'We must be on you but cannot see you. Gas is running low. We are circling but cannot see island.' She and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, had set out over the great wastes of the Pacific without the knowledge or the equipment which would have enabled them to ride into safety on the Itasca's invisible radio beam. A little more careful preparation, and those two valiant souls might still be certainly in the land of the living.

"But the qualities which endeared Miss Earhart and her companion in this last heroic failure were interwoven with her gay, luminous, self-confident personality. If she had not had a touch of recklessness, which is perhaps, out of a belief in her fortunate star, she would not have been Amelia Earhart. She was in rebellion against a world which had been made, for women, too safe too unexciting. She wanted to dare all that a man would dare. She must have what lives she could out of the 'bright eyes of danger.' That passion rises, strangely, sometimes tragically, in those who also love life with more than common fervor—love it so much that they must explore their way through it to that dark forest, that tumbling mass of driven water, where its boundaries lie. To that far longitude, where the light of day flames up for an instant splendidly and is gone forever, she and Fred Noonan must have come. She lost her life in the effort to get the final ecstasy out of it. She followed her vision with a last flutter of tired wings, too far.

"And what was this vision? No man, perhaps, would ever wholly know, for though hers was a type of daring which was long thought to be a masculine derivative, Amelia Earhart was wholly feminine. One remembers the outward symbols of what she was: the slender hands and wrists, the fingers like an artist's, not strong enough, one would have said, to handle a great machine in the air; the voice that was soft and beautiful; the rich inflections, the intimate manner which made her an actress; the feminine dignity that melted into humor; the serious traits that had made her effective as a social worker and a teacher. What she did she did as a woman, in a woman's way, whether it be to receive with gracious ease the public tributes she had earned, or to battle with storms above a dangerous ocean.

"One thinks of E. A. Robinson's lines 'For a Dead Lady', but she had passed beyond that romantic and lovely conception, and was not so much a woman of the past as of the future. One thinks, too, of other lines of Robinson's, though he wrote them in a far different connotation:

> 'Wings are but once for most of those who fly
> Till they see time lying under them like a mist
> That covers the earth.

"Perhaps that was her vision. Perhaps in the vividness of her last glimpse of sun and sky and the curling tops of waves she knew that she had helped to make all women less afraid. For hers was a deeply feminine valor that could look life and death in the eyes as unflinchingly as any man."

There is no feeling, except the extremes of grief and fear, that does not find relief in music.—George Eliot.

Among the instrumentalities of love and peace surely there can be no sweeter, softer, more effective voice than that of gentle peace-breathing music.— Elihu Burritt.

Music wakes the soul, and lifts it high, and wings it with sublime desires, and fits it to bespeak the Deity.—Joseph Addison.

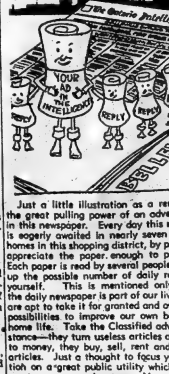
BIG TIME COLUMNISTS LIKE WALTER WINCHELL TAKE A VACATION

And all the stars of Hollywood hasten to illumine his column with golden words while he is away. Small time columnists would be pleased to accept similar donations, and always welcome a pinch-hitter. A Sidelight Fan comes to our rescue in the torrid spell with a bright and breezy chapter out of real life as refreshing as an ocean breeze to us and we are sure will be to those of our readers who are personally acquainted with the characters described in a brief outline of a delightful voyage which included the Hudson river, the Erie Canal (now dignified with a more high sounding name), Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River, Lake Champlain and that historic waterway leading to the city where gory glorious and inglorious naval and land battles were fought 1 n the war long ago. However, here's the contribution—some day we hope to be able to present to the Sidelights Fan the tale of the voyage elaborated into the charming yarn we are sure it must be.



Fresh Water "Captains Courageous"

"The recent marriage of Miss Dorothy Holton, daughter of an old Belleville boy, George Holton, at Great Neck, Long Island brings to mind the visit of the Holton girls Dorothy and Barbara, accompanied by their father, of course, made, in their large power cruiser from their home on Long Island Sound to Belleville a few years ago.

"The route mapped out for the cruise to Belleville was up the Hudson River to Albany, then into the Erie Canal to Oswego; across Lake Ontario to the Upper Gap and up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville. The return voyage was made by way of the St. Lawrence River and Lake Champlain.

"It was a long wonderful trip and most agreeable to the two sailor-minded Holton girls. Then too, the many curled lashes, wavy fetching in white ducks caps and scarves in colors gay, looked more like a couple of movie queens than hard-working, honest-to-goodness Varsity students. The lock attendants and bridge men, on the Erie Canal were dazzled into a frenzy. There was a rush to man the gates and bridges the like of which had never been seen before or since, on land or sea. Such service! My Word!

"The girls navigated the yacht, but papa had his eagle eye to windward. Most of the time he sat abaft the binnacle and smoked his cutty pipe. Leaving Oswego, they headed out in the open lake in the general direction of Main Duck and the Upper Gap. Presently they were out of sight of land. The first mark to pick up would be the lighthouse on the Main Ducks. This the girls, taller than their father, were able to do an hour or so before it came within his vision, and then up down on it accordingly. "Blast my timbers, and blow me down" says George, "Can you beat that for navigation? It must be the fine old Bay of Quinte traditions being carried on."

Just a little illustration as a reminder of the great pulling power of an advertisement in this newspaper. Every day this newspaper is eagerly awaited in nearly seven thousand homes in this shopping district, by people who appreciate the paper enough to pay for it. Each paper is read by several people so figure up the possible number of sales made for "yourself." This is mentioned only because the daily newspaper is part of our lives and we are apt to take it for granted and overlook its possibilities to improve our own business or home life. Take the Classified advs, for instance—they turn useless articles oftimes into money, they buy, sell, rent and find lost articles. Use a thought to focus your attention on a great public utility which you can use to your own advantage. Your newspaper is yours use it, as Hydro would say.

Rawdon Girls Capture "Faulkner Trophy in Softball

TWEED DISQUALIFIED

Coach Takes Team From Field After Argument on Decision

Stirling, July 23 (Special)—Thursday was a red letter day in the lives of Hastings County Junior Farmers' clubs as they met on the Stirling Agricultural Grounds for their annual field day and picnic. Baseball tournaments displaying fine talent amongst both girls' and boys' teams held the interest of more than five hundred of the visiting members and spectators.

At ten in the morning cars began to assemble at the park from all parts of the county and softball activities got under way. Right from early as possible on the two specially constructed baseball diamonds. Interest was keen in the games with the crowd striving at times to equal the keenness of the games being played at the same time. Competition was the very keenest chance of taking the championship. Rawdon girls were left behind their rivals had started a dangerous rally, when they came up to the game to Rawdon because of the continual interference in the field by Tweed players who refused to leave the field. Darkness fell on the Rawdon girls and the boys' tournament; with Madoc, last year's champions, defeated the smart Sidney squad 13 to 5 going into the last half of the sixth and the game was called. Tweed, Rawdon, Stirling Tournament Holds the Crowd

Stirling, July 23—After the ball game, close and interesting competition was provided by the junior farmers as they climbed toward the championship and the fine. Faulkner Trophy. Rawdon girls were left in the first fixture with Tweed handing the latter a 10 to 0 defeat, a real trimming with the largest score of the day. It 10 to 4. The teams were as follows:

Tweed: M. Luffman, A. Langevin, Doris Tucker, Irene Tucker, Ella Tumnon, E. Terry, C. Long, H. Hall, Stanley Hall.

Sidney: M. Hollinger, E. Whitney, G. Sine, L. Sine, B. Guy, V. Rathbun, and Beatrice Sine.

Officials: Rev. Hill and James Gordon.

Madoc vs. Rawdon

Madoc defended their ultimate champion Rawdon team five to seven in a game, which was one of the highlights of the day. Four of fielding and fine pitching drawing the applause of the large crowd—the teams were as follows:

Madoc—Meraw, Mumby, Reid, Haggerty, M. MacInroy, R. Stapley, Irene Tucker, Mona Wright, Lois Wright.

Rawdon—Bonnie Stapley, Pearl Stapley.

Umpires—C. McKinnon, N. Fox, M. Smith, M. O'Connell, L. Keine, Rawdon; Four of Madoc.

Officials: Hill and Hulin.

Rawdon Girls Defeat Tweed

The final game of the girls' tournament was between Tweed and Rawdon, Rawdon emerging victor with the odds and support about 10 to 1 backing their team. Batting in both teams featured the early innings of this game, which was played at the end of the day. Rawdon girls because of uncontrollable enthusiasm on the part of the Tweed coach, who was ordered from the field on two occasions for interference with the officials. This was the only sore spot on an excellent day's sport. Tweed though five runs behind their rivals were full of fight, threatening rally and had an excellent chance of taking the cup.

The final official score at this game which officially was the end of the game was Rawdon 17, Tweed 12.

Teams

Rawdon—O. Stewart; M. Haggerty; M. McInroy; Ruby Stapley; Irene Tucker; Mona Wright; Lois Wright; Frances McKeown; Pearl Stapley.

Tweed—M. Luffman; A. Langevin; M. Tumnon; A. Thompson; M. Tumnon; E. Terry; C. Long; H. Hoard; L. Rashelle.

Officials Hill and Hulin.

Rawdon Wins Tournament

When the boys' tournament was brought to a close with the holding of evening shadows across the diamond the champions of last year, Madoc, met at the end of a 12 to 5 score going into the last half of the sixth innings of the final play-off with the flashy Sidney team, but the game was called because of darkness leaving the fine silver cup still looking for a permanent home.

Thurlow downed Ri to 5 by Rawdon.

In the first game of the men's tournament Rawdon defeated Tweed on the mound for the winning pitcher. The line-up of the teams were as follows:

Rawdon—Teals; Williams; Brodsworth; Oddie; Sutherland; L. Heath; Fraser; H. Brown; B. Morgan.

Thurlow —Vanderwater; McDonald; V. Guay; N. Guay; P. Reynolds; O. Horton; N. Guay; O. Delaney; Hall.

Officials—Butler and Hill.

Sidney Defeats Rawdon

A fine pitching duel was witnessed in the next game between Lorne Bateman for Rawdon and Sheila Hagerty for Sidney with the last mentioned team earning the right to enter the finals by virtue of a well-earned 8 to 5 victory.

Rawdon — Heath; Williams; Brodsworth; Oddie; Sutherland; Bateman; Morton; Fraser; and Brown.

Sidney — Calvert; Miller; Ray; Thrasher; Finkle; Morrison; Bristol; Woods; Calvert.

Officials: Hulin and Butler.

Madoc Wins From Tweed 18 to 5

Madoc lived up to the last year's record by defeating Tweed 18-5 in the first game and were well on their way to another Championship when the final game was called because of darkness.

Madoc—Meraw; Mumby; C. Woods; Wartman; Rollins; E. R. Woods; J. Hunter, R. Woods; F. Cannift.

Tweed—Frost; Kirby; Langevin; Clemings, Yeomans; Sine; Marsh; Mercer; and Hoard.

Officials —Hill and Butler.

Final Game Called Because of Darkness

With the champions well in the lead and aptly defending the honors gained by them last year the final play-off game was called at the end of the sixth innings because of darkness and it was not definitely known what action would be taken to settle the championship. Help of Hill worked on as the day's performance and crowned the very heavy batting of the champions who scored eight runs in the fifth. When the game was called at the first of the sixth the score stood at 13 to 5 for Madoc.

Teams:

Madoc: Meraw, Mumby, Woods, Wartman, Rollins, Woods, Hunter, Woods and Cannift.

Tweed—Calvert, Miller, Ray, Thrasher, Finkle, Morrison, Bristol, Woods and Calvert.

Officials: Hill and Brown.

Ideal weather conditions throughout the day and picnic dinners were held in the shade of the pines in the Recreation Building grounds and picnic supper held at Oak Lake Park. Dancing to the Oak Lake dance orchestra ended the successful County Junior Farmers' Club and their friends.

The arrangements for this event which creates a record for attendance was under the supervision of Mr. J. Wilson local representative of the Ontario Department Agriculture aided by the following executive committee: Grand Longevil, Rawdon; Lorne Bateman, Tweed; Clare Norton, Corbyville; Stafford Rathbun, Stirling; Wm. Heath, Stirling. Trophies placed for competition including Stirling Laundry Junior Farmers Cup donated by Junior Farmer's Clubs of the county, Belleville Buildings Trophy softball trophy donated by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner.

What Do Tourists Most Desire?

What does the average American tourist look for mostly in travelling during his stop over while passing through.

Good food appears to be the answer following a survey of the city's restaurants who declare this year's business far ahead of early season hopes.

"But," said many of the tourists who come here no complaint with a demand for good food well cooked, "we should be able to get some of your good Canadian beer with our dinner or lunch."

"The majority of them come from across the border from which the privilege of drinking beer with their meals has for some time been extended, it appears queer to them that they cannot do it in this country while many of them think are always been operated on a wide open principle. They actually feel they are being kidded when they demand cold bottles of beer as a beverage with their meals and are told it is against the law", it is pointed out by our popular proprietor.

"Not a Fuss"

"But most of them are easy to please. We have very few kicks. They demand good food and are willing to pay for them. And they like to eat well. Most of them are in a holiday mood and they take things as they come. They don't make a fuss about their meals with dishes and meals different from those they have at home. They have so few typically Canadian dishes, however, that this is quite impossible. If it wasn't for fish — and three out of five customers are likely to order fish — we'd be on the spot. But Canada has a name for good fish and the majority like to try it, especially lake trout of which there is now very much.

"Heavy steaks, generally rare, are the next best bet and are always a favorite order. Different from Canadians, the majority of them demand the steaks eat thick. Canadians are not so fussy about them being thick as long as they are medium well cooking." further explained the white-aproned proprietor.

"And another thing we have to watch is the coffee. The American tea drinker is an exception. We wash his coffee among some of them if there are any complaints at all we generally put them if the coffee isn't right up to the standard they think it should be.

"Another point there never will be a substitute for the old fashioned bacon and eggs. Ham and eggs, believes the proprietor. That is the standard North American breakfast and often supper, or in between meals. Canadian bacon has also been sold across south of the border and many visitors are anxious to give it a try, it is reported.

A Good Customer

"We had a chap in from Georgia the other day. He said he was pretty hungry and then proved it by ordering ham and eggs. But he wanted not two eggs as is customary order, he wanted six of them, fried light on both sides and a double order of hats. When he finished that meal he topped it off with a big piece of pie and explained he had been driving most of the night and had had no breakfast.

"Many of the tourists from points deeper in the south have expressed some amazement over the fact that Canada can be so cool when there are just as well fitted out and equipped to handle the crowds as any they have south of the border. They have learned with some surprise, too, that the nights differ greatly from any they have been accustomed to in the south by a second proprietor.

"They have the preconceived notions that Canada is still in a somewhat unsettled state, and that meals are served in hastily thrown-up boxed dog stands and booths," commented the owner.

The Flamingo Club was one of New York's smartest night spots in the Mad Fifties. It was patronized by society leaders, stars of the theatre and cinema. It boasted the most popular orchestra in town, the smartest and sensational entertainers. It was costly.

"But I ought to do something like this because I owe a party to Mr. and Mrs. Hammer—Bill was Mr. Mr. Hammer, youthful president of the Georgian Cosmetic Company who had landed on her large bonus and a percentage of the sales—and if I am to be an important executive I've got to live up to the role. So, I'm having 10 guests. As Jennifer knows, I've invited Gordon Hersberg because I think he will lend atmosphere. I've sent a note to Larry because, after all, if he is Jennifer's beau, we are going to meet again so why not now? Then there will be Frank Hostler for you Anne because he's the newest vice president of the Overman agency since he left us and he can do you a lot of good. There'll be the Hammers and...."

She then were the Jules Carteris. Jules was a brilliant young engineer and he and his attractive bride had recently returned from an expedition to South America. They would assuredly make interesting and amusing guests.

To each of them, Daphne had written little notes saying that she would be delighted to have them come to her party.

"To Larry she had written:

"I hope that you will join Jennifer and me at a small party we are giving at The Flamingo Club on Friday evening at 11."

She signed it, "Sincerely, Daphne Brett."

All of them had accepted except Larry.

Perhaps Jennifer forgot to tell Daphne that Larry had telephoned. In any event, Daphne did not hear of it.

X X X

At 6 o'clock o3 the night of the party, Daphne telephoned Jennifer and said, "I'm simply furious, Daphne, but I can't get away until 9 o'clock. O'Neil is having trouble with some lights and we've got to re-take the two shots we did this afternoon. I don't dare leave because I'm to get an extra $50 if I stay to complete these pictures."

Daphne, with her hand over the telephone, said to Anne, "It's Jennifer. She can't get home until 9."

"That's a break," Anne said gleefully.

"All right, Jennifer. You'll have plenty of time to dress then. The Carteris's are to arrive at 10 and we're going to pick up the Hammers. Are you sure you have Larry call for you here at 11?"

"Because he isn't taking me," Jennifer retorted.

"Apparently Larry isn't coming," Daphne said to Anne.

"Well, what if he isn't? I didn't think the party was given for a big reunion between you and Larry. It's just as well that he isn't; you'll have a better chance to concentrate. Come over, here and let me try this blue eye-shadow. It's right for everything I've put it on and I still think green is your color."

"Good Heavens, Anne, you're putting on my fur wrap. It cost enough to rent; I don't want to pay damages on it."

X X X

Anne was tying a black velvet ribbon into her red curls three hours later when the doorbell rang. "Answer it, Daphne. It's Jennifer and I don't want to miss the effect."

Daphne opened the door. Jennifer said, "I'll only be a jif....... Daphne! It really is Daphne, isn't it?"

She sat down suddenly on the edge of a chair, staring at her savagely.

"Yes," she said demurely and stepped back for Jennifer to get the complete effect. Her black hair had been swept back from her face and arranged in a Grecian coil around her head. Two huge silken flowers in red and iridescent purple perched provocatively on the crown of her head, matching the flowers in her gown of clinging crepe. A heavy belt of gold mesh drew the green close to her small waist and accentuated the lithe lines of her figure. A cape of white foxes rested lightly on her uncovered shoulders.

Daphne was beautiful and she knew it.

X X X

Daphne lifted her vanity and looked into it with her head thrown back and the corners of her other hand deftly touching her hair.

"Just which man are you going after tonight?" Jennifer inquired shortly.

"Must I be after a man?" Daphne asked, snapping the enamel case.

"Aren't you usually?" Jennifer got up and greeted Anne briefly. Then she went into the bedroom and closed the door after her.

Daphne took off the cape with a gesture of hopelessness. I wonder if really will be like old times," she thought. And then instantly she was sorry that she had permitted herself that small question. She knew only too well how Jennifer felt. Wasn't she doing the for Jennifer?

"So far, so good," Anne said to from the window. "It's call that last No. 1. And here comes our second victim. The Carteris's are arriving."

Daphne caller through the closed bathroom door. "Jennifer, the Carteris are on their way up and we've got to go on immediately. Shall I ask Jules to return for you?"

"Don't bother," Jennifer said. "I want to rest. I'll be along about 11:30."

X X X

In the Carteris' car on their way to the Hammer apartment, Daphne said, "I wish I had asked an extra man. I'm afraid we're going to be one short." She didn't say that man was Larry.

Jules said, "If you mean that, I know a gentleman who would be charmed. Douglas Lockhead is at our apartment right this minute longing to meet beautiful girls."

"Please go and get him, Jules." Daphne was afraid that with a man short, she would have little chance to work out her plan.

They had to stop for cocktails with the Hammers and Daphne pleaded with them to hurry. She was having three guests who were to join them at the Flamingo and she didn't want to be late.

Daphne with her guests, the Hammers, Kit Carteris and Anne arrived at the Flamingo to find that Jules and the other men-Douglas Lockhead, Peter Austin-Lockhead, Frank Rossiter and Gordon Hersberg, had not yet arrived.

Her table was in a corner not too near the orchestra. The candles were lighted and the champagne cooling the silver buckets when Jules arrived. And while they toasted her in their first glass Daphne arranged the placing that Gordon Hersberg was at her right. That was the important thing.

As a matter of form, she had placed Mr. Hammer at her left. Jennifer, Jules Carteris, Douglas Anne opposite her, and Frank Rossiter on the next place. That meant that Larry and Douglas Lockhead would have to be between Mrs. Hammer and Jennifer with Mrs. Hammer next to.....

X X X

But would it be a good idea to throw this unknown man into conversation with..... she shook she switch Mr. Hammer; no, she decided because he was her guest of honor. Daphne ascheived her second little conspiracy and the other, that if Larry were there he would be left out to himself. She would have her so that she wouldn't have to look up and have him see her eyes. No! Why Larry was not coming and that.....

The waiter whispered, "Miss Brett."

She rose. "Our men seem to have arrived."

She followed the waiter toward the lobby. Gordon Hersberg was standing with his back to her inspecting a print on the wall.

She knew his name but she couldn't for the life of her recall. She decided you could come," she said and held out her hand to him.

"Daphne." Larry clung to her hand but he didn't say anything else.

This was a new Daphne. This stunning girl with the cool, clipped voice and the manner of a duchess. She didn't known how these past months he had.

"Jennifer is a little late arriving. Poor child, she had to work tonight. She's been doing some posing for a photographer."

"Has she?" he asked interestedly in that completely feigned manner that people often assume when words are really important just so long as you keep talking.

"Yes, she has. She's been doing a lot. For a cigarette account," she offered.

"Oh, that's splendid!"

"It keeps her occupied." Daphne was conscious of the insanity of it all but the furious pounding in her bosom, the close tightness in her throat seemed to block off her mind. She couldn't think of anything to say. She couldn't even ask him about himself. She would have found herself blushing at the mere about his looking well and he was.

X X X

The doors at the rear swung open to let in an icy blast and a radiant Jennifer with a man.

"Oh, darling, there you are." She went right to Larry and took his arm. "Daphne, this Mr. Hersberg. My sister, Gordon."

Daphne gave Gordon Hersberg her hand and a smile as radiant as Jennifer's. She was glad to see that he was young; that gave her a line of attack.

"I'm so pleased that you could join us," she said and, taking his arm, led the other two with mary a backward glance, back to her table.

"I'm monopolizing you," she said, "Mr. Hersberg. You're going to sit at my right."

"How did you know that was where I wanted to be? I've heard a lot about you, Miss Brett. Your sister tells me you have a very interesting person and that you know a bit about this thing yourself."

"Do you mind talking about the theatre? I want you to tell me so much."

Juliet Carteret, Douglas Lockhead and Frank Rossiter arrived at the same time and for a few minutes Daphne had no opportunity to pursue her course.

But when the others had gotten up to dance—Larry and Mrs. Hammer were the last—she said to Gordon Hersberg, "Later, I want you to tell me about yourself and your work in the play. Jennifer was my first love, you know. Do you mind?"

He didn't mind. There were few men who could resist the flatter-ing attention of Daphne Brett's response that Daphne had to give him. She turned herself completely eagerly to her side to go on with their conversation.

"Will you dance with me, Daphne?" It was Larry. All evening she had avoided looking at him direction. Now there was no escape. But there was. The lights were dimmed. Caught in the sudden sensation, was going into her dance.

"Sorry," she said to Larry sweetly and returned her attention to Hersberg.

"Would it..... would it be asking too much to let me read your play?"

"I'd be charmed," he said. "I'll send it over to you in the morning. I'd like to know what you think of it."

"I can really mean that," she said softly, I'll ask you to tea with me Sunday."

"At four?" he asked.

CHAPTER XXIII

Daphne blinked until her eyes open and looked around. Anne peered under the covers. She felt numb with lack of enough sleep. "What time is it, Anne?" she asked.

Jennifer threw a comb, brush and a powder puff into her overnight case. "Almost 11," she said. "I'll have to leave at noon and I haven't had any breakfast. Do you mind fixing some coffee and toast?"

Daphne stretched, sighed and sat up. Memories came to her. She fumbled and found her slippers. She got into a warm robe. "It was a marvelous party, wasn't it, Jennifer?"

Jennifer turning her hair under her hat, remarked, "It was all right for you. What were you and Hersberg chatting so comfy over?"

"Wahhh....." Daphne yawned. "This is the time to ask me. I'm too sleepy to remember. What time are you getting back tomorrow?"

X X X

"I'm not returning until Monday. I'm driving back with Grace. Daphne, last night did you talk to Hersberg about my getting the part of Louise?"

"Louise?"

"Of course, Louise! Wake up, Daphne and don't act so dumb. You know I've told you all about it. That's the second lead. The part I want in Herald on Wings."

"What did you tell me about it?" Daphne asked and yawned again.

"Dope! I told you that the part as it is written is for the snooty girl who suddenly turns noble instead of silly and realizes that the other man has a prior right to her man, when his wife dies. She pretends to give the aviator and ....."

"Oh, yes, I remember. And you thought she should be played as the fiery type. But I thought Hersberg agreed with me."

"He did, after I dig a sales job. I thought I'd never get him to see how superior it would be done with that interpretation."

"This is new. Did you say your train leaves at noon?"

When Jennifer had gone, Daphne went back to bed. She wished that she could sleep forever and forget Larry as she had seen him last night. Just to see him again had been exquisite agony and to know that she would go on seeing him—with Jennifer—was to twist the pain. She closed her eyes.

The doorbell brought her back from the edge of sleep. She got into her robe and slippers again and pressed the button.

"Sign here," a messenger boy said. She signed it, gave him a coin and closed the door.

It was Gordon Hersberg had sent over to her. She propped herself up in bed with pillows at her back and coffee at her side. She read three times.

Then she got up, had her shower and went out to walk in the brisk wintry air while the maid tidied her apartment. Under her arm was the blue-covered script of the play, Herald on Wings.

When she got person hurried to look at her as she strolled through the wind-swept park, murmuring to herself and occasionally opening the script to study a line and close it again.

At 6 o'clock that night she put the play in a drawer of her desk and before the hearth with her back to it, her head raised and said, "Paul, there has been a great wrong done." She lifted her chin and there was a kind of dignity in the gesture. "It is not for you, nor for me, to judge which of us has been at fault." Proudly she stood for a moment. Then her hands fell to her sides and she lowered her head before she turned slowly away.

Above her head, the small clock on the mantel tinkled five times. Gordon Hersberg put down his tea-cup.

The girl in the dark red velvet housegown said, "It is not for you, nor me, to judge which of us has been at fault." She lifted her chin for a moment, then her hands fell to her sides and she lowered her head before she turned slowly away.

"But you've got it! That's exactly what I mean," Hersberg sat back in his chair, his hands folded.

X X X

Daphne pretended an embarrassed laugh. "Oh, I know I'm not an actress. I only did it that way to show you the interpretation I put in the lines. I was puzzled when I read the play because Jennifer said she, Louise, was the comic relief, the effect that Paul was at fault. See, that is the question at that point that changes the meaning of the scene, but what you are entirely right; Jennifer would play that beautifully.

He didn't say anything.

"Let me pour more tea." She held up his cup.

"I was wrong," he said slowly. "I was asking Jennifer to the part when I agreed to the play being. I-was very wrong. You've got the feeling of it."

"Oh, please, Mr. Hersberg. I'm not an actress and I didn't mean for you to....." She broke off prettily.

"I disagree with that. You are an actress and I shouldn't be surprised if you turned out to be a very good one. You said you were crazy about the theatre and had had some experience. What about it?"

"About what?" she responded and sipped her tea.

"What would you say if I offered you the part of Louise?"

Daphne placed her cup on the table and played with her collar. "I wouldn't know what to say. You can't mean it?"

"Why not? I know a capable actress when I see one. I gave Jennifer a part when she had no experience."

"But Jennifer! Oh, she didn't really have a part. This is the one she wants. I couldn't do that. I couldn't do that to Jennifer."

X X X

"My dear young lady, if you will not accept it, I will not give it to Jennifer. I shall find an actress who will play it very well. Jennifer can't do it. She is a different type."

"Will—you let me think it over?" she asked, knowing what her answer would be.

"You'll have to make up your mind by tomorrow morning. I want to open January 15. There'll be only two weeks of rehearsal."

"I'll let your know tomorrow morning," she promised.

Daphne said her prayers. Oh, Lord; please let this be the right thing to do. I am not selfish. I am not cruel. I am not doing this for my own sake. I'm only trying to do what Jennifer would have wanted me to. I'm doing this for Jennifer's sake. I need Your help. Please don't let it hurt Jennifer. I don't care if she is angry if only she will see what that part means. Some day this lesson will mean more to her than the injury. It will make her grow up and realize that other people have rights. By knowing that, she will be able to balance her values, to get more out of life.

X X X

Jennifer leaned on the palms of her hands. Her face was white and her eyes blazed.

"Daphne, answer me, is it true that Hersberg has given you MY part? It is! I can see it. Behind my back, you did this unspeakable, perfidious thing to your own sister! I hate you, Daphne Brett!"

Weddings

COOK—HALSEY

The marriage took place in Toronto, on June 25, 1927, at the home of Rev. H. McDiarmid, the officiating clergyman of Lily, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Halsey, and Mr. Henry F. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cook, 55 Dundas Street East. After a honeymoon in Toronto and eastern points, Mr. and Mrs. Cook have taken up residence at 30 Victoria Avenue.

GRIFFIN—SIMONDS

On Thursday evening, July 1st, the marriage was solemnized at Amelia Street Amelisburg parsonage by the Rev. D. J. Campbell of Wilma Beryl, eldest daughter of Mrs. Simonds and the late William Bentley Simonds of Massanaga, and John Alan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Griffin of Birmingham, England.

The bride was lovely in a gown of pastel printed chiffon over satin, while flannel net with white accessories and corsage of roses. The attendants were Miss Irene Way and Mr. Murray Simonds, brother of the bride.

The young couple spent a honeymoon in Toronto.

Miss Griffin is a graduate of Macgladene College School of Oxford, England, and both she and the groom have been prominent in the work of the church at Massanaga. Good wishes will follow them wherever they choose to make their home.

BROWNSON—HOLLAND

A very pretty event took place last evening at 124 Bridge Street East when Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Holland of Marmora, became the bride of Angus, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brownson, Rawdon Township. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Mr. Hinchcliffe in the presence of by Miss Dorothy Osborne and Mr. Alex Holland, both of Marmora.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of blue sheer with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of roses and peas, baby's breath and delphinium. The bridesmaid wore a pink striking blue gown and silver slippers.

The ceremony was followed by an informal reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barrigar, Victoria Street.

Among those present were—Mrs. James Pratt of Belleville; Mr. Jacob Mattis, Miss Gladys Mattis, Mr. Fred Ethier, Mrs. F. Ethier of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Brownson will reside in Rawdon Township.

CHILD'S VIEWS ON C. N. R. TRAINS

Special Cutlery Chinaware, High Chairs in Dining Cars

Montreal, July 23—"All the good things that come from the kitchen, such as ice cream, nuts and candies are children on dining cars of the Canadian National Railways", declares Hugh Phillips, General Superintendent of Sleeping and Dining Car Services, who is interested in "children's Menus" on Canadian National trains.

Those new menus, designed particularly to appeal to children, give the little choice of suggestions for breakfast, dinner and supper for the day, making their selection a matter of nursery "jingles" in modern style.

It is the kiddies' own menu. They may even take a copy home as a souvenir of the trip. Special cutlery and will autograph it if they so desire. Chinaware is decorated with the "Little Folks Travel Club".

Mr. Phillips says special chinaware and cutlery for children, as well as high chairs and bibs," said Mr. Phillips, "and these are in attractive menus complete the list. We are making every effort to make meal-time appetizing and pleasant for children on our dining and cafe employees have been instructed to give them special attention."

Madrid is Shelled After Long Calm

Madrid, July 22.—(AP)—Twice shelled within 24 hours, Madrid was at least 15 killed and a score injured by insurgent bombs which fell abruptly thrown back today to the grimness of a bitter siege.

After city streets in comparative calm while a tornado of offensive and counter-offensive raged over the hills and plains some 15 miles to the west, there was jolted into sharp realization that a besieging army was still at her gates.

TAMMANY HALL PICKS COPELAND
Democrat Nominee Will be Grover A. Whalen And Bitter Fight Promised
New York, July 23.—(AP)—Tammany Hall's endorsement of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland for Mayor and Grover A. Whalen, nominee for Democratic organizations in the four boroughs outside Manhattan, today forecast one of the bitterest primary battles in New York City's political history.
A campaign with the new deal as a paramount issue was assured when supporters of ailing Chieftain James J. Dooling backing Copeland, overrode Whalen adherents by a vote of 15 11-12 to 8 2-12.
Whalen, World's Fair head and a vigorous new dealer, has the support of Democratic leaders in Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond boroughs who were friendly to Democratic General James A. Farley, Copeland supporter and former Governor Alfred E. Smith, has opposed many Roosevelt administration measures.
As Democratic ranks split in dissent, Surr Mayor Hardie Lamarche's campaign for re-election gained momentum with his endorsement again by substantially the same group of Tammany which backed his successful 1925 campaign.

At the Movies

AT THE BELLE

Three Dynamic Stars, Three Thousand Romantic Thrills

Bebe Davis was the winner of the 1935-36 mythical gold statue for the best feminine film performance of the year.

Edward G. Robinson's every picture has been great, since "Little Caesar," back in 1929.

Humphrey Bogart was the main figure in the gangster-talkie "The Racket," and the menacing bandit in "Petrified Forest."

Each and individual Warner Brother.....but now all working together in "Old Calabash," an exciting story of the prize ring and those who surround it. The picture has been booked since the Belle Theatre and is scheduled to have its first Belleville showing tomorrow (Saturday) and on Monday, matinee and night.

"Old Calabad," written by Frank Wallace, was a great literary success when it first appeared as a serial in a national weekly magazine. Then it became a best-seller as a novel.

The story deals with two rival prizefighter-manager, Robinson and Bogart, and their attempts to double-cross each other. Bebe Davis fighter is "Kid Calabad" (called that because of his fondness for yellow women), played by a 23 year old newcomer to the screen named Frank McHugh, who is known by those who saw the picture in preview here as a comedy hit about him tonight in stardom.

Bogart's "boy" is another very young fighter named Hank Mahon, who was taken right off the skeleton of a building in Hollywood recently from the Broadway play he was brought to Hollywood to play "Curley McGraw," the heavyweight champion in "Kid Calabad."

The fight scenes in these two boys is said to be the bitterest ever shown on stage or screen. Real fist to fist punches pulled. Morris weighs 196, Hanale 210. The battle goes eleven rounds.

Miss Davis plays the part of Curley's girl friend, Mahon's manager a new young leading lady on the Warner lot.....Jane Bryan, who made such a hearty in Belle's last picture, "Marked Woman," plays the role of Mahon's sweetheart.

Then there are some real fighters, Maxie Rosenbloom, the lovable heavyweight contender, Hank Hankinson and Jack Pennick, the inimitable comedians of Madison Square Gardens battles.

The fights were directed by Michael Curtiza, who made "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Captain Blood".)

On the same program with the above excellent feature, Saturday only, and Monday, is a sensational picture entitled "Hollywood Hotel" revealing the only scenes taken of the clash between Governor Allred and the Republic Steel plant. South Chicago, in which ten persons died and many were injured. The United States Government also took scenes of the riot, but refused to release them for public showing.

"Hollywood Hotel" is a story of "Hijacked Rights Again," a highly amusing comedy-drama that will thrill you and amuse all lovers of film fare revealing Western atmosphere.

Monday matinee is special treat for the children has been prepared in the exhibition of three rip-roaring cartoons.

"Go-Getter," Funny

An exceptionally fine balanced screen program will be presented at the Capitol tonight for the last time in Peter B. Kyne's "The Go-Getter" with Anita Louise and George Brent, the latter known as Cap'n Andy on radio and screen assumes the greatest role of his career and turns in a masterful performance.

Supporting cast includes Charles Winninger, melody and laughs in "Play Street" a smart musical comedy vehicle featuring the Fredrics Sisters and a host of favorite entertainers. Sport Chats a clever and up-to-the-minute vehicle complet, a grand show that will be presented in its entirety tonight at 7.10 and 9.00 p.m.

EDITORIAL EMPLOYEES REFUSE TO PAY DUES

Seattle, July 22 (AB)—Forty editorial employees of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, all members of the American Newspaper Guild, refused today when they had refused to pay dues and assessments to the Guild because of its present political.

The employees said in a petition they did not "subscribe to taxation without representation" and most emphatically will not contribute dues and assessments to carry on a program in the shaping of which they have been denied a voice and of which they most heartily disapprove."

AT THE CAPITOL

William Boyd in "Spoils of Old West"

Everybody who delights in the swiftly moving and colorful panorama of the American out door West will enjoy "Spoils of Old Wyoming," the latest "Hopalong Cassidy" film which comes to the Capitol Saturday only with William Boyd starring.

The romance of the picture "Spoils of Old Wyoming" is centered around the vast government reservation in Wyoming which is a land tract apparently spent who tries to use his words as a cloak under which he carries on his activities. Then the ranchers, headed by Hopalong Cassidy, rise in indignation and go into a head-on conflict with the Indians. All of Cassidy's hard riding, straight-shooting and capacity are required to straighten out the resulting complications.

The historic customs of the Indians, their war dances, ceremonies and spectacular fighting tactics provide a colorful background for the picture. It is a natural respect for courage which enables the former "Hopalong Cassidy" films from enemies into followers and to lead them with ranchers in a battle against the common rustlers, is also convincingly depicted.

Supporting Boyd who created the stirring screen character of "Hopalong Cassidy," are Jimmy Ellison, Russell Hayden, Stephen Morris and Clare Kimball Young.

Added Shorts

In addition to the usual well western short the Stooges are seen in "Restless Knights," an all star comedy entitled "The Land of Art," the latest Capitol News Events, and a Mickey McGuire comedy with the outboard motor boat races and the winner receiving the silver cup entitled "Hunter's Paradise."

Today Only

Showing for the last times today, two swell features, at 1.30 and 7.00 will be found in "John Meade's Woman," and as bit No. 2 "Calabash Pirates," with Edward Arnold and John Wayne. Last complete show at 8.30.

COURT BATTLE OF CENTURY ENDS

Skeleton Measure Passed to Speed up Lower Courts

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Senators who fought for five months over the United States Supreme Court Reform Bill advocated by President Roosevelt joined amicably today in drafting a skeleton measure to speed up the Federal Courts.

They predicted that Congress, clamoring for adjournment would enact it quickly.

The bill will substitute for the Administration proposal which the Senate discarded yesterday 70 to 20.

Thus the legislative "battle of a century" ended. Opposition leaders called the Senate vote a complete rejection of Roosevelt's proposal.

The new measure will not mention that high tribunal. It will authorize increasing the number of Lower Court judges on the basis of need rather than age.

Direct appeal of constitutional cases to the Supreme Court will be permitted, and the Attorney-General will be empowered to intervene in cases involving the Federal Government.

The new measure will be handled as an amendment to a House of Representatives bill pending before the Judiciary committee.

It was still possible that out of the Judiciary committee would come some constitutional amendment for compulsory retirement of Supreme Court justices at a certain age.

DIVORCE LAW OF

Grounds For Nullity

New grounds are introduced for nullity, as distinguished from divorce. Divorce is dissolution of an existing marriage. Nullity is annulment of a marriage, which is then deemed never to have existed.

Under the bill the grounds for nullity are:

1. Wilful refusal to consummate;
2. Unsoundness of mind at the time of marriage (unsoundness after marriage may be ground for divorce);
3. Respondent suffering from venereal disease in communicable form;
4. That the respondent was at the time of marriage pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

Legal Stalemate Removed

A decree of nullity will not, however, be granted if the petitioner was aware of the existence of any of these matters at the time of marriage.

The bill removes from law what has come to be known as a form of legal blackmail. Under the present law a decree nisi is not made absolute at the end of the requisite six months' period unless the petitioner applies, that it be done. In some cases the petitioner has refused to have the decree made absolute, leaving the respondent either married nor able to marry again.

An amendment made in the House of Lords, to which the Commons agreed, gives the respondent the right to apply for a decree nisi to be made absolute.

Clergymen Not Compelled

No clergyman of the Churches of England or Wales will be compelled to solemnize the marriage of any person "whose former marriage has been dissolved on any grounds and whose former husband or wife is still living."

The act does not apply to Scotland or Northern Ireland where the marriage laws differ in some respects from those of England and Wales.

The act come into effect Jan. 1, 1938.

A. P. Herbert, author and humorist and Independent Member of Parliament, for Oxford University, had a fairly easy task when, unopposed, acceptance of the Lords' Amendments to the Commons by Sir Herbert and other chief credit for the bill. For long, with speech after speech, he fought the laws of England on divorce.

Divisive Pressed

It had been expected lively opposition, which marked the early stages of the bill, would be renewed on its re-appearance from the Lords. But its opponents did not press the House to a division on the question. Most of the amendments went through with only a brief explanation from the bill's promoters.

Herbert said the acid, unfaithful marriage sets dealt with the celebration of marriage. The bill contained one or two mild references to the dissolution of marriages. That was the reason for the change of title.

Richard Denman, National Labor, remarked the government throughout had kept cautiously aloof from the bill. Church and state had avoided taking an active part in its passage.

That was mentioned, he said, not by way of criticism, but to point out how a private member had succeeded in piloting a private member's bill through parliament without assistance. Herbert said it was by determination and resolution.

CHINESE FEAR DRIVE BY JAPAN

Japanese Reported Planning Large-scale Movements

Peiping, July 23 (AP)—Fear was growing today among Chinese here that a major Japanese drive was impending against North China.

According to advices received in foreign circles from Tientsin, the Japanese army is making elaborate preparations for large-scale troop movements. Hundreds of carts, mules, horses and equipment for a protracted military campaign in the interior have arrived at Tientsin from Manchouko.

The Japanese army headquarters at Tientsin has placed orders for 200,000 gallons of ordinary gasoline and all available standard gasoline in China.

3 Airports Reported Completed

Chinese sources reported the Japanese army had completed three airports in the vicinity of Tientsin and one at Kayuliying, 30 miles north of Peiping.

Troops of the Chinese 29th division, considered by the Japanese to be inimical to them, were continuing their withdrawal from the positions that they have held west of Peiping since July 7.

Withdrawal was understood to have been ordered in compliance with an agreement between local military authorities to end the tense situation by a mutual evacuation of the contested area.

A Japanese army spokesman at Tientsin declared, however, that the agreement did not "provide for the Japanese to withdraw, but instead solely for the Chinese to withdraw".

BRITISH TRACK SQUAD MEETS KEEN COMPETITION IN TORONTO

Though they lost the meet several points to six, by virtue of a British victory in the last and deciding event, a smart track and field team are caught in these camera shots. At (left) Alan Pennington of Oxford is winning the 100-yard dash, while Oxford-Cambridge team mate Kovalinka, also of Toronto (Extreme Left) third. Above after a run in eastern United States. Two finishes, one for the British and one for the Canucks, Herbert Nairn of Toronto Scottish Harriers and Oxford's Jack Brown of Toronto (Extreme Left) third. Above, Conroy scored for Canada in the 880 and he is pictured finishing alone at (right). J. T. H. Mc-Nair of the visitors was second. About 4,000 spectators attended the meet.

'Croocial' Series of Season Opens in New York Today Between Giants and Cubs

Open Three Game Series With Hubbell And Davis as Hurlers

YANKEES DEFEATED

Joe DiMaggio Stopped After Hitting Safely in 22 Games

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago Cubs and New York Giants become the main centre of interest for baseball fans today as they went to work on each other in the National League's most "croocial" series of the season.

The Cubs and Giants, tangling in the National League race but not as close as Broadway and 42nd Street, open a three-game party at the Polo Grounds while the pennant-winner is likely to stagger, if the rest of the loop keeps on falling apart at its current rate.

The Yankees and White Sox, running one-two in the American League (although the one is some distance in front of the other), start a four-game fuss at Chicago that will decide whether Manager Joe Cronin's Boston rookie of the junior circuit pennant parade.

Glands Only Cause Some Ails

The stage was set yesterday for the start of these important get-togethers when the Giants topped the Reds 6-3 and the Cubs dropped a 7-4 heartbreaker to the Phillies, the next result of which left Bill Terry's Giants only a game away from their face-setting sparring partners. Terry's men did it through again with a ninth inning homer by Mel Ott, the Reds and Phils put on a seven-run splurge in the eighth to take a sure thing from Cuse.

While the White Sox were idle, the Yanks wound up on the short end of a hit parade with the Browns, losing 11-4. This surprise package ended the six-game winning streak of the swat squad, snapped Joe DiMaggio's 22-game consecutive hitting run, and left the world champions a mere seven games in front of the American League pack.

Hubbell to Meet Davis

Retort interest, of course, attaches as to the Cubs-Giants war on today's front. The New Yorkers will throw King Carl Hubbell, again, against the Giant executioner, Curt Davis, who, two years ago, was a mere Giant killer, in the first game of the series.

The Cards' fourth straight brilliant pitching staff too much yesterday for the fourth straight game and dropped a 2-0 decision to Danny MacFayden. The Pirates banged out 12 hits, four-bill filinging, had little difficulty walloping the hapless Cards.

Detroit's Tigers battered Boston Red Sox 17-6, featuring four homers in their attack. Hal Trosky clouted two homers as the Indians whipped the Athletics 5-1. The Senators were idle.

New York, July 22nd—(AP)—Along with Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs and New York Giants, become the main centre of interest for baseball fans today as they went to work on each other in the National League's most "croocial" series of the season.

Pitcher's Control

Bill Collins, who has been doing plenty of talking since he left the Cards, says the vaudeville antics of the Ole Diz-zoo are more of a liability than an asset.....

For 11 straight years, starting in 1926, the team that was leading on July 4 won the National League pennant.....But it's happened only twice in the last eight years—the Cardinals in 1931 and the Giants in 1933.....The middle name of Jimmy Ducher of the Dodgers is "Dudnot".....In Latin that means "five timers".....Just to prove it, Jimmy won his chance in the National League by batting five in the Piedmont league.....His 306 led the loop and he was first in the number of base hits, two baggers, homers and total bases.....

Letter to the Sports Editor

To the Sports Editor:

Dear Sir,—

With reference to your comments re Belleville Rugby Club at Trenton, apparently as your remarks go, your news could not have come from a very reliable source. The Belleville Rugby Club did not lose, "SPECIAL" invitation to the Trenton Regatta. What was being looked for was an invitation to attend as a club, which is generally the rule where clubs are co-operating with each other. Being no more error we did not get ours and we did not know where we were to, but let me tell you, the boys were not going to let Trenton down. All boats were instructed if they wanted to compete independently, was O.K., and before the boys left Belleville there were half a dozen of our boats in Trenton. There is no ill feeling between either Trenton, Picton or Belleville, but accidents will happen to anybody, so why worry. All we have to say is, the big day is coming Day, when we hold our own Regatta and Picton and Trenton will be here to help us put it over big.

Yours truly,
CHAS. JEFFS,
Secretary B.A.V.C.

FAVORITES HAVE A FIELD DAY

(By the Canadian Press)

Favorites had a heyday yesterday at Queen's Park track, longest price of the day being less than four to one, which went to Ace About. About 2,500 fans saw Goodwin come home in three feature races.

The Cosgrave Stable horse finished the seven-furlong stretch a length ahead of Santa Rola, Slim Salome took the lead early but Goodwin moved ahead at the last and fought off the threat of Santa Rola. Salome was a poor third.

In Sterling Centennarch came in first in the second but was disqualified and Summerside awarded the victory, Jockey R. Johnstone, who rode Centennarch, was suspended for five days for rough riding.

Jockey McTague on Runaway clalmed he was cut off by Centennarch rounding the first turn in the back stretch. After hearing evidence from the jockeys the judges moved Runaway up from second to third, Playing from third to second, and Nireho from fourth to third.

FANS TO CHOOSE ALL-STAR TEAM

Team Selected Will Play Contest With Corbin Lock

With the selection of the team in the hands of the fans and general public, considerable interest is being taken in the forthcoming all-star, benefit softball game to be sponsored by the Belleville Softball Association on Civic Holiday, when the Corbin Lock team will meet an all-star team, composed of players chosen by the popular ballot of the fans and from the remaining four clubs to compose the league. The game is being staged in order to raise funds for purpose of assisting softball players, who have received injuries necessitating expenses.

Softball fans are permitted one selection only and the fan submitting the team with the nearest number of positions selected correct, by will receive a cash award for his effort. In order to keep selection of the proposed all-star team strictly in the hands of the fans, no player to be in the league may solicit votes or have any part in the compilation of proposed all-stars. All selections should be mailed to Wm. Todd, President of the Belleville Softball League, 302 Front St. The clubs from which the all-star team may be selected are:—Point Anne, Belleville Barnards, Portland Stars and the Ashnes Juniors. Each respective position and the name of the club for which the selected player plays, must be included in each choice. The following form may be stripped and filled in:

Pitcher .....
Catcher .....
First Base .....
Second Base .....
Third Base .....

11 YEAR CADDIE HOLES IN ONE

Brockville, Ont., July 21 (CP)— Donnie McLean, 11, one of the caddies at the Brockville Golf and Country Club, scored his first golf hole in 11 should be done last night. Playing in a foursome with three other caddies, Peter Sauve, Jack Simpson and John Williams, he shot a hole in one on the sixth hole, known as "Little Misery" from 130 yards. McLean's parents believe him to be the youngest member of the "hole in one club" in Canada.

Hazel Cunningham of San Francisco, will try what is regarded as the impossible when, along with the veteran long-distance swimmer, Paul Chotteau, she will attempt to swim Lake Tahoe, starting at the Nevada side and finishing at Brockway, Calif., about 21 miles distant. Miss Cunningham once swam across the Great Salt Lake, a distance of 22 miles, in a raging storm.

SCORE TWICE IN BRITAIN'S TRIUMPH OVER U.S. COLLEGIANS

The two crack British track-men, pictured in victory flinishes here, were stars in the triumph of the Oxford-Cambridge team over a combined squad made up of athletes from the United States colleges of Princeton and Cornell, at Palmer stadium, Princeton, N.J. Both Arthur Godfrey Brown (left) of Cambridge and Alan Pennington of Oxford, shared double victories to give the combined British team a 3 2 margin over their American college rivals. Brown is pictured winning the quarter-mile; he also took the half-mile event clipping 8-10th seconds from the mark set by Bill Beththeon, Princeton intermortal. Pennington, Oxford sprint ace, won the 100 and 220 yard dashes. The picture catches him (Centre) breaking the tape in the shorter event. The Oxford-Cambridge team will appear in a series of meets in eastern Canada at the conclusion of their American tour.

LEAFS WIN ON INFIELD ERRORS

Game Went Ten Innings Before Jersey City Defeated

(By The Associated Press)

International League box scores are required reading for Maestro Bill Terry of the New York Giants —and not such pleasant reading at that.

Bill is interested not only in the Jersey City Club, a Giant farm, which last night won game by one run last night. But also in Ely Vandenberg and Bill Lohrman, hurlers operating with the Baltimore Orioles. Both are earmarked for transfer to the Giants this fall, but if they continue to function as they have since the club was made, Bill may have to punch the "no sale" key on the Giants' cash register.

Lohrman lost his first start after the deal and last night Vandenberg was royally pasted as Buffalo Bisons took a 10-5 win from the flock. Bill wasn't around for more than two innings.

Turning from this news to the Giants 6-5 defeat by Toronto Maple Leafs, Terry must have thought he was lost in the military column. The game went 10 innings but was lost for Don Brennan on infield errors.

Steve Sundra hurled Newark Bears out in front, limiting two straight defeats—as the league leaders slaked the Montreal Royals 2-1. Ted Beard's double won the game for the Bears in the eighth. It was Sundra's 11th victory.

Rochester's Red Wings sewed up the game in the fifth inning when Syracuse chiefs in the first inning for a 4-1 victory.

MAX SCHMELING NO. 1 CONTENDER

N.B.A. Issues Ratings of Various Fighters in Their Class

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The championship committee of the National Boxing Association recognized Max Schmeling as the No. 1 contender for the heavyweight championship held by Joe Louis.

The committee said "pure sportsmanship" decreed a title bout for Schmeling within six months. It said it would recommend that the N.B.A. declare Louis champion unless the German boxer gets the opportunity within that period, it announced here negro.

Schmeling defeated Louis before the latter won the title from Jim Braddock. Schmeling's managers contended Braddock was afraid of them in fighting Louis instead of their pupil.

Heavyweight ratings in order:

Louis, Schmeling, Braddock, Bob Pastor of New York, Arturo Lovell of Argentina, Tommy Farr of England, Al McCoy, Boston, Nathan Mann of New York, Al Ettore of Philadelphia, Tuffy Griffiths, Gorilla Chile, and Bob Nestell of Los Angeles.

Champions and the leading contenders in the other divisions: Light heavyweight—Maxie Rosenbloom of Phoenix, Ariz. and Al Gainer of New Haven, Conn.

Middleweight—Freddie Steel of Tacoma, Wash., and Billy Conn of Pittsburgh.

Welterweight—Barney Ross of Chicago, and Glenn Lee of Los Angeles.

Lightweight—Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N.Y., and Pedro Montanes of Puerto Rico.

The season's exemplification of sportsmanship was displayed by Harry Sensabaugh skipper of the Alaska, during the progress of Wednesday's regatta at Trenton. Harry was in command of other Belleville punts Harry sailed the Alaska to Trenton to compete in the day's programme. Having sailed in somewhat of a streak of tough luck at the season, Harry's craft was in rare form on Wednesday and was leading a large field of class "A" boats by a comfortable margin and seemed a certain winner. As the Alaska came into the Trenton harbour, where hundreds of boats were milling around, to start her last lap, a small boy fell from one of the sight-seeing boats. Without hesitation Harry turned his Alaska about and under full canvas sailed to the assistance of the boy, who was rescued. Although power boat skippers were not as quick to realize the danger of the situation. Harry forgot all about the day's trophies and lost the race, but he saved a little boy's life. Harry's like that. He may appear gruff on the surface, but beneath it all is a really fine fellow. The Belleville Yacht Club can well be proud of such members.

In order to permit one of their members, Tommy Carruthers by name, to compete in the Canadian amateur golf championships at Ottawa next week, the Belleville Golf Club affiliated with the Royal Canadian Golf Association yesterday. Only golf clubs in good standing in the R.C.G.A. can be represented in the Canadian amateur golf tournament, it seems. All say rah Tommy's general entrance fee has been refunded and he left for the Capital City yesterday, where he will enjoy three days of practice before the Canadian amateur opens on Tuesday.

One executive member of the Belleville Golf Club informed us this morning their club intend to re-affiliate with the Royal Canadian Golf Association in years to come. It has been suggested that a committee from our club be named and annually that committee name one Belleville golfer, who shows promise, and that particular golfer will represent Belleville in the Canadian amateur, entered another member today. The suggestion has its merits and shows elevate the ambitious and honorable game of golf considerably in these parts.

The Belleville-Trenton "Flying Rovers" are scheduled to play in Peterboro versus the league leading Asshewa outfit tonight. The Liberty squad has been marching rough shod over the other clubs in the league, not having lost a game thus far this season. The Rovers have had the misfortune to high hopes of handing the homesters their initial defeat of the season tonight. Regarding the game Coe Perrine, demon lightfoot City sports reporter, has the following to say about the locals: "If the Quinte crew comes here as full strength, it'll be a tilly tussle; but if the Rovers should, Partridge and Smart, do not disappoint, they should repeat their last game gained Asshewa." It be just another chuckle for the Woollens in this warm weather. Seems someone had the nerve to tell Joe Goulet—he is really some slugger at the pastel-stick game around Central Ontario—that he should pass the ball next, to new Joe. He's passing it up altogether! But the hobbers may return to the wars here Friday p.m. We hope so."

Howard "Dynamite" Whiteley, diminutive fighter who used to thrill Belleville boxing fans a few years back, is going great guns for the General Motors boxing team of Oshawa these days. Not so long ago Whesler appeared to have lost his punch and aggressiveness, but reports emulating from the Motor City are to the effect he is getting like his old self once again. Wheeler was always a crowd-pleaser as he went in with a reckless abandon that was always a crowd-pleaser as he went in to fight from the drop of the hat.

Have you submitted your all-star softball team selection to President Wm. Todd as yet? Believe being interested in same is a cash award for the person having the most number of players selected for their proper positions for the Civic Holiday all-star softball game, so get busy. No player or executive member of the Belleville Softball Association is permitted to enter the contest. Incidentally while on the subject of softball the clubs are down for tonight's Aylmer-Percival fixture game, as these two teams are battling for the fourth playoff berth.

C. F. Scott, Milford baseball maestro, was in the city yesterday scouring for possible exhibition ball games. We've also learned a recruited baseball team in Prince Edward County, but are experiencing difficulty in arranging exhibition games. We're open to accommodate Milford, explaining Mr. Scott as he tendered his address in good faith. Here's an opportunity for any and all. Incidentally Bill Cook, business manager of the Riverside juniors, took up the challenge and arranged to have the Milford "Giants" play the local juniors at the Front grounds Monday in a twilight game.

Continuing a reorganization programme, that began with the ousting of Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis Browns yesterday appointed Charley O'Leary, veteran coach. Gabby Street, former Cardinal manager, was selected to replace him, but no replacement of Hornsby has been announced.

Skipper Harold Bawden informs us he has engaged a Kingston softball team to appear in Belleville on Saturday evening for an exhibition game with his Corbin Lock squad.

When it was first announced that the Toronto Maple Leaf baseball club would hold a baseball school at their Toronto Stadium this season, many local popular baseball players showed keen and keenest enthusiasm. But when the school opened we find Belleville talent very much lacking. According to reports emulating out of the baseball school now in progress, no Canadian ball players lack is good coaching. Of course there has to be a certain degree of natural ability included in the player's make-up.

OFF TO BEARD JAP. LION IN HIS DEN

This trio raised among America's fastest swimmers, are off to beard the Japanese water marvels in their home pools. In the last few years the Land of the Rising Sun has been concentrating on developing until their mermen and mermaids are among the world's most dangerous competitors. They proved it at the last Olympics; so Uncle Sam is sending Jimmy Higgins, Katherine Rawls and Jack Medica, (left to right) to put a damper on Jap. swimming spirits at the home. They will compete in the Nipponese national championships.

Alas!

Truth to tell I was not noticably heroic that memorable first night of my stay in Cockaville whether my unreasonable father had sent me.

The Cockaville Daily gave me all the story, presumably because I was the owner of the stolen bag containing a platinum wrist watch and some odd dollars. Also my vanity case had been stolen. But the heroine was Doctor Madeline Shd she not awakened me when she did I would probably have died in my bed. A strong odor which permeated the room convinced all that a drug had been used to put us more profoundly asleep.

Madeline's scream had awakened the entire household.

"I felt a choking sensation," she recounted to the listening family group, after the police patrol had come and gone. "I nudged Nora."

"Yes," Ira interposed, "and I continued sleeping."

"Allie, when she woke," Madeline went on, "I murmured: 'Get up, Nora, there's someone in the room.' Now, what do you think she said to that?" Madeline paused for effect, and I supplied the information for which my distressed aunt, uncle, and sister were waiting.

"'I'm afraid!' is what I said. After all, that is logic, isn't it?"

My relatives sped me with admiration. As though to marvelling that I had sufficient presence of mind to be afraid.

Madeline continued until daybreak to enlarge on the night's happenings for the sleepy family. Then, convinced that we would be safe from intruders, they betook themselves to their respective bedrooms.

Late in the morning a reporter came from the local newspaper, along with a detective and an army of neighbors. Again and again Madeline recounted the story of the noise near her bed, the shadow on the wall, her screams, my concussed fear, and the odor in the room.

I, however, said little. I had enough to occupy my mind. Each ring of the doorbell, each tingle of the telephone, found me apprehensive.

At 1 o'clock that afternoon the policeman brought my vanity case, battered but recognizable. He had found it in a field near my uncle's home.

Doors and windows were securely bolted before we again retired for a night's sleep. I tried so insist on occupying the room that had been mine the night before, but like my aunt and uncle would not allow.

"My room is safer," said Madeline, "and there we'll sleep." And there we slept without disturbance.

Fortunately for my nerves, the following morning news of the interest in Madeline's story had waned, and thus there were fewer repetitions.

But my anxiety was not allayed until, with the morning mail, I received the following letter:

"Dearest Evelyn:—My vacation tales the town of Cockaville! I see by his local paper that my wrist-watch is being secured for me. Dear heart, I am sadly But how, on your old car plans manage to go astray? There I stood clutching your bag, your vanity case, and that big roll you had handed to me, when I heard a woman's scream. Was it Murder? Robbers? What? I walked until sudden lights flashed. I heard the clanging of a police patrol, and then, dearest, I took to my heels and ran to my car. On investigation I find that I haven't your vanity case, nor the belt of your coat. These must have dropped. But I reached New York safely, though I expected every minute to be taken back to Cockaville jail. Yet the license was impatiently, and so do I."

There was more, but that has really no bearing on the case.

"Dear Jo!" I wrote that same afternoon.—"Here's how it has happened. That loquacious cousin of mine, Madeline, insisted on keeping me company in the guest room. For two hours she talked in bed. Of course, I had to undress so as not to create suspicion. She had been asleep but a short time when I heard your signal. And dear, I had just handed you my few things and had turned back to slip off my robe and into a dress when I heard Madeline murmur sleepily, 'Nora, there is some one in the room.' I threw off my robe and crept into bed again, hoping she would fall asleep. Seems as though she had noticed a shadow on the wall, and it had worked wonders with her imagination, she judged me, she yelled, she switched on the light, and I, still taking of her heroism.

"Oh, dear, she gives me a pain! They found the old rag doll belonging to my cost, but as no one here had seen the coat, they do not know the belt is mine. I had to own to the loss of the bag, which will likely cost. The latter, by the way, has been found. Some powder that I spilled has convinced every one here that it is a scoring drug. Is that's that!

"But, honey boy, I've been thinking—don't you think we had better postpone the elopement till I am back in the city? It's safer!"

I wrote more, but I have quoted sufficient here to explain the mystery of the Cockaville robbery.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on any front waiting for something to happen and pretty soon something did, being Skinny Martin stopping going past and saying, I'm going around to the Little Grand to see the Kid Up Kennedy, can you go?

I'll go in and ask, wait a second, I'll be back in a minute, I said.

And I ran up to ma's room where she was sewing on her sewing machine, sliting the last few yards in the ball outside her room the second as it is past herring time, waxed and me wanting to take advantage of it, and ma said, now what did I tell you about that sliding, what's the good of having the halls polished if you're going to turn them into a mass of scratches!

Well O, ma, what's the use of having slippery floors if you don't slide on them? I said.

Being a good answer only ma didn't enjoy it much, saying, Stop arguing and hand me my button box.

With I started to, feeling glad of the chance to do her a favor before I asked her to do me one, and all of a sudden the button box slipped out of my hands without any reason and the buttons splashed all over the floor, me quick saying, I'll pick them up again, ma.

Thanks for the kind offer, I'll say you will, ma said. Meaning I better had, with I started in thinking. This is no time to ask about movies I better wait till they're all picked up.

With after a while they was all except one little button near ma's chair, and I had a idea and took my hands ball out of my pocktit to see if I could hit the button with it, only I missed my aim a little and hit ma on the ankle, and she screched and wondered I broke my leg in a axident, and I went out again without even mentioning movies and told Skinny Martin no.

MARKET COMMENT

The somewhat better tone in the local market may no doubt be attributed to the reports that rains this week over extensive areas in Alberta and sections of Saskatchewan will tend to improve the final crop result. The unfavorable crop of last year record wheat has been in good measure responsible for retarding Canadian market progress.

There are two great influences which will direct the trend of business and stock markets:—(1) Building activity; (2) The price level. Jesse Heward and Co. in their Mid-Week Review. It is enough to say that building is now on the upward swing of its cycle and there is a strong possibility that it will reach a peak about 1943..... The government can to some extent up or dampen building activity, but the cycle, for all practical purposes, is outside government control. The other great influence on prosperity, the price level, is now in the hands of the government through the setting of the price of gold. It is fair to assume that the commodity price level will not be allowed to drop very far.

Consequently, if one buys securities, or starts farming, or embarks on a manufacture when prices are rising and building is expanding, the chances of success are very good indeed. If similar action is taken when business is at a peak and prices are falling the chances of success are very small. These are the conclusions reached by Professors Warren and Pearson in an article in Fortune, based on their recent book "World Prices and the Building Industry." Although most observers feel that the Warren gold price theory failed miserably in practice, these two professors still retain the respect of professional economists for their detailed studies of long-term cyclical movements.

Shawinigan's indicated earnings for 1937 are expected to be the highest since 1931 when $1.31 a share was reported. Last year net was equivalent to $1.26 a share. The opinion generally prevails that an increase in the dividend to $1.60 per share may be inaugurated in the final quarter of this year.

Kirkland-Hudson Bay Crosscut Ore 720 Feet

Kirkland-Hudson Bay's crosscut being driven south from the Lake Shore workings on the 4,450-ft. level is cut 720 ft. from the shaft to date, most of it in porphyry. Some minor fissures have been cut but they do not appear to have any economic importance yet. The drive is still 400 feet north of the south boundary, a distance of about 2,000 ft. This work is the deepest exploration yet carried out on any ground contiguous south of the main Kirkland Lake break.

Agricultural Grounds At Picton Purchased By County Council

Negotiations pending for some time for the purchase of the grounds of the Picton Agricultural Grounds by the Prince Edward County Council and a number of citizens, Finlay of Meaford, Ont., culminated yesterday in the purchase of the grounds for, a price of $5,000.00 according to a statement released by County Clerk Gordon Walmsley.

The final agreement was reached after some weeks of negotiations during which the councils offer of $3,000 was refused by the owners. Locking of the gr.s of the grounds and placarding of the property by Messrs. Finley followed their refusal to accept the offer.

The purchase of the grounds will likely result in the appointment of a Parks Committee which will have full charge of the grounds and be responsible to Council for its maintenance.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, July 23.—(CP)—Industrials failed to move far today from Thursday's final prices on the Toronto Market and Mining Shares on the whole were given slightly. Western Oils were fairly strong for a short time but the gains were shaded or erased late in the session. Monarch touched 54 in the early session and closed around 50 for a net gain of 6 cents. Volume was well under the half million mark.

Brazilian and Fanny Farmer registered fractional gains. Other Utilities held to the up side and the foods were lower. Beauharnois, Bell Telephone, Dom. Gas were unchanged. Dominion Stores and United Fuel Pfd all closed higher in quiet trading.

Paper shares turned a bit heavy. Abitibi and Bowaters slipped 1-3 and Consolidated Paper 1-4. Standard Paving, Canada Cement and Gypsum were all lower. Building Products improved slightly.

Norands and Consolidated Smelters weakened a point or more and the close was off for Pend Oreille, Ventures, Nickel and Chromium. Nipissing and Eldorado closed with losses of about five cents each.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Stocks stumbled over quiet profit-selling in today's market after a brisk upswing at the opening.

Fitful hour upturns of fractions to two points were cut down substantially in afternoon proceedings and, near the final lap, quotations were well mixed.

Transfers were about 900,000 shares.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 23.—Butter prices continued to advance on the local market today and a strong tone being evident. Eggs were also higher. Cheese was about steady, and poultry was unchanged. Potatoes were easier. Receipts were 1,138 cases of eggs, 37 boxes of butter and 6,685 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Sales at the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 900 boxes of spot Quebec fresh 93 score butter, 400 boxes of 92 score and 100 boxes of 91 score butter was quoted at the close at 26 3-8c to 26 5-8c, with Quebec fine offered at 26 3-4c.

The cheese market was 14 3-4c to 14 7-8c for Canadas and 14 5-8c to 14 2-4c for eastern.

On the egg market graded shipments arriving spot in used free cases were selling at 27 1-2c to 28c for Canadas, 28 1-2c to 29c for A-medium, 31 1-2c to 32c for B and 16c to 20c for C. Offerings at the Commodity Exchange were at 28c, 29c, 32c, and 30c respectively. Wholesale jobbing prices were announced that prices would be higher on Monday, effective this morning.

Marconi Tribute Paid by 300,000

Bologna Italy, July 23 (AP)—Guglielmo Marconi was borne to his death today and his body was laid to rest near the scene of his earliest experiments in wireless telegraphy.

Three hundred thousand persons lined the streets of this famous university and industrial city to witness the solemn passage of the funeral procession—from the railroad station to St. Petronius Cathedral and then to the Marconi family vault at a 14th Century Monastery just outside Bologna.

Southern Golds

Recent diamond drilling at the South Carolina property of Southern Gold, Ltd., has revealed the best vein encountered in the mine to date, officials advise. Diamond drilling of the No. 4 vein, which showed visible gold for 6 feet on surface, encountered the vein at a depth of approximately 200 feet showing a width of better than 30 feet with the core well mineralized.

Under surface operations the vein was traced for about 2,000 feet and is to be explored to the same extent to do additional drilling on this vein to determine its width and value from the surface. Drill operations are being carried out from underground workings, where work to date has indicated that all of the major ore occurrences dip towards the vein now being drilled.

Officials further advise that a shipment of 60 tons of high grade ore has been made, the returns from which will not be available for some time. It is expected, however, that the ore will average better than one ounce gold per ton.

4 SEVERE SHOCKS OVER FAIRBANKS

Bottles Toppled Off The Shelves in Liquor Store

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 23 (AP)—Alaskans displayed jaunty indifference today to the greatest earthquake disturbance ever recorded in the territory.

For nine hours yesterday many shocks, four of them severe, occurred over the interior from Fairbanks, 900 miles south, to Anchorage.

Utility companies, banks and business houses carried on business as usual. Only the liquor store failed to operate. The earth shocks toppled bottles off shelves and broke them.

Telephone lines broken during the first shocks were hastily repaired. Total damage was estimated at a maximum of $5,000, mostly to the liquor stock.

An unconfirmed report said several houses were demolished and one person injured when a giant earth slide swept across 2,000 feet of the Richardson highway.

STEERING COLUMN OF POLICE CAR BROKEN

Only the careful operation of the Belleville City police car averted a serious accident and perhaps a fatality today. Had there been occasion to have the city police radio-equipped motor car enter into a chase in pursuit of criminals undoubtedly there would have been a serious accident, as the steering column of the vehicle had been broken. This morning while answering a call to Foster Ward, Detective Isard was driving while P. C. Evans was a passenger in the vehicle. "I thought the car performed rather oddly and drove very carefully back to a nearby garage. Investigation by expert motor mechanics revealed the steering column of the vehicle was broken, and had any severe pressure been applied to the operation of the vehicle, a car accident would probably have followed," stated police officials after viewing the broken column.

YOUTH INSTRUCTED TO COME TO COURT

Taken into custody following the alleged attack on the elderly James Cook, caretaker of the Belleville Yacht Club, Ernest Fry, 18-year-old local youth, was detained at the police station for a few hours this morning before being released and instructed to appear in Monday's police court.

Shortly after 9.00 a.m. today local police received a call to the Belleville Yacht Club where they found James Cook, elderly caretaker of that club house lying in side of the building and said to be bleeding badly. Cook named young Fry as his assailant and the youth was then taken into custody by Detective Isard and P. C. Evans and lodged in the police cells for a short time. A charge of assault is pending, the detective stated.

HIGHEST PEAK IN N. A. SCALED

Special Flag of Geographical Society Flutters From Mount Lucania

Valdez, Alaska, July 23.—(CP)—A special Tag of the National Geographical Society fluttered today in the breezes atop Mount Lucania in the Canadian Yukon, a symbol of man's victory over the hitherto highest unclimbed mountain in North America.

Word the peak was ascended reached here yesterday with the arrival from Burwash Landing of Bradford Washburn, Jr., of Cambridge, Mass., and Robert H. Bates of Philadelphia.

The youthful climbers, sponsored by the Harvard Institute of Geographical Exploration and the New England Museum of Natural History reached the 17,150-foot summit of Mount Lucania July 8, they said. On July 11 they scaled nearby Mount Steele, 16,500 feet high, the exploration started June 12.

Before they began the flight back to civilization they were reduced to emergency rations. Washburn and Bates struggled down Wolf Creek Glacier to the Donjek River where a flood waiter necessitated a 40-mile detour to a floyd.

Where 20 miles from Khiane Lake and the nearest settlement, they met a 10-horse pack train from a farmer's lodge, and at the hunter's invitation spent two days resting before riding into Burwash Landing.

ENGLAND—U. S. DIVIDE DAVIS CUP SINGLES

'BUNNY' AUSTIN DEFEATS PARKER; DON BUDGE WINS

Famous British Star Wins in Easy Three Sets Over Parker

MARATHON MATCH

Budge Extended to 28 Games Before Winning First Set

Wimbledon, July 24.—(CP)—Don Budge, United States Ace, defeated Charles Hare of England 18-16, 6-1, 6-2, in the Challenge round for the Davis Cup after H. W. (Bunny) Austin, in the opening match, had turned back Frank Parker, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin sent England away to a flying start in her defence of the Davis Cup against the United States today, defeating 21-year-old Frank Parker in straight sets.

Scores were 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

The British stylist, one of the world's great players when the Davis Cup chips are down, won at most as he pleased from the Milwaukee youngster, named to the American team as a replacement for Ryan (Slim) Grand of Atlanta, Ga.

The result of the match had been forecast in advance for Parker does not rate in the same tennis class with the 30-year-old Austin.

The Briton broke through Parker's service in the first and third games of the second set and then simply held his own delivery safe until the games were won on Parker.

It was not until the third set that the American gave Bunny much of a fight and even then it seemed from the stands that the Briton was paying just heart enough to win.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

A variety of showers in wintertime we may have red, brown or yellow variety. But in summer a much greater variety of freaks is offered.

There have been showers of frogs, fishes, insects blood, honey-dew and sulphur. A long time ago these were very mystifying but now all are plausibly explained. Some are swept up from earth (water or dust) by violent winds as those in tornadoes, carried aloft and then allowed to fall to earth. Some are already up in the air as winged ants or moths and so earth after the nuptial flight. When rain blow over from railroad tracks or barns from their foundations. It would be useless to look up such up fishes and frogs, to say nothing of grasshoppers, plants, and then rain them down elsewhere.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—A fairly deep disturbance is centred near Moosonee and another is moving eastward over Manitoba. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred over the middle western states and over shallow depressions covers Manitoba. The barometer is relatively high over the Lake Superior region. Alberta and off the Atlantic coast. Local thunderstorms have occurred in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, and in the past two weeks also in Nova Scotia. Elsewhere in the Dominion warm weather with moderate temperatures in the west.

Lake Superior—Moderate variable winds; Fair Sunday—moderate or fresh winds; partly cloudy and moderately warm with local thunderstorms.

Georgian Bay—Fresh winds, local and moderately warm—mostly fair and moderately warm.

Southern Georgian Bay—Fresh winds, local thunderstorms chiefly over east portion. Sunday—mostly fair and moderately warm.

Alberta—Mostly fair and moderately warm today and Sunday.

HUSBAND IS HELD FOR QUESTIONING IN WIFE'S DEATH

Woman And Baby Found Eaten to Death in Farm Home

POLICE NOTIFIED

Ephrian Lesuk Calls Officers Stating There Was Trouble at Farm

Orangeville, Ont., July 24 (CP)—Ephraim Lesuk, 32-year-old Ukrainian farmer, was charged today with the slaying of his wife and two-day-old baby. Lesuk was not taken from his cell when the charge was laid before J. A. Marshall, Justice of the peace.

Relies of the mother and child were found partially burned after being sprinkled with feathers and some inflammable fluid yesterday. They were still smouldering on the floor when police arrived at the farmhouse, 30 miles northeast of here.

Appear Early 28.

Inspector A. B. Boyd and Constable Hammar of the Provincial Police examined Lesuk in his cell through an interpreter. Police said the farmer would likely appear before Magistrate Is J. C. Bull July 30.

Lesuk was found at the home of a neighbor William Lesuk, and was brought here. He was first held on a vagrancy charge. Ireland told police Lesuk came to his farm shortly after noon and when he met him the police and a doctor to the farm. The bodies were found when police arrived.

JUDGE DENIES DEFENCE PLEA

Refuses Release to Girl Who Admits Shooting Girlfriend Choice

Coushatta, La., July 24 (AP) — Comely, 17-year-old Jessie Pepper looked today to the State Supreme Court for freedom pending trial before Jury action on charges she killed her girlfriend Choice in a romance stirred by neighborhood gossip.

Attorney General James M. Jones, Jr., refused at a preliminary hearing yesterday to admit the girl to bail on the murder charge but said he would appeal to save Jessie what he termed "a long, long stay in prison" after being sprinkled with feathers and some inflammable liquid. They were still smouldering on the floor when officers, called from here, arrived at the farmhouse, 30 miles northeast of Orangeville.

Lesuk was found at the home of a neighbor William Lesuk and was brought to the county jail here. No charge was laid by police, police stating he was being held for questioning. Ireland told them Lesuk came to his farm shortly after noon and asked him to call police and a doctor to the farm. Police and the coroner were then informed by Lesuk they would discovered when they arrived.

Police learned Mrs. Lesuk had travelled until recently as a housemaid in a Queen Street West Toronto home. She had returned to the farm two weeks ago. Lesuk left home Wednesday. Cursory examination of the bodies revealed no signs of violence on the child's body.

An inquest into the tragedy was ordered by Dr. H. Ireland. Further while investigation was being carried on by Provincial Constable H. P. Hammer. First intimation police had of the slaying was when a telephone call arrived from the farmland home. It came during a session of Bull's police court and sent officers hustling to the farm.

TRUCK IS UPSET IN FOOD STRIKE

Gasoline Spilling From Tank Becomes Ignited

Buffalo, N.Y., July 24 (AP)—A meat truck was overturned and partly burned today in the first violence of Buffalo's four-day foodhandlers' strike.

Robert Sanford, driver for Swift and Company, told police ten men halted his truck, broke its grill out, and dumped the vehicle over on its side. Gasoline which spilled from the tank became ignited but the blaze was extinguished before serious damage was done.

Swift and Company is not involved in the strike of 2,000 wholesale grocery truck drivers and meat packers, which menace the basic food supply of 1,000,000 people, but business agent Samuel Licata of the Teamsters Union charged the Company's trucks had been used to make deliveries for wholesale houses shut down by the strike walkout.

New York State pressed its unfriendly "Little Wagner Act" into service in an attempt to mediate the two strikes.

Port Erie Prospers

Port Erie, Ont., July 24 (CP)—Many United States residents crossed to Port Erie today to purchase staple products at local stores as a result of a strike in Buffalo or produce truck drivers, which has reduced food stocks in that city to a dangerously low level, cities along the Niagara frontier.

Purchases by the visitors included about butter, eggs, meats and canned goods. Port Erie merchants expect a harvest through acute food shortages in Buffalo.

$3,000,000 Treasure Story and Death Probed

Capt. Sagel Found No Gold After Searching Panama Mine Tunnel An d is Found Mortally Wounded

Panama, July 24 (AP)—Under an order of President Juan D. Arosemena, authorities today sifted tales of a $3,000,000 treasure-trove and circumstances of the death of the man who started them.

President Arosemena ordered the superior tribunal of the first judicial district to make an investigation of the reported discovery of a gold cache in an ancient mine of Chiriqui Province.

A Captain Sagel, one of the first to attempt a check of the story by Captain Johnston Van Stack, French prospector, reported Van Stack was found mortally wounded in the tunnel where he had said the bullion was cached. There was no sign of gold in the tunnel.

President Arosemena also ordered the arrest of Van Stack's death.

Sagel said he went to the abandoned mine with Van Stack and two others on Tuesday. When they reached the tunnel, Van Stack's man said: "We will now go to see where the gold is."

However, the prospector emerged alone while Sagel, the Governor of Chiriqui Province and Van Stack's helper waited at the mouth of the mine.

Presently, Sagel related, they heard a sound like a stick breaking. The three ran in and found Van Stack with a bullet wound in his right temple and a revolver at his side.

Sagel searched the tunnel for gold but found none.

In Germany, land of dictatorship, the workingman or the farmer has no voice. "He works forty-eight hours each week. He gets no holidays except the days announced as national holidays on which he is expected to assemble and salute his Dictator.

He contributes heavily from his weekly wages to the upkeep of the government. His family cannot use cream in their tea or coffee or butter on their bread. Margarine is substituted for the latter, so that fats can be used in the making of war supplies. He can eat meat only once each week.

THOMAS MADOLE FATALLY HURT

Struck by Car as He Was Crossing Road Near Deseronto

Deseronto, July 24.—While crossing the highway on Concession 2 early in front of his home on the Deseronto Road, Thomas Madole was struck by a car driven by others by Earl Barnhardt of Lowville, and received injuries fatally injured. Dr. Sheldon of Napanee was called, and had the injured man removed to the Kingston General Hospital where he passed away. Barnhardt who had been visiting at his home on the Tyendinaga Reserve was returning to Napanee when the accident occurred. H. Jillings of Napanee investigated the accident and placed Barnhardt under arrest.

Mr. Madole who was 69 years of age resided with his brother and sister on the Deseronto Road.

Parson, Who Married Duke, Not Going to Toronto Yet

Rev. A. R. Jardine's Visit Postponed Because of Reference

"IT FALLS THROUGH"

Toronto, July 23—(CP)—Sponsors of the Toronto visit of Rev. A. Maclennon Jardine, who married the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield, said last night the English clergyman's lecture in Toronto has been postponed because of his references in Baltimore, Md., Thursday to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Paul B. Johnston, Eaton auditorium manager, said the engagement booked there for next Thursday was not cancelled but "we just let the thing fall through".

A. T. B. Haines, pastor of the Church of Christ the King, known as a Liberal Catholic Church, one of the group sponsoring the visit, said if Jardine "is going to talk like that I'll disassociate myself from him and give a straightforward address I'm still ready to support him. As it is, we have decided to postpone his visit."

Rev. James Allison, president of the Canadian Life Brotherhood, the other group sponsoring the visit, said: "We are strictly a loyal organization and honorable subjects of the King. What Mr. Jardine said in Baltimore couldn't possibly be tolerated in Toronto."

EARL OF JERSEY TO WED ACTRESS

Virginia Cherrill Chosen After Earl Secures Divorce

London, July 24—(CP—Havas)—The Earl of Jersey and Miss Virginia Cherrill, film actress, gave notice of their intention to marry at the London registry office today. The wedding will take place in about three weeks.

The Earl announced his decision to marry Miss Cherrill five minutes after his divorce decree against the Countess of Jersey became absolute last Monday.

George Francis Child Villiers, Ninth Earl of Jersey, born May 29, 1910, succeeded to the title at the age of 17. He is now director of a banking firm.

Miss Cherrill, who was given up her film career to wed the Earl, is 29 and is the former wife of Cary Grant, Hollywood screen star.

GUNSHOT WOUND IN RIGHT ARM

Michael Forastell, 11, of Stoneburn Not Seriously Hurt

Michael Forastell, eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Forastell Stoneburn, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital late Friday evening, suffering from a gunshot wound above the elbow on the right arm. The boy, with a companion, was playing with a .22 calibre rifle near his home, when in some way the companion hit his chum with a bullet. After being rushed to hospital, Dr. G. H. Noble removed the slug and that physician stated today that the boy was in good condition and would have a complete recovery. He will be confined in the institution for a few days. The incident was purely accidental.

SERIOUS CRISIS NOT EXPECTED IN BRITISH LABOR

Insurgents Persuade Members to Abstain on Estimate Vote

TWO ATTITUDES

Herbert Morrison Appeals to Party Not to Make Situation Difficult

London, July 24 (CP)—Although regretting the Parliamentary Labor Party's decision to abstain from voting on the defence estimates in the House of Commons next week, Herbert Morrison, chief lieutenant of Labor leader Clement Atlee, today said it did not mean a serious crisis had developed in the party.

The party leadership urged the caucus to direct that the party vote against the estimates. The insurgents, led by Hugh Dalton, persuaded the membership to abstain in view of the serious international situation.

Not Without Significance.

The decision of the caucus was not without significance and importance, Morrison said, but urged his followers not to exaggerate the distinction between the decision to abstain and the proposal to vote against the estimates.

"It is the business of Tory politicians and press to dig out their best to create a first-class crisis in the Labor party out of a situation not warranting anything like it," Morrison added. "It is our business, however, not to make trouble for ourselves."

He believed the decision might prove awkward for him in his capacity as chairman of the National Campaign Committee but appealed to the Labor Party not to make it embarrassing.

DANCE RAISES FUNDS FOR FINES

Small Dance Hall Is Packed at Orangeville

Orangeville, Ont., July 24.—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson of Toronto, when they appeared in Orangeville court, a group of their friends in the Hockey Valley, were fined $5 each and costs when they pleaded guilty to a charge of being the occupants of a sault in connection with the target-practice dance held at Greenwood. They were guests last night at a dance. The dance was held in a packed

A charge of assault with intent to do actual bodily harm was laid by Johnson following a tarring episode near the residence of Mrs. Robert Greenwood.

Two of the group were tried on the first count, and were found guilty by Magistrate L. J. C. Bull. Mr. and Mrs. McKeown, in pleading for the group, asked that the charge be changed to one of common assault for the reason that the charge was made and Mr. McKeown produced plea of guilty for the eleven remaining clients.

Foreign Experts Working on Scheme to Break Deadlock

FRANCE WILLING

Alternative Procedure May be Advised to End Impasse

London, July 24 (CP-Havas) — Foreign experts were believed working today on the text of a questionnaire to be sent to all non-intervention powers in a new attempt to break the Spanish neutrality deadlock.

French Ambassador Charles Corbin, who conferred with Foreign Secretary Eden and Lord Plymouth, chairman of the Non-Intervention Committee, yesterday, left last night for Paris to report to his government. He is due back Monday.

Reliable sources said Corbin informed Blum his government would be willing to accept the simultaneous procedure of a questionnaire as an alternative in order to break the impasse in the chairman's sub-committee.

RADIUM OUTPUT WILL BE TREBLED

Refinery at Port Hope Will Supply U. S. as Well as The Empire

Ottawa, July 24 (CP)—Dr. Marcel Pochon, director of the Ontario Research Foundation, today announced yesterday annual output at the Eldorado refinery will be increased from one and a half ounces to four and one-half (136 grams).

Dr. Pochon made the announcement following consultations with officials at the National Research Council here to which new equipment which he had purchased was sent for testing purposes.

The new equipment, Dr. Pochon said, would enable it to supply some of the radium needs in the United States as well as the British Empire which up to now has absorbed almost all the Canadian supply.

Announcement from Washington that a government bill to establishing of a National Cancer Commission which will purchase quantities of radium to be loaned to properly qualified cancer research centres has been anticipated by the Canadian Company some time ago, Dr. Pochon said.

Creation by Washington of a National Cancer Institute in keeping with the lead set by Great Britain and other countries whereby radium deposits will be formed by the government and handed to hospitals and institutions did not permit of purchase of even a small quantity.

City and District News

RELIEF RECIPIENTS TO REGISTER IN SEPT.

Another registration of relief recipients in the city will take place in September, according to an announcement from the Ontario Welfare Office, Toronto, received by the various municipalities this week. The registration will be carried out by the respective welfare office staffs of the various cities and towns.

SOIL TESTING NOW IN P. E. COUNTY

Following considerable work in the Peterborough district on soil testing, R. J. Bryden of the field experimental staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, passed through the district to Prince Edward County where the same work of testing will be carried on in various districts. Some time ago a number of tests were taken of Belleville district farms.

It was found in the majority of cases that most of the soil was low in phosphorous, high in calcium with potassium grading from medium to low in the northern district, according to the report.

ANCIENT TIMEPIECE OWNED NEAR CITY

Said to be one of the oldest timepieces in the country, a grandfather clock which has been ticking almost continuously for over 100 years, is owned by Thomas Bell of John Campbell, bachelor brothers, of Hamsworth.

The clock, a masterpiece of the clockmaker's art, is solid maple case, is highly prized by the brothers, and has been an object of admiration for the past a number of visitors who have examined it.

It was purchased by the grandfather of the two brothers, James Port, one of the first settlers of the Bay Bay section, and for years it have been built in Westminster, Massachusetts. Its face, with its birdseye maple, the informal mechanism of the timepiece is also of wood and is said to be a true model of the great age and constant service.

GERMANY TAXES EXEMPTED PERSONS

Captured German war cannon can inflict casualties even in peace time. Playing one of the field pieces at the west end of the Armouries early last evening, nine-year-old Walter Sommers, 7 Bleecker street, received a deep gash in his chin and was rushed for a period of some months with them he fell from the top of the gun, striking his face on the sharp breech. Physicians assisted him home.

SUSPENSION CABLES SHOW HEAVY WEAR

Burned out bulbs which winked out after a lengthy period of service this morning in the traffic signals suspended above the corner of East Bridge and Front streets were replaced by the Hydro engineering staff. The inspection of the swinging light has revealed that replacement of the suspension cables must be made immediately, as the heavy swinging of the heavy unit has resulted in considerable wear of the support.

MISS M. ASELSTINE BEAUTY WINNER

Belleville Blond Defeats Thirteen Contestants at Picton

Belleville beauty and feminine pulchritude captured major honors yesterday when Miss Marguerite Aselstine, 18, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Aselstine of Grove Street was crowned "Miss Quinte" at the ball given in the Princess Edward County Club's spacious quarters in Picton following the celebration and entertainment provided for nearly twelve hundred Oswego visitors.

Miss Aselstine, a pretty blonde, won further fame for herself and her native city in the afternoon when she captured first place and its accompanying prize of twenty-five dollars from thirteen other beauties in the beauty contest, which was the main feature of the afternoon entertainment.

Blondes, brunettes and redheads faced the keen eyes of the judges on the float at the Yacht Club, and sizing of contestants' charms from the huge crowd in attendance as they paraded in their multi-colored bathing suits.

Representatives from Oswego, Belleville, Trenton, Picton and other places, their youthful beauty enhanced by their trim swim suits poised, pirouetted and paraded in a graceful rhythmic walk, slowly turning before the scrutiny of the judges and the admiring glances of the thousands which witnessed the parade.

Hearty applause greeting the final selection of the judges which grew as the pretty Belleville miss was presented with a colored ribbon upon which was inscribed the words "Miss Quinte" and the first prize of twenty-five dollars in cash by Mayor Mabee, host of Picton. At the ball given in the Yacht Club at night, Miss Aselstine was officially crowned queen and by presenting as the "queen of the ball."

Seen this morning at her work in the Bell Telephone office store Miss Aselstine appeared cool and not the least bit flustrated over her honors. "I did not think I would win," she smiled. "But then I suppose that I did." She has not made up her mind as to how she will spend her prize money.

CLARKE RYCKMAN TRENTON, HELD

Charged With Theft From Register But Denies Guilt

Returning to his post as clerk at the Central Tire and Battery store on Front Street, yesterday afternoon George Archer, walked in the front door of the establishment in time to see a customer leaving by the rear exit. Mr. Archer, sensing something was amiss, examined the company cash register, to find eight dollars was missing. The city police were immediately notified, a description of the man seen leaving the building given, that investigation resulted in Detective Isard apprehending a man by the name of Clarke Ryckman, 20, of Trenton.

Today Ryckman was charged with theft and held in custody, Ryckman readily admitted to police he had been in the Central Tire and Battery store, but denied any theft.

Mr. Archer had been out of the battery store for a few moments, but when he returned he saw a man leaving the store. His suspicions were aroused and upon examining the cash register Mr. Archer discovered the "No Sale" key had been rung up. Subsequent investigations revealed the eight dollars missing.

Two translents, who gave their names as John Donovan and Robert Johnson, were taken into custody by local police yesterday afternoon following complaints from residents on East Bridge Street, regarding men panhandling and making a general nuisance of themselves in that section. The pair were detained at the police station all night.

VETERANS FIX DECORATION DAY

Due Honor to be Paid Departed Veterans in Both Cemeteries

Arrangements have been completed by the United War Veterans' Association of the city for the annual Decoration Day ceremonies which this year will be held on Sunday, August 8th. Due honor will be paid departed veterans in both St. James and the Belleville Cemeteries by comrades of the city and district.

Services at both cemeteries will be carried out by the Belleville Musical Band, assisting.

An appeal is being broadcast by veterans of the local combined units for donations of flowers and the loan of cars with which to transport older veterans to the cemeteries. All donations may be telephoned to the secretary, after which a call will be made for flowers on the previous Saturday afternoon and evening.

Veterans will fall in on the Armouries lawn at an hour yet to be named wearing their medals and medals. The march to the cemeteries will take place from there, headed by local bands.

Salvail, Showman, Dies at Age of 69

A well-known showman has passed—Adolph Lewis Salvail, who died in Anne, Quebec. He was one of the oldest last show managers in Canada. He visited Belleville on numerous occasions and was known to many here through his connection with the Wallace Bros. Carnival Company and Conklin shows. He was recently in charge of the "Ten-in-One" side shows. He was an expert manipulator of playing cards and enjoyed the distinction of being one of the best in that field in the travelling show business. Al Salvail was well-known in Brockville, it came there 40 years ago for the first time and visited here with regularity as a member of circus carnival and theatrical attractions, for the past years did. He was one of the first concessionaires to be hired by the Unionville fair, which has rated pleasantly with ville fair and for two or three years brought the balloon ascension and platform shows to the fair. Salvail was a banner event in Lenox county. He was a resident of Nashua, N.H.

NATURE BLESSES QUINTE DISTRICT WITH ABUNDANCE

Variable Supply of Fruits And Vegetables Seen on Market

CORN EAGERLY SOUGHT

Home Grown Tomatoes and Fowl in Great Demand

That Nature has blessed Belleville and the surrounding districts with a lavish hand was further demonstrated this morning at the city market when without doubt one of the finest and most variable displays of fruit and vegetables not to mention dairy produce was offered the buying public by a large number of farmers and growers. The market afforded a colorful picture with the greens of the vegetables showing in the marked contrast to the reds and yellows of the various fruits. Cut flowers added a further touch of beauty with the whole enhanced by the brilliancy of the sunshine of a typical midsummer morning.

Vegetables of every description and variety were in evidence this morning shoppers with new fruits of the inspired and bounteous varieties contributing to the general display. Discerning housewives had a field day although generally speaking prices maintained a fairly level trend throughout.

New potatoes, forerunners of a bountiful crop were plentiful and of exceptional quality although general prices were quoted at $1.90 per bushel and some quantities were available at seventy cents. White and Yellow Corn, however, held the vegetable spotlight. As early shoppers rushed eagerly in an effort to purchase the choicest available. Yellow Bantam, firm and milky, and thirty-five cents per dozen although some was offered and sold at forty cents. The white corn was slightly less in favor at thirty cents the dozen.

Home grown tomatoes, fresh from the fields of the district, caught the eye of the beautiful, many of the ripening of their stocks.

Adequate supplies of other vegetables added to the general variety with plentiful supplies of beets and carrots, onions, lettuce selling a bunch lots at five cents. Pine samples of cucumbers and spinach brought a ready response from buyers, prices selling at from 5 cents per head upwards.

Beans Sold Well

Yellow and green podded beans also sold well at five cents per box. Celery was also in plentiful supply at five cents per stalk and three for twenty-five cents. Cauliflower in all sizes and of good quality sold at from two for five cents upwards, with green peas selling at twenty cents per quart shelled.

Red and blue raspberries combined a variable fruit display and in spite of early reports of shortage, canning factories were plentiful at the market today. General prices for the berries ran from two boxes for twenty-five cents with case lots offered in quantities at 9 cents per quart. Eleven quart lots were quoted at 10c while quarts sold at 12 cents and half-gallons at 45 cents. Early apples were quoted at five and ten cents per box, but farmers demanded ten cents per dozen.

A heavy display of farm and dairy produce was offered in the inside market with eggs reaching a new high selling in some places at 27 cents per dozen. Twenty-five cents the dozen was the general quotation, but other qualities selling at slightly lower prices. Considerable butter was on change from former quotations selling at thirty cents per pound with some offered at fifty-five cents for two pound rolls. Whipping cream remained firm at fifteen and thirty cents for the half-pint and pint respectively.

Fresh honey was fairly plentiful selling at fifteen cents the comb. With the extracted product offered at fifteen cents per half pint jar.

Wholesale and fish were fairly the only fish varieties offered and were quoted at twenty and twenty-five cents per pound in the order named.

Smoker chickens were also in evidence selling at from eighty-five cents to one dollar and one cents per pair. Spring pullets and fowl were plentiful and ranged in price from seventy-five cents to $1.25 each. A few ducks were offered at from fifty to seventy-five cents each.

GIRL'S DEATH PROBED

Milton, Ont., July 24 (CP)—An inquest has been ordered into the death in a hospital here of Gertrude Mary Monaghan, four sons, Charles, Francis, Donald and George and a daughter, Shiela, all at home; four brothers, Larry Kelly, Peterboro; William and Patrick Kelly of Bancroft, and Thomas Kelly, of Toronto, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Murphy, Winnipeg.

YOUTH CONVICTED ROBBING FARMER

Court Finds He Took $91 and Rings Two Hours After Getting Job

Hamilton, Ont., July 24.—(CP)—Leonard Crowkwright, 21, convicted of stealing $91 and two rings from an Ancaster farmer who gave him a job, was sentenced today to a year in jail. The Ancaster youth pleaded guilty.

Robert Atkinson said the youth disappeared with the money and two rings after he had been set to work in the fields.

Police arrested Crowkwright on the highway a few hours later.

Efforts are Made To Settle Strike

Brockville, Ont., July 24.—(CP)—Efforts to bring about a meeting of organizers and representatives of striking employees of the John E. Nelson Company with prominent citizens were under way today. Donald E. Lewis, defeated Liberal candidate in the 1935 general election in Leeds, suggested last night that the organizers and representatives met with him and Hon. H. A. Stewart and Cowan S. Merrill, M.L.A.

Mr. Lewis said he was anxious to promote settlement of the month-old strike at the bag plant.

LUMBERMEN STRIKE

Sudbury, Ont., July 24 (CP)—One hundred and fifty men are on strike at the Polyet and Sturgeon Mills of the Pineland Lumber Company, according to word reaching Sudbury today. The men seek a raise of 7½ cents an hour from the minimum of 40 cents a cent.

The strike at Polyet was called Thursday and that at Sturgeon last night. Ben F. Merwin, company president and General Manager, said he expected the trouble would be straightened out and declined further comment.

PURSE FORGOTTEN IN RESTAURANT

City Police With Highway Patrolmen Locate Lost Article

Canadian courtesy to American tourists was exemplified by local and Provincial Police yesterday and resulted in an American lady regaining her purse, although it had been forgotten in a restaurant many miles from Belleville.

About 8.00 p.m. the evening a lady, who gave her name as Mrs. Charles McAdo, of Constable, N.Y., reported to the Belleville police station she had left her purse in a restaurant somewhere near Picketing, Ont., where she and her husband had stopped for their mid-day meal. Mrs. McCabe gave Detective Fred Isard a description of the restaurant and its location near pickering and also a description of her purse. Detective Isard called upon Motorcycle Patrolman Sean Wrtins, who supplied him with the name and address of the Ontario Motorcycle Patrolman, who patrols that detail and later he was contacted by telephone and given the description of the lost purse. Motorcycle Patrolman Runciman returned the long distance call ten minutes later to say he had recovered the purse from the restaurant keeper, who was holding it for safe keeping.

"I've heard much about Canadian courtesy and police efficiency, but really this service is far in excess of anything I ever expected and I thank you very kindly," stated the delighted Mrs. McCabe as Detective Isard informed her of the happy recovery of her purse.

The purse will be forwarded to her home address in Constable, N.Y., by Officer Runciman. Mrs. McCabe did not miss her purse until she arrived in Belleville, where she stopped to do some shopping only to find her purse gone, but fortunately she remembered where she had left it.

Glory of Coronation Pageantry Impresses Belleville Student

Murray Clare of B.C.I.V.S. Paints Inspiring Picture of Scenes in And About London, Heart of Empire, During Days Centred Around Coronation of British Sovereigns

Inside the color and glamor, the gorgeous pageantry, the pomp and circumstance and brilliancy of the Coronation procession and service, London's pre- and post-coronation celebrations paled into insignificance according to Murray Clare, 18 year old son of Mr. Clare, 178 Bridge Street, east, and of the late Sheriff, James H. Clare. Murray represented Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School in the group of Canadian High School and private school students who attended the recent Coronation of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth, and who returned to the city a few days ago.

Young Clare, a member of the party of 180 students from all parts of the Dominion gave a graphic description yesterday of the splendid trip given the students from all parts of the British Empire in which he spoke in glowing terms of the reception accorded the youths by the British people.

Diary of Experiences Kept

Of a naturally retiring disposition, Murray forgot his slight shyness as he warmed to his subject in describing to a reporter from the Ontario Intelligencer the highlights of "one of the most thrilling experiences of my life." A closely written diary in which the youthful student had recorded practically every daily experience afforded an excellent reference guide, and it was behind which he one of his most cherished possessions for the remainder of his life.

"It was a wonderful experience, he said, "and while the various places we saw and the many splendid trips we had with their highly interesting spots of interest are things which will always live in our memory, the actual Coronation ceremony and procession stood out in terrific clarity above the other experiences we had."

Glory of Pageantry

"Words could describe the color and brilliance, the notes of cheering millions, the blare of martial music and the general holiday atmosphere and excitement of the gay crowds as Their Majesties passed along the route of procession. It was awe-inspiring and made one catch his breath with its grandeur. It also made one swell with pride to see the famous British regiments and Colonial troops pass along in a parade of glittering color. And our own Royal Canadian Mounted Police, one of the finest units in the procession, as they passed by in their scarlet coats and Stetson hats, and mounted on their fine horses, made we Canadians feel like throwing our hats in the air. It was grand, glorious, and a sight which I will remember as one of the privileges of witnessing again."

And Murray's eyes gleaming reminiscently behind, his glasses; his youthful face lighted up with pleasure as he recalled the historic scene.

Outside Buckingham Palace

"We had one of the finest places in the big firezone within to view the procession," he said. "We had a special section outside Buckingham Palace, from which we viewed the entire procession in more or less comfort. In fact one man told us that if we had to pay for our seats the price would have been in the neighborhood of $250.00. We waited there from shortly after five o'clock in the morning but it was well worth the long threezone wait. We were surrounded by a milling, jostling, happy crowd, one of extreme good nature and proud to belong to the British Empire."

The other experiences were such as will never be forgotten by any of the students who attended them, Clare said. They were taken to practically all the places of interest in London and the surrounding districts. They were delegates and in small groups to prominent English Grammar Schools, usually in parties of five. Here they sojourned with students of their own age for a period of two weeks, studying their form of education and sport. "We, at least the party I was with, were sent to Watford Grammar School," Murray said. "Here we were billeted in private homes and what wonderful people we met. They were the soul of hospitality and did all in their power to make our stay a pleasant one."

Ideas of Sport

"An amusing incident occurred in connection with our stay at the school," he continued. "The English schools apparently have cut almost the whole week which is devoted to sport. During this particular day the English boys refused to play their time-honored cricket and elected us to give them pointers on baseball. They were really enthusiastic about the game and our duties during the afternoon were explaining the rules of the game, something which they appeared to be sadly lacking in. It was a lot of fun, and the English boys really appreciated our efforts in teaching them some the points of the game."

Upon their arrival in England the Canadian contingent of students were sent to the King George House, a boys' hostel situated at Stockwell Road, London. Here they went in quarters with their director, Mr. Millar, London, Ont., in charge of Colonial boys, and Mr. Race in charge of the western delegation; Mr. Wescott of the Quebec group, and Mr. Evans who was in charge of the Maritime contingent. From this headquarters the students visited the many points of interest in London and suburbs, while many highly interesting spots in rural England, it was from this spot, they were forced to march to Buckingham Palace to take up their positions along the line of procession after cars and buses were unavailable.

In Old London Tower

Madame Tussaud's, London's famous waxworks was visited by the boys. The famous Tower of London with its many medieval historical sights was included in the itinerary. They viewed the British Crown Jewels in Westminster Abbey. They attended in one instance a special church service in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Immediately following the Coronation, the students were taken to Spithead where they attended the review of the British Fleet. Two days were spent aboard the ships of the fleet. Here once again the group was invited into small delegations and sent to various ships. Murray was sent to H.M.S. Cyclops, mother ship of the No. 1 Submarine Flotilla of the Mediterranean. Here they found things of extreme interest. The workings of the ship were thrown open to them. Here they saw a torpedo in the making and received detailed descriptions of the workings of these death-dealing weapons.

London with Fliers

Leaving the Fleet the youths were taken to Croydon Airport where extensive manufacture of Britain's mighty fighting planes is carried on. Experienced pilots whirled the boys high in the air over London in the cockpit of fighting planes.

"I was fortunate," Murray said at this point, "to be one of the four students selected to make a tour of the 'Thames,' a British submarine, and one of the four most powerful and fastest underwater ship in the world. It was a thrilling sight, and one which I shall never forget."

Following a trip to Cambridge where they were taken through the famous English university, the students were taken back to London where they visited many famous spots in the English capital. They passed through Temple Bar, London's famous historical archway at which the Kings of England must stop to receive permission of the Lord Mayor to visit the city. Through the famous British Houses of Parliament they went and thence to the top of Big Ben, the chimes of which have been heard in practically every country in the world through the magic of radio.

Photographed in London

"That was a grand experience," Murray declared. "We could see London clearly, in spite of the hazy weather, and got several good snapshots with my camera from the top of the famous clock."

The colorful ceremony of the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace was viewed by the students who were given the special privilege of witnessing the scene from the inside of the palace gates.

To Oxford University the boys were taken and from thence to the Morris Automobile works, a plant manufacturing a prominent English automobile. Here they witnessed the entire assembling of one of these famous cars.

At Olympia and Wembley

Olympia, one of London's outstanding sports stadia, was visited by the students and here it was that they witnessed the Royal Tournament. Gymnastics displays, naval and military tactics by the crack regiments and sailors of the services, motorcycle races by famed English riders left the boys wide-eyed with amazement. Wembley Stadium, one of the largest sports arenas in the world proved highly entertaining to the Canadians as they watched the cream of the world's motorcycle riders vie for supremacy.

Whipsnade Zoo and Animal Preserve situated about thirty miles from London proved another source of interest to the visitors. Here they saw animal life from all parts of the world, and in all stages of growth.

In Historic Folkestone

A visit to the south of England followed their tour of London, and in Folkestone, a name familiar to many Canadians, and where they stayed for a week, they saw many interesting things.

Here again they met generous English people. A motion picture theatre was placed at their disposal and every morning they were shown films which in the most part were traveling films of the British Empire. Here too, they visited the British cemeteries where many Canadian heroes who gave their lives for their country during the Great War, lie buried. At Shorncliffe they attended a special Memorial Service in camp where Major-General Worthington was in charge. Here they placed wreaths in memory of Canada's glorious dead.

Flying Visit to Boulogne

Slipping across the English Channel the boys paid a flying visit to Boulogne, and here again they saw many interesting sights among which were Napoleon's Monument, British War Cemeteries and the famous Notre Dame Cathedral, one of the three largest sacred edifices in France. Here too, they visited Canadian hospitals.

An interesting feature of the trip was the attendance at the Canadian Club of London, where the students together with other student groups from the far-flung members countries of the British Empire at a special service held in Canterbury Cathedral at which the sermon was preached by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

A homelike touch was injected into the trip when Murray paid a surprise visit to John Wells, a former Belleville boy, and a son of Mrs. S. J. Price, at present residing on McDonald Avenue, Belleville, and who is an officer in the Royal Flying Corps stationed at Whitley Camp near London, was delighted to see a representative of his former home and an enjoyable time was had by both boys.

"There were several other highlights which were greatly enjoyed," Murray said in conclusion, as he carefully packed away his treasured diary. "The trip was an education in itself and one which I would not have missed for the world."

INVENTIONS AND WORK

There seems to be no end of inventions. Every day some new gadget is produced and has more or less selling attraction by the appeal to the desire to lessen the amount of labor.

The National Resources Committee at Washington warns the people of the United States to face the fact that unemployment is going to result from inventions. It is in favor of a planning board to try to decide beforehand what will be the effect on employment of each new invention and work out the necessary alleviation.

Inventions still keep pressing on. Since the improvement started out of the trough of the depression and more men went to work, inventions have no doubt come which will offset in some part the efforts to find jobs for the jobless and will also make new jobs.

Adjustment is the problem. The point is that the adjustment is never complete but the process goes on indefinitely as long as inventions have practical value.

As much needed as any invention is the discovery of the way to make adjustments without hurting one class particularly and all classes in the long run because where one class is adversely affected, all classes are more or less affected.

Permanent unemployment is unthinkable as a part of a social system. No doubt some persons would prefer this state as long as they were guaranteed assistance but it is not for the well-being of the individual to have nothing to do. Disintegration is certain to result when unemployment is gladly accepted by any man while others bear the cost and labor.

It is pointed out by the U.S. National Resources Committee that inventions create jobs as well as do them and that a new machine may throw out of work many who have worked by less efficient means to make certain products. Persons so trained in one line find adjustment very difficult and some may become tragic cases. Two points are made in regard to the new machine—that it cheapens production and offers a wider market in which all can buy and so offers greater employment and makes living cheaper for everyone. The cheaper products leave more money to the family for the purchase of other products, growing or manufacturing of which is thereby stimulated.

One writer claims that in the long run inventions do not create unemployment, but a shifting of jobs.

CONSTRUCTION IMPROVES

The value of the building authorized in Canada during the first six months of 1937 was $27,981,382, as compared with $18,322,884 in the same period of 1936, being also much higher than in the first six months of other years since 1931. In spite of the important improvement indicated by comparison with any of the last five years, the 1937 total was substantially below the average of $59,239,708 recorded in the period January-June of the years 1920-1936. While the wholesale prices of building materials have recently advanced, the index number for the first half of the present year was also below the seventeen-year average, being 94.9 in the latest period against 84.4 in the same period of 1936 and the 17-year average of 94.9.

All provinces recorded betterment during the first six months of the year, with the exception of Alberta, the improvement in Ontario being pronounced. The totals were as follows, with comparable figures for 1936 in brackets: Prince Edward Island $101,140 ($70,600); Nova Scotia $827,709 ($597,255); New Brunswick $287,946 ($5,011); Quebec $5,413,784 ($3,834,083); Ontario $13,905,621 ($7,883,886); Manitoba $1,056,913 ($664,830); Saskatchewan $469,005 ($238,832); Alberta $980,397 ($1,095,038); British Columbia $4,988,807 ($3,095,038).

Amongst the larger cities, Montreal showed the greatest improvement, the total being $3,923,810, an increase of $1,652,955 over the same period of 1936; Vancouver total was $1,326,230 higher at $4,327,055; Toronto showed a gain of $1,052,965 to $4,219,155 and the Winnipeg total was up $345,300 at $968,400.

THIS IS VACATION TIME, when your friends gather round and want to know when and where? Have you had your vacation yet? is a question repeated many times a day until one begins to think that maybe a change of scene for a time would be in the nature of a good thing—for us—and for all concerned. Fishing stories come floating back from the vacation spots and our staff artist is to be observed turning out many snaps like the one which heads this column. That means the artist will be heading north presently with full fishing accoutrement. However, as for us we will string along with the prophet who said "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help". And if we lift our eyes often enough perhaps our bodies will be miraculously or otherwise, lifted by and by to that spot over the hills of Hastings which holds the most rest and healing virtues of rippling waters and fragrant pine—if you know what we mean—if not, please excuse—it may be the heat and it sure is the humidity, with a trace or so of humility.

FOLKS FORCED TO WAIT A WEEK FOR THEIR NEWSPAPER in the olden golden days appreciated the family newspaper a great deal more than folks of today who take the daily newspaper with all the news of the world almost as soon as it happens as a matter of course, giving little thought to the vast chain of service which makes the modern daily newspaper. Some folks have not heard to say "There's nothing in the paper today," although there is the same number of pages, the same foreign and local news service—what they mean is that there is no Big News, no murders, perhaps, "close to hum." One thing the modern daily newspaper draws the line at—it does not make news, but it sure catches it hot after it happens. The same folks would storm and rage and imagine a wrong, whatever that is, if and when the Big News broke the home newspaper failed to appear. Then is heard: "Is the paper here yet?" many times before the delivery is due—and when the paper arrives with the Big News relegating false rumors and exaggerations to the background, life indeed resumes its normal tempo, for folks must have the news, pure and unadulterated. And all this for a couple of pennies a day. Was there ever better value?

BELLEVILLE IS ONE OF THE FEW COMMUNITIES WITHOUT A MAIN STREET. The principal business street is FRONT STREET, meaning perhaps that it fronts on the Moira river. We might have had an Esplanade but this was too grand and practical an idea and was shelved until folks grew up to the innovation. Belleville has a series of Family Streets, named after the Taylor family, formerly big land owners on the east hill, it is said—John, William, Ann, Charles Albert. But Belleville has no Main street, so that popular novel, "Main Street" which pilloried small town snobbishness was not inspired here. Belleville is different in other ways, too, we are brave enough to think that folks is folks after all and the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are still sisters under the skin. Robert Believe It or Not Ripley has unearthed many strange facts about communities here, there, and everywhere and recently broke the news that Winchester, Virginia, has an East and West street running North and South, and a North and South street running East and West. Must have been named by Irv Cobb's old Judge Priest coming from from one of those famous mint julep cities in the early morn when the streets seemed to run every way.

While the Old Belleville Boys and Girls from Toronto were here for a few days recently Mr. Wm. Johnson, the president of the Old Boys' Reunion Executive, invited several of the Toronto Old Boys and Girls to meet at the city hall to receive for their club rooms a large and handsome photograph of the Old Boys' Executive of the 1906 reunion. Short addresses were made by Col. W. A. Preston, chairman of the reception committee; J. W. Johnson, Mayor Ormiston, Mr. Ritchie, City Clerk W. C. Mikel and U.S. Consul Col. M. J. Hennessy. The photo was presented by Mr. Arthur McGinnis to Sir Mackenzie Bowell who made the presentation. The gift was acknowledged by Mr. Wm. Bridge, president of the Belleville Old Boys' Association at Toronto and by Mr. Charles Rosevear, secretary of the Association.

Mr. T. Butler has succeeded in getting all his drive of 1000,000 saw logs down the Salmon River and all has been rafted and towed to Deseronto. On the Moira River the tail of the drive is at Consniffon with very little water. Over 150,000 logs have been left behind on the Moira owing to low water in the dead water between Plainfield and the railway bridge. Of this quantity about 35,000 pieces belong to the Belleville Co. and the reminder to Messrs. Gilmour, Ini and Holton, William Sutherland and Job Lingham. If heavy rains come in the fall the logs may yet come down.

OTTAWA PARADE

Back Stage In the Dominion Capital with

WILFRID EGGLESTON

I was reminded last week of a radio incident in which Mr. Bennett was the central figure. The radio station in which we were discussing the decision of Mackenzie King to have the prime ministers' office permanently wired for radio talks.

The Bennett episode goes back to 1934, according to my informant. The then prime minister was to deliver a broadcast to the people of Canada from his support George S. Henry rather than Mitchell F. Hepburn in the forthcoming elections.

Arrangements in some way were bulled up, and Mr. Bennett was taken to the wrong studio. It was necessary to dash across the city in a taxi, and then run upstairs a couple of flights in order to reach the microphone in time.

The result was that when Mr. Bennett arrived at the studio he was completely out-of-breath. He had no time to "cool off" for a few minutes. The provincial hook-up was waiting. He rose to the occasion and did his best.

He realized, however, that his delivery was not being helped by exciting the moment the speech was over, he turned to the manager of the station and said:

"That's the worst speech I ever made in my life!"

Unfortunately the engineers had left the switch on, and the whole local station, and a portion at least of the Bennett radio audience had the benefit of his frank postscript!

In radio cast such a slip is, I understand, called a "triumph." The classic of all such breaks is that of the announcer who, after children's bedtime stories, accordion solos and dance numbers reached the end of his script, and uttered a sigh of profound relief: "Well, I guess that will be the little 'Nuts' for a while," he said. Unhappily, he was still on the air.

How easily these incidents can occur, in spite of the utmost vigilance and precaution, is shown by Ottawa, in illustrated by an anecdote told by Bruce Hutchison, the West Coast newspaper man and author, in a nation broadcast to Canada.

Bruce was to have given his talk from Broadcasting House, but at the last minute the station authorities asked him to talk from their microphone at, I think, the Westminster Hotel. Bruce, who objected to inquire ahead of time if arrangements had been made. They were most casual about it at the Guildhall, he found, and had to do the matter fully straightened out, eventually.

To his dismay, when he arrived at the Guildhall on the wet chaotic night after the Coronation ceremony, he found the doors locked and no lights anywhere.

He raced for the nearest—and almost only—public telephone in London, found the number in a book and telling their people at home about the situation, sought by executing the well-known resourcefulness of the newspaperman, found himself without a coin to call the operator —a regular nightmare.

"To cut a long, and good, story short, Bruce and his wife eventually got into the Guildhall, and found that they had to broadcast from a sort of balcony above the street. A crowd collected. Bruce was told that when the little light flashed on, he would be 'on the air'.

The circumstances were about as unconducive to a successful broadcast as could possibly be imagined, especially for a journalist giving his first broadcast on such a momentous occasion. It nearly got off to a worse start. Mrs. Hutchison was just about to utter some frank comment on the general situation, when she fortunately glanced down and noticed that the light was on! That would have been the last straw. As it was, Bruce choked down his venomous, and, I understand, made a brilliant commentary upon the Coronation for his Canadian audience.

Premier Aberhart of Alberta is, I presumably, the first statesman in history to attain office almost entirely through successful use of the radio. It is said, perhaps, to be wondered at that his political critics in the province have not made more use of him by use of anecdote. For instance, a highly malicious story has been going about the province recently to the effect that Mr. Aberhart, in

CHAPTER XXIV.

Daphne was very calm about it. "I'm sorry that you do," she said, "but I'm a little surprised. And while I dislike your attitude, I might remember that one about 'beam of the goose.'"

"This is no time to be gay," Jennifer said; "we're going to have a showdown."

"Don't be vulgar, Jennifer. What on earth do you mean by a showdown? It's all on the table. There's nothing you don't know—or have guessed—about it. Mr. Hersberg offered me the part and I've accepted. You've always known that I was interested in the theatre and you've always said it's about taks her chance when it was offered to her."

"Sisters don't do that to each other," Jennifer retorted. "At least not a sister who always pretended her 'great love and desire to do what is best' for her little sister. Oh, it's despicable of you!"

"Jennifer, you've cut yourself a slice of your own cake and it does'nt taste very good, does it?"

Jennifer sat back at her wordlessly.

"For the first time you're learning what it is to see another person take what she wants. And isn't it fair?"

"Fair!"

"Yes, that's the word," Daphne said calmly. "Don't I get anything?"

"You've got everything."

x x x

"Thanks for the compliment. I was going to point out to you that it should time I had a bit of glory our in my life. It's not too late I'm beginning to discover. I lived in a furnished room and earned my keep so that you could stay in an expensive school. When you left, cut, I did everything. I could to give you a good start. You don't show up too well so I'm the worst that's happened."

"I never asked for any favors, did I?"

"Only a few," Daphne said politely. "On the other hand, you gave some, suppose you look at it in this way: Granting that I've used our tactics only a little more than mannship—I know it is—it's the one way of showing you that the girl who has poor penmanship does'nt always win. Granting that, isn't it fair exchange?"

"I don't know what you mean."

"I'm going to tell you what I mean. You knew that I loved Larry. You knew that he loved me. You knew that we had quarreled but you should known that a lovers' quarrel can be mended. Yet, deliberately, when I was away, you took him away from me."

Jennifer started to speak but Daphne went on:

"All right, it's fair exchange; you'll have Larry and I'll have the theatre. And if this is the lesson I mean it to be, you'll be a better wife to Larry. You'll try and see his point of view when things differ. Perhaps you'll remember that you lost one thing because you didn't know how to play squarely. Maybe it'll make you the kind of a girl I tried to make of you. That's all."

Daphne whirled out of the room.

x x x

Jennifer followed her. "Daphne ..... are you crying, this just to teach me a lesson. Because if you are.....

Daphne was very cool, keeping a firm hold on herself. She answered, "No."

After that, for the remainder of the week the girls avoided seeing each other. If Jennifer pretended to be asleep when Daphne rose in the morning, it was no different from Daphne's pretense of the same thing at night.

But Daphne had little need to pretend many of the hours she spent in learning at the tense speed and concentration that was necessary if the play was to be the kind that Gordon Hersberg intended, proved a soul-killing task. Sometimes from the house before 10 in the morning and often did not return until 3 or 3 in the afternoon.

The week-end was just another series of exhausting days for Daphne. What she was thinking was something that every Anne, her confidante, didn't know.

Jennifer spoke to her only when it was necessary and then in monosyllables. But Jennifer took to giving long, strong looks more than once she came into the room they ceased and stood quietly staring for a moment as though there was something she wanted to say.

Daphne had to keep her mind from thoughts of Jennifer. A new quiet, a strained haunting in Jennifer's eyes smote her and more than once she was tempted to ask Jennifer to talk to her.

Then, thinking of Jennifer and Larry, she was firm again and put her pity aside.

Five days before the play was to open, she found Jennifer in bed when she was a baby.

x x x

"What is it, Jennifer?" she asked gently.

Jennifer wiped her tears away on her sleeve; an incredibly childish gesture.

"Nothing," she said proudly and waited for her to go.

Daphne got up and followed her. "I suppose you think this is easy for me?"

"I'm sure I don't know. I don't it makes you any more satisfied. you'll be glad to know that you're breaking up—that."

"Have you really got one?" Daphne said.

"Yes, it seems that I have. It was all in the thank, until ..... She put her head down on her bed and her shoulders shook.

"All of it couldn't have been, there's Larry," Daphne reminded her.

"There isn' Larry....and there .....there never was. He wasn't in love with me. He's eating his heart out over you."

Daphne listened with her heart standing still.

"Jennifer, tell me this minute what you mean. Stop acting like a child." The blood pounded in Daphne's ears.

Jennifer gulped her eyes and sat on the side of the tub. Her tone was sulky and her eyes were fixed on tile floor as she began to talk:

"You ought to have known Larry was in love with you all the time. I did." She gulped and went on again. "After you went away I called Tuck and he said he wouldn't come over because you told him he couldn't; that was the last straw. You and your high-handed methods! I was jealous."

"Jealous of me?" Daphne demanded incredulously.

"Certainly. You were always the smartest. You were the successful one. You were the big-wigs secretary. All the men were crazy about you. All the men I met thought you were attractive always talked about you. And I was so mad about you. I liked him better than anyone else until I got to know him. Oh, Daphne, I wanted to be an actress! I've have worked myself to death for the rest of my life!" The tears started to flow again.

Daphne handed her a handkerchief. "You'll be back. I want to hear about Larry."

"Well, I lied to him. I told him I wanted to have help with and make a decision about something that was important to me. I told him you were completely through but I thought when you came back I could plan for him. I wanted to hang around me to hear me talk about you. Then.....then I pretended he was my beau to get back at you for what you did to me. Tuck. The night of the party I guess he knew that you didn't care about him anymore. He was wretched."

Daphne poured cold water on a towel. "Here, put that on your head and lie down for a few minutes. I'll give you an hour to rest and then we've got work to do."

"Aren't you.....aren't you mad?"

"Just as mad as anyone could be at a 6-year-old child. Now take off that dress, I'll call you in an hour and we're going to start rehearsing."

"We?"

"Yes," Daphne said as she went into the other room, "I might need an understudy. I don't think the one we have really knows all the business I do. I can teach it to you. Just in case."

CHAPTER XXV.

"No, Jennifer! If I've told you once, I've told you 50 times that you're to stop remembering you are Jennifer Brett. You're Louise Goldsby. The man is NOT wrong. You are taking the blame for it. You've got to be sorry if any genius exactly the way I have it."

Jennifer walked quickly.

"If you do not shade the part precisely as I do, you'll be out. Now take it again. And you, over your head: don't fling it up. Go on. Daphne was unutterably weary. She had been rehearsing all day.

Gordon Hersberg, Mr. Hoadley had said, "and forget the show. We'll take it through from start to finish tomorrow at 10. Three days to opening and you need a respite."

Daphne had come home to relax—Jennifer—a new Jennifer. Jennifer had said to her about Daphne and to relate them, brushed them and the jewels for Daphne to treasure. "It was as much as you can have meant more to you than anything else. Why did you let him?"

Then Daphne thought: tell Jennifer why she had done it. The answer was there and she was proud to give to marry Larry if.....he still wanted her.

x x x

If he still wanted her. Could she believe what Jennifer had told her?

She dreamed a little while the script was in her hand.

"Have I got it right, Jennifer demanded as she made her exit.

"Oh.....oh, I'm sorry, I wasn't thinking." Daphne's voice was low.

"Daphne, look," Jennifer squatted on the floor tailor-fashion, "you must admit I'm doing a good job performing."

"Excellent," Daphne granted.

"Then, why won't you tell me what you're up to? I know that I'm perishing of curiosity. You're working me like a slave and I don't have an understudy. And you insist that you're going to open Tuesday in the show. How does it all mean?"

"I can't tell you, Jennifer. I have promised you that you're going to play the part. Please don't ask me to explain anything else. Trust me."

Jennifer was 19. She sighed. "Okay. Now about some food."

Their meal was a silent one. Then Daphne said, "Jennifer, I want Larry to come to the opening."

"You don't seem to learn, do you, Daph? Will bosses couldn't keep him away. He'll be there somewhere in the audience. I don't know why you haven't more assurance about yourself. If I had what you've got......"

Daphne couldn't yet get used to the idea that Jennifer had been jealous of her. Jennifer, who was more attractive in every way. Jennifer like women, Daphne knew, and she was never to be able to reason why.

"You'll find the world in the office when she told him that she had rehearsed Jennifer in every phase of her part. Or that she had told him why she wanted to be out and then what she wanted to do. She hadn't known he would understand at once. She told him that Larry promised him a performance equal to her own in Jennifer's hands and that he promised in return. It hadn't been easy.

"The day before the play.

"But why not the day when it does.....

"Jennifer! Please!"

"All right, sorry. By the way, where many seats are you getting night?"

"Two, not the star you know, honey. You'll get two seats. On the aisle and not too far down front."

"That's what I call flair treatment! Why am I going to be the stepsister?"

"Because my dear girl, you are going to have a job. You're going to have a look-see over that audience and find Larry. If he is there you're going to telem when I sit on the dressing room. Now who's so dumb?"

Jennifer reached a hand across the table. "Shake, gal. You're on Tuesday in the chorus after that I'm to make a laughing exit or do I just walk off with all my pockets?"

"I'm not quite sure what you do after that. I've seen Larry will be there. But I've no doubt the Brett sisters will have no trouble taking care from each other."

"You won't have any trouble with me, Daphne. I've learned my lesson and I'm so ashamed."

"You needn't be ashamed to be up this late with all we have to do. Leave the glasses in the sink; Maggie'll take care of them in the morning. Oh, I'm so tired! I'll see you when I get up. I'll sit on the sofa in the second act opening night."

ALL-STEEL VESSEL TAKES TO WATER IN SUB-ARCTIC

The first Diesel motored all-steel vessel to serve in the river systems of the Northwest Territories was launched at Fort Smith, Alta., before a cheering crowd of townspeople, Indians, trappers, priests and provincial dignitaries. Mrs. J. C. Bowen, wife of the lieutenant-governor of Alberta, christened the vessel "Radium King". The ship was built at Sorel, Que., cut into sections and shipped by rail to the northern city, where it was welded together again. It will carry radium supplies out of the Great Bear Lake district. Mrs. Bowen is shown in the upper photograph as she broke a bottle of champagne over the ship's bow. The lower photograph shows the "Radium King" after the launching.

But Daphne, what good will all this rehearsing do if Gordon won't let me take his understudy?"

"Oh, I forgot to tell you! He said he would. The day after the show opens."

Daphne didn't tell Jennifer about the scene in Gordon Hersberg's office when "came to look" at the people "attending".

A house filling up, its shadows lightened by glimmering chandeliers. The clean new smell mingling with the perfumes of a thousand odors. The orchestra coming up out of the depths to take places in the pit. The lights dimming. The faint echo in front of the ring backstage. Curtain going up. One minute of absolute silence.

The butler crosses the stage. Draws a curtain, straightens a drape. Clifton Sayre steps through the left door. The play is on!

Gordon Hersberg stops beside the figure of the girl in the gray, girlish gown. "Scared?"

Daphne smiled at him. "Not a bit," she said.

A house full to the last seat. Daphne. You have everything an actress needs. Beauty, brains, understanding and a selfeasness."

A few minutes later when Pearl said, "You do her unfairly. The girl is......" Daphne made her entrance.

Then, in what seemed to be but a few minutes, the play was over and the final bow had been taken and Daphne was trying to avoid the congratulating group gathered backstage. If Jennifer found Larry she would take care of them. Daphne she wanted to get her make-up off her face.

She ran toward the wings and right into Larry Smith's arms. It was entirely accidental but there they stood!

Larry? Hey hands gripped the lapels of his coat and then she backed away. He dropped his arms. He laughed a little. "Oh, I'm sorry."

"Were you?" she asked quickly

Travel Germany

These impressions were gained by Mr. Duckworth during an extensive tour of Central Europe following a visit to England and the Coronation at which function he was a guest of the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey and accorded the privilege of a seat in Westminster Abbey to view the crowning of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Amid the solemn silence of the earlier part of the ceremony devotees to the guest speaker's remarks, the silence was broken only by the late James Hill, former M.P.P. for East Hastings, was felt by the gathering as the voice of Mr. Duckworth made a presentation of a beautifully panelled picture of the late member to the Club on behalf of Mrs. Hill and family.

Mr. Tummon in making the presentation referred to the friendship which had existed between himself and the late Mr. Hill for so many years during which time they had often sat together and addressed gatherings in the same hall.

"If ever a member had a loyal following," it was the late James Hill. It appreciated beyond measure the privilege, that has been given me to make the presentation on behalf of the family of the late departed and to personally assure Mrs. Hill," eulogized Mr. Tummon.

A letter from Mrs. Hill asking that the Club accept the photographs "so hang on the wall of the meeting place, the body [sic] accompanied the mahogany and gold frame [illegible] that now graces the board room of my husband," Mrs. Hill wrote.

One minute's silence was then observed by the gathering on invitation of Mr. Harold Reynolds, president of the Club.

Tribute Paid to Speaker

Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P. for East Hastings, in a brief address also referred to the friendship maintained by all present when the name of James Hill was mentioned.

"Jim Hill was loyal, not only to his sovereign, but everything that was fair and family, but to the principles also that had guiding him through life. Such a man will live in the minds of any that he would uphold the sacred principles of our political career to the end.

"His was a member of loyalty and never has he been so attached or know when the need for such loyalty did a right-about-face, declared himself dictator and has since kept the country in such turmoil and under such oppression they immediately acquainted myself with him in order to help him along if I could. On one of his first days in the house Mitchell Hepburn, I felt sorry for him at first, but by time he got through with Mitchell, I-felt sorry for the Liberal leader."

There will be an election at an early date in the opinion of Mr. Duckworth who saw Premier Hepburn "forced in the matter" by the insistent demands of the electors of the Province. "It's got to be a showdown," he declared.

Coronation highlights were reviewed by Mr. Duckworth who attended with Mrs. Duckworth and was seen mille of seats rising tier-by-tier from the air by lifters. His visit with Mayor Robbins of Toronto, to Westminster Abbey, the guest of the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, where every detail of the impressive service could be seen a luncheon arranged by Mr. Massey for overseas representatives; the splendid and pomp and pageantry of the coronation, were all impressed upon the minds of his listeners.

Commendy Farming.

France was visited, and finally Germany. Cologne with its narrow, winding streets and Roman walls and a century old Cathedral. His trip up the Rhine to Westsaden and the country of vineyards, Switzerland and Lucerne, "and again back to Germany where the Nazi institutions were explored at first hand. Community farming, he found, was being carried on by the government with success. Unemployment was being relieved by the government, and the people were happy and well fed.

"The Germans were a lovely, gentle, clean people. But they were a mute race. No one there talks politics, or much of anything else. They have absolutely no voice. The man who forty-eight hours ago owned a car and gives a lot of his wages to the government. When you enter Germany your money is declared. When you leave you are allowed to take with you 10 German marks, except through special permission," it was described by the speaker.

Hitler rose to power through his appeal to the working class. When asked by a right-about-face, he declared himself dictator and has since kept the country in such turmoil and under such oppression they haven't time to think of replacing him. Six hundred members make up the German Reichstag, Hitler and four others are the cabinet. The dictator is controlled absolutely by capitalists of the country and the common people are "tied so hard they can't move", it was reported.

Must Get Permission.

"If a resident of Germany of military age wishes to go on a holiday away from the country, he first must secure a certificate from his doctor stating his health makes the trip necessary. He is allowed to take only fifteen marks with him. Girls who work in department stores get about 18 marks a week. A mark is equivalent roughly to 26 cents. A boy at ten years must join a Hitler Youth Corps. A girl at the age of twelve a Hitler Maid Corp. When a boy is eighteen he is forced to take two years training with the regular army. German papers are censored heavily and go editorialized in comment that during the bus strike in London, columns of type told that people in London were being massacred and blood was flowing in the streets.

"Once you get out from under the magnetizing force of the old Union Jack in Europe, there is little freedom to be [illegible] found Mr. Duckworth.

"Russia and Italy are in the same class. And in Canada, bleased country of freedom and speech, be careful and not drift into the channels which people of Central Europe have taken. Don't let the battle of the Hepburn government fool you. Mitchell F. Hepburn, if he had his way, would not soon see a fusing with him in a coalition government might have had things pretty much his own way.

"Only for Britain's steadying influence on the rest of the countries over there, Europe would be in constant chaos. We don't want that here," concluded Mr. Duckworth.

Present on the platform were Rev. Mr. Beaser, Mr. John Reynolds, president of the Thurlow Senior Club, Mr. S. Mitchell, ladies' president and besides the speakers.

The next meeting of the junior club will not be held until September unless an election date is announced sooner, I was suggested in a motion advanced by Mr. Herb Soolan, seconded by Past President Fred Robinson.

WELSH NATIONAL PARTY ASSAILED

Efforts to Cool Enthusiasm ... at Royal Visit But Little Support

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 26.—(CP)—The Welsh Nationalist Party, which tried without success to have Wales boycott the Coronation celebrations, showed its head again during the visit last week of the King and Queen. The party's endeavors to cool the widespread enthusiasm manifest at this latest visit met with little support.

On the contrary, by writing a letter to the King beforehand and couched in terms redolent of their uncompromising determination to establish Wales as a dominion, the party ran foul of a great body of public opinion in Wales, brought upon itself the outspoken condemnation of the Western Mail, leading Welsh paper, of Cardiff.

Party's Letter to the King

The party's letter to the King expressed the opinion that until Wales was given dominion status Welshmen could show no devotion to the British throne other than "a servile tribute of respect as the personal symbol of the unity of the commonwealth of nations."

The letter explained the party had declined to attend the ceremonies at Carnarvon Castle which the King visited because Welsh history had gone there officially as King of the United Kingdom of England and Wales, Llewyn Peninsula off Carnarvonshire as a "threat to Welsh life and culture and an outpost in some of their darkest convictions." The party is firmly antiwar, it added, however, that the school might be converted into a civil airdrome.

Disgruntled, Says The Mail

Publishing the party's letter in full, the Western Mail carried an editorial the same day which termed the letter "another example of the muddleheaded propaganda or a new notorious faction which, while claiming to speak on its own on other occasions on behalf of Wales, has no mere title to do so than the three sailors of Tooley Street.

"The Welsh Nationalists have no right to arrogate to themselves such a title. They speak for themselves and no one else. Their party has no considerable following in Wales. They are not even a party worthy the name, but a disgruntled rump at sixes and sevens among themselves."

"The people of Wales have shown not the slightest disposition to support their demand for the removal of the Welsh boarding school. They do not regard it as incompatible with the part which they may be called upon to play in defence of their country, or as a disagreeable necessity imposed upon them by the paramount duty of rearmament. They will certainly not vote for the removal of the school and it is therefore sheer impudence to pretend this is a national demand."

MANY EXPECTED TO CANCEL VOWS

Those Hitherto Barred Under Gift of Divorce Law Rush to Court

London, July 24 (AP)—Hundreds or even thousands of husbands and wives, hitherto barred from divorce, are expected to flock to the courts early next year to cancel their marital vows after the Lords' decision.

A divorce reform bill fathered by A. P. Herbert, famous author-parliamentarian, and enacted by the House of Commons last Monday, is expected to become operative in January. Royal assent to the legislation will be given in a brief ceremony in the House of Lords next week.

The bill was hailed by the press generally today as "the biggest reform in the field of matrimony in the last 100 years."

In addition to adultery, the only ground for divorce under the present law for the British Isles, it establishes these other causes: Desertion without cause for at least three years, cruelty, and incurable insanity for five years.

There were more than 22,000 applications for legal separation orders on grounds of cruelty and desertion last year, and it was estimated most of these would be eligible for divorce. It was considered almost certain additional judges would be appointed to handle the increase in litigation.

Many Problems in Change.

There were still other problems in connection with the change.

"The question now seems to be how far the divorce court will administer the bill so as to make divorce reasonably accessible to poor persons," said Alfred Pellow, vice-chairman of the Divorce Law Reform Union.

"The Bill is a satisfactory step forward although it is only three-quarters of what we desired."

The position of the King's Proctor under the new regime was the subject of speculation. This official, under the old law, when armed with sufficient evidence of collusion, could obstruct the granting of final divorce decrees.

E. S. P. Haynes, one of the behind-the-scenes workers for the reform, wrote in the new statute first defeat the Cambridge track team suffered since they began the land on a tour of Canada and the United States. Loaring's victory was a surprise, the Windsor youth coming from behind in the last 40 yards to take the race. Time for the distance was 48 8-10, 2-10th of a second slower than the record.

LOARING SURPRISES BY WHIPPING BRITISH STAR

Johnny Loaring., Windsor, Ont., youth and star of last years' Canadian Olympic team, stole the spotlight at the international track meet in Hamilton, when he won the 440-yard finals rac edefeating the star Godfrey Brown, captain of the Cambridge team. It was the man on the subject of removing the Proctorship.

"The King's Proctor still remains as a charge on the National Revenue through the Scots' connection," he explained. "It is anomalous because they financially reward any respondent for exposing the guilt of any petitioner.

Have to Increase Staff

"But how can we dispense with the King's Proctor, except by prodigious expansion of his staff to detect all possibilities of collusive cruelty and desertion as well as collusive adultery?

"These are not times wherein public money can be wasted . . . . on espionage, which is distasteful even to the officials concerned in it. Probably the department will receive no more money than it now receives and will merely continue as a spy in the servitude of collusion".

Herbert, author of the new law and himself happily married since 1914, chuckled over his victory and said: "I am glad that's over."

"One of my greatest ambitions is realized," he said. "Even I thought it was impossible. But we live to learn. The House of Commons is a marvellous hub of our national life, a place through which all public life may be rectified. Of that I am now convinced."

4 CARS, 6 SHEDS BURN AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Ont., July 24—(CP)—Six shed sheds used as garages and four cars and a truck were destroyed by fire here today. The fire spread rapidly and gave the firemen no chance to save the motor vehicles.

The cars were owned by Chalmers Shier, Joseph Pellitt, Mrs. A. McKnight and Alwyn Young. The truck was owned by the Kingston Hide and Fur Company.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

DENIES EDWARD SHIRKED DUTY

Former King Could Not Officiate at Aberdeen Because of Mourning

Salzburg, Austria, July 24.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor and her aunt, Mrs. Bessie Wallis Merryman, of Washington, D.C., arrived last night at the Hotel Mehlhof Inning lodge in Puschl, near Salzburg, after a minor traffic accident.

Their automobile collided with a trolley car as they drove through a crowded part of the town. Fenders were damaged slightly but no one was hurt.

Belated Statement

London, July 26.—(AP)—A suggestion the Duke of Windsor shirked his duty as King to meet Mrs. Simpson last September drew a belated denial today from Lord Provost Edward Wask of Aberdeen.

Passages in the book "Coronation Commentary" by Geoffrey Dennis intimated that when Aberdeen had prepared an elaborate welcome for the King he declined at the last moment and drove from Balmoral Castle to met a gay party of trans-Atlantics".

Mrs. Simpson accompanied by her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Rogers, visited the King at Balmoral early last autumn.

Court Mourning

At the last moment, said the book, the King delegated the Duke and Duchess of York, now King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, to open Aberdeen's Royal infirmary and carry out the program.

Wask denied that a letter authorized for publication, saying the King intimated he was unable to participate in the court mourning, but sent his brother.

"The fact Mrs. Simpson arrived in Aberdeen the same day the Duke and Duchess of York appeared at the ceremony was a mere coincidence," Wask stated. "Whatever may be said about the King's action in not cutting that day, it in no way involved a breach of royal engagement to open the infirmary."

FOOD SUPPLY IN BUFFALO MENACED

A.F. of L. And C.I.O. Combine in Effort to Secure Closed Shop

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24—(AP)—New York State praised its untried "Little Wagner Act" into service today to smother two strikes that menaced the basic food supply of 1,000,000 persons.

Dr. John P. Boland, chairman of the commission to handle labor problems outside the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board, offered his services as mediator.

Bitter rivals on the nation's labor front, the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization have pooled their efforts here to tie up 43 wholesale butter and egg markets and close three meat-packing plants.

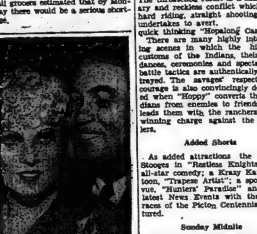
C.I.O. pickets paraded before wholesale creameries and warehouses where truck-drivers affiliated with the A.F. of L.'s Teamsters Union struck for higher wages, shorter hours and a preferential closed shop. In turn, truckers ordered their Union members not to deliver at packing plants where C.I.O. workers asked Union recognition.

A Merchants' Committee headed by Rayfiond Wattles pleaded with Governor Herbert Lehman yesterday to intervene.

Only a thin trickle of milk was made their way out of strike-bound warehouses under police guard.

Thomas F. Fay, C.I.O. organizer, said the teamsters walked out because wholesalers failed to meet demands for a 44-week minimum wage, a 44-hour work week and a closed shop. Wattles' committee claimed the sole point at issue was the closed shop.

Perishable, poultry and dairy products, flour, sugar and canned goods were the principal items retail grocers estimated that by Monday there would be a serious shortage.



OFFICIALS AND STRIKERS DEADLOCK IN STRIKE

Cornwall, Ont., July 24 (CP)—Efforts to open negotiations to end a strike of 1,100 employees of the three local mills of Canadian Cottons appeared deadlocked today and the next move in the four-day old walkout was expected.

Company officials and strikers appeared deadlocked on one point in opening negotiations—that of whether Arthur Laverty, president of the Cornwall local of the United Textile Workers Union of America, C.I.C.O. affiliate, would take part in the negotiations.

The company has asserted it will not deal with a committee of the strikers if Laverty is a member of the body and strikers refused to agree to any negotiations without him.

Meanwhile, Mayor Aaron Horovitz of Cornwall, acting as an intermediary between the striking and the company, said last night the proposed joint meeting conference between the two disputant parties was off unless something developed over the week-end.

TENSION IN CHINA SOMEWHAT EASED

Influx of Japanese War Supplies Continues in District

Tientsin, July 24 (AP)—Tension in North China apparently eased today though the influx of Japanese war supplies by rail and steamer observers pointed to danger spots where friction might renew the dispute between Chinese and Japanese military forces.

The Chinese withdrawal of the 37th division from the Peiping area put into effect the first condition for settling the trouble that broke out July 7 during Japanese troops maneuvres west of Peiping and touched off the crisis.

Transportation and other activities in the Hopeh-Chahar district approached normal for the first time since the tension arose.

A Japanese army officer at Tangku, Tientsin's seaport, declared however this situation is not yet over by any means".

Two Japanese merchantmen were anchored at Tangku unloading light tanks and munitions on the crowded docks that have become a vital part of Japan's system for bringing men and war supplies into China by sea.

Japanese attempted unsuccessfully to halt the unloading of a German vessel bringing rifles, munitions and machine guns destined for the Chinese army.

At the Movies

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hills of Old Wyoming"

A colorful, fast moving romantic portrayal of outdoor life in Western United States now playing the Capitol today only. "Hills of Old Wyoming" with William Boyd in the star role of "Hopalong Cassidy".

The film centres about a large reservation in Wyoming where a wealthy Government agent tries to use his Indian wards as a screen for his sinister plans in the form of a cattle rustling gang. Cassidy with his pals "Lucky" and "Mesquite "Lucky" Jenkins" is a peace-loving rancher who loves the picture opens. Then together with their neighbors rise in protest however at the continued cattle thieving.

The government agent inflames the Indians against the white men. The threatened result is a sanguinary and reckless conflict between the hard riding, straight shooting and sagacious cowboys.

A quick thinking "Hopalong Cassidy" saves the day, however, and all ends happily.

There are many highly interesting scenes in which the historic customs of the Indians, their war dances, ceremonies and spectacular battle tactics are authentically portrayed. The ranger's reputation for courage is also convincingly depicted when "Hoppy" converts the Indians from enemies to friends and leads them with the ranchers in a winning charge against the rustlers.

Added Shorts

As added attractions the three shorts in "Restless Knights", an all-star comedy; a short race cartoon, "Trapeze Artist"; a sport review, "Hunters of Canada" and the latest News Events with the best scenes of the Picton Centennial featured.

Sunday Midnite

Coming to the Capitol on Sunday midnite and Monday and Tuesday, a two grand revival features brought back by popular request, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in a glad girl spree that will make you sing with joy, "The Gay Divorcee" and as hit No. 2 the one and only Mae West in her goes north and Alaska goes West in "Klondike Annie."

AT THE BELLE

Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson, Humphrey Bogart Head Cast, of Exciting Drama

"Kid Galahad", a story of the prize-ring and the characters who are in it and about it . . . some of them scenes shooters and many of them double-crossers. . . . was a tremendous success a few months ago, fire, as a serial running in a national magazine, then as a novel.

Now as a movie, it is on the Belle screen today and Monday, Tuesday daily, and assures thrilling to screen lovers attracted there by three of the brightest stars of filmdom.

So well did Warner Bros. who bought author Francis Wallace's story, think of its screen possibilities, that they gave it the best of everything they had on the lot.

Seldom indeed is a trio of stars such as Edward G. Robinson, Bette Davis and Humphrey Bogart in the same film. The director was Michael Curtis who made such recent triumphs as "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Captain Blood".
